Mrs. Louie Mitchell is ill at her home in Plantersville, Ala.

Homecoming next Sunday, May 16th at the Stanton Baptist church. Attend this homecoming.

Continue to check cattle closely for bloat.

Zip up gingerbread and molasses cookies by adding a bit of grated orange peel to the batter.

IT TAKES only a little ingenuity to make ordinary foods something very special. Start on these tips for some ideas:

Stewed tomatoes can be practically epicurean when you add some crushed cereal flakes to them while heating along with one of the following seasonings: 3 tablespoons minced onion. 1 teaspoon worcestershire sauce or 1 tablespoon chili sauce.

After you pan-broil hamburgers, add to the drippings 2 teaspoons worcestershire sauce and ¼ teaspoon dry mustard. Spoon this sauce over the hamburgers.

Try spiced fruit for dessert; cook one pound dried apricots as directed; 10 minutes before done, add ½ cup brown sugar, 5 whole cloves and 2" stick cinnamon. Cover; chill overnight. Serve with cream.

This is the season for mulled drinks. Combine equal parts of apple cider and apricot whole fruit nectar; heat with a few allspice and cloves and serve at once.

Use this as a topping for coffee cake before baking: combine ¼ cup honey, with an equal amount of sugar, butter and flour. Add ½ cup cut-up walnuts or roasted almonds.

Try different seasonings for vegetables if you want them in the spotlight. French dressing does wonders for spinach and green beans, while powdered cloves are excellent with hot beets, and ginger goes with squash.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK
Spanish Beef Salad
Serves 6)

6 slices cold roast beef
Tomato French Dressing
1 head of lettuce, shredded
6 thick slices tomato
6 onion slices
6 green pepper rings

Cut roast beef into long narrow strips. Marinate in dressing for an hour. Toss in salad bowl with lettuce and additional dressing. Border bowl with alternating slices of tomato, onion and green pepper.

MULBERRY CHURCH

There was a fair congregation for both services at Mulberry Sunday. Rev. J. W. Jones preached a fine sermon on Sunday morning using for his text, "The Home." On Sunday night he preached another good sermon.

The treasurer's report was given by Casey Cummings. Some recommendations from the deacons were read by the pastor. Lewis McGee and were as follows: First Bro. Jones will invite the evangelist for next summer revival. Second, Mr. Dodd drive away for the Sand Vocation Bible School. Third, that our church will give $50.00 a month to the Associational Missionary for the three summer months.

There will be special Mothers Day songs at Mulberry Sunday. A free will offering will be given for our aged ministers.

The Mabel Woodward circle will meet with Mrs. Lois Jones on Wednesday May 5th at 2 p.m.

The Ruth Ford circle will meet on Tuesday May 4th at 7:30 p.m. with Mrs. Hazel McGee.

Bro. Jones stated Sunday that the summer revival will probably be in August this year on account of the busy season during July.

The Senior play at Isabella was a real knock out. There was laughter from beginning to the end. Each character did their part well.

Miss Phelan entered Sun. 7 the Seniors and Juniors will have their banquet at the school auditorium.

Dr. Marshall Wilson's subject last week was his father Mr. Mat Wilson of Verbena.

Miss Truman Stuckey has a visit for at Mulberry Sunday morning.

Mrs. Dessie Roper is spending a few days this week in Anniston with her daughter, Mrs. Tony Evans.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Jones were Saturday guests of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Jones.

Teacher Leaders of the 4-H clubs throughout the County were recognized at the County 4-H Rally Friday, April 23rd. Leaders take a very active interest and have an important part in the 4-H Club program in the County. Without the interest and assistance of these onleaders, the extension staff of the County would be unable to carry on the 4-H Club program. Presenting a certificate to each leader is only a small way that the extension service has of showing its appreciation to these leaders for what they are doing. Certificates are awarded according to the number of years of leadership—less than five years; five years, ten years, fifteen years, and twenty years.

Mrs. Johnnie M. Lane announces that thirty-five leaders in the County will receive certificates. The following is a list of leaders, number of years they have served, and the Club they serve.

PIGS SHOULD EAT EARLY TO REACH EARLY MARKET

Auburn, Ala.—In pushing pigs to an early market, remember that the brood sow's milk flow begins to slacken after the third week.

So get those little porkers eating as soon as possible, advises G. B. Phillips, API Extension animal industry specialist. Some of them will begin eating at two weeks or even sooner if they receive a palatable started feed fortified with minerals and antibiotics.

"If you can't get a fortified starter," emphasizes Phillips, "feed pigs something, preferably hulled or rolled oats."

SEED SCREENINGS ARE COSTLY, WARNS JONES

Screenings are worthless for planting purposes. In fact, they're dangerous.

According to Ralph Jones, API Extension seed crops specialist farmers who sell their good seed and keep screenings or tailings for planting make a serious mistake. Here's why.

"Screenings contain only a small percentage of good seed," he explains. "Most of the crop seed is light and immature and will not produce strong seedling plants. But more important, screenings are made up largely of weed seed. And a farmer who uses these tailings plants millions of weed back on his farm."

Mr. Smith offered the following preamble and resolution for adoption; which were duly seconded by Mr. Lenoir:

WHEREAS, Chilton County, Alabama has plans for the construction and improvement of a permanent type of paved road in Chilton County, Alabama, which said road is from Mineral Springs to the Lay Dam Road, and which said road has been designated as project number SACP-325-C, and

WHEREAS, a map of said project is duly filed and recorded in the office of the Judge of Probate of Chilton County, Alabama, in map book number three, page number forty-five, and

WHEREAS, on said map there is designated the property owners across whose property said rights-of-way and easements pass, and

WHEREAS, all said designated property owners have executed conveyances to Chilton County of said rights-of-way and easements, except across the properties designated as D. Cleckler; Bill Mims; W. R. Johnson; Paschal; McKee Estate; Ernest Deloach and R. A. Rhodes, and

WHEREAS, it is necessary to make, construct, widen and extend said public highway or road over and across said tracts of land for the use of the citizens of Chilton County, Alabama and the public at large.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED AND ORDERED:

That Chilton County proceed immediately to institute and prosecute condemnation proceedings to acquire the necessary rights-of-way and easements for the construction and improvement of said highway project upon, over and across the lands designated on said map as the lands of D. Cleckler; Bill Mims; W. R. Johnson; Paschal; McKee Estate; Ernest Deloach; and R. A. Rhodes. All of said lands lying and being within the boundaries of the right-of-way of said map as recorded.

AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED AND ORDERED: That Joe Mullins, an Attorney at Law, be and he is hereby employed and authorized to file and prosecute said condemnation suit on behalf of Chilton County and to do any and all acts necessary for the acquisition of said rights-of-way and easements as shown by said map and specifications approved by the State Highway Department.

AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED AND ORDERED: That compensation for services rendered by said Attorney shall be fixed at a reasonable amount upon entering final decree in the Probate Court in said matter.

AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED AND ORDERED: That the highway shown and embraced within the property lines of said map as recorded be and the same is hereby declared a public road or highway.

The above stated preamble and resolution were adopted by a unanimous vote of all the members present and the Chairman declared said resolution duly adopted.

Mr. Dunlap offered the following resolution for adoption; which was duly seconded by Mr. Motley:

BE IT RESOLVED AND ORDERED: That Chilton County take a page advertisement in the 1954 issue of "The Alabama County Magazine," for the cost of $9.00, advertising the resources of Chilton County.

The above stated resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote of all the members present and the Chairman declared said resolution duly adopted.

Mr. Motley offered the following resolution for adoption; which was duly seconded by Mr. Lenoir:

BE IT RESOLVED AND ORDERED: There being no further business to come before the meeting, that said Board adjourn.

The above stated resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote of all the members present.

I, Harold H. Smyer, Clerk of The Board of Revenue and Control of Chilton County, Alabama, hereby certify that the foregoing minutes of the proceedings of said Board meeting held on April 26, 1954 were entered and recorded in this minute book, reproduced and a sufficient number of copies of same filed in the office of the Probate Judge, a copy of same furnished to the Chilton County News, a newspaper published in Chilton County, for publication, and a copy of the same was posted in a conspicuous place on the courthouse on the 3rd day of May, 1954.

"I REMEMBER"
BY THE OLD TIMERS

From M. D. Merry, Hudson, Wisconsin: Red McDonald, a pioneer cowboy, who came to Montana in the early eighties told of one day in late October, while riding along the ridges that bordered the Yellowstone. He heard an unfamiliar sound and saw a large, black cloud of dust north of the river.

He rode to the highest pinnacle and soon an angry, bellowing buffalo herd appeared out of the bad lands, jumped into the river and started across. He watched the migration for several hours. Often one would fall but the herd trampled him to death without paying any attention. Some would wander away from the herd and stay behind. These the cowboys killed for their winter meat.

The herd was enroute to Indian Territory and Texas, where they would feed during the winter months and rear their young. When spring opened they would again head north until they reached Saskatchewan to feed during the summer.

From Edna P. Mecum, Portland, Oregon: I remember 77 years ago in Indiana when I, after being the "baby" of the family for six years, had to give up my favored spot by mother for a new sister. And, then, later on she had to do the same for another newcomer. I'd like to cross those miles again and see both their faces, as they were then, or as I last saw them in 1912 and 1927 respectively. I could again be a happy little girl.

Around OUR HOUSE
by Kathryn Tucker Windham

Not long ago, the seven-year-old, the five-year-old, the one-year-old and I were invited to spend the afternoon in the country. The children, always eager for a new adventure, wanted to make the short trip on the bus, so we did.

The seven-year-old and the five-year-old shared a seat near the front of the bus, and the baby sat in my lap across the aisle. No sooner had the big bus pulled out of the terminal than the five-year-old stood up and began a commentary on the passing scenery.

"We buy groceries at that store. That's where I go to Sunday School. We live right there! That's my friend's house. Over there's the cemetery. The creek's down there," he informed the bus passengers, sounding like a lecturer on a guided tour. After a slight lull, he announced reassuringly,

"Mother brought some extra diapers for the baby just in case she wets her pants on the bus."

That bus trip was an adventure, all right.

The next door neighbor was busy giving an old wheelbarrow a coat of glistening white paint when we stopped by to see her this morning. She is a notoriously neat person, but, even so, painting a wheelbarrow white seemed awfully foolish.

She chuckled when we asked about her choice of color.

"This old wheelbarrow isn't going to be used for its original purpose," she explained. "I'm going to fill it with rich dirt, plant flowers in it and have myself a portable flower garden.

When the flowers bloom, I can move my garden to any spot in the yard where I want added beauty and color."

Now I wish we had a discarded wheelbarrow around our house so we could have a portable flower garden, too.

Our neighbor around the corner has a special talent for creating novel floral arrangements even without a wheelbarrow.

She also has a knack for pleasing children with growing plants. She often provides entertainment for a sick child by helping him make a hanging basket from a large carrot. First they cut off the top of the carrot and hollow out the center. Then they tie a gay ribbon around the carrot, hang it in a sunny window and fill the center with water. The child is delighted to watch lacy leaves appear and grow over the unusual hanging basket.

For decorating her own home, this neighbor saves the tops from pineapples, sets them in water and plants them in a pot of soil. Visitors are nearly always intrigued by the greenery, and most of them can't guess what it is.

Speaking of plants, people have the strangest ways of making them flourish. Our neighbor waters her geraniums with bloody chicken water (ugh.), and another neighbor buries two raw oysters around the roots of her ferns every few weeks.

For special desserts or for parties, our good cook neighbor recommends Peach Fluff made like this:

Whip 1-2 cup cream until stiff and beat in 1 tablespoon sugar. Fold in 5 diced canned peach halves, 6 marshmallows cut in small pieces, 2 tablespoons chopped nuts and 1 cup cubed stale cake. Spoon into individual dishes and refrigerate several hours before serving.

USE A MULCH TO GET COVER CROP STARTED

Green cover crops should be planted on unsightly galled spots, gullies, roadbanks, and eroding field borders.

And to assure good stands, says S. R. Doughty, API Extension soil conservationist, use a protective mulch until the crops can get started. To hold seed and fertilizer in place and provide needed organic matter, put down a thin, uniform layer of such material as damaged hay, crop residue, or leaf litter.

"Mulching also protects the soil from erosion, conserves moisture, and protects young seedlings from sun and wind," continues Doughty. "And it's a simple, inexpensive way to get those valuable cover crops well established."

TAKE SPECIAL CARE OF EGGS IN WARM WEATHER

AUBURN, Ala.—Unless properly handled, foods lose quality and freshness during warm weather.

And eggs are no exception, says Mary Hulsey, API Extension nutritionist. Eggs left for three days at room temperature may lose as much freshness as those kept in the refrigerator for two weeks.

THE UNUSUAL CAT
By Sally S. Eads

SANDY, my twin brother, and I had wished a hundred times for a cat, but the day we found him, we were not even thinking of a cat. We were playing in the apple orchard, and suddenly we saw him watching a field-mouse hole under a young apple tree.

The cat was black and white with a tail that looked like a plume. Oh, he was beautiful!

We slipped up and set down near him. He was a little shy, but you could see that he wasn't afraid. Pretty soon he ran away.

"Maybe if we feed him, we can tame him," Sandy suggested, and we ran to the house and got a pork chop. When we got back to the mouse hole, the cat was watching again. He musta been hungry. We slipped up and laid the chop in front of him, and he grabbed it and ran off, waving that beautiful plume of a tail.

After that we took him some meat every day, and he quit watching for mice and looked for us. We named him Egypt and soon he would sit on our shoulders and eat from our hands.

Pa was always writing articles for farm magazines, about happenings on our farm, but we didn't tell him about Egypt. He might not like our cat. But we never had any trouble over him till the afternoon Ma had a party for Mrs. Swain, the new Farm Bureau man's wife. It was going to be a fine party, with lots of sandwiches, cake, and coffee, and some women.

Sandy and I were supposed to play in the orchard, but we decided to slip back to the kitchen and get some party food for ourselves and Egypt. I thought this would be a good time to bring in our cat for people to see. We had been eating in the kitchen, and with Egypt sitting on my shoulder, we sauntered into the living room, only intending to stay for a minute or two. Ma was busy and didn't notice us.

Egypt had never looked so pretty before: Black as coal with that white stripe. When he saw the ladies, he got excited and jumped off my shoulder, and he really stole the show. You never heard anything like it. China and silverware clattered to the floor. The women screamed and some of them stood up on Ma's good chairs, others ran out the door, and fat Mrs. Clinton who could neither climb or run, dropped to her knees.

Through it all, Egypt acted brave and dignified. He would turn his face from a screaming woman, wave his beautiful tail at her in a friendly gesture, and she'd scream some more. I thought Ma would faint. Pa came running from the garden, asking, "What's the matter?"

"Skunk, polecat!" the women shrieked. Then Pa saw Egypt. I'll have to shoot him," he said, and ran for his rifle.

I thought Egypt was a goner, but Sandy grabbed him and dashed out to the orchard. I'm sure Pa was glad.

As the women began creeping back into the house, our minister came in. I guess he thought he had run into a drunken brawl, but Pa explained the situation.

Mrs. Clinton was still sitting on the floor. The minister turned his head while he and Pa hoisted Mrs. Clinton to her chair. Then the women all sat down.

After the guests had gone, Ma sat down to rest. She looked tired.

Pa came in laughing. After he had lit his pipe, he looked at Ma and said, "The kids taming the skunk and bringing him to the party will make a bit of humor for my column in the farm magazine."

"Humor?" Ma asked. "Do you call this afternoon's tragedy, humor?"

"Youngsters, your mother doesn't seem to have a sense of humor," Pa said.

"No, she hasn't," Sandy answered. But really, I felt sorry for Ma.

Do You Have One in Your Town?

I was attracted to Charlie's hardware store yesterday by a sign in the window that read: "VISIT OUR 'U-FIX-IT SHOP. BRING IN YOUR REPAIR JOBS. USE OUR EQUIPMENT FREE."

Made me think of four or five things I should have fixed up long ago. Charlie says lots of folks get the same itch.

"Nobody wants to buy a tool they'll never use again, for one small repair job," Charlie told me. "But now folks are mending their things down here. And they're buying lots of parts and things they need to do the job."

From where I sit, this idea can be applied to business, too. Andy, down at the Green Gardens, has something like it. But the way his plan works, Andy does the work, and his customers enjoy the results. He voluntarily cooperates with the Self-Regulation program of the Brewing Industry by keeping his place clean and fixed up. That way, Andy never has to "repair" his customers' good will.

PLACE FEED HOPPERS SO CHICKS CAN FIND THEM

Auburn, Ala.—Put feed where chicks can find it.

Research has proved that accessible feed means bigger birds and more profits for growers, says John Weeks, APi Extension poultryman

"In a recent U. S. Department of Agriculture experiment," explains the farm leader, "two groups of chicks were fed under different hopper arrangements. Group I was fed at floor level; Group II was fed from hoppers outside the hover. In both cases the hover temperature was 95 degrees and the room temperature 75 degrees.

"During the first two days chicks in Group I ate one and one-half grams of feed; those in the second group ate only one half gram each. At 18 days of age the 100 birds in Group I weighed 5.4 pounds more than those in Group II.

"In a six-thousand capacity broiler house," concludes Weeks, "this difference means 324 pounds of meat worth $90.72 on a 28-cent margin.

Things we -SEE- and Hear

by "Tuck"

Heard a fellow say the other day that a pick-up, a one-horse wagon and a wheelbarrow was all just alike. They were just the right size to be wrong for everything. His wife spoke up and told him that he sure did use the pick-up more'n he did the wheelbarrow, so it must be some better.

Mr. Sparkman sure has the charm He shook hands with a lady down at Chicago Sales the other day and the poor soul got so excited she walked off without her shoes. She wasn't barefooted, however, she had just bought a new pair. They tell me even Reedie was a little excited.

"The die is cast" as the saying goes and so are the votes so why can't folks make the best of the good men. The better men, in fact.

Vacationist to druggist: "Ya got anything that's good for mosquito bites on top of poison ivy, over sunburn?"

Most folks would admit their faults right enough . . . if they just had any.

Heard of running your own self out of business before, but not quite so carelessly as the want-ad that was supposed to read: "All our customers go away pleased," but read "all our customers go away please.' must be a new twist in human psychology.

We know a fella around town that would have been one customer better off if he had only learned from his little mother to keep his mouth shut, especially in business. One man thought the other needed the business, but before he had a chance to act the other fella said something that seemed to be rather unnecessary thereby losing a customer before he got it. See, you can stay in business just by regarding the other fella's feelings. Just goes to show you.

Don't form an opinion from what we say, do what you know is right.

Gurthie Easterling had an old cat in his backyard (and mine) and we had commented on the fact that he didn't run around (the cat) like other red-blooded American cats did (boy cats that is). We found out the other day: the old boy had kittens. Needless to say, this changes our whole opinion of him. In fact, we didn't know he could do it.

Say a sign on a local establishment that said, "We serve Barbers." Old Jelly Bean and Reese Mims and the boys will be happy to learn that they are exclusives now. Aw let's burst their bubble, we knew it was ice cream all the time.

A fella came to another fella the other day talking about guys with a certain type of line strung across the river in places were taking all the game fish for themselves and running others that made their living that way off the riverbanks. It was also related that there was no law to provide for this sort of hoggishness and disregard for fellow fishermen.

Fellas, we don't reckon there's a law that says you can't cruise down the river some night in a power driven boat that's maybe tangled up with some old grappling hook along the way. I mean, anyone could make a mistake. We don't agree with the "all for me, none for you" boys either and there aughta be a law.

Keep seeing where an attorney's epitaph read "Defense rests." That's nothing, I saw one on the resting place of a dealer in stolen jewelry, that read the same way. "de fence rests."

BUSTER SANDERS THANKS VOTERS

I wish to thank my many friends in Chilton County for their loyal support in the recent campaign. It was a clean campaign throughout and I feel that I not only renewed many old acquaintances but added many new friends. I thank you from the bottom of my heart for your cooperation and support.

J. S. (Buster) SANDERS.

HERMAN LECROY THANKS VOTERS

Herman Lecroy stated this week that he was deeply appreciative of the many who supported him in his recent campaign for Place No. 5 on the Chilton County Board of Education. He asked that the Chilton County News extend his thanks to all who so kindly supported him in the race.

Tomorrow Night-

Local Boys In Line-Up Of East-West Baseball Game

The City Park here in Clanton is getting off to a fast start this year. This Friday night (tomorrow night, that is) the Clanton Lions Club is staging their first East-West Boys Baseball Game. This game is played for the benefit of Alabama Sight, Inc., and all gate receipts go directly to that organization.

The Lions have issued invitation to players from nineteen schools; and sixteen have accepted. We will have visitors from West Blocton, Centreville, Montevallo, Calera Childersburg, Weogufka, Eclectic Alex City, Tallassee, Wetumpka Marbury, Isabella, Maplesville, Jemison, and Columbiana. Coach Spicer, of Chilton County high, is having six boys from this years team in this big game. The local boys are Larry Minor, an outfielder with a .355 hitting average; Bobby Easterling, third baseman; Don Miller infielder, with a .333 average; Bill Headley, first baseman; Jack Dennis and Bobby Carl Wyatt, one of the batteries for CCHS.

Pat Duke, of Centreville, is one of the outstanding players. Pat is a catcher with a .520 batting record for this year; and, this is his third straight year to hit .500 or better. Last year he was chosen the All-Star catcher in the Blue Division of the Bessemer Amateur league. He played at halfback on the football team and it is likely that many of the local footballers will remember him quite well. Pat has signed a grant-in-aid to play football and baseball for Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn.

Mead Stallings will probably team with Duke to form one battery for the West team; and, the Easterners can counter them with Bobby Carl Wyatt (who lost only to Lanier) and Jack Dennis, both of CCHS; or Ed McGowin and Jimmy Graham, a winning battery for Wetumpka high this spring.

Admission for this double header is only 50c for adults and 25c for children under 12. If you've been looking for a bargain in entertainment you don't want to miss this one.

You don't have to be a Lion to be Lion hearted. Come out and look so that others may see.

CAMPAIGN LAUNCHED FOR REDUCING LOSS FOM FOREST FIRES

It's time to get [illegible] and the annual campaign of the Forestry Division of the Department of Agriculture [illegible] forest fires is being stepped up.

This year an effort is being made to enlist the cooperation of the nation's youths a swell as adults. Business firms also are being called upon to help. For example, art [illegible] have been completed [illegible] display pieces depicting [illegible] by Smokey Bear, official [illegible] the fire-prevention campaign, to be displayed in A&P stores across the land.

The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company also is cooperating in the campaign to enlist the cooperation of the nation's youths by offering a Smokey Bear belt as a premium in its stores in conjunction with the purchase of Ann Page brand of beans or prepared spaghetti. Each youth who obtains one of these is eligible to receive an official Junior Forest Ranger kit from Smokey Bear Headquarters in Washington, D. C.

Although the Smokey Bear symbol was once received in 1945, according to Clinton Davis, Director of Forest Fire Prevention for the Forestry Division, it was not adopted by the Forestery Division as a central figure until 1947, and has been used extensively ever since. There was an average of 210,000 forest fires annually prior to the inauguration of the Smokey Bear campaign. Since then the number has been reduced to an average of 185,000, even though thousands of additional people visit forest and woodland areas every year for picnics camping, hunting and fishing expeditions.

If it were not for the extensive fire-prevention program, of which the Smokey Bear symbol is the central figure, Davis estimates the number of fires would be running at the rate of between 300,000 and 350,000 annually because of increased use of forest areas. Because fires caused by people run in direct proportion to forest use by the public we are grateful for a widespread support as possible to bring home the need for keeping down the huge annual loss of our natural resources used by fires, he said.

E. A. (RED) FULMER AT CLANTON MOTORS

E. A. (Red) Fulmer

J. B. Burnett announced this week that E. A. (Red) Fulmer had been added to the personnel in the sales department of Clanton Motors, Inc.

"Red" is well known in Clanton and Chilton County in business circles and recently was a candidate in the race for Tax Collector. He invites his many friends to visit him at his new place and to inspect the new 1954 Ford.

CRIPPLED CHILDREN CLINIC

The spring field clinic for crippled children and adults was held on Thursday May 13 at the First Baptist church, Clanton.

Dr. Earl Caldwell was examining physician, with Miss Wildsmith of the Crippled Children Service, heading a staff of twelve workers from various State Departments rendering service to the handicapped.

The 73 patients attending the clinic from Chilton and Bibb counties were served lunches given by all the churches and clubs of Clanton. Volunteer workers from local churches and clubs worked in all capacities to expedite the services of the clinic.

The public was invited to see the wonderful work carried on with funds donated to the Easter Seal Sale.

Through the local newspapers the co-ordinating committee would express its sincere appreciation to the First Baptist church for the use of its facilities and to all churches and clubs for the many services so freely give each year which enables these field clinics to meet the vital need of crippled and handicapped children and adults.

COST OF DEFENDING CITIES

Recently a group of the nation's mayors met in Washington to discuss with Federal officials the problems of defending U. S. cities from enemy air attack. A number of top Federal officials discussed the problem for days, without reaching a general agreement

The question is who should pay the cost, and who should have the responsibility, of defending U. S. cities in the event of an atomic attack. The cities look to the Federal Government to supply much of the cost of defense, while some Federal officials see this task as primarily a municipal responsibility

President Dwight D. Eisenhower's psychological warfare chief, C. D. Jackson, told the mayors in last month's meeting they had the major responsibility for civil defense of their cities. A number of the mayors called on the Federal Government to provide them more aid.

Another problem is that of Government insurance for bombed out families. In many of the nation's largest cities, the total destruction from atomic attack is great and it is not inconceivable that mass destruction in some areas could financially embarrass some of the large insurance companies

While some companies write policies which cover destruction of their homes from any cause, others are not so insured. These companies would face a financial loss in the event of atomic attack, and the Federal Government might have to provide low-cost home insurance against enemy air attack in the event of atomic conflict.

The Government should formulate plans for low-cost home insurance and it must certainly play a major role in coordinating defense arrangements in the major cities of the country. This conclusion is generally being reached, although in a democracy the tragedy is often the fact that the right conclusion is reached only after warfare starts and terrible casualties have been inflicted by the aggressor

RURAL LIFE SUNDAY

Springtime is an eternal reminder of the tug and pull of the earth on the heart of man.

Closely related to this is the urge to worship in some rural cathedral and to celebrate the re-birth of the soul with the coming of springtime.

Rural Life Sunday, celebrated by many churches on May 23, affords us all an opportunity to remind ourselves of the importance of strong roots in America's search for continued freedom.

Out of our earth has come our freedom, as out of the strong rural churches in the past generations came to us our faith in simple things like seedtime and harvest, praying and workin, and freedom and liberty

America will never pay her debt to the rural churches of the past for their contributions.

But by being reminded of the importance of rural communities and rural welfare today, our people can put the future [illegible]

So Rural Life Sunday once again has come to remind us of our [illegible] simple faith and the multitudes of people who will pray in little white churches whose spires reach the sky.

Princeton, New Jersey, What is rank and file voters think are the today regard as the most important issues that should be discussed during the coming months by candidates for the nation's Congressional and Senatorial offices?

To determine the answer to this all-important question, a staff of interviewers sent to [illegible] to personally interview a representative cross-section of the nation's voters on the following question

"What do you think are the most important issues (problems) that should be discussed during the coming Congressional election campaign?"

Results of the survey, which will be released to newspapers, show that [illegible] on the minds of voters as the present time.

1. Unemployment, business conditions; [illegible] way to keep country out of depression (25% of all those interviewed mentioned this issue)
2. Taxes, [illegible] reduction (No. 1 issue)
3. Foreign policy, [illegible] handling Russia; the Red menace; Indo-China, [illegible] affairs (13% mentioned this)
4. Communism, [illegible] communism in government; subversives; [illegible] communists (10% mentioned this)

In all, [illegible] issues were mentioned by [illegible] voters interviewed.

Next most frequently mentioned issues were [illegible] matters of [illegible]

The farm problem, [illegible] prices (Mentioned by [illegible] East and West Central States and the South)

National security, [illegible] tense

Honesty, [illegible]

Increased social security, [illegible] ent payments inadequate

Juvenile delinquency

10. Civil rights and racial problems (Mentioned chiefly in the South.)

Also receiving some mention are housing; labor-management problems, such as strikes, wages, and the Taft-Hartley Law; highways and traffic; water; balancing the budget; McCarthyism; cost of living; Federal aid to education; economy in government, and backing up the Eisenhower Administration

People living in the New England and Middle Atlantic States rate unemployment-business conditions; tax reduction, foreign affairs, and Communism the top four.

In the East Central States (Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, and Ohio) the top problems are unemployment; taxes and tax relief; farm problems foreign policy and Communism.

In the West Central State (Iowa Kansas, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, and South Dakota), farm problems, unemployment, taxes, foreign policy and communism are named most frequently.

In the South, racial problmes and racial segregation, unemployment taxes, farm problems, foreign policy and Communism in that order are most frequently mentioned.

People living in the Far West name unemployment; taxes; foreign policy, and Communism the top issues.

An interesting sidelight in today's survey is that Democrats and Independents alike agree in naming the same top four issues; unemployment-business conditions, taxes and tax relief; foreign policy, and communism in that order as the ones they would like to hear discussed in the election campaigning soon to begin.

And GOP members across the nation give top mention to the same four, although not exactly in the same order.

Rank and file Republicans rate taxes and tax reduction the No. 1 issue they would like to hear discussed, closely followed by unemployment-business conditions.

Then come foreign policy and communism.

Today's survey findings should give state and national leaders in both political camps much to tihnk about.

Undoubtedly, the party that does a better job of convincing the American voters that their own political party can do a better job of improving employment and business conditions, getting relief from taxts doing a better job of handling Russia, ridding the country of Commies inside the U. S. A., and handling farm problems and farm prices should win out next November.

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

I had the courage but [illegible] of attending an event of historic [illegible] In the rotunda of the national Capitol, President Eisenhower [illegible] dedicated the large fresco [illegible] the 300-foot dome [illegible] ambitious panels. [illegible] painting, over 58 feet above the floor of the rotunda, depicts in [illegible] 400 years of American history.

[illegible] as you undoubtedly [illegible] art or method [illegible] spread plaster [illegible] his method, probably [illegible] Egyptians and [illegible] Michelangelo, [illegible] like art which has [illegible] regular canvas [illegible]

[illegible] painting was [illegible] the President [illegible] by Constantino [illegible] the [illegible] panels before [illegible] actually [illegible] of the seven [illegible] 1890 to 1898, and [illegible] Costaggini [illegible] remaining panels [illegible] Since no [illegible] upon or approved [illegible] of the frieze [illegible] death in 1904 [illegible] blank space has remained [illegible] circular painting for some [illegible]

[illegible] attempts were [illegible] completion [illegible] unsuccessful [illegible] approved a [illegible] introduced for the purpose, Rep. Thomas A. Jenkins, [illegible] Passage of the Jenkins [illegible] made it possible for a distinguished American artist, Allyn Cox, to complete the frieze only last year by the addition of three panels.

The first of the three final panels represents the end of the War Between the States and portrays a Confederate and Union soldier shaking hands. The second panel painted by Mr. Cox, representing the Spanish-American War, shows a naval gun crew preparing to fire a salvo. The third and final panel depicts the beginning of the air age and pictures the Wright brother's first air flight.

The earlier panels which were executed by Brumidi and Costaggini show: the Landing of Columbus; Cortez and Montezuma in the Temple of the Sun; Pibarro in Peru; Burial of DeSoto; Pocahontas Saving the Life of Captain John Smith; Landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth Rock; Penn's Treaty with the Indians; Settlement of New England, Oglethorpe and the Muscogee Indians; Battle of Lextington; Declaration of Independence; Surrender of Lord Cornwallis; Death of Accumseh; The American Army entering the City of Mexico; and the California gold rush.

Tuesday's dedication ceremonies were opened and closed with prayers offered by the House and Senate chaplains. During the ceremony both Vice President Nixon and Speaker of the House Martin spoke briefly. Included among a number of distinguished guests who were introduced were Milton Wright and Mrs. H. S. Miller, nephew and niece of Orville and Wilbur Wright. Also introduced were Artist Allyn Cox and his wife.

Congressman Jenkins, author of th resolutio nthat made possible the completion of the frieze, introduced President Eisenhower. Speaking to [illegible] than 800 persons, including the membership of the House and Senate, the President dedicated the famous fresco to a peaceful future for the United States and the world. He said that the completed panels which trace American history from the days of travel by horse and sailboat to the age of powered flight, did not conclude the story of America. Rather, the President pointed out that the statue above the Capitol dome "faces eastward, ready to meet the challenge of a new day," and he predicted a future frieze would include panels representing real and lasting progress toward peace.

In concluding, the President said "I pray with you and share your confidence that the future will be one of increasing strength and increasing security for all Americans . . . . in that spirit I dedicate this frieze."

Hearing Set for Coosa

The House Public Works Committee will hold a hearing this week on legislation that will make it possible for the Alabama Power Company to construct five additional dams on the Coosa River at an estimated cst of $100 million. I plan to appear at the hearing and make a statement in favor of this legislation. I am optimistic over the chances of an earl yand favorable report by the Public Works Committee.

Recruiting Assist. Program May 10-June 10

MAYOR'S PROCLAMATION

C. Fenn Jones

WHEREAS, the men and women of America are playing a major and indispensable part in our national security effort and their services are vital in the preparation and perpetuation of our defense programs to build a powerful military establishment as a deterrent to attack by an aggressor nation or nations; and

WHEREAS, thousands of our young men heretofore volunteered and are volunteering their services in the United States Army and the United States Air Force, there still exists an acute shortage of men and women volunteers to fill vacancies created by the demands made on our highly specialized and mechanical Armed Forces by new and continuing technological development and

WHEREAS, in order to more fully acquaint the American people with this acute shortage of qualified military personnel in the United States Army and the United State, Air Force, the many opportunitiese offered such personnel in our modern Armed Forces and to impress our citizens with the fact that without these voluntary enlistments the efficacy of our Army and our Air Force operations is immeasurably impaired; and

WHEREAS, the men and women volunteering their services will be carefully and thoroughly trained to fill the occupations available in our Army and our Air Force, their contributions will be invaluable to our national security as well as in establishing a career foundation for them in their future endeavors;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, C. Fenn Jones, Mayor of this City of Clanton, Alabama do hereby endorse The American Legion Recruiting Assistance Program of Post 6 to stimulate voluntary enlistment and proclaim the period of May 10 to June 10 as mayor for the city of Clanton, and urge our young men and women qualified and eligible for military service to contact the U. S. Army and the U. S. Air Force Recruiting Officer at Clanton, Alabama so that the city of Clanton will, as it has in the past, meet its obligation in this all-important campaign to obtain essential volunteers for the service of their country.

C. FENN JONES, Mayor.

Many railroads were built or companies were chartered in the 1850 and 1860 decades, but when the War Between the States started in 1861 there still was no line connecting the Tennessee Valley with the southern part of Alabama. The railroads that were built proved to be a great stimulus to the development of agriculture and industry

Larry's Party—

Larry Cobb, a pupil of Mrs. Langston's 5th grade, has been ill and out of school for two months. He had a birthday Friday, May 7, 1954 and was eleven years of age. His room mates of Jemison elementary gave him a surprise party. The principal, Mr. Peterson gave us permission to go to his home. Mr. and Mrs. Cobb thought it was a nice plan. We planned to go at 12:30 to 2:00 p.m. We were going to surprise Larry, and had planned for Larry to be in his chair in their front yard resting as usual. We planned the games, and the refreshments were to be served by Mrs Langston, Mrs. Cobb, and Mrs. Cost We, the fifth grade were to furnish the drinks.

As we went to Larry's home we marched in pairs, Mrs. Langston led the parade. We went the back road for safety. Larry was supposed to be out in the front yard. Mrs Langston sent two boys to see about it, while we stopped at Miss Sybil Langston's home. While there we looked at some very small kitties the boys returned and told us they were telling Larry they were taking him for a ride. So we slipped to the yard and hid behind the shrubbery. When they brought Larry out we got up and started singing, "Happy Birthday." He and his mother were very thrilled. They carried him to his chair on the lawn and we showered him with gifts. Then we played games. The ones who won in the games were, B. C. Scott, Lois Ann Woodley Gene Sorrell, Gene Lessely, Larry Cobb, Teria Sue Dawson, Mary Ann Miller and Rosa Emma Cofer. After that we had the refreshments We had a very beautiful cake, peanuts, mints, and drinks. Mr. Cobb came and took pictures of us around Larry. After that Mrs. Langston said it was time to leave.

As we started to leave we said good-bye to Larry and told him and his mother we had a wonderful time. When we got back to school it was time to go home

THE CELEBRITY

By Rob E. Mack

MR. PEMBERTON glared impatiently at his two nervous employees. "Miss Parker! Didn't you find that instruction sheet yet? If you'd only learn to file things in the right place—Miss Locke—I'll be back at two. Get that mimeograph repaired and run off Hobson's order. And see if you can't clean up this place. Looks like Lacey's Basement on Bargain Day. Remember, Wendy Wicker is coming back with me and I expect everything to be running smoothly!" The door banged behind him.

"That," groaned Dixie Parker, "is all this mad-house needs. A visiting celebrity!" She yanked open another file drawer. "Did Wendy Wicker really work here before she won that Hollywood movie contract?"

Ann Locke shrugged. "That's what the boss says. She's visiting her folks this week and he's showing her off at the business men's luncheon. Huh! I'll bet he didn't give her a ton of dictation just at quitting time every day!"

For the next two hours, Ann worked frantically on the stubborn mimeograph machine, while Dixie tore the files apart.

"Here we are!" announced Mr. Pemberton, sashering a lovely blonde in black velvet through the door. His smile froze. "Miss Wicker," he said stiffly, "I must apologize for my staff. They had orders to clean up this office before you arrived."

Wendy's laugh was warm and friendly. "Hi, kids! Don't let him scare you."

Dixie and Ann laughed nervously. Wendy pointed a white glove at the mimeograph machine.

"Don't tell me that old wreck's still around? What's it doing—having hiccups again?"

"Great Scott!" yelled Mr. Pemberton.

"Calm down, Mr. P.," said Wendy. She pushed Ann gently aside and began tinkering with the grimy machine.

Five minutes later, the mimeograph was operating perfectly. "Nothing to it," grinned Wendy. "Just a little trick I learned back in the old days."

Mr. Pemberton was regarding her with amused awe.

"Mr. Pemberton," said Dixie, "could that last instruction sheet be in your brief case?

"WHAT?" The lamb became a lion again. "Now see here, young lady—don't try to cover up your incompetence by blaming me!"

"Oh, Mr. Pemberton . . ." cooed Wendy, holding his open brief case in one hand and a sheet of notes in the other, "could this be it?"

Wendy laughed and winked at Dixie. "Still up to his old tricks. He hasn't changed a bit." She turned to Ann. "How does he treat you? A lap full of dictation just as you powder your nose to go home?" Ann's face reddened. Mr Pemberton choked on his cigar.

"You know, kids—" said Wendy, "a movie studio can be every bit as hectic and nerve-wracking as this office. And for the same reason." She smiled at Mr. Pemberton and touched his arm. "Mr. P., here, is a lot like my director They're both swell guys underneath, but they've allowed their work to swallow them up! They think of themselves as parts of a big machine that must never stop running." She stopped suddenly and looked embarrassed. "Gosh, I —I'm sorry! I didn't mean to—"

"My dear . . ." said Mr. Pemberton in a strange voice, "I'm glad you said that. You're a wonderful girl." He glanced at Dixie, then at Ann. "You're all wonderful girls to put up with an old slave-driver like me." He turned to Ann. "Here —let me finish that job. You go downstairs and get us a round of cokes. We'll drink to the new regime!" But remember this," he added gruffly, "if either of you ever dare to miss a Wendy Wicker movie—you'll be fired without notice!"

NO ANTI-COMMUNISTIC TEXT BOOK LAWS FOR ALABAMA

Montgomery, Ala.—Circuit Judge Walter B. Jones of Montgomery has declared unconstitutional a 1953 legislative act requiring the labeling of all books used in state schools to identify the communistic or subversive leanings of the autohrs.

The law, Act 888, "is void and unenforceable and is in violation of the due process clause of the 14th Amendment of the Constitution of the United States," Judge Jones said.

In calling the law "unworkable, vague and indefinite," the Judge said the legislature "has failed to set up any sufficient guidance to those who must comply with the act."

The act was challenged in a suit filed by 25 publishers and three authors.

Both State Superintendent of Education W. J. Terry and Gov. Gordon Persons, along with the State Board of Education, had called the law "unworkable."

Singing In The Rain—

"Rejoice in the Lord always; and again I say, Rejoice."—Philippians 4:4.

As an inspirer of confidence in the happy outcome of things for those who trust in God, the writer of that soothing sentence was an accomplished artist—and we agree with him that a word of cheer is never out of place; that it enriches the received without impoverishing the giver; that it brings rest to the weary, hope to the discouraged, and is the countersign of genuine Christian fellowship.

But let it not be forgotten that this warmhearted directive was written in a prison cell to a company of ill-conditioned residents of a Macedonian village. The circumstances of both the writer and the recipients were far from comfortable. From the human viewpoint there would appear to be little in the future for any of them. And yet this prisoner writes such a letter, picturing the value of contentment amid untoward conditions, advising his readers to think about things that are true, and lovely, and of good repute, reaching the summit of his stimulating counsel with the words, "Rejoice in the Lord always; and again I say, Rejoice."

At this juncture the casual reader is constrained to praise and ask, Was the man crazy? Had years of slanderous abuse, culminating in the prospect of a martyre's death, upset his reason?

No! The Apostle Paul was one of the sanest of the sane, whose power of sustained and logical thinking listed him in the catalogue of the distinguished men of all time. More than that he knew Christ, the faithful and all-powerful Head of the Church so intimately that he could assure all trusting believers that God would never desert His own.

Out of his personal actual experience that stalwart believer was entirely willing to appropriate and to recommend the Christian people the Old Testament promise;—"Beuause he hath set his love upon me, I will deliver him . . . He shall call upon me and I will answer him: I will be with him in trouble; I will deliver him and honor him." (Psalm 91:14-15. Therefore it is little wonder that he sent that message to a group of sorely tried friends.

"Give to the winds thy fears, Hope on, be not dismayed;
God hears thy sighs and counts thy tears; God shall lift up thy head."

IRONING SHORT CUTS SAVE TIME, ENERGY

Auburn Ala. -- For easier, quicker ironing try these short cuts offered by Stella Mitchell, Al Extension home management specialist.

Cut ironing time by carefully folding sheets, bath towels, washcloths, and kitchen towels as they come from the line. Roll clothes loosely when sprinkling; tight rolls set creases wrinkling — and ironing time.

Use your tapered board for ... es, slips, etc. Then to speed up ironing flat pieces and men's shirts, use a padded board about 20 inches wide clamped on top of the regular board.

Iron consecutively all the fabrics that require the same iron temperature. And when ironing a garment that fades, slip a paper cleaning bag over the board to keep the cover spotless.

WORK NOW ON NEXT STRAWBERRY CROP

Develop strong, thrifty strawberry plants now if you expect a good crop of berries next spring.

"When you finish harvesting this year's crop" says John Bagby, API Extension horticulturist, "thin matted row and fertilize the plants. First, bar off the bed with a small plow, leaving a row six to eight inches wide a little to one side of the old row.

"Next, thin these plants to 18 inches. Then apply 500 pounds of complete fertilizer per acre (two quarts per 100 feet of row and work the soil back to the row. Cultivate thru the summer."

Reid, director of the Alabama State Agriculture Center Board; Ben M. Wilbanks, first vice president of the South Alabama Fair Association and John Graves, second vice president.

ADVENTIST CHURCH NEWS

"The Shadow of Good Things to Come," will be the Sabbath sermon topic at 11 a.m.

Some very grave and disturbing statements have recently been made by men who have their fingers on the pulse of the dying world. One of them said: "One thing is certain: we are on the edge of a period of extreme gravity, in which decisions must be made here and abroad that will determine the survival of modern civilization. And this period will be short as it is grave." Along this same vein another at Geneva said: "We are faced with decisions that we simply do not see how we can make." He was speaking of American intervention in Indo-China which would mean a larger, longer and bloodier "Korea." Then another statesman said more than he thought when he said: "Time is rapidly running out." Churchhill said: "We might as well ask ourselves whether we should go on with our routine, the ceremonies, the festivities, of our daily round when dangers are growing which threaten the very life of the human race." And still another said: "This is the hour of the greatest crisis in the world." This last quotation is from David Lawrence. One of the modern ver... that Jesus said would be the time of the end" that "on the earth" there will be "anguish of nations, not knowing the way out." Luke 21:25. The late H. G. Wells, reasoning even more to effect said, "If my thinking is sound the world is at the end of its tether. The end of everything we call life is close at hand and cannot be evaded." He went on to say: "I am convinced there is no way out. There is no way out, around, or through. It is the end." Quoting again from the modern version of 2 Timothy 1 we read, "This know, that in the last days critical times hard to deal with will be here." Oh, that bewildered men only knew that it all is to terminate with "the Son of man coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory." The message of the hour is, "The Hour of His Judgement is Come." Rev. 14: 7. — Allen Walker, pastor

PREPARE PIGS TO HOG EARLY CORN

Auburn Ala. -- When grains can be rubbed off the cob it's time to turn pigs into early corn fields.

And G. B. Phillips, API Extension animal industry specialist, reminds farmers that pigs make the fastest, cheapest gains if properly prepared for hogging and carefully managed while feeding.

"Worm pis just before turning them into the field," advises the farm leader. "Shut them up in a pen and feed them all the dry ground feed they'll eat in 24 hours. Mix one lb. of sodium fluoride with each 100 lbs. of feed. To control lice and mange, spray or sprinkle pigs with lindane before turning them into the corn. Use one pound of lindane to 25 gals. of water or one pound of BHC (Six per cent gamma) to five gallons of water.

"Use temporary cross fences to confine pigs to an area they can clean up in not more than thirty days. Provide animals with plenty of shade, and keep a close lookout for parasites. If screwworms appear use Smear EQ335.

"Self-feed either of the following protein supplements: (1) 100 pounds of tankage (50 per cent), 100 pounds of cottonseed meal, and 100 pounds of peanut meal or soybean meal or (2) a good 40 per cent commercial protein supplement. If tender legume grazing is plentiful, the pigs won't need as much protein supplement.

"Self-feed either a good low-cost commercial mineral mixture or mix equal parts of ground limestone, steamed bone meal, and common salt. Self-feed common dry salt, and keep water before pigs at all times."

Civil Defense School At B'ham So. College

Montgomery, Ala.—A two-and-a-half-day civil defense "School for Survival" will be held at Birmingham-Southern College, Birmingham May 27-29, Col. J. M. Garrett, Jr., director of the State Civil Defense Department, has announced.

In announcing the school, Colonel Garrett said that Alabamians from all walks of life "who have an interest in community protection against disaster" are invited to attend.

... will be known officially as the Warden's Leadership Conference, and among other things ... will ... methods of organizing ... a block-by-block basis for quick evacuation.

The ... rence is being sponsored ... by the Regional Federal ... the State ... Department, the Birmingham-Jefferson County Civil Defense ..., and Birmingham-Southern College.

Authorities from Washington and the regional FCDA will be featured during the conference, and every phase of warden activity in civil defense will be covered, Garrett said.

"Good citizens with a feeling of responsibility toward their fellow man and who are willing to take the leadership in assisting their local civil defense organization in training and organizing others are invited to the institute from the seven Southeastern states," he continued.

Garrett said that thousands upon thousands of wardens will be needed in civil defense organizations in the big cities and in the smaller communities in the event of enemy attack or natural disaster.

Explaining the need for warden, Garrett said they would be responsible for evacuating their immediate neighborhood in event of attack, fighting small fires, maintaining law and order and assisting the aged and infirm.

In smaller communities, he added they will assist in billeting homeless evacuees from the big cities and in many other important phases of handling the mass exodus from cities.

Wardens are needed for the block in which they live or work, for office buildings, industrial plants ... and general civil de... assignments. Women, Garrett ... may form the bulk of this parti... civil defense service.

Mr. BOOCKHOLDT GUEST SPEAKER AT FINAL STUDY CLUB MEETING

The final meeting of the Study Club was held on May 7 at 3:00 p.m. when Mrs. Joe Earl Gowan, retiring president, was hostess at the Dixie Cafe.

Mrs. Morgan Reynolds who has accepted membership in the club was received with a most cordial welcome. Warm greetings were extended to Mrs. J. A. Hester, associate member who returned from a winter in Florida in time to enjoy the May meeting.

The theme of the year "Active Citizenship for Women" was brought to a fine conclusion when Mr. Howard Boockholdt, superintendent of education, discussed the topic "Women Active in Promoting Education." Mr. Boockholdt gave a realistic presentation of the opportunities women have of promoting education in the home and community. He also stated that the women who teach in the schools of Chilton County are performing a good service.

Mrs. Robert Powers introduced Mr. Boockholdt.

Refreshments, assisted by Mrs. Paul Swann, served delicious refreshments in the club colors.

In closing the president wished a happy vacation for all.

The club will resume its meeting in October with Mrs. Joe Moore as president.

SOCIETY

MUSICAL GARDEN IS SETTING FOR RECITAL

Mrs. Chester Gaines presented her students in a musical garden of piano and violin selections on May 12 at 5:00 p.m. on the W. H. Klinner lawn.

Forming a natural background and stage was an elevated terrace embanked with natural greenery interwoven with roses and bordered with an edge of blossoming garden flowers. A single standard of spring flowers decorated the piano.

As the guests arrived they were met at an archway of the garden and ushered to a semi-circle of chairs facing the natural stage setting. Ushers were Jim Wade, Jamie Propst, Tommy Wade, Johnny Tew, and Tommy Hubert.

A program of piano and violin selections were presented by the following pupils: Marilyn Jones, The Ice Cream Man; Billy Wyatt, Hop Scotch; Beverly Hicks, The Ambitious Goose; Sharon Hubert Sleepy Little Pickannies; Norma Tew, Birdies' First Flight; Jo Gibson, Tarantella in A Minor; Jean Raley, Blue Jeans and Calico; Kenneth DeVaughn, The Bold Pirate; Julie Wade, The Sword Dance; Emily Klinner, Grand Valse de Concert; Linda Wade, Reverie; Priscilla Hubert, Narcissus; Carolyn Tucker, Fleeting Hours; Kathy Wade, Petite Rhapsody; Miriam Golden, Minuet in G and Papillon (The Butterfly); Marietta Propst Serenade and Scarf Dance.

Following the musical program the guests were invited to the lower lawn for refreshments. Again a natural background of shrubs and flowers dominated in front of which was the serving table of glass and wrought iron decorated underneath with a bouquet of cut garden flowers. Assisting with the serving were Mrs. J. H. Tew, Mrs. James Wade, and Mrs. C. D. Jones.

Around eighty guests enjoyed this delightful courtesy.

Bride-Elect Honored

On Wednesday afternoon, May 12, Mrs. Joseph J. Mullins and Mrs. Raymond Mims entertained in honor of Miss Warrena Willis. The occasion of college graduation and her approaching marriage to Mr. Harold Broadhead of Montevallo, Ala., and Camp Gordon, Augusta, Ga.

The Mullins' home was colorful with arrangements of garden flowers.

Mrs Erle Ellis at the piano played excerpts from love songs of the individuals present—each song being significant of her courtship days Miss Mary Alice Foshee won the contest by naming all but two of the titles. Titles chosen ran all the way from, Take Me Out to the Ball Game, to Secret Love.

Appropriate poems expressing sentiment of love and happiness for the present and future were beautifully read by Madge Mullins. At the persuasion of the group, Mrs. Ellis delighted everyone in singing, Thine Alone.

Those invited to share in this happy occasion with the honoree were: Mrs. Frank Willis, Mrs. Cleery Broadhead, Montevallo. Misses Mary Faith Adams, Mary Alice Foshee, Madge Mullins and Betty Stacey from Alabama College; Miss Peggy Murrah, Mesdames Howard Buckner, Kenneth Hayes, Hugh Bates, Fred Cleckler, Don Summerall, Cliff Klie, Erle Ellis, W. A. Willis, Leonard Farley and Reese Mullins.

On Monday night, May 10, Miss Warrena Willis, bride-elect of June was honored at a miscellaneous tea shower given by Miss Mary Alice Foshee of Sylacauga.

Approximately 50 guests called at Reynolds Foyer, Alabama College between 7:30 and 9:30 p.m.

The guests were greeted as they arrived by Miss Foshee; Miss Willis, Mrs. Frank Willis, mother of the bride-to-be, and Mrs. Cleary Broadhead, mother of the groom-to-be.

Arrangements of garden flowers decorated the reception room.

The table was covered with a lace cloth. Clusters of garden flowers surrounded the punch bowl flanked on each side by burning tapers.

Miss Merilyn Jones of Grove Hill, Ala., served and was assisted by Miss Betty Stacey of Monroeville. The brides book was kept by Miss Mary Faith Adams of Leeds.

Gifts were received and displayed by Miss Carol Newton, Grove Hill and Miss Robbie Warren of Sylacauga.

Among the out of town guests who called were Mrs. Alice Price and Mrs. Cleary Broadhead of Birmingham, Mrs. Kenneth Hayes Mrs. Cliff Klie, Mrs. W. A. Willis, Sr., Mrs. Reid Mullins and Mrs. Raymond P. Mims of Clanton

Miss Willis will be honored on June 1 when Mrs. Cliff Klie is hostess at a kitchen shower.

OUR END OF SCHOOL PI[C]NIC

On Thursday May 13, 1954 [at] o'clock and got there a little [af]ter Shelton. We left school about [11] Haywood's fifth grade room [at] When we got there we [all] on a picnic at the home of Tom[my] dodge ball and jump sticks. Some of the others went down to the p[ond]. Then it started to rain so we [went] into the house and watched television till it stopped raining. Then we went out. Some of them went down to the pond and caught some baby frogs and fish. After we had played an hour or so we had to go eat lunch. When we finished eating our lunch we played the ball in ball. Some of the boys and girls started down to a cave. Before they got there the boys started running a cow after the girls. They ran back and the boys went on down to the cave. After a while we had to go. When we got back to school the bell rang for us to go out. When we came back in we cleaned the room and played 7 up. After we had played for quite while we quit and talked about our picnic. The the bell rang and we went home.

We gave Mrs. Haywood a beautiful present, also we gave her son Michael a graduation present.

By Cecelia Mays

THE GOOD AMERICAN'S PICNIC

The roommothers and Mrs. Haywood took their class to Mr. and Mrs. Shelton's for a picnic. The class went around 10:30 o'clock May 13, 1954. There were Mrs. Moss, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Little Mrs. Barze, Mrs. Coggins, Mrs Shelton, Mrs. Price and our teacher Mrs. Haywood that went.

When we got there first we all started to play ball. We played a little while and then it begin to rain. So Tommy Shelton told every one to come in to see the TV while it was raining. We all went in to see it, then the sun came out after a while we went out. We begin to play ball again.

After a while the mothers called us to eat. We stopped playing. We had a very good lunch. After we ate we went to the lake Then we played ball again

After we played ball Tommy us to his cave and the dam also. We gave the teacher a beautiful present and her boy a graduation present.

We want to thank the teacher and mothers for every thing they did for us. We will never forget this year all of our lives. Mr. and Mrs Shelton we want to thank you for letting us have the party at your house. Mrs. Haywood is a nice teacher.

High School Agricultural Students Write On Forestry

WHY PROTECT THE FOREST?

Many people ask themselves this question, "Why protect the forest?" This question can be answered in more ways than one. Next to the earth itself, the forest is man's most useful servant. Recently an article in the papers said that the level of underground water, that can be useful to mankind, is sinking more every year. You ask yourself, "What has this got to do with forests?" More forest are being cut down each year and the roots and stumps rot and the water runs off [illegible] except what little [illegible] The roots of trees also soak up the heavy rains and [illegible]

The forest provides [illegible] by filtering dust and [illegible] help save property [illegible] from floods and damage by hail [illegible] est also provides many useful products that are used in business and also in the homes of people. [illegible] of the paper children use every day in school. This paper is made from the trees of the forest, rubber for automobile tires, sugar that we use in every day life, and raw materials for industry are just a few uses of the forest. And finally, the forest provides homes for the wild [illegible] and as a place for man's outdoor recreation.

Almost everyone is interested in the protection of wildlife, so why not join in the life struggle of the forest.

"Who does this apply too?" Everyone. No matter where you may live. Fires, on the national basis, destroy about 12% of our forest every year, most of these fires are caused on the carelessness of the people of America. So why not take precautions every day and help [illegible] the fire [illegible] to keep the [illegible]

FORESTRY

We have been hearing about forestry in Agriculture. We have been making fire lanes to protect our forests. The people now have to raise trees before we can build things, where our forefathers used to go in the woods and cut down trees instead of raising them like we have to. If you have any wolf trees on your land, you should cut them out and let the young pines grow. There can be many young pines under one wolf tree. There are different species of wolf trees. There are black jack oaks, and persimmon trees. There are different kinds of pine trees. There are loblolly pines, slash pines, short leaf pines and long leaf pines.

Fire lanes are very important. They help keep fire out of your forest. If there is a fire next to your forest a fire lane will help you very much. You can part up and down your fire lane and beat out any fire that jumps the fire lane, or when you see that the fire is going to come on over the fire lane you can set a backfire to keep it from spreading. It is best, though, to be sure it is going to spread before you set a backfire. Many acres of land have been burned by people setting backfires, thinking that it is going to burn them out of house and home, when it may be under control. It is best to burn off bushes and things when it is kind of damp and the wind is not blowing.

WHAT I LEARNED FROM OUR STUDY OF FORESTRY

On our forestry program here at Chilton County High School, we, the Future Farmers of America, have learned many interesting things about how to prevent forest fires, and how to protect our forest from destruction. On April 22, 1954, we went on a field trip out to a forest that has not had any fires on it for five or six years. Mr. C. C. Gay, the County Forester, was with us. Mr. Gay taught us many interesting facts about forestry.

He told us about how much damage a forest fire could do and also how we could prevent a fire. He showed us how the diseased trees should be taken out when you are planning on cutting your timber for logs or pulp wood. In 1952 Alabama had 10,670 forest fires, this is 415 more than burned in 1951. In 1952 over 98 percent of the fires were caused by man. In 1952 smokers caused next to the highest amount of fires in Alabama.

Mr. Gay told us about leaving some of the trees for seed. He told us that when you plan to sell your trees you should go in your forest and mark the trees you are planning to cut, and leave some of your larger, healthier trees for seed trees. The Vocational Agriculture F.F.A. boys have ordered and set out about 13,000 pine seedlings this past year. The trees were set out on hill sides too steep for cultivation.

Before returning to the school we looked at a fire break some of the other FFA boys had made. They had done a good job. So let's remember when we are riding along the road or walking in the woods next Sunday and every day this year of 1954, if we are smoking, be careful with fire. Let's keep Alabama green in '54.

FORESTRY

In this little article I would like to tell a few things about the study that we made on the "Green Crop of Alabama."

First of all we would like to start off with the caring of the crop. The caring of the crop in the woods is the hardest of all. When the trees get big enough that you would like to get a thinning operation on them you would want to cut out the trees that you do not need. You can get someone to do this for you if you prefer, but if you want to do it yourself you should get a few pointers on it. Cut out the trees that are diseased or the ones that are not much good for anything. For example, let us take the Black Jack Oak, this tree is nothing but a nuisance. It takes up the things that make a tree grow, air, water and sunlight. So why not get it out of your way.

Next let us see if we can't get a few things on the prevention of fire on your woodland. This is the one thing that destroys more timber than any other thing. Now, why not get out on your tree land and put a fire lane around it. You can plow or rake a fire lane. Always make yours wide enough so the fire will not jump it. Usually a lane about 8 or 10 ft. will do the job. If a fire got on a neighbors land you can get it your lane and put a backfire to it. This would not take long so why not do it. It might mean your wood lot.

Now on cutting your trees— let someone mark your trees that knows how. There is one way that some people will sell their timber that is not any good. Don't sell your land on "lump sum." The best way is to sell on "selective cutting" basis. Take these few pointers and always keep Alabama green.

369 STILLS KNOCKED OVER IN APRIL

Montgomery, Ala.— State and county law enforcement officers, cooperating with Federal ATU agents seized and destroyed 369 illicit stills in Alabama in April.

In addition to the 369 stills, the officers also made 292 arrests, made out 464 cases, destroyed 192,415 gallons of mash, seized 3,083 gallons of whisky, 2,724 bottles of beer and 10 gallons of home brew.

They also seized 47 vehicles, 2,130 pounds of sugar, 1,180 feet of hose, 793 gallons of fuel oil, 730 pounds of brand, 155 feet of pipe, three pumps, two motors, two boats, one horse and saddle, one trailer and one shotgun.

Fifty-one of the stills were destroyed in Jefferson County and 47 in Tuscaloosa County where the voters have just changed the status from wet to dry.

Other counties in which 10 or more stills were destroyed [illegible] burne 28, Lawrence 10, Marsha Shelby 19, St. Clair 19, Ta 11, Walker 12 and Winston 12.

VETERANS WORKERS SCHOOL PLANNED

Montgomery, Ala. —About 200 volunteer and professional veterans service workers will convene in Montgomery on June 10, 11 and 12, according to an announcement made today by C. C. Horton, Director of the Alabama Department of Veterans' Affairs, who is planning the event.

The conference will be in the nature of a work clinic in which all employees of the Alabama Department of Veterans' Affairs will participate, along with State and Area representatives o fthe Veterans Administartion. Other State and Federal Agencies will also be represented, especially those having a relationship to veterans' benefits. Included on the agenda is a tour of the Veterans Administration Regional Office, scheduled for Thursday, which will be followed by two "question and answer schools," the one, on Friday being held at the Veterans of Foreign Wars Club and the Saturday sessions being conducted at the American Legion Home.

Among out of State visitors expected for the conference are Dr. Horace B. Cupp, Area Medical Director, of Atlanta; John W. Stanton, Jr., recently Manager of the Vet[illegible] erans Administration District Office in Atlanta; and Mr. Harvey L. Driscoll, Representative of The Bureau of Re-Employment Rights of the U. S. Department of Labor also of Atlanta. Hospital Managers from each of the Veterans Administration Hospitals within Alabama will be present, as well as representation from every service [illegible] Veterans Administration which exists within the State. Others expected to participate include Dr. Bill Dorrough, Commissioner of Public Welfare, Mr. Cecil [illegible] son, of the Bureau of Old [illegible] sistance, and Mr. A. B. Wells, [illegible] Veterans Employment Service.

Invitations have been extended to volunteer service officers of the various veterans' organizations and greetings will be extended to the conferees by Commander Telfair J. Washburn, of the Veterans of Foreign Wars; Commander Charles [illegible] land, of the American Legion; Commander W. F. Green, of the Disabled American Veterans, and Commander Frank Freeze of AMVETS. The welcome address will be delivered by William S. Perry, of Camden, Vice-Chairman of the State [illegible] of Veterans Affairs.

In attendance from Washington will be T. O. Kraus, Director of the National Rehabilitation Commission of the American Legion.

Interested members of the public are invited.

CROPS THREATENED BY WORM ATTACKS

Auburn Ala. [illegible] variegated cutworms are threatening crops in some N[illegible] counties.

And API Extension Entomologist W. A. Ruffin says [illegible] probably [illegible] the state [illegible] continues. Right now alfalfa, fescue, pastures, and small grain crops are suffering.

Ruffin warns farmers to watch carefully for these fat, [illegible] colored, wrinkled worms that hide under grass or dirt in the day and do most of their damage at night. Heavily infested fields should be dusted with a 10 per cent toxaphene at the rate of 20 pounds per acre. Use the [illegible] ular form of toxaphene for [illegible] and pastures.

"Toxaphene must be dusted on the ground as well as on the plants," adds the specialist. "And keep [illegible] livestock off the treated areas for at least two weeks or until after a heavy rain."

SHOULTS NEWS

(By MRS. EZRA LEE LAWLEY)

Many from this community attended class night at Maplesville Tuesday night. Five scholars are graduating from this community this year. We wish for them much success in what ever they choose to do. The girls were dressed very beautiful in their evening dresses and the boys were dressed very nice in their suits. A very large class is to graduate.

The WMU meeting was held at the church Thursday of last week. The meeting began at 10:00 o'clock with Mrs. Privett of Clanton speaking, also with her was Mrs. Clapp of Maplesville, Mrs. Russell Williams and Mrs. Grant of Clanton. The regular members present were Mrs. Messer Smith, Mrs. Charlie Smith, Mrs. Coleman Smith, Mrs. Walter Lawley, Mrs. Ezra Lee Lawley, Mrs. Robert McAfee and Rev. Joe Davis. Rev. Davis led in prayer, and the song was Jesus Saves. A delicious lunch was served at 12:00 o'clock. After lunch Mrs. Clapp and the others went on to Pilgrims Rest to hold a meeting there.

Lets not forget the 4th Sunday afternoon, the dedication service will be held at the church at 2:00 o'clock. Rev. Paul Oden will be there and others. We are asking that everyone who can possibly to be there. We are very proud of our Sunday School rooms and did not realize what a great help they would be.

We are thanking Rev. Joe Davis [illegible] this project, [illegible] nothing is ever accomplished until some one begins it, and with the cooperation of everyone we have these nice rooms for the children to study.

We are sorry that Mrs. John Foshee has been on the sick list all last week. Mrs. Foshee was missed at church, because she is a steady church worker and a teacher. We all truly wish for her a speedy recovery.

Mr. Billy Moore of Birmingham visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Moore last week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hathcock and family and Mr. Ivy Hamrick and [illegible] attended the home [illegible] last Sunday. A [illegible] was there and they [illegible] have the [illegible] time way of singing. It seems that a lot of people still enjoy it.

A party was held at Miss Barbara Ann Sewell's Thursday night. Many games were played. Everyone enjoyed it very much. Those attending the party we Barbara and C. R. Sewell, Marjo and Joyce McAfee, Martha [illegible] and Mary Ann Maddox, Myrtle and [illegible] Lee Wallace, Ann and Seaborn Oden, Laura Ann Dennis, Betty Carol, Leonard and Hugh Stewart, Norma Jean and Otis Smith, Sherwood Glover, Howard Fox, H[illegible]am, Freddie Shoults, E[illegible].

We extend our heartfelt sympathy [illegible] in the death of Mr. Frank Reynolds. [illegible] not a better loved citizen a[illegible], or a kinder man than Mr. Reynolds. I know he will be missed [illegible] in his community. The [illegible] offering was large and beautiful. The singing by the Rush [illegible] very kind. Rev. Robinson [illegible]erville conducted the service. [illegible]terment was in the Baptist [illegible]etery.

Mr. Carson Sewell of Centreville Ala., visited [illegible] last Tuesday night and We[illegible] with his sisters-in-law, Mrs. Sam Shoults and Mrs. Willie Hathcock.

Mr. and Mrs. Horton Walker and three children, Tommy, Carolyn and Joel of Prattville, Ala., spent last Sunday with his sisters Mrs. Willie Hathcock and Mrs. Sam Shoults.

S-Sgt. and Mrs. Allan Shoults of Randolph AFB, Texas are here for a few days. After a few days leave, Sgt. Shoults will be sent over seas to Japan. One day last week Sgt. and Mrs. Shoults, Mr. and Mr. Sam Shoults spent the day at Lake land farms in Perry county, fishing.

Mr. Eugene Hathcock, Beatrice Smitherman, Mr. Claude Hathcock spent Sunday afternoon with relatives in Brent and Centreville.

There was a large crowd attended the home coming at Stanton Sunday. It was a most enjoyable day. A Russian speaker spoke Sunday morning, then at noon a large and delicious lunch was spread behind the church building. The afternoon everyone gathered back in for the beautiful singing. The young and old Rush quartet sang and the Victory Quartet of Birmingham was there.

SHERIFF

In offering myself as a candidate for the office of Sheriff of Chilton County in the Democratic run-off June 1st I would appreciate any and all consideration shown me. If I am elected I will not use any of my or my wife's relatives or any of the present officers of the sheriff's force, again I can proudly say and put in print that I have not made any promises to any one, I do promise honest, efficient and courteous law enforcement to all. And to them that don't know me, ask about me in the community in which I live. I live in Providence community, Beat 16. I don't refer you to any individual. Ask any one about me for the past 20 years. There were 105 votes cast on May 4th in Beat 16. I received 96 of them in my home beat. Again I say thank you voters of Chilton, County, for your most marvelous support in the past primary and I humbly ask any and all for your support and influence in the Democratic run-off June 1st.

My friends as the run-off is so close by, it will be impossible for me to canvass from house to house, so please take this as a personal message from me to you. And go to the polls on June 1st and vote your honest conviction.

I sincerely solicit your vote and influence.

my PET PEEVE by Mike Bennett

THIS is the season of the year for "urges," bringing to some folks the persistent desire to shuck trousers and go fishing or else to the golf course.

This time of year also brings to many, predominately the female of the species, the seasonal urge to dig deep into Mother Earth and therein plant tender sprouts that might be watched, pampered and coddled with loving care.

And let's face it, to some there comes an urge that is not an urge at all, but a soul-satisfying state of lethargy that is a wonderful panacea for folks in a position to enjoy spring fever.

I sympathize with folks in the moods mentioned above. I think little matches the beauty of dawn greeted from the side of a rolling trout stream. I know that pounding a golf ball is much less boring than pounding a typewriter. SCANNING THE NEWS

MOST Americans — and many foreigners—long ago decided for themselves whether Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.) is a hero or a villain. Probably very few will find anything in the Mc-Carthy-Army TV dramatic test to bring about a complete change of mind.

As batting practice leads to home runs—and sometimes strikeouts—a Senator's speeches and politicking reach their climax each time he votes. National publicity, good or bad, received by a Senator as a member of a committee does not put him on the spot with his fellow party members as much as his voting record.

In party unity, McCarthy's voting average for seven and a quarter years is 85 per cent. In 1953, the average for Republican Senators was 82 per cent. This yardstick is one measure of a Senator's solidarity with his party on votes when the majority of Republicans disagree with the majority of Democrats. It shows what percentage of the time—if he votes or announces his stand—a Senator sides with most of the other members of his party.

McCarthy's career-long party-voting score is 82 per cent, while Senate Republicans averaged 70 per cent in 1953. Party voting measures a Senator's party allegiance on all roll calls, whether or not Democrats and Republicans split. Only actual votes, not announced stands, are counted. Failure to vote lowers the score.

Soil Conservation—
CLYDE HEADLEY PUTS 'HEM' AROUND HIS LAND

The Sericea Clyde Headley planted on his farm in the Enterprise community is up to a good stand. Clyde seeded this in a border around his field. This is a very good practice as it will act just as a hem in a piece of cloth. We all know that if a piece of cloth wasn't hemmed around the edge that it would ravel around the edges and wear out more quickly than it would if it were hemmed. This border of Sericea, or any other good field border will help protect our land from washing and leaching. Not only does it protect our soil, but a field border will pay it's own way in hay and grazing. Also, as Mr. Headley says, "You have to have some place to turn around." There are approximately six acres in this border, and Mr. Headley has a wildlife border between the Sericea and the woods that is seeded to Lespedeza Bicolor.

Good sericea cut for hay at the proper time makes excellent feed. This practice was carried out last week by Joe Higgins and A. Reefie Taylor.

If we are going to have [illegible] timber in the future, we need to take inventory of our timber and begin work on our farm forest. There are three things we should keep in mind in woodland planning:

1. Protection. Protect from fire and cattle grazing.

2. Plan for getting a stand. This can be done by planting a desirable tree, and by release cutting of undesirable ones.

3. Correct cutting practices. Thin out a stand—cut mature trees [illegible] cut for the dollar value.

Joe Jackson and Burton Mullin are carrying out these practices.

To prevent cracking, never wash enameled surfaces of your range while they are hot.

Raymond Wyatt's Fishing Camp Walnut Creek, near Clanton, reports: O. W. Wages, Bessemer, used a Bomber to snag his nice string of Largemouth Bass. His best was 4 pounds, 8 ounces.

Let us hear from you. Who's catching what at your place???

CHIEF ALAPOCO SAYS: Keep gasoline in metal containers at all times. Never use glass containers. Be careful about refueling and wipe up spilled gasoline.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

YOUR MEDICINE CHEST

What's in your medicine chest? Do you know? Are you prepared for first aid? Do you have clean, sterile bandages and adhesive tape? How about an accurate thermometer? Did you throw away the one you broke, or is it still wedged behind the roll of soiled cotton which too should have been disposed of?

If you have any doubt what to keep, what to have on hand at all times, and what to discard, ask your family physician for suggestions. He will be glad to help

Unless you take steps to do a real cleaning, you'll be just accumulating salves, pills, or cough syrups that may be of no use to you in an emergency because many lose their value after a given length of time.

Used safety razor blades are dangerous. Lyes and poisons should never be kept in the medicine chest. Many accidents to children could be prevented if these things were not so easily reached by the kids.

Every home should have a clinical thermometer, first-aid dressings, pint of rubing alcohol, and aromatic spirits of ammonia for a mild stimulant incase of fainting. A mild tincture of iodine should be available for minor cuts. There should also be some petrolatum or vaseline should there be an accidental burn Sterile castor oil or mineral oil is essential should a mild cathartic be necessary.

Don't save old medicines and prepared prescriptions once they have served the specific use for which they were intended. Don't have bottles without their identifying labels. Self-medication is dangerous, but there are a few simple gestures of first aid that can wisely be performed by everyone. When in doubt, always call a physician. What may be a minor cut, bruise or burn to you may be serious enough to cause complications.

In the meantime, clean out your medicine chest. Weed out the things that shouldn't be there, and add the basic needs for emergency aid. You will be glad when you're in a position to help some one near to you.

The neighbor down the street, the one with the big family, has become an expert nurse this Spring; her youngsters have been beset by chicken pox.

When we dropped in to see how they were getting along, she was entertaining two convalescents in the kitchen.

"Come in," she invited. "We're making a scrapbook."

It wasn't an ordinary scrapbook the children were making but a "sewing scrapbook," one that would help their mother when mending and sewing-on-buttons time arrives.

Using pinking shears, the children cut large squares of material from the scraps left over from making dresses and shirts. They pasted the scraps in a looseleaf notebook together with two buttons to match those on each garment.

When this mother needs to mend a garment or replace a lost button she can refer to her sewing scrapbook to find the cloth and fastenings she needs.

"It's a big help," the mother said, "and it has kept the children happily entertained all afternoon."

Congregational Church News—

Services Sunday, May 23:

9:45 a.m. Sunday School

11:00 a.m. Thorsby Institute Baccalaureate Service, held in the Institute auditorium. Rev. Carolyn Welch will preach.

7:30 p.m. Evening service in our church.

The meeting of the Men's Fellowship, originally scheduled to be held this week, will be postponed until next week, and will meet on Friday, May 28. This postponement is made to avoid a conflict with the Institute Class Day.

Our delegates report a very fine meeting of the Southeast Convention this week end. One of the items of general interest is the following resolution, which the Convention adopted:

"In view of the impending Supreme Court decision on racial segregation in the public schools, the Southeast Convention of Congressional Christian Churches, speaks to but not for its members, urges:

1) that they consider themselves in the light of the fact that all men are the children of God and that all persons of all races are brothers for whom Christ died.

2) that any decision [illegible] be received in a spirit of reasonableness and Christian goodwill.

SPARKMAN EXPRESSES APPRECIATION TO VOTERS

Senator John Sparkman, back in his Washington office following last week's election, expresses his pleasure over the majority piled up for him by the Alabama voters.

"It is apparent from the totals that I have lead over my nearest opponent of 100,000 or more, with a majority of 75,000 over all my opponents," Sparkman said. "It is gratifying indeed."

He stated that this overwhelming vote was in effect a very strong endorsement of the representation he had been giving the people of Alabama.

"When I announced for reelection," Senator Sparkman said, "I said I would run on my record. That is just what I did. Naturally I am pleased that the people of Alabama have expressed their approval in such a magnificent manner."

The Senator expressed his thanks to the hundreds of volunteer workers all over the State who ran the campaign for him. "Never," he said, "did anyone have finer help from so many. I will always be grateful to them and also grateful to the people of the State who gave me such a fine vote of confidence. I will repay they by continuing to give them the same good representation I have given them in the past."

The Senator and Mrs. Sparkman left Huntsville the day after the election after it had become clear to all that he had won, and went on their way to a quiet vacation spot for a few days rest when they were flagged down by a State Highway Patrol and told that the Senator was wanted back in Washington for a vote. Mrs. Sparkman went on. The Senator returned to Washington. After the vote was over he rejoined Mrs. Sparkman in the interrupted vacation.

SACRED HARP SINGING CONVENTION HELD

[illegible] good old songs rang out [illegible] Sunday, as the crowd began another back to the dear old church, swelling their voices together with old friends who came from far and near to this homecoming each year.

[illegible] beautiful day, the singing was the best yet. There were [illegible] estimates for everyone present each and everyone [illegible] helping hand [illegible] was by the chairman [illegible] prayer by Elder [illegible] Committee for the day, Joe Jackson, Elder J. B. Williams and G. W. Williams. Directors for the day were, G. W. Williams, Luke Blankenship, Jack Langston, J. B. Williams, M. C. [illegible] W. C. Stanley, Elder A. Davis, J. H. Gaines, Mrs. Gaines, Mrs. N. C. Johnson, Mrs. Ella Thompson, G. H. Thompson, Mrs. Annie Stewart, Mrs. Vester Oaks, W. M. Brown, G. C. Jackson and Thomas Jackson.

Preaching by the pastor, Elder J. B. Williams at the eleven o'clock hour and was wonderfully blessed to bring forth some of God's truths to our minds.

Memorial services were held in memory of Mrs. Mollie Gentry and Mrs. Fannie Ruthford, Long Sought Home, directed by M. C. Jackson. Gaines, directed Golden Harp in memory of Mr. Frank Martin, T. C. Jackson directed White in memory of B. F. White, the author, Mrs. Gaines directed a song in memory of Mrs. Jee and A. A. Jackson and others deceased.

The body went into a business session, the minutes read and accepted. The convention was called for and to be held at Pates Chapel the third Sunday in September. We appreciate Mt. Zion's interest in the convention. The convention wishes to express their thanks to all the visiting singers, all those who attended and especially thank both papers and Mr. Marion Easterling for through them many people knew and came. Thanks very much.

Closing song by M. C. Jackson dismissed by Elder Huckibee.

BYKOTA SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS OF FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH HOLD MEETING

The Bykota Sunday School Class of the First Baptist church had its regular monthly meeting at the Ed Mullins camp Monday night May 17th.

Those attending arrived at the camp in time to see the beautiful sunset reflecting on the water and explore the most desirable camp [illegible]. Then the delicious refreshments of hot dogs with all the trimmings, home made ice cream and cake were served family style from the nicely arranged table outside under the trees.

The business meeting took place on the inside of the cottage with Elizabeth Blackmon, the class president in charge. Elizabeth Norris gave the devotional which was, "Christ's Legacy—Peace and Joy."

Nell Mullins, the class teacher then led in prayer. After the old and new business was discussed Elizabeth Norris the social chairman had charge of the games which were enjoyed very much by the following members: Dot Boone, Gladys Nance, Dot Lord, Clara Lecroy, Pauline C. Harris, Eddie Merle Poy, Nell Wyatt, Frances Poole, Nell Mullins, Nell Burdette, Elizabeth Norris, Harriet Wyatt, Hazel Johnston, Ann Coppinger, Olive Wallace, Nell Knight, Evelyn Windham, and Elizabeth Blackmon.

PROTECT FURNISHINGS AGAINST MOTH DAMAGE

Household furnishings can be easily protected against moth damage, says Alice Peavy, API Extension home furnishings specialist.

Spray Furniture upholstering and drapes containing wool or mohair with five per cent DDT oil solution or a fluoride solution. Apply DDT spray to the outside of down pillows or mattresses to ward off moth infestation.

To guard felts and hammers in pianos, carefully apply a five per cent DDT oil solution or a 10 per cent DDT dust. In some pianos the parts have been given a protective moth treatment by the manufacturer. So if felts and hammers have to be replaced, try to get treated ones.

ALABAMA HIGHLIGHTS

There were ferries across Alabama streams (and some are still operated today) and tolls, regulated by law, were charged.

Plank roads were built in some places in early Alabama in an effort to keep vehicles out of the mud.

The planks were placed edge to edge, and while they did not make a smooth surface, it did keep heavy wagons from bogging down.

Archie Ogburn was by Wednesday morning. He brought some beautiful peaches that were compliments of A. D. Headley to the committee who went to Maxwell Field Purpose of the trip to Maxwell was that the Field of Airmen were having a "Chilton County Day" Dick Scott is in charge of the delegation from Chilton county and L. C Shields, Joe Jackson and Jack House are representing the Chilton County Peach Festival that will be held here June 25-30.

Mighty glad to hear that some local businessmen who have been "unshed on Monday. Sid said that 304,000 pounds of berries were shipped. Destination of the berries were all the way from Northeast Pennsylvania back to Birmingham with stops in between at Bell, Tenn., Arkansas and points in between.

Mighty glad to hear that some of local business who have been "under the weather" are doing better O. D. DeLoach who has been out for the past week is on the mend we understand and word comes to us this morning that Alonza Askins is better today—first of the week he was a mighty sick man. It's really wonderful to see the improvement in our old friend W. C. Nuss. He is up and on the go every day now and has done a marvelous comeback.

Local fishermen are up in arms and ready to pull hair about this commercial fishing license that some are buying that enables them to destroy our fishing grounds. As we understand it gill nets are being used and fish are being caught and killed by the thousands. Once in a gill net and they soon die no matter if it is returned to the water. Another thing that is burning the local fishermen is that thousands upon thousands pounds of our fish are being taken to states north and sold. They claim that our local fishing rights are being discriminated against—and rightly so. Earl McGowan should step in and do something before it is too late.

Saw Sam Powers picture in Powergrams this week along with several Plant Superintendents of the Alabama Power Company. Sam, among others, was awarded the EEI (that's the Edison Electric Institute) award for working one-million manhours without a lost time accident during the year. There were eleven in the group receiving the awards and they were presented by J. L. Shores, manager of safety.

Another picture of a local citizen in Powergrams was little Earl Wray. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Wray who is Clanton District Superintendent of Alabama Power Company. The Wrays moved to Clanton from Montgomery.

When the woman got her bill from the doctor for treating Johnnie for the measles, she was shocked at the price he charged and called him up to tell him so.

"Don't forget," the doc reminded her, "that I made eight visits to the house."

"And don't you forget," she tartly replied, "that Johnnie infected the whole fourth grade."

"Why," asked a Sunday School teacher, "was Solomon the wisest man in the world?"

A bright-eyed little girl raised her hand and answered: "Because he had so many wives to advise him."

Two opposing political candidates argued on a busy street, while a crowd of spectators listened.

"There are hundreds of ways of making money," one of the campaigners declared, "but only one honest one."

"And what's that?" jeered the other.

"Ah, ha!" rejoined the first, "I thought you wouldn't know!"

Don R. Esty, Clanton, 1954 March of Dimes Director, and A. N. Laurell, Thorsby, Chapter Treasurer gave their reports.

Robert C. Dobson, State Representative of the National Foundation of Alabama, Birmingham, was present and briefly discussed the overall program of the March of Dimes organization, with special emphasis on recent research developments and the vaccine field trials. "It must be apparent to all of us," Dobson said, "that we have every reason to believe that the ultimate elimination of one of the greatest cripplers is no longer a dream but a reality soon to be proven beyond doubt."

"To many thousands of men, women and children this dream will become a reality to late. For these your National Foundation must continue its constant search for all possible means to achieve the highest degree of recovery. Your Foundation must also continue to guarantee the best available medical care and treatment—to pay any part that the family is not able to bear," he added.

Dobson emphasized the fact that local county Chapters should be better developed, and better informed now than ever before in order to step up our fight in this time of great woe. "This is no time to slacken our efforts," he said.

Adventists Building New Church

A two-acre lot has been donated to the Clanton Seventh-day Adventists in the heart of the residential section of Glendale and last week work began on the construction of a new house of worship. The Episcopalians who have been worshipping in the present building for some time have purchased it. The Adventists will continue to meet there for their Sabbath services until the new building is ready for occupancy.

Evangelist Allen Walker, pastor says: "The congregation has outgrown the present location and, for some time has needed more room The basement of the new building will be made into two large school rooms which will be modern in every respect and meeting all requirements of the Chilton County School Board. Negotiations are in progress for teachers for the new school year beginning this fall.

Before coming to Clanton Evangelist Walker served as pastor in Miami, Fla., Savannah, Ga., Birmingham, Ala., and other cities. The pastor and wife have a new home in Glendale and have made choice of Clanton as a permanent home serving the Clanton and Selma Seventh day Adventist churches.

For more than two years the pastor has carried a daily radio program announced as "The Voice of Truth." To take care of the interest awakened a number of the members are conducting neighborhood group meetings from evening to evening throughout the week

Roberta Curry To Teach Better Speech

"Sing your way to better speech," says Roberta Curry, who will be in Clanton in June for four weeks of instruction in Concentrated Rhythmic Speech. A number have already enlisted as pupils, and others desiring information should contact Mrs. Grady Heflin for particulars.

Miss Curry is admirably fitted for this class of work, and whether you are interested in public speaking or mere every day living, her rich experience in concert, radio and theatre will prove a great help to her students. A highly successful teacher of Rhythmic Speech at Walt Whitman School in New York City, Miss Curry brings a class work design of both traditional and modern method. These teaching concepts, as taught by Miss Curry develop good speech in rich resonance and literary setting

After [illegible] Miss Curry leaves July 1st for Estes Park, Colorado, where she will teach Rhythmic Speech and Radio Technique at the Perry Mansfield Drama Camp.

Grandaddy Of All Peach Festival Plans Made For This Year

The peaches are coming in—earlier than ever, and everything is shaping set for the annual Chilton County Peach Festival, which this year will be held from June 25 through June 30.

All signs indicate a bumper peach crop, and to go along with this record crop, officials of the Chambers of Commerce and the Chilton County Peach Festival Association are making plans for the biggest and best program the festival has ever had.

Lamar Shields, chairman of the 1954 Peach Festival, has announced that the activities for this year's festival have been spread out over a period of from Friday through Wednesday night.

The queen will be selected Friday night, June 25, while a junior queen will be chosen the following night Then, on Wednesday, June 30, the festival itself will be held, with the parade coming from Thorsby to Clanton as it has for the past several years.

The junior queen's contest is something new, but it is expected to stimulate interest in the senior queen's contest and to result in more entrants in the senior contest in years to come.

In addition to the queen's contests, there will be two singing programs held in connection with this year's festival. The Sylacauga Male Chorus will sing in Clanton on Tuesday, June 29, while the Blackwood Brothers and the Statemen's qaurtets will sing on Wednesday night the closing night of the festival.

All festival events, with exception of the baseball games on Wednesday, June 30, will be held at the Airport hangar. The hangar will be decorated for the occasion.

Judge R. B. Carr of the Alabama Court of Appeals will speak at the featured festival ceremony immediately following the parade Wednesday morning. The prize baskets of peaches will be auctioned off by Col. Tom McCord of Montgomery.

A meeting of the chairmen of the various committees was held at the Dixie Cafe last Monday night at which time final plans were made for decorating Clanton and the airport hangar, as well as arranging for various features of the parade.

Merchants are expected to have a number of floats in the parade, as usual.

Joe Jackson is co-chairman of the festival this year.

SHOULTS NEWS

(By MRS. EZRA LEE LAWLEY)

Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Gilliland of Birmingham, Ala., spent Tuesday night and Wednesday with Mr and Mrs. Grady Harrison.

The Home Demonstration meeting for May was held at the Club house Thursday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock. Mrs. Mary Louise Wells the Home Demonstration agent presided over the meeting. The hymn of the month was, "The Church's one Foundation.' The devotional was taken from Matthew 27:25-60

The demonstration was on Handling New Fabrics. The thought for the month was, It is possible to have a lovely home even in an unlovely house. Several members were present.

A tragic accident occurred in our community Thursday night. A drunken driver ran into Mr. and Mrs. Dan Maddox as they were returning home in their truck. Mrs Maddox was rushed to the Vaughn hospital in Selma in a very serious condition with a head injury. Mr Maddox had three stiches taken in his forhead. At this writing Mrs. Maddox is resting comfortably.

We were sorry to hear that Mrs. John Foshee spent a few days of last week in a Selma hospital. We hope for her a speedy recovery.

Mrs. Bill Morris and two children are spending a few days with the Maddox family due to te accident of her parents. She is from Gadsden, Ala.

The week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Messer Smith were Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lenoir and son Butch, of Phenix City, and Mr. and Mrs Hudson Smith and children of Birmingham.

Mr. Johnny Maddox of Birmingham visited Mrs. Dan Maddox in the Vaughn hospital at Selma Sunday

'The dedication service was well attended Sunday afternoon at the church. Rev. Paul Oden of Clanton, Rev. Mike Moore of Lawley Rev. Robinson of Maplesville and Rev. Joe Davis the home pastor took part on the program.

There was a nice crowd out for church service Sunday morning several visitors were present. We are always glad to have the visitors out and welcome them back any time. Rev. Paul Oden had Sunday dinner with Mr. and Mrs Robert McAfee. Rev. Moore had dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Smith. Rev. Joe Davis had dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Albert Garner

Lets not forget the Homecoming Day at the church this Sunday. We invite everyone out and bring a well filled basket to enjoy the day with each other. We also invite all singers to come.

Mr. and Mrs. Kynard and children and Mrs. John McKinney and Archie, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Smith in Clanton.

SPARKMAN WOULD IMPROVE HOUSING PROGRAMS

Senator John Sparkman, Democrat, Alabama, expressed satisfaction today that the Senate Banking and Currency Committee has unanimously approved his proposed legislation that would continue the Direct GI Home Loan Program and the Farm Housing Program

Senator Sparkman is the author of legislation that established both these Programs in 1950. They have been extended each year since 1950

Senator Sparkman, some weeks ago, expressed keen disappointment that the President did not recommend the continuation of these programs. The Senator stated at the time that he would insist on the programs being continued. He pointed out that thousands of veterans living in rural and semi-rural areas who otherwise would not have been able to get loans have bought homes under the Direct Home Loan Program.

Senator Sparkman also pointed out that his Farm Housing Program sponsored in the House of Representatives by Congressman Bob Jones of Alabama, has enabled thousands of farmers to build or modernize their homes, and to repair or construct their farm service buildings. The Senator pointed out that defaults on these programs were far less than 1 per cent, and that the return to the Government on its investments exceeded many times over the slight loss that had occurred.

The Senate Banking and Currency Committee has also approved other proposals by Senator Sparkman that would continue the low-rent housing program and that would close loop-holes to wipe out or prevent abuses of existing FHA Programs.

RED PORTER SAYS ALL STATE WILL FEEL HIS PROGRAM

GADSDEN, Ala.—Attorney General Candidate Lee Porter today called for "an era of harmony and progress in Alabama," pledging full cooperation with "the program of progress endorsed by Alabama voters on May 4."

Porter also asserted that his fight against organized crime would not be limited to Phenix City.

"Law and order must prevail not only in Phenix City but in all Ala.," said the veteran of two wars (World War II and Korea).

He pointed out that the Attorney General should devote much of his energy and effort to aiding local officials throughout the state.

"There is no problem that Alabama people cannot conquer through united teamwork," he said. "I pledge this teamwork from the Attorney General's office to help enable Alabama enjoy an era of harmony and progress."

Born and educated in Alabama Porter served in Military Intelligence work for 53 months during wartime and has been a practising attorney for 15 years.

His hometown Bar Association has given him a unanimous recommendation to the people of Alabama Porter also is a former president of the Alabama Junior Bar Association.

In 1950 he polled 48 per cent of the total vote for Attorney General

As the 1954 run-off election nears, Porter thanked his "many supporters from all parts of Alabama" and asserted that "with your continued support June 1, a victory for law and order in Alabama will be won."

Senator Sparkman said that it is imperative that the housing programs continue. He also said that we must be careful not to allow the irregularities that have occurred in some of the programs to kill or seriously cripple all of the housing programs.

STATE WILL USE RADAR UNITS ON HIGHWAYS

Montgomery. — Alabama Public Service Director L. B. Sullivan said this week that all radar speed-meter units to be used by the Alabama Highway Patrol for enforcement purposes have been shipped to the manufacturer for a "final check" of precision accuracy and general operating condition.

Sullivan said following their return in a few days, the radar units will be sent out over the state for demonstrations before officials and citizens. Demonstration schedules will be announced by local press and radio, he said, and urged all residents of the state to "inspect these units, and see them being operated while there is opportunity."

The state public safety chief also announced, that Alabama's officially-counted traffic toll stood this week at 276, fifteen higher than during the corresponding period of 1953. He said the "official count" averages 16 lower than actual current rates, because of delays in arrival of fatality reports to the department's central records bure...

"This means," Sullivan said, "our actual toll probably is some thirty-one deaths higher than the same period of last year."

Sullivan announced last week disclosing that radar would be u... in traffic law enforcement by ... highway patrol, that the Depa...ment hoped to have the electro... speed-meters "in service in ... field by July 7."

A Message To The Voters

As this is the last issue of the County papers before the Democratic run-off June 1st, again I say thank you all for the fine manner in which you have shown your confidence in me by the kind words and good encouragement in this run-off. As you know I am no stranger to Chilton County, having lived here 41 years, and been a life long resident of this county. I feel I am acquainted with many of the problems of our people and I will, if elected, work faithfully with you the people for better law enforcement, I will make every effort to aid the old and needy of our county, and will at all times cooperate with all our county officials in these endeavors.

I have been asked several times how I stand on the road system. The laws governing the road system are made by the state legislature of this state. If elected Sheriff I will work along with the wishes of the people. I have never expressed any opposition to the Board of Revenue as it now exists, but I am looking forward to serve the people as a public servant not as judge and jury. The law says any one is innocent until proven guilty. I believe in a wise and careful consideration of you, the taxpayers of Chilton County. If elected I will not use any of my or my wife's relatives or any of the present officers of the Sheriff's force.

I can proudly say and put in print that I have not made any promises to any one. I am not tied to any group or sponsored by any one in any way. So if you hear any rumors let them dry like dry mud and it will fall off of it's own accord. I am running a clean and honest campaign on my own merits. I do promise honest efficient and courteous law enforcement to all. Again I say thank you voters of Chilton County for your most marvelous support in the past primary and humbly ask any and all for your support and influence in the Democratic run-off June 1st.

My friends whom I have not had the pleasure of talking to in person please ask about me in the community in which I live, and accept this as a personal message from me to you and Please go to the polls and take some body with you June 1st and vote your honest conviction.

Please Go & Vote

I sincerely solicit your vote and influence.
Your friend,
R. ODELL PAYTON

THE SHORT TRIP

By L. Rowley

MR. OLLIE JENSON was a cautious man. He peered into the future—with safety glasses. Some said he was eccentric—others employed terms even more unkind. Ollie built a boat in his attic—just in case a flash flood might hit the area. There isn't a river to overflow; or a lake to rise, within twenty miles of Hillcrest; yet Ollie built his boat.

That was years ago. Since then Ollie's boat has been removed to the barn to make way for the rooms built into the attic. It was in the barn until about a week ago.

Ollie was returning home one evening from one of his rare train rides. He has just left the Hillcrest Station when he heard voices —young voices. Stepping off the road to investigate he came upon a half-dozen urchins tussling noisily in Stump's Swamp. Now Stump's Swamp is a wee body of water hardly bigger than a tennis court. It is muddy and shallow. Its removal has been in campaign speeches ever since the Civil War.

"How would you young'uns like to have a ship to sail in this boundless sea?" asked Ollie smiling at the mud spattered group.

You can surmise the answer. Willing young hands assisted Ollie in dragging the boat from its strange moorings in the barn, setting it up on wheels, and trundling the cumbersome craft to Stump's Swamp. Once afloat she sailed proudly, although noisily, across a stretch of water scarcely three times her length.

The townsfolk looked upon Ollie with more respect. He had done them a real service; no more muddy overalls or water-soaked shoes were observed on the streets of Hillcrest.

Then came the bank robbery.

The night was black. Sheriff Giles and his deputy Bill Evans were drinking coffee in Art's place. Giles' eyes snapped wide open when he saw two scallywags streak around a corner of the Hillcrest Bank.

"Bank robbers!" sputtered Giles

"Up and at 'em!" cried Bill as he wiped some of Giles' coffee from the back of his neck.

It was a merry chase. Some of Hillcrest's finest joined in the fun. The mischievous lads up front were good runners. Giles found himself wondering where they were headed.

"They're making for the brush," cried Bill Evans.

Sheriff Giles grunted. He didn't like this. The thieves could lose themselves in no time now—dark as it was. They might even hide the loot to return for it later.

"I've got my flashlight, sheriff," said Bill. "It's right here—"

"Wait!" Giles cautioned "Let's follow them by sound for awhile. This brush is dry. We'll hear them easily—unless they stop."

The self-appointed posse of citizenry dropped back. Chasing bandits down the open road was one thing; creeping up on them in the brush was quite another. Giles and his deputy proceeded cautiously.

"What's that noise?" asked Bill catching Giles' sleeve. It sounds like water."

Playing the light on the spot whence came the sound of splashing oars the sheriff and Bill saw a sight they'll never forget. The two bank robbers were in Ollie Jenson's old boat. The man who stood in the bow waved his fist defiantly at Giles The other rowed furiously. He didn't realize it but the prow had already nudged the opposite bank.

Giles' hearty laughter brought out the curious group of people that had fallen back. With joyous shouts they surrounded the would-be sailors. The two men scowled at their captors.

"Short trip, wasn't it boys?" grinned the sheriff. "Thanks to Ollie Jenson and his boat we've recovered both the loot and the thieves. Yes sir — a short trip."

Buster Sanders Writes

Mr. And Mrs. Voter Of Chilton County

As you know, I was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for your office of County Sheriff in the very recent primary election. I of course, tried to see each of you, however, I am sure I was not fortunate enough to see you all, but I was fortunate to see many of you. And a majority of whom expressed a desire to nominate a different person for your Sheriff largely because you felt the need both for a change and improvement in the Sheriff's office. Now this statement is not made to advocate any one person or the interest of any one person in another but because of some time that on May 4th a number (4000) citizens of the county went to the voting polls and expressed themselves as not wanting a continuation of the present sheriff's policies. This is perhaps more easily for some of we people to understand especially those of us who have a thorough study of the situation.

Again I remind you that some four thousand expressed your dissatisfaction by voting for the improvement you felt you were entitled to, nearly thirteen hundred of you voted for me, and I am truly grateful to you for your confidence. And more than sixteen hundred of you voted for Mr. R. Odell Payton, who was runner-up to the present sheriff who was the high man in the race, and who polled less than three thousand votes.

I have studied Mr. Payton very carefully since the May 4th primary and am happy to say that I find in him those priceless qualities of humbleness, honesty and natural ability which to me is in many cases far more valuable than mere experience.

Therefore to these four thousand of you who expressed yourselves as you did on May 4th as well as those of you who may not have voted in that day I am happy to tell you I am going on to victory with Mr. Payton and I have a quiet and calm confidence that each of you together, on the 1st day of June go to the polls and nominate the humble honest man that can bring the desired change we want.

One other thing. I have made an extensive inquiry into the rumors concerning the so-called bootleggers and racketeers of Birmingham and their association with Mr. Payton.

Following is a letter which I believe will clarify any points of doubt you may have concerning these false rumors.

Birmingham, Ala., May 25, 1954

Mr. J. S. (Buster) Sanders
Clanton, Alabama

Dear Mr. Sanders:

In reply to your letter of Saturday, May 22, 1954. This is to advise that Detectives C. E. Harris M. H. House and J. T. Howell, recently purchased from Mr. Odell Payton, of Clanton, Alabama, about (10) acres of property located on Walnut Creek. This property was bought by us for one purpose of building cabin sites and recreation purposes for us and our families.

We, M. H. House, C. E. Harris and J. T. Howell, are law enforcement officers, in the Detective Division for the City of Birmingham and have a total of 54 years service, of which we are proud. We also feel that we have a perfect right as citizens of the State of Alabama to legally and lawfully buy property anywhere we choose, should the location be suitable and the price reasonable. Our records as law enforcement officers and citizens can be checked with the people who know us in the City of Birmingham.

Any reasonable person should know that deeds are written and recorded in the same manner in which ours was written and recorded in Clanton, Alabama. The federal stamps which were bought and placed on this deed should be sufficient to show the amount paid for the property.

We believe this is our personal business and transaction of anyone other than the parties interested but since you inquire, we are pressly stating our position to you.

Trusting that the information we have set forth in this matter may be of some benefit to you, we are,

Yours very truly,
E. HARRIS
M. H. HOUSE

THERE'S hardly a home where leftovers don't appear on the menu occasionally. Here are some good ways to heat some of the more common foods easily and quickly.

Rolls are heated in the top part of a double boiler, especially if they're small and you don't have the oven on for something else. Have water in the bottom boiling.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK
Sunday Supper Pie
(Serves 6)

4 tablespoons chopped onion
1 tablespoon bacon fat
1 pound ground beef
1 can condensed tomato soup
½ teaspoon salt
Pastry for 2-crust pie

Heat oven to moderate (375° F.). Cook onion slowly in fat until soft. Add beef; brown lightly. Blend in soup and salt. Line 9-inch pie pan with pastry. Moisten edges with cold water. Pour in meat mixture. Cover with top crust. Bake in a moderate oven for 1 hour.

pop the rolls in the top part, cover and heat for 10 minutes or until they're piping hot.

Leftover slices of meat? You don't want them to dry out, so wrap in foil. Heat in a hot oven for about 20 or 25 minutes, unwrap and serve at once.

Mashed squash, turnips or sweet potatoes can be heated nicely in the top part of the double boiler. Add a bit of water or melted butter if the vegetables seem dry.

Leftover rice is best when heated in a colander placed over a saucepan of boiling water. Stir gently with a fork while heating for about 10 minutes.

Vegetables, if heated in extra liquid, easily become soggy and unpalatable. Why not place them in a skillet with some melted butter and turn over a few times with a spatula while they heat? This takes only a few minutes and will not overcook the vegetable.

ALABAMA ROAD CONSTRUCTION FROM 1922 THROUGH 1953—Expenditures for highway construction in the state have jumped from slightly over $2,000,000 in 1922 in the administration of Gov. Thomas E. Kilby to approximately $32,000,000 in 1953, an all-time high, in the administration of Gov. Gordon Persons. The above graph, prepared by the State Highway Department, is included in the 1953 annual report just released by the department. It shows that while some $2,000,000 was spent for construction in 1922, only a very small amount went for maintenance. Last year, however, about $7,500,000 went for maintenance. The graph also shows how that road construction slumped during World War II days, hitting only about $3,500,000 in 1944 when maintenance exceeded new construction.

FOR several years the Communist Party has been called everything from "an international conspiracy" to a "subsidiary and puppet of the Soviet Union," yet it was not a crime for an American to belong.

In 1941, the Dies Committee recommended outlawing foreign-dominated parties—and got nowhere. Thirteen years after that recommendation, Congress this year has received more bills—15—specifically to outlaw the Communist Party than were introduced at all the sessions between. Fourteen such bills were introduced from 1941 through 1952, and a total of 19 in 1953-54.

But the Eisenhower Administration has its own anti-Red program, and outlawing the Communist Party is not part of it. Attorney General Herbert Brownell recently argued that such a law might: drive the estimated 25,000 Communists underground, making it harder to weed them out; raise "constitutional doubts" about the rights of individuals under such a law; and conflict with and invalidate the "principal legal weapons" now aimed directly at the Communists.

These "legal weapons" include: laws requiring foreign agents to register, prohibiting federal employment of persons who are members of political groups advocating overthrow of the U.S government (Hatch Act), making it a crime to advocate overthrow of the U.S government by force or violence, (Smith Act), requiring the registration with the attorney general of Communist-action or Communist-front groups (Internal Security Act of 1950), and including foreign-born Communists in the category of inadmissible and deportable aliens.

Despite Administration stop signs, the drive to outlaw the Communist Party has been gathering momentum in Congress for some time. Fifteen of 19 bills pending were introduced this year and they call for penalties ranging from bans against holding federal office, elective and otherwise, to loss of citizenship, 10 years in jail and fines as high as $25,000.

Sponsors of the four Senate bills are: Sens Margaret Chase Smith (R. Me.); Charles E. Potter (R. Mich.); Mike Mansfield (D. Mont.); and Homer Ferguson (R. Mich.). Sponsors of the 15 House measures are: Reps. George A. Dondero (R. Mich.); Wm. C. Cole (R. Mo.); Cecil R. King (D. Calif.); Kit Clardy (R. Mich.); Harley O. Staggers (D. W.Va.); Robert T Secrest (D. Ohio); Charles J. Kerston (R. Wis.); J. Frank Wilson (D. Tex.); Ray J. Madden (D. Ind.); Martin Dies (D. Tex.), three measures; Harlen Hagen (D. Calif.); Joseph L. Carrigg (R. Pa.); and Leo W O'Brien (D. N.Y.)

Support for outlawing the Party has come from the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Daughters of American Revolution, and other Members of Congress.

Q—I've never been to Washington, and I've wondered: Is the White House on the Capitol grounds?

No. The White House, the official resident of the President, is located at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, Northwest. Approximately 18 blocks east is the Capitol, a building which houses both chambers of Congress. The White House is the oldest public building in Washington. President George Washington laid the cornerstone for it on Oct. 12, 1792, about a year before he laid the cornerstone for the Capitol.

Q—I heard a reference the other day to the "United States Code." Just what is it?

A—The U.S. Code is a consolidation and grouping by subject of the general permanent federal laws of the country. It is prepared by the House Judiciary Committee with the aid of two lawbook-publishing firms. New editions are published every six years and cumulative supplements are issued after each regular session of Congress. The Code states the law as it currently exists, by including amendments and excluding repealed statutes.

Dear Mr. Editor:

I wish to thank the voters of Chilton County for the beautiful vote given me in my race for Secretary of State. I shall ever be grateful to them. I bow graciously to the voice of Alabama's voters.

It isn't what we win that matters; it is how we play the game. In my heart and mind I am happy for every vote given me was from voters that wanted to vote for me. I have served the Democratic party to the best of my ability for this term years.

Let's all pull to-gether to make Alabama the best state in the nation. We will never build a greater Alabama until we become better citizens Democracy and Americanism is you and . Making it work is our job.

Please accept my appreciation to each of you individually. I am sorry I let you down.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Lennard (Nanna) Thomas.

Micaiah Withstands False Prophets.
Lesson for May 23: I Kings 22: 5-8, 13-18, 26-28a.
Golden Text: I Kings 22: 14.

After the division of the kingdom of David and Solomon, Judah and Israel had been hostile to each other, but in the time of Ahab an alliance was formed between him and Jehoshaphat of Judah for the overthrow of Ben-hadad of Syria. When they went to battle against the Syrians, Ahab was killed. So ended the career of one of the worst rulers of all time.

Before the battle was begun, Jehoshaphat insisted that they inquire of Jehovah concerning the issue of the conflict. Ahab summoned about four hundred prophets of Israel and asked them about the matter. Base sycophants, they prophesied that victory would come to the armies of Judah and Israel. Still Jehoshaphat was not satisfied and he asked if there might be another prophet who could be asked about the battle. Micaiah was summoned and he fearlessly predicted the utter defeat of the allies and the death of Ahab.

Micaiah was sent to prison and given scanty food. Ahab went to battle—to receive a mortal wound. Thus was the prophet vindicated. In prison he was of greater power than a king on the field of battle. For God was on the side of the courageous prophet. On the other hand, Ahab, though a king, had forfeited all claim upon God and so came to a wretched end.

Marriages

HOLTER-INZER VOWS SAID

Mr. and Mrs. William Gerald Holter, of Birmingham announce the marriage of their daughter, Helen, to Pvt. Burt M. Inzer, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Burt M. Inzer, Sr. of Birmingham, formerly of Clanton.

The event took place on Friday May 14, at the East Lake Methodist Church with Rev. E. C. Johnson officiating.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a blue suit with white accessories and a corsage of red roses. Mrs. Holter was her daughter's only attendant.

The bridegroom's father served as best man.

Pvt. Inzer will return to Ft. Lewis, Washington, for further duty with the army.

Relatives from Clanton attending the wedding were: Mrs. T. C. McSwain, grand mother of the bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Jones Mrs. Fred Cleckler, Mrs. Otis Miller and Mr. Thad McSwain.

LITTLEJOHN-EDWARDS

Mr. Wilbur Edwards and Miss Annetta Littlejohn were married Saturday May 22 at 3:00 p.m. at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Gertie DeLoach on Temple Road Rev. Herman Lowery performing the ceremony.

The bride wore a pale blue nylon dress with full fathered skirt, high neck and puffed sleeves. Her accessories were white. She wore a Rhinestone necklace, a gift of the groom. Her corsage was of pale carnations.

The living room was adorned with gladiolas, mums, and potted plants.

The couple left immediately for a short honeymoon. They will make their home in Prattville where the groom is employed.

Guests for the occasion were: Mrs. James Asa Baker, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Edwards, Miss Bernice Edwards, Miss Eula Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. Darvin Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. Milford Cleckler, Mr. Elmer Cleckler, Miss Faye Thornton Mr. Elton Cleckler, Mr. Alvin Edwards, Mr. J. C. Thornton, Miss Dollie Ruth Nelson, Miss Velma Cleckler, Miss Eunice Wyatt, and Jackie Miller, all of Clanton. Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Buster Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Cleckler of Prattville.

MURPHY-HILLMAN

Miss Tommie Grace Murphy daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Murphy and sister of William E. Murphy, of Clanton, and Thomas E. Hillman, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. T. Conchma of Akron, Ala., were married on May 25, 1954, at the home of the grooms parents.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and Rev. J. M. Partridge read the marriage vows by soft candellight.

The bride wore a taylored suit of pale pink, using white accessories and carrying a paryer book holding gardenias, which was presented to her by her mother, and her corsage was white carnations.

Mrs. Fred Smith served as matron of honor and she wore a fitted suit of lavender with white accessories and a corsage of pink rose buds.

Fred Smith served as the groom's best man.

The couple left immediately following the ceremony for a honeymoon in the southern part of the state. They will return to Clanton for Sunday services at the West End Baptist Church. They will leave for Akron where they will make their home after their visit in Clanton.

Others who attended the wedding from Clanton were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kelly Gillespie and little daughter, Betty.

"I REMEMBER"
BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Joseph W. Eller, Jewett Connecticut: Sixty-eight years ago the first pictures were hung permanently upon the walls of my memory. I remember the old ash hopper. Father, after removing the bottom of a barrel, would place the barrel upright upon a broad, sloping board, high enough off the ground to set a bucket under the lower end of the board. The hard-wood ashes from our stoves, were emptied into the barrel, which was kept well covered until early spring when clean water was poured frequently upon the ashes, which soaked through and produced a lye that dripped into the bucket under the board. This lye mother used to treat her waste pork fats to make her family supply of soft soap.

I also remember hog butchering day, always a real cold day in winter. My older brother, a sure rifle shot, would shoot the animal at the right spot behind the ears. The hogs were cut up, after cooling the shoulders, hams and sides trimmed closely, the fat trimmings for lard and the lean for sausage. The backbones, ribs and liver were saved for the table and there was scrapel and pig's feet for all.

Besides these there are memories of the barrels of sauer kraut, cucumber pickles, sorghum molasses, hickory nuts and black walnuts.

ALABAM AHIGHLIGHTS

Alabama in the 1830s and 1840s became a great cotton growing state. Cotton was a crop that would grow in nearly all parts of the state.

In the early days Alabama had plenty of rich land for the growing of cotton and laborers came to the state by the thousands.

Most Negroes in early Alabama were slaves and they were used on the plantations. There were slaves in the state from the days of the French in Mobile.

As the production of cotton increased in Alabama in the last century the number of slaves increased even more rapidly than the number of white persons.

Most slave owners in Alabama owned fewer than 10, and a majority of the owners did not own slaves.

Alabama did have some wealthy plantation owners and they lived in fine homes set in beautiful surrounding. While high ceilings kept the houses cooler in summer, they were also colder in winter.

Homes of the wealthy early day Alabama planters were filled with furnishings that were expensive, rich and elaborate. Many items were imported from Europe. It took many well trained servants (slaves) to run such large households.

While cotton was the principal money crop, early Alabama, plantation owners usually planted enough fields in other crops to provide food for their slaves and work animals.

The average plantation in early Alabama provided almost everything needed in everyday life, including food and material for clothing. But some plantations were so well located for the purchase of food and clothing that the owners planted all their land in cotton because they could make more money the way

TAKES FIRE WITH HIM

Philladelphia, Pa. — Smelling smoke when he stopped at one of the floors in a twelve-story building, Angelo Navello, elevator operator, tried another floor —more smoke. A couple of other floors—smoke there, too. He telephoned firemen, who discovered that Navello was taking the fire up and down with him. The grease-coated weights attached to the elevator cables were on fire. Firemen extinguished the flames with chemicals.

Around OUR HOUSE

by Katheryn Tucker Windham

The seven-year-old and the five-year-old had been to a cowboy movie with lots of Indians in it, had spent the rest of the afternoon playing Indians with a bunch of neighborhood children and could hardly be lured from their scalping expeditions to come into the wigwam long enough to eat supper.

Naturally the talk at the table was of Indians, their food, their clothes their houses, their weapons, their scalping technique and their ponies

"Daddy," asked the seven-year-old, "are there really any real, live Indians living today?"

"Sure," answered the five-year-old quickly, "lots of them live on reservations out West."

The seven-year-old looked at her informant with displeasure.

"Son," she said, "you shouldn't know more than I do—it isn't good for you. I'm two years older than you are, and I go to school, and it isn't good for you to know more than I do."

While we stopped by to see the neighbor down the street, the one with the big family, she was busy washing her blankets and getting them ready to be put away until next Winter.

To discourage the moths from munching on her family's warm cover, she had added several tablespoons of turpentine to the water in which she washed the blankets She says that no moth likes a turpentine-flavored meal.

To keep the moths out of her clothes closets, this neighbor saves lemon peelings, puts them in cloth bags and hangs the bags in the closets. The odor of the lemon peelings (they dry in the cloth bags) keeps the moths away, and the neighbor's family likes the odor of the citrus fruit better than the odor of the commercial moth-riddance preparations she had been using.

We thought we'd pass along the information to the next door neighbor about adding turpentine to the water blankets are washed in, but she said she had been doing that for years.

She also uses turpentine to keep moths out of her rugs and carpets. She dampens her broom in water to which turpentine has been added and sweeps the rugs and carpets well, and not a single moth-nibbled spot has appeared in one of them.

The neighbors around the corner have a cabin down on the river where they go often during the Spring and Summer. The screens there don't fit as well as they should and flies had a habit of trying to take the place over.

"The flies nearly spoiled our outings," this neighbor says, "until we found a remedy at the drug store. Now we keep some oil of lavender at the cabin. We saturate a sponge in the oil of lavender, put it in a shallow dish in the room, and the flies vanish."

This neighbor says that one of the family's favorite foods on the river outing is oven-baked chicken hash made like this:

Combine 2 cups diced cooked chicken with two cups diced boiled potatoes. Add 3-4 cup milk, 1-4 cup melted margarine, 2 teaspoons salt, pinch pepper and 1 tabspesoon grated onion. Pour into greased baking dish and bake at 375 degrees for 20 minutes or until bubbling hot. Serve with corn sticks and green salad.

9565 DRIVERS LICENSES ISSUED DURING MARCH

Montgomery.—The Driver License Division of the Alabama Department of Public Safety issued 9565 driver licenses during March, but after lifting 906 others, left Alabama a net gain of 8659 new drivers.

A monthly progress report of Capt J. F. Brawner, division chief, stated that 7883 of the 9565 licenses issued were to original applicants and the remainder as renewals

Of the 906 licenses lifted, according to the report, 561 were revoked, 97 per cent for drunken driving convictions, and 345 were suspended, 4 per cent for reckless driving convictions. Six other licenses were cancelled, five obtained by yfraud.

Mrs. J. H. Wells — Phone 653-R2

The congregation was smaller than usual at Mulberry Sunday. Some of our people were visiting other places. You who were not there sure missed a wonderful service. Bro. Jones preached on "Don't Take It Easy," in our church. Work hard, keep going, to church services on Sunday.

There were several visitors present.

The goal for next Sunday is 100. Let us all try to even make the number for Sunday School larger. You go and ask some one else to go.

Wednesday night is regular prayer night at Mulberry. We hope to have a large crowd present.

The Laurie Williams circle met with Mrs. Hazel Bond on Tuesday night May 8. There were seven members present. Mrs. Frances Sexton was elected sec.-treas., to take the place of Mrs. Emma Manning who resigned on account of illness. After some other items of business were discussed the minutes of the last meeting were read and offering was taken.

A program from the Royal service was given by several of the members. The hostess served cookies and cold drinks.

Remember the new time for Baptist Training Union at Mulberry—7:30 p.m. The Director, Mrs. Jack Baker, urges everyone to be on time.

There will be a Deacon's meeting at the Mac Lecroy's this Thursday night May 27, at 7:30 p.m. all the deacons are supposed to be present.

The Ford Circle met with Mrs. J. Cummings on Tuesday night May 18, with a fair number present. The circle voted to get an electric fan for the pulpit at Mulberry. A missionary program was given, taken from different magazines.

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Mrs. were glad to have Miss Truman Stuckey of Clanton and Miss Annie Holcomb of Jemison and other visitors at Mulberry Sunday.

The Demonstration Club—

The club met with Mrs. Pauline Bailey on Tuesday, May 18, with the meal being given by Mrs. Knight. The story of the meeting is given by Mrs. E. S. Jones. A song was sung by the group.

Mrs. Louise Wells, Home Demonstration Agent, gave the demonstration on "Handling New Fabrics." Refreshments were served to the members and one visitor, Mrs. Carnes Conway, by the hostess.

The County Dress Revue, held at Clanton, Mrs. Lewis McGee won second place and Mrs. Garland Bailey placed for the third place in the contest. Congratulations to them from this community.

Mrs. White

This community extends its condolences to Pfc. Gerald White and Judith Leach, who were married Saturday, May 22. Pfc. White is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. White of Isabella community. Mrs. White is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Leach of Mt. Carmel community.

They were married at the home of Rev. J. W. Jones in Thorsby with Rev. Jones officiating in a single ring ceremony. They left on Sunday May 23 for Fort Jackson, S. C., where Pfc. White is stationed. They will make their home in Columbia S. C.

Have you older people read the book, "Grow Lovely, Growing Old" and the young people read, "You Marry Tomorrow"; children read "Bible Families," all from the Mulberry library. Mrs. Garland Smith gave these fine books.

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Turner's week end and Sunday guests were Mrs. Laura Houston and Mrs. Jessie Summers of Maplesville; Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Lee, Atene and Clara, Mr. E. C. Grooms of Isabella, Mrs. R. E. Calfee, Gloria and Carole of Prattville and Mr O. C. Calfee of Isabella.

Mr. Turner is not feeling very well at the time of this writing.

Pvt. Coy Rasberry of Fort Jackson, S. C., is visiting relatives here in this community and in Macedonia community for two weeks. When he returns to Fort Jackson he will attend Mechanic School for eight weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Bryant and boys spent the week end here with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Williams and Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Bryant.

Mrs K. S. Weeks and Karl of Tuscaloosa were Sunday afternoon guests of their mother and grand mother, Mrs. Emma Manning.

On Sunday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Conway, Mrs. Clyde Hightower and little daughter Kay Ophelia Ann and James Olin Conway, and Estelle Fox enjoyed a sight seeing tour. They visited Jasmile Hills Garden and other places of interest near Wetumpka.

If you want to see some of the women of Isabella on berry picking days you will find them in some one's berry patch, in the morning any way.

Lt Glenn Jones left his parents' home Monday May 23 for Lorado Texas, where he will be stationed for some time.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. White's week end and Sunday guests were Mrs. White's sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Honeycutt and two children, Billy and Vicki, and Mr White's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. G. White and two grandchildren, James and Wayne of Jemison.

Capt. Chalmas Jones returned to his home in Tampa, Fla., last Thursday after visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Jones here for over a Week.

Mr. D. W. Morrison who works in South Carolina is spending his two week's vacation here with his wife Mrs. Josie Morrison.

Mrs. Clyde Hightower and little daughter, Kay, left Monday to go spend the summer with her husband's parents at Fruithurst, Ala. Mrs. Hightower is considering going to college at Jacksonville this summer.

Mr. and Mrs. John Browley of Birmingham were Saturday afternoon guests of the E. S. Jones.

Visits Old Home Places in Coosa County—

On Saturday May 22nd, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Conway and Mrs. J. M. Bryant spent the day in Coosa County. They visited their old home places at Corinth, Hypsop. They did some work at the cemetery at Concord church near Hypsop where they have loved ones buried. They ate dinner at the place where old Corinth church use to stand. They gathered rocks and flowers to take home as souvenirs and other places of interest.

On Sunday, May 23, Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Calfee, Mr. and Mrs. Calfee and daughter visited places of interest in Coosa. They went to the old home place of Mrs. Calfee and to [illegible] croy, Mr Vic Lecroy's birth place. They visited the place where old Corinth church and school house once stood. They enjoyed seeing all these places again.

On Sunday May 23, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Lecroy and Myrtice, Mr. and Mrs. Charles McEwen, and Mrs. Herman Lecroy and Brenda, and Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Veasey and boys Randall and Kenneth, took a sight-seeing tour over in Coosa and other places. They made their first stop in Rockford. They visited the cemetery there where Mrs. and Mrs. McEwen's parents are buried. They went to the old school building at Hypsop where they went to school. The building is being used for a club house now. They went to Concord church where Caseys' attended church when they were children. The building is still in use for church services. One thing of interest to them was passing old Philadelphia church, the colored peoples church while services were being held, as it was the fourth Sunday and regular preaching day for the negroes there, such had been the custom of that church for over fifty years.

This group of sight-seers had lunch in Goodwater and next from there to Sylacauga to see more places of interest to them. They went down the old Turnpike Road and stopped at the McEwen Spring. They returned home by the way of Childersburg and Calera. They reported a grand time.

Now after hearing about all these people going back to Cosa makes your reported want to go back to visit there too. She spent her childhood days there. She walked three miles over the hills and hollows to attend this one room school at Corinth, from the age of six to fourteen years. Mrs. A. J. Lecroy was one of Mrs. Wells' last teachers there.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. White are having their house renewed on the outside. It will look like a new one when completed. Mr. White is able to be up in his rolling chair most of the time now.

Mrs. Maude Roseberry spent Sunday with her son, Tolbert Roseberry in Sardis community. Mrs Roseberry is living with Mrs. Emma Manning now.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Wells visited their daughter, Mrs. Erby Dobbs and family, Mr. Joe James Wells and family in Montgomery Saturday.

This community extends its sympathy to Mrs. Tom Fox in her bereavement over the loss of her mother, Mrs. Margaret Whatley. She died at her home in Jemison on Tuesday May 18, and was laid to rest in Cedar Grove cemetery on Wednesday May 19th.

TEXAS INSURANCE CONCERN CANNOT ASSESS ALA. MEMBERS

Montgomery, Ala.—A Texas mutual automobile insurance company has been denied the right to assess its policy-holders, including many in Alabama, State Insurance Superintendent H. A. Longshore has announced.

Longshore said the Texas Court of Civil Appeals has just overruled a lower court decision granting receiver for Texas Mutual Insurance authority to make the assessment.

The insurance superintendent said that the insurance company bankrupt and that the received levied assessments against policy-holders, including some $300,000 worth in Alabama. When the firm bankrupt it had Alabamians about $300,000 in premiums paid in and some $1,000,000 in claims outstanding, he added.

The Texas appeals court ruling means Alabama policyholders will not have to sustain a further loss, Longshore declared.

Elisha Reveals Spiritual Resources. Lesson for May 30: II Kings 6: 8-17. Golden Text: Romans 8: 31

When Elijah was borne heavenward in a chariot of fire, Elisha caught his descending mantle. Elijah had left a disciple and a worthy successor he proved to be.

Elisha was given better treatment by the then king of Israel than had been accorded Elijah. Elisha took a great interest in the affairs of the country, and the king relied upon his judgment, especially concerning the constant wars that the Syrians forced upon Israel. More than once, Elisha saved the Israelites from some ambuscade by their enemies.

Exasperated by the thwarting of his plans, the Syrian king suspected there was a spy in their midst. He was told that Elisha continually warned the king of Israel. Whereupon, inquiries whereabouts of Elisha, the Syrian king sent a large host to capture the prophet and bring him to Syria.

By night the host invested the city where Elisha was and in the early dawn the servant of the prophet rushed to tell him the news. Calmly Elisha told the servant that their forces were more than all those arrayed against them. Then he prayed that the eyes of the servant might be opened to see horses and chariots of fire round them. May the eyes of all of us be opened to the presence of the heavenly host about us when we depend upon God.

"I REMEMBER" BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Lonnie E. Legge, Lewisburg, West Virginia: I remember when the crushing sound of the coffee mill would awake me long before daybreak. Dad always arose at four the year round, helped to get and eat breakfast, then sit around for hours waiting for daylight. The coffee we used was bought green and roasted at home in the oven. It was cheaper (8c a pound) than already roasted coffee. Dad said, anyway, "they roasted the life out of it." Mom always put an egg shell each morning in the coffee "to settle the ground."

Everyone had a cane patch and made their own sorghum molasses. It was used for more things than bread-sopping, too. A gallon or two was put in a kettle of apple-butter, helping to sweeten the butter, giving it better flavor, and a richer, redder color.

All our sugar, coffee, salt and soda, which was about all we bought from the store, was paid for in eggs; but at Easter we were allowed all the ten cent a dozen eggs we could eat. One Easter I ate thirteen, fried, boiled and deviled.

People never went anywhere much. Traveling was so bad they wore themselves out going and couldn't enjoy themselves after they got there.

No woman today will be caught with a dirty apron on. Once, they wore them to church, along with the "poke bonnet;" which projected so far the woman's face could hardly be seen. Those were the good old days—or were they?

(Send contributions to this column to The Old Timer, Community Press Service, Frankfort, Kentucky.)

Companies were formed to link Alabama's river systems in the early days but not enough money was raised to finance the projects.

VEGETABLES NEED CAREFUL STORAGE

Vegetables must be stored carefully at home to preserve food value and freshness.

Here are some suggestions from API Extension Nutritionist Mary Hulsey on conserving space and maintaining vegetable quality.

Potatoes, onions, turnips, parsnips, and beets keep best when stored in a cool, dry, well ventilated vegetable or refrigerator bin. Leafy green vegetables must be kept slightly moist in the fruit or vegetable hydrator or in refrigerator bags.

Pod vegetables and corn should be kept unshelled or unhusked in the refrigerator until just before cooking. Tomatoes store best uncovered under normal refrigeration.

Muffins taste richer when shortening is cut into the flour, as for biscuits.

ORDER FOR PUBLICATION TO NON-RESIDENT

In the Chilton County Law and Equity Court, in Equity, No. 624, May, 1954

The State of Alabama, Chilton County.

Major Lee Williams, Complainant Vs. Emma Helen Williams, Defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register by the affidavit of Major Lee Williams that the Defendant is a non-resident, and that her place of residence and post office address is unknown and that such address cannot be ascertained after reasonable effort; and, further, that, in the belief of said affiant, the defendant is of the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore, ordered by the Register that publication be made in the Chilton County News, a newspaper published in the County of Chilton, once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring her the said Emma Helen Williams to plead, answer, or demur to the bill of complaint in this cause by the 18th day of June, 1954, or, in thirty days thereafter, a decree pro confesso may be taken against her.

Done at office in Clanton, Alabama, this 11 day of May, 1954.

DALE CARNEGIE
★ AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING" ★

IN THE latter part of January, 1945, Robert J. Kauffman, 432 Browncroft Blvd., Rochester, New York, was in trouble—serious trouble, along with fourteen others who were scared to death. They had a right to be, for they thought death was imminent.

They were dug in in the Hurtegon Forest and had no way of knowing what was on their right flank, or on their left, or to the rear. But they did know that forty yards in front of them the enemy were dug in also.

CARNEGIE

Forty yards! And forty yards isn't a great distance—the length of a tennis court, the distance across a busy street crossing. And, it's also a good grenade throw. To that fourteen it looked like eternity was their destination.

During the first night the Chaplain of the outfit came up, cheerful, serene and full of good news. He said that they weren't surrounded. There were "Yanks" on the right flank, and on the left, and to the rear. He told them of the men from their outfit who had been killed, or wounded, or were missing. And of those who were still with them.

And he had them repeat after him the 23rd Psalm: "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil . . ."

Before he left, all felt better.

They were there for two days. During that time they had a lot of time to talk, and the one thing most of them talked about was why the Chaplain seemed to have no fear.

One of the men exclaimed, "That's his job. He has his rank and is getting paid to raise our morale." But the others decided that was all wrong. The Chaplain knew no fear because he had a great belief.

When they walked out of there two days later, none had lost his fear, but all had learned to control it. And all had learned two things:

FIRST: There are no atheists in foxholes.

SECOND. It's necessary to have a strong belief in something

ACROSS the DESK
ideas from other editors

From the Italy News Herald, Italy, Texas: There's been a lot of talk in Italy recently about how some fishermen have been bringing huge catches of the finny tribe . . . by baiting fishing holes with sardines. Persumably the oil leaking through holes in the cans attracts the fish, makes them hungry and they can't resist taking a chance at the baited hooks.

Apparently human beings react similarly to the lure of easy money in the huge government spending programs. A few years ago there was evidence of fraud and corruption in many of the veteran schools that sprang up following World War II. It was found in the veteran housing program, in the grain storage plan, in potato production, and now . . . the lid has blown off the Federal Housing Administration, with indications that the government may have been defrauded of as much as a half billion dollars by individuals who could not resist nibbling at the vast sums within reach.

Having had some experience during the war with government red tape and the multitude of reports required, it has always been amazing to us how these frauds can be perpetrated. The government attitude has always seemed largely to be one wherein everyone is considered a crook until proven honest, what with threats of $10,000 fines and imprisonment emblazoned on virtually every form that must be filled out. The reports required would appear to give an absolute check on every item. The fingerprinting investigation of people entering government service would appear to preclude the possibility of any suspicious character getting a job.

Despite all these precautions, however, subversives do get into government jobs with apparently greater ease than in private business.

Apparently the scent of vast government funds is a powerful bait that makes men forget the barbed hook.

From the Hunterdon County Democrat, Flemington, New Jersey:

Fear of McCarthyism is at best academic—certainly so long as men shout in fulsome voices that they are too terrified to shout. Fear of goon squads employed by organizations with vested privileges and the ability to coerce workers, employers and even public officials is tangible. It can be as much of an evil on the country roads of Hunterdon County as on the Hudson River waterfronts. The question uppermost in the minds of the people of this law-abiding county is whether our traditional liberties are going to be protected by the men we have elected for that purpose.

THURSDAY, MAY 27, 1954 CLANTON, ALABAMA

Report from Washington

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

The headlines in Washington last week, as well as all over the country, announced the Supreme Court's unanimous decision declaring segregation in the public school systems unconstitutional. This decision invalidates the doctrine under which Alabama has operated to date; namely, that Negroes are entitled to "separate but equal" facilities.

This ruling will eventually affect a total of 17 states which have laws requiring separation of the races in schools. It will also affect four other states having laws which permit, but do not require, segregation.

Much has already been said and written about the Supreme Court's decision. But to those of us who live in Alabama and the rest of the South, it is apparent that we face problems far greater than can ever be imagined by those who live in other sections of the United States.

Funds for Warrior Lock & Dam

As I predicted earlier, the Senate Appropriation Committee has increased the appropriation for construction of the Warrior Lock and Dam to $2 million. The House had already approved $1.5 million to begin construction of this modern installation that will eliminate antiquated locks and dams 8 and 9 on the Warrior River.

I feel certain the Senate will approve the Committee's recommendation of $2 million, probably this week, and I am in hopes the House-Senate Conference Committee will also retain that amount. If not, I feel sure the conferees will be able to agree on a sum in the vicinity of $1.8 million. In any event, construction of this important dam seems assured and work on it will probably begin during the coming fiscal year.

Testifies for Coosa Bill

On Tuesday of last week I was one among several witnesses who testified before the House Public Works Committee in support of legislation to provide for further development of the Coosa River by the Alabama Power Company. The Committee has under consideration eight identical bills that were introduced for this purpose. I was author of one of the eight bills and the other seven were introduced by other members of the House from Alabama.

In my testimony, I traced the history of efforts that have been made over a period of more than 125 years to develop the Coosa River in doing so, I pointed out that the only construction on the Coosa at the present time is the three dams built and operated by the Alabama Power Company. I urged a favorable report by the Committee and emphasized the fact that we have no choice at the present time between the use of federal funds and the use of private capital in the further development of the waterway. Instead, the choice is between development by private capital or no development at all.

The Public Works Committee will meet in executive session, possibly this week, to make a decision on the Coosa River proposal.

Social Security Extension

I have had numerous inquiries since Congress reconvened on the proposed extension of social security coverage. As this is written, the House Ways and Means Committee is still considering various sections of the Social Security extension bill. However, the Committee has already tentatively agreed to extend coverage to a number of groups.

The present law excludes from coverage under social security certain designated professions when practiced in a self-employed capacity. Included among those professions are lawyers, physicians, dentists, veterinarians, osteopaths, chiropractors, optometrists, architects, certified public accountants funeral directors and professional engineers. The Committee has adopted a provision repealing this exclusion, thereby covering the self-employed income derived from the practice of these professions The Committee has also approved the extension of coverage to self-employed ministers.

Committee members have agreed to extend coverage to farm operators, on the same basis as other self-employed persons. Whether or not coverage should be extended to some two-million part-time farm workers has not been decided.

The Committee has also adopted a provision extending coverage under prescribed conditions to employees covered by State or local retirement systems. As a prerequisite to such coverage, an agreement must be executed between a state and the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare. The employees affected must also, through a referendum by two-thirds vote, with a majority of those eligible voting, expressing a desire for such coverage.

These extensions of social security coverage have been agreed upon only tentatively by the Ways and Means Committee. Further changes will probably be made before the bill reaches the Floor of the House for a final vote.

PLAN TREE CUTTING TO IMPROVE STANDS

AUBURN, Ala.—Planned cutting is an essential part of good timber management, says API Extension Forester I. R. Martin.

"Right now is the time to cut trees that have no present or future sale value," he explains. "Use them for fuel, posts, and other farm needs. Cut trees that are large, crooked, of defective; they may have sale value now but not later. Thin thick stands now if trees are large enough to sell—don't cut trees unless you can use or sell them.

"Thin crowded stands of pine and valuable hardwoods to allow more room for rapid growth. First remove diseased, defective, deformed and other inferior trees. If stand is still crowded, thin until tree tops stand alone with no branches interlapping."

Around OUR HOUSE

by Callaway Tucker Madison

The other night the couple down the street dropped by to visit with us a little while after supper. The husband, a stamp collector, became interested in reading an article on rare stamps and apparently didn't hear his wife when she asked him a question.

She repeated the question, but she still got no reply.

The seven-year-old, an interested observer, remarked with the air of a grown-up who had tolerated such inattention for years.

"All husbands are like that. They get to reading, and they don't hear a thing! I guess it's just something wives have to put up with."

The stamp collector wasn't too engrossed in his reading to hear that remark!

The neighbor around the corner the one with more imagination than money, has a young daughter who has wanted a canopied bed ever since she saw one in a movie. This neighbor knew her budget wouldn't allow the purchase of such an ornate piece of furniture, but she did want to satisfy her daughter's longing.

Know what she did? She borrowed a canopy from her garden. She took her rose arbor (the roses weren't doing very well anyhow) gave it a coat of white enamel, covered it with flowered chinz and put it over the ... daughter's bed. The child was delighted. When she tires of her fancy bed, the arbor can go back into the rose garden again.

I mean to follow her suggestion from now on. I only hope the letter I wrote reached the proper destination!

This next door neighbor saves nearly everything, but I was surprised when she asked me to save small paper bags for her. After gentle questioning, she told me she blows up the bags and ties them to the limbs of her fruit trees to frighten away the birds. Only she would have thought of making scarecrows out of paper sacks!

WARNING TO BUYERS OF CIGARETS OUT OF ALABAMA

Montgomery, Ala.— Alabamians who buy their cigarets from out-of-state mail order firms to get a cheaper price ... cigarets, tax ... state and local tobacco taxes are (not included) had better be prepared to ante up the state's share of the levy.

And, according to B. B. Atkins, chief of the tobacco tax division of the State Revenue Department, such mail order purchases can resign themselves to being assessed a penalty for having made such purchases.

State law provides for a minimum penalty of $25 plus the tax due for cigarettes bought through out-of-state mail order firms to avoid payment of the tax.

The maximum penalty fixed by state law is $500.

While the state has been cracking down on buyers of such cigarets for some time, it was not until recently that detailed records were received on the purchases, thus enabling the state to act against violators more readily.

Atkins said the recent conviction in a Minnesota federal court of a North Carolina firm specializing in mail order cigarets for violation of the Jenkins Act, which requires ... shipper to furnish to a state ... information on shipments to its residents, made available to the State Revenue Department information ... purchases from Alaba... more readily.

The convicted firm was the Veterans Purchasing Service, which ... sold out to Universal Purchasing Association of North Carolina. The latter is making reports to the state in compliance with the Jenkins Act, Atkins said.

IS YOUR NET FARM INCOME GETTING THE SQUEEZE?

The prices of most farm products ARE DOWN. The cost of what farmers have to buy HAS NOT declined. The margin of profit is LESS. These are facts faced by many farmers—

A PRICE - COST SQUEEZE!

Because of these very conditions, farmers may need MORE CREDIT — LONG-TERM CREDIT — the kind that is available in a LAND BANK LOAN. These loans are made for terms of 5 years up to 40 years, at 4 PER CENT interest—the LOWEST rate in the history of farm mortgage lending.

LAND BANK LOANS carry other special benefits, in addition to the low interest and long time in which to repay. A LAND BANK LOAN may be REPAID IN FULL at any time WITHOUT CHARGE for that privilege. You only have to pay the principal, and interest earned to date of payment.

LAND BANK LOANS are made through and serviced by your local NATIONAL FARM LOAN ASSOCIATION, which is managed by your own neighbors and friends.

CHECK YOUR CAR — CHECK ACCIDENTS

On memorial Day the nation's most skilled drivers, operating crack racing cars, will again meet in the famous Indianapolis Speedway race.

In this grueling event, both cars and drivers will be tested to the utmost, and many of them will probably drop out before the race is over. Of the 33 cars that started in last year's race, 25 failed to finish.

It is true that some drivers took calculated risks in trying to win, and soon found out that driving skill alone has definite limits when up against the hazards of speed conditions.

But most of the cars flunked the mechanical condition test. Those racers are built to take it. They get exceptional care from experts, they are driven by real pros who know human and mechanical limitations. Yet many did not cross the finish line because the best machine ever built by human hands is subject to failure under extreme strain.

Passenger cars, too, are built to last. They'll take plenty of wear and perform safely if watched closely, kept in top condition, and driven by people who recognize mechanical limitations and keep well within them.

The Alabama Safety Council reports two voluntary vehicle safety check programs conducted in Dothan and Montgomery indicate one out of every 3.8 cars and trucks on Alabama streets and roads today is defective in one or more vital safety points.

The standings change slightly every day, but at this writing the defects are, in the order of most frequent appearance: rear lights, tires, front lights, windshield wipers, exhaust systems, brakes, steering, horns, glass areas, and rear vision mirrors.

Check your car — Check accidents! The life you save may be your own.

T.V. ENTERTAINMENT

We note that some of the television columnists are now complaining about the deluge of psychopathic crime being strewn about the nation's television screens. No doubt the average youngster, who goes in search of entertainment in his living-room, sees a lot of queer characters, and quter dramas enacted.

If he were to judge the nature of the outside world by what he sees on the television screen, he would probably conclude that more than half the population is in the category of alcoholics, in need of psychotherapy, or dealing in other vices, even worse than alcoholism. We have mentioned this industry failing on other occasions and think the general average of programming is not what it might be.

Perhaps one of the causes of the dificulty is that so many of the TV plays are produced in New York and Hollywood centeres of the fast moving life which characterizes show business. The average youngster in Podunk lives in different surroundings and circumstances and, therefore, would enjoy clean typically American entertainment. We hope the sponsors—with whom the final responsibility lies—will exert sufficient pressure in the right places to raise the standard of their presentations to a more acceptable level.

Princeton, N. J. — A United States Poll survey just completed shows that among those who have heard or read anything about the McCarthy-Stephens investigations, 10% more people feel that they should be stopped than continued. (48% say stopped; 38% say continued.)

And among those who have heard or read about the investigations, 13% more feel that no good will be accomplished by the hearings than feel that some good will result. (35% think some good will be accomplished; 48% think that no good will come of them.)

Survey results also show that seven out of every eight voters across the nation have heard or read about the investigations.

When United States Poll reporters asked the following question of the 86% who said they had heard or read of the investigations:

"Do you think the investigations should be continued or stopped?"

The nationwide results:

NATIONWIDE

Continued	38%
No opinion	14

Those who think the hearings should be continued argue mainly that we might just as well get to the bottom of it and find out who is at fault.

Those who think the hearings should be stopped cite principally that it's a waste of time and money and that nothing good can come of them.

The second question asked of all those who have heard or read about the investigations:

"Do you think any good will be accomplished by these investigations or not?"

The results:

NATIONWIDE

Yes	35%
No opinion	17

The third and final question in today's survey shows that among people who have heard or read about the investigations, those who side with Army Secretary Stephens outnumber those who side with Senator McCarthy by a better than 3 to 2 margin, with neither side able to muster a majority in its camp.

"Judging from what you have heard or read up to now, whose side are you inclined to agree with—Senator McCarthy's or Army Sec. Stephens'?"

The results:

NATIONWIDE

Army Secretary Stephens	42%
Senator McCarthy	25
Neither	7
No opinion	26

FIN-FAN ITEMS

By R. L. SCOTT

Stripe bass have been providing most of the entertainment on the Coosa-Tallapoosa Lakes during the past week. Many fishermen are taking creel limits in short order. Barney Parsons of Marbury is about as good a fisherman as you will find in these parts, and this is how he has the Stripes figured. The Stripes are leaving the beds and are ravenously hungry for small tender meat. New crops of shad are being hatched and on calm, windless, hazy days these small new shad bait play on the surface, and Mr. Stripe is on hand immediately to eat his fill. Barney adds that the slightest ripple will hold the small shad down, so the best time to look for heavy activity is early mornings or late afternoons. A chugger and trailer rig is the type casting lure used most effectively.

Joe Caudle, Owner, Little Joe's Fishing Camp, Frixco Creek, Lake Mitchell, has had very good luck with the Stripes using a spinning outfit. Joe has caught nice strings each morning this week from the flats between Bird and Walnut Creeks.

W. E. Martin and C. F. Arnold, Birmingham, fished the headwaters of Mitchell Lake for their Stripes and each caught the limit of big ones. Buck Hearley, Clanton, used willow grubs in the upper reaches of Mitchell and took home a no. 2 wash tub full of Drum.

Fishing contest entries of the week show that Largemouth Bass have been rather active also.

LAKE MARTIN

E. J. Phillips Tackle Company, Sylacauga, reports: R. L. "Dick" Webster, Jr., Sylacauga, used one of Mr. Phillips' special lures, a Pee-Wee Popper, attached to a spinning rig and boated an 8 pound, 6 ounce Largemouth Bass from Kowaliga Creek. Dick caught 5—5 pound Bass so far this spring with the same lure.

Lake Hill Inn, six miles south of Alexander City, near Highway 280 bridge, reports: R. E. Pearson, Alexander City, fished about Young Island at daybreak and caught 8 fine Bass. He used a Bass bug and his best catch was a 3 pound, 8 ounce, Smallmouth Bass.

Kowaliga Beach Resort, near Kowaliga Creek Bridge, south of Alexander City, reports: E. E. Honnicutt, Montgomery, tried his luck on Kowaliga Creek with a River Runt and hooked a 6 pound, 1 ounce Largemouth Bass. Mr. Honnicutt said that this was his best catch in seventy years of fishing. Frank Jackson, Alexander City, racked up a 5 pound 1 ounce Largemouth Bass from Kowaliga with a Jitter Bug. Frank related how his lure hit a log in the water and bounced, and the fish came out of the water and took the lure before it hit the water.

LAKE JORDAN

Claude Wood's Store, Weoka Creek Bridge, near Titus, reports: James A. Kelly, Titus, fly fished Weoka Creek with a Peck's Bug and took a nice string of Largemouth Bass. His best was 3 pounds, 10 ounces.

Some fishermen are a bit hesitant and have to be persuaded to enter their catch in the contest. ideas from other editors

From the Surface Creek News, Cedaredge, Colorado: A small town is where everybody knows your business and yet will make it their business if anyone in the community needs help. It is where folks talk about you and then talk for you when the chips are down. It is where there has to be a fire to get anyone on the streets after 9 o'clock and yet there will be square dancing until 2 o'clock in the morning and not dependent on hot music and cold drinks to keep up the spirits.

In a small town there is a common bond during a disaster and a common thankfulness for rain, or a beautiful day, or a new fire hydrant. There is little thought paid to social position, and the judging of a man is done on his own values—deep values.

It is where a person speaks to his friend as many times as he sees him during the day, not worrying over the social graces as to whether they have already greeted each other previously. It is where a neighbor's hurt becomes your hurt.

The freedom and dignity of the individual is practiced in a small town without a lot of paid coaching by experts who think they know the minds of men. A man expects to earn what he gets and get what he earns.

A stranger becomes the focus of honest curiosity and the returning native always seems to have added a little glamour. The words of a stranger seem important.

A small town is where lack of convention allows for more time to live well and think clearly. The veneer of fatuous argument is a thin shell which comes close to allowing the reality of things to show through. The problems of the people are concerned with nature and close association with others—with things as they are.

From the Aztec Independent Review, Aztec, New Mexico: Life is not all pleasure, be it full of work or play, for you can get awfully tired whether you're working or at play. Play is simply working doing things you like to do, while work is a gainful duty that should be pleasing you. Building a house is playing if the building is your own but doing the work for others wearies you to the bone. So what you get out of living is what you put in your mind, neither play nor work is pleasant until you adjust your mind.

WHEREUPON, the Clerk of the Board presented to the board a list of claims and accounts filed with him against the County. Whereupon the board proceeded to audit all such claims, and it appearing to the board that each of the following claims are itemized and sworn to as provided by law with evidence of delivery of such item to the County as provided by law, that the materials, machinery, equipment, supplies and services purchased by the county for use on public roads, birdges and ferries were inspected and approved by the County Engineer, as provided by law. And it further appearing to the Board that all said claims are just, due, correct and unpaid and that no part thereof has been previously paid. Whereupon Mr. Motley offered the following resolution for adoption; which was duly seconded by Mr. Dunlap; and unanimously adopted by the vote of the Chairman and all the members of the board, to-wit: IT RESOLVED AND ORDERED: That said claims are hereby audited, allowed, passed and approved by the Board. And be it further ordered by the Board that the sum of the claims payable to the respective parties, as hereinafter set out, for the materials or services as hereinafter set out, and in the amounts, as hereinafter set out, be allowed. AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED AND ORDERED: That the Chairman of the Board is hereby directed and authorized to draw a proper county warrant on the county treasury for the amount in the payment of each of said claims in favor of the person, firm or corporation to whom it is due, from the funds listed:

SELF EXPLANATORY SCRIPTURES

Behold I set before you this day a blessing and a curse. A blessing if you obey the commandments of the Lord your God, which I command you this day. And a curse if ye will not obey the commandments of the Lord your God. Deut. 11 26-27.

The works of his hands are verity and judgement; all his commandments are sure. They sat and fast forever and ever, and are done in truth and uprightness. Ps. 111:172

My tongue shall speak of thy word; for all thy commandments are righteousness. Ps. 119-172

But my salvation shall be forever and my righteousness shall not be abolished, Isiah 51:6. Moreover also I gave them my sabbaths to be a sign between me and them, that they might know that I am the Lord that sanctified them. Ezek 20:12-20

Think not that I am come to destroy the law, or the prohpets: am not come to destroy but to fulfill.

For verily I say unto you till Heaven and earth pass one jot or one title shall in no wise pass from the law, till all be fulfilled.

Whosoever therefore, shall break one of the least commandments and shall teach men so he shall be called least in the kingdom of Heaven; but whosoever shall do and teach them, the same shall be called great in the kingdom of Heaven. Matt 5:17-18-19.

Not every one that saith unto me Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of Heaven; but he that doeth the will of My Father which is in Heaven. Matt. 7:21. And why call ye me Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say? Luke 6:46.

And it is easier for Heaven and earth to pass them one tittle of the law to fail. Luke 16:17.

Heaven and earth shall pass away but my word shall not pass away

For whosoever shall keep the whole law, and yet offend in one point, he is guilty of all. James 2:10.

If ye shall ask anything in my name I will do it. If ye love me, keep my commandments, John 14: 14-15

He that hath my commandments and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me; and he that loveth me shall be loved of my father and I will love him, and will manifest myself to him. If a man love me, he will keep my words: and my father will love him, and we will come unto him and make our abode with him. John 14 21-2. If ye abide in me and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will and it shall be done unto you. John 15:7.

And hereby we do know that we know him, if we keep his commandments. He that saith, I know him and keepeth not his commandments is a liar, and the truth is not in him. 1 John 2:3-4. But ye have an unction from the Holy One and ye know all things. I John 2:20-27.

Whosoever committeth sin, transgresseth also the law; for sin is the transgression of the law. And whatsoever we ask, we receive of him, and do those things that are pleasing in his sight. I John 3:4; 22. By this we know that we love the children of God, when we love Go and keep his commandments. For this is the love of God, that we keep his commandments, and his comandments are not grevious. 1 John 5:2-3 Blessed are they that do his commandments, that they may have a right to the trees of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city. Rev. 22:14.

Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter: Fear God and keep his commandments. for this is the whole duty of man

For God shall bring every work into judgement, with every secret thing, whether it be good, or whether it be evil. Ecc 12:13-14

Now friends all that want eternal life, read and do the following scriptures: Matt. 19:17; Mark 10:19; Luke 10:27-28; Luke 18:19-20.

This is the Jesus way. Jesus Christ the same yesterday, today and forever.

Please remember Jesus Christ was a lamb slain from the foundation of the world. Rev. 13:8.

The testimony of Jesus is the spirit of prophecy. Rev. 19:10.

The way of Holiness is so plain, the wayfaring men though, fools shall not err therein. Isiah 35:8.

At that time Jesus answered and said, I thank thee, O Father, Lord of Heaven, an dearth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them unto babes. Matt. 11:25.

God gives knowledge to those that are in obedience, but darkens the heart and understanding of those that are in transgression. 1 John 3:4 gives you the definition of transgression.

Your friend in Christ.

MAGNET UNLOCKS BOY

Schenectady, N. Y. — Stephen Struffolino, 7, swallowed a paddock. Taken to a hospital, the doctors with the aid of a small but powerful magnet, extracted the lock from the boy's stomach and 24 hours later, Stephen was sitting at his own dinner table.

Under The Study Lamp

By William Crowe

A Tramp or a Traveler—Which?

"So I came to Jerusalem." Nehemiah2:11.

Jerusalem is one of the oldest cities of the globe. For twenty-nine centuries travelers from far and near have been passing in and out of its gates. With one exception however this was the most momentous entrance ever made through these portals crowned with towering arches.

The writer of this pernosan sketch was Nehemiah, a slave in the palace of the king of Persia. Though an alien by compulsion, Nehemiah's heart throbbed with a dedicated love for his home country and people—a love that reckoned not with any sacrifice to be made in their behalf. Hearing that Jerusalem, their capital city, the streets of which had echoed for centuries to the tread of the feet of his ancestors, was now in ruins, and that the people were unable to rebuild its defensive walls because of their poverty and the appression to go to their rescue. The king not only permitted his return, but supplied him with a military escort for protection on the long road fraught with constant danger from marauding bands.

"So I came to Jerusalem." He arrived, braced by the hope of bringing deliverance to his distressed people, bone of his bone, flesh of his flesh. So this was the end of a traveler's journey.

Be it remembered that there is a difference worthy of note between a tramp and a traveler. A tramp is a mere wandered who shifts from place to place, without a purpose without a definite goal; whereas the traveler, with fixed intention, walks with a firm tread, his face set toward a predetermined point of arrival. Such was the patriotic Nehemiah. It is for that reason that he made emphatic note of his having reached his desired objective.

The genuine Christian is no migratory wanderer. Like Abraham of old he is looking toward the gates of the city that hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God. Earnestly and eagerly he presses forward toward the mark for the Prize and the high calling of God in Christ Jesus.

The Puritans in England were people who were seeking for larger spiritual fruits of the Reformation than were their fellow citizens. Later they became known as Pilgrims, earnest seekers for civil liberty the natural product of spiritual freedom Against unmeasured odds thousands of the Pilgrims crossed the uncharted Atlantic. The United States Government owes its birth and development to these heroic immigrants. Had they been mere moral tramps, there would have been no American Revolution, no liberty such as we are enjoying today.

It might be a profitable exercise for every reader of this brief exposition to ask himself a searching question, namely;—"Am I a purposeful traveler, with a definite goal ahead, or am I a moral tramp, shuffling along through a useless life?" Nehemiah was a traveler indeed His arrival at the gate of the city of his fathers marked a turning point in the history of the race

By LYN CONNELLY

PERRY COMO celebrates his 20th wedding anniversary this year, a feat few show people can brag about . . . Perry's wife is the former Roselle Belline, a non-professional who was his childhood sweetheart . . . One cannot help but compare Perry with Frank Sinatra . . . He, too married his childhood sweetheart, but she did not prove glamorous enough for him when success came his way . . .

Como is unusual in that with him his family comes before his career and if ever that career interfered with a normal home life he would give it up for his own barber shop without hesitation . . .

Recently, Perry refused a fabulous offer of $25,000 per week for a two-week engagement at a Las Vegas gambling bistro, an offer difficult for any performer but him to turn down . . . He is perfectly content to have his radio and television shows and make records as pocket money, which is not a enough going at that since most of his discs are in the hit category . . .

The Comos have three children—Ronnie, 14; David, 8, and Terry (a girl) 7.

Mother and Father will enjoy Gordon MacRae's latest, "Open Your Arms" backed by "Coney Island Boat" with Gordon and June Hutton.

HEAVY DEATH TOLL EXPECTED NEXT WEEK END

Montgomery—Alabama's Memorial Day week end traffic toll is expected to range from 16 to 22, depending upon the length of the recognized holiday period.

The Alabama Safety Commission said that if the period extends over 78 hours, from 6 p.m. Friday through Monday, the "normal" toll will be 22. If the holiday closes at midnight Sunday, 16 deaths could be expected.

Memorial Day, a national holiday not observed as such in the South but still affecting all federal and many private agencies, falls on Sunday, May 30. The National Safety Council had not announced (May 21) how the count would be tallied.

Accompanying the 22 deaths would be at least 770 injuries, and 4950 accidents, the safety commission said and Alabama would suffer an estimated economic loss of nearly three million dollars from traffic accidents alone during the 78 hours.

Two Clanton Students Graduate At Huntingdon

Two Clanton students will receive Bachelor of Arts degrees when Huntingdon College closes its centennial year May 31. They are Mary Ann Oglesby and Betty Robertson.

The commencement address will be delivered at 10:30 a.m. in the Huntingdon chapel by Dr. Ralph Draughon, president of Alabama Polytechnic Institute. Dr. Carl Adkins, minister of Dapphin Way Methodist Church, Mobile, will speak at the bacclaureate service at 11 a.m. May 30 in Montgomery's First Methodist Church.

Both have had distinguished records at Huntingdon. Miss Oglesby, daughter of Mrs. Mary C. Oglesby, was this year's winner of the Huntingdon Loyalty Cup in addition to being elected "most representative senior" and president of her dormitory, Pratt Hall. She is a graduate of Chilton County High School and at Huntingdon has majored in English and history.

Miss Robertson, daughter of and Mrs. Gordon L. Robertson, formerly of Birmingham, has biology and English as her major subjects. She has been president of the Scribblers Club, junior adviser to the Publications Union and dadvertising manager of the yearbook, Bell-Pomegranates.

During the year ending last June 30, Americans paid a total tax bill—federal, state and local—of $2,134 per family, or more than was spent for food and clothing in that year by the average family.

Texas, Montana and Kansas lead the nation in number of acres farmed and Texas also ranks first in number of individual farms, followed by North Carolina and Mississippi.

To The Citizens Of Chilton County:

On June 1, 1954 you citizens will make a vital decision. The type of community you have for the next four years, may well depend on the decision you make on that day. This decision deserves a lot of thought and study on your part.

I regret that I have not been able to see each of you and discuss the issues personally but the duties of your Sheriff's Office has kept the deputies and myself very busy and it is my solemn duty to attend to your affairs first. for I took an oath when I assumed the duties of the office to do this. I have not and will not let you down.

I deeply appreciate the fine work that my friends have done in my behalf during this campaign, and I invite each of you to go to the polls and vote for me on June 1, 1954.

Let me urge each of you to go vote on that day for it is your duty, and privilege. Don't let anything hinder you from this, for your vote is as important as anyone's.

All of you know how I stand on the bootlegger and gambling question, you too know that they are fighting me hard, not only by their vote, but by their false rumors. So I want each of you to exercise your right by casting your vote.

I Am One Official That Has Fulfilled All Of My Previous Campaign Promises. You Know My Record.

If you were hiring a principal for your school, you would want one that had been trained and experienced, or if some member of your family was sick you would want a doctor. If some crime was committed in your community, you would want a Sheriff that had been trained and experienced in Law Enforcement.

I Am The Only Candidate For Sher- That Has Had Any Training Or Experience In Law Enforcement.

I humbly solicit your vote and support and I assure you that I will continue to strive for a better county in which to live and rear our children.

Please remember that a good record is far better than a lot of promises.

Sincerely, yours,
J. LUTHER KENDRICK

You Might Call it a "Gravy Train"

Was reading the other day about a Maharaja in India who has a miniature electric train all made of silver. Now, maybe that's not unusual for a prince, but this fellow had it running around on an enormous dining table in the royal palace.

The twelve cars on the train are loaded with different kinds of fruits, nuts, and beverages. And the train stops automatically in front of each plate so the person sitting there can choose what he wants.

From where I sit, the Maharaja is really going to extremes to impress his guests. Around this part of the world, hospitality certainly doesn't need all those fancy trimmings.

You don't have to spend a lot of money or go to a lot of work when folks drop in. Just offer them what you have—coffee, tea, a temperate glass of beer — and let them make their own choice. They'll feel they're getting a royal welcome!

LEGIONNAIRES GIVEN DEATH WARNING

According to Major N. W. Kimbrough, American Legion chairman of public safety, six more persons will be killed in Chilton County the balance of this year, bringing the total to ten killed in traffic accidents. These figures were based on statistics for the past four years. He pointed out that the staggering amount of thirty-five thousand souls went on to meet their maker during the past year due to traffic accidents alone. In Alabama one person is killed every eleven hours.

Major Kimbrough said that the high traffic fatalities was due to lack of proper safety education among our youngsters who are the drivers of tomorrow. He pointed out that school girls were taught to sew and cook while the boys were taught certain trades but that very little thought was given to teaching them how to live.

The local Legion post was urged to join a cooperative program in the prevention of traffic accidents and the following local citizens were appointed by Commander Bob Fulton to serve on the committee: E. Tucker, Chief Clanton City Police; S. E. Waters, principal, Chilton County High School and Luther Kendrick, Sheriff, Chilton County.

It was further pointed out that if a bank was being robbed every eleven hours that practically every business man in the state of Alabama would be willing to join a posse to capture the robber or bring a stop to such lawlessness so that little was being done to put a stop to traffic deaths. Who would not consider his life or the life of a loved one more valuable than a bank. No one knows who will be the next to be struck down.

NOW'S THE TIME TO MAKE MARKET PLANS

The heaviest marketing season for many Alabama fruits and vegetables begins in June.

So wise growers will make sale arrangements now with wholesalers or retailers, says Austin Ezzell, API Extension distributor marketing specialist. Don't wait until harvest time to shop for markets.

If possible, suggests the farm leader, know how much each buyer wants, how he wants each product packaged, what stage of maturity he prefers, and the time of day he needs delivery. A well organized market plan means more profit dollars.

IS YOUR FARMSTEAD SPROUTING DANGER

Spring is a good time to weed out those danger sprouts.

Stella Mitchell, API Extension home management specialist, advises farm families to go on a search for safety threats. Yards often conceal tripping hazards, broken glass rusty or sharp tin cans, and exposed nails

"A spring cleanup," says the home leader, "can prevent costly accidents in the farm family's busiest season Studies show that other than the personal factor of poor judgement disorder is the largest single cause of injuries."

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

What's your role in your child's life pattern? Do you think about it at all? Or do you just provide his physical needs of food and clothing, forgetting your responsibilities of guiding your child into the proper channels for a useful and honorable existence?

Most parents forget their childhood. They forget too that, instinctively, their own lives have been marked by parental influence. What is this influence? It is a strong force that gets its effect by good example, day in and day out. A child who is exposed to affection, happy companionship and a common joy of sharing family affairs, even the problems will be more likely to have these characteristics in his own life pattern than one who it not.

Because parents are inclined to forget their own youth, they fail to understand that adolescence is a difficult period, both emotionally and psychologically. Suddenly, it seems, the child has grown up, at least in his own opinion; he manifests physical characteristics of the adult, and his intelligence shapes into adult thinking.

The youngster, with this natural process of development, fails to understand that he has not yet acquired wisdom, which is essential to being completely adult. And wisdom comes only with experience. Parents forget this. They want the child to learn from their experience, that is profit by their mistakes. Very often this is possible, but children also must learn through their own experiences.

The period of adolescence is one of the most difficult in development; it is hard for the youngster because his natural mental and physical growth demand freedom and independence. It is difficult for the parent who sees his authority denied, and it is difficult for the community whose conventions are torn apart by adolescent refusal to conform.

Let your child grow up, but help him to do it wisely. With your understanding as a parent, he will, through his own experience, gain the wisdom he needs to take his place in society.

Revival At Methodist Church Gets Under Way June 13

HARRY P. ARMSTRONG

Harry P. Armstrong, Associate Pastor and Director of Music at the First Methodist church in Atlanta, Georgia, is one of the outstanding choir directors and song leaders in the United States. He has been Director of Music in meetings in which he was associated with nationally known evangelists throughout the country.

Before coming to Atlanta in December, 1940, he was the Travis Park Methodist Church in San Antonio, as Director of Music and Associate Pastor. Previously, he was associated with Dr. Clovis Chappell and the present Bishop Arthur J. Moore, when they were pastors of First Methodist Church, Birmingham.

The quality of music and the growth in membership of the choir at First Methodist, Atlanta, under his leadership have attracted the attention not only of Atlanta, but of the State and this section of the country.

FARM BRIEFS

Don't prune off the roots of cotton and cut yields; cultivate often enough to control grass and weeds.

Farmers who failed to get sericea planted in early spring or who failed to get a stand should take advantage of July rains and plant this crop the last of June or the first few days of July.

Sweet corn may be planted in early June in South Alabama and until the middle of the month in North Alabama.

Be sure all pullets are vaccinated for Newcastle and fowl pox

Stack lumber properly to prevent stained, decayed, and warped boards and other costly losses.

DR. PIERCE HARRIS

Dr. Pierce Harris, pastor of the First Methodist Church, Atlanta Georgia is a native of Georgia, his father having been a member of the North Georgia Conference of the Methodist Church. He received his education at various schools of North Georgia, at Reinhardt College and Emory University.

Since his arrival in Atlanta, December, 1940, approximately 4,000 new members have been added to the First Methodist Church. Congregations have grown until they overflow the auditorium each Sunday morning and night. It has been said that Dr. Harris' ability to use an appropriate bit of humor—which not only enlivens the message, but adds to the strength of it—places him high among public speakers. He is a man of gerat energy. He is now in his fourteenth year as pastor of the First Methodist Church, Atlanta. That church has the record—possibly the only church in the United States with such a record—of having received at least one new member each week for the past thirteen years.

To church groups, conferences and conventions, he makes several hundred addresses each year. Recently he has spoken or preached at:

The Richmond Virginia Preaching Mission.

The Western North Carolina Methodist Conference.

The South Carolina Methodist Conference.

The Texas Methodist Conference.

The Central Texas Methodist Conference

The Holston Methodist Conference.

The Florida Conference, and others.

He speaks at a wide range of national conventions, such as:

United States Steel and Metal Trades.

American Gas Association

American Lumbermens Association.

Rotary International

And nation-wide church conferences in his own and other denomination

Dr. Harris gives his support to institutions for civic and social improvement. He is a director of the Atlanta Chapter of the American Red Cross and has served on the Board of Directors of the Family Service Bureau. In addition to speaking at colleges, universities and high schools at commencement time, he has served as a trustee of Young Harris College, Reinhardt College and LeGrange College

Since 1943, he has been writing a column for the "Atlanta Journal" the largest newspaper in the South—which reader-interest polls have shown to be one of the most popular and widely-read columns the paper has had in its entire history

Being a former baseball player, Dr. Harris is interested in sports. He has won more than 80 trophies and is considered one of the best left-handed golfers in the United States. In past years, he spent his vacations playing in golf tournaments, one of his first victories being the national left-handed tournament in Miami

In baseball playing days, he was with Georgia - Alabama, Cotton States, Southern, and American League teams

GET THAT SPRAYING MACHINE READY NOW

AUBURN, Ala.— Cotton insects won't wait for farmers to condition their dusting and spraying equipment.

"A great deal depends on having machines ready to go into action on short notice," warns W. A. Ruffin, API Extension entomologist "Applying chemicals on time is a vital phase of insect control.

"Remember," continues the farm leader, "damaging numbers of boll weevils and other pests can quickly turn a good cotton year into a bad one. So be prepared for any emergency.

The specialist suggests that farmers do these things now to put equipment in condition for instant use: (1) check the entire machine for needed spare parts,)2) check the pumping operation thoroughly (3) check hose connections—hose replacements should be made of chemical-resistant rubber, and (4) clean nozzles and entire spraying system thoroughly.

HOW MUCH DOES A STRIKE COST A WORKER?

How often have you read about a strike over hourly wage rates in a single plant or within an industry and wondered how it ultimately affected the worker's pocketbook? How often have you stopped to consider whether the gains achieved were able to offset the pay lost during the strike period?

Here is a ninteresting analysis of how long it takes the worker to make up pay lost during a strike.

If an employee in a manufacturing firm with a weekly take-home pay of $60 strikes one week, and if he gains an increase of two cents an hour, it will take him one year and 24 weeks to make up pay he lost.

If the same worker strikes four weeks, and if he gains six cents an hour, it will take him [illegible] year and 40 weeks to make up pay he lost.

If [illegible] worker strikes 10 weeks, and gains 10 cents an hour, it will take him [illegible] years and 16 weeks to make up pay he lost.

[illegible] are [illegible] forging plant [illegible] started last October [illegible] ago—and still [illegible]

Steps taken in 1947 with the [illegible] of the Labor-Management Relations Act [illegible] known as the "Taft-Hartley Law" have helped reduce strikes lost time. In 1946 there were 116,000,000 man-days lost through strikes. In 1953, six years after passage of the law, man-days lost through strikes had been reduced to 24,000,000. And at the same time, average weekly wages in industry rose from $43.62 in 1946 to $[illegible] in 1953

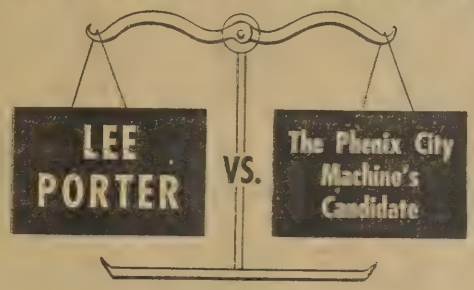
the records of the two candidates for

ATTORNEY GENERAL



The voters of Alabama are urged to study carefully the backgrounds and associations of the two candidates in this all-important race for Attorney General of Alabama!

You'll find that clean, sincere LEE PORTER has always stood on the side of law and order (look at his record!) . . . You'll also find that the PHENIX CITY POLITICAL MACHINE has always backed the other candidate! (This machine won for the PHENIX CITY CANDIDATE in 1946, in 1950 and again on May 4, 1954 in their county) . . . and YOU DON'T WIN IN PHENIX CITY WITHOUT THE MACHINE'S BLESSINGS!

So stop, look and listen! . . . Go to the polls June 1 with your EYES WIDE OPEN, because your Attorney General is the man charged with UPHOLDING LAW AND ORDER IN ALABAMA! . . .

ELECT LEE PORTER FOR ATTORNEY GENERAL

this is LEE PORTER

Vote for the man whose record proves that he is on the side of LAW AND ORDER: LEE PORTER, the man who served his country well in two wars and who'll serve Alabama well as Attorney General! . . .

- 53 Months in Military Intelligence in Wartime
- Instructor of Law for 16 Months at Ft. Holabird
- Practising Attorney for 15 Years
- Unanimously Endorsed by Hometown Bar Association
- U. S. Commissioner for Eight Years
- Served During World War II and Korean Conflict
- Polled 48% of Vote for Attorney General in 1950
- Alabama-Born and Alabama-Educated
- Former President, Alabama Junior Bar Association
- Clean, Sincere, Fearless and Fair

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

Mrs Myrtle Wilson, chairman of the decorating committee for the 1954 Peach Festival, met with the JC's Tuesday noon to plan committees and the like in preparation for the coming festivities. Three committees were named by chairman Wilson and the Junior Chamber members. One committee will see to the decorating and cleaning of the airport grounds. That is along with other improvements such as weed cutting on our highways and byways, cleaning the street, picking up trash and the like. Another will promote the beautifying of our fruit and vegetable stands up and down the highway. The third committee's job is to see that the store windows and fronts are decorated to suit the occasion. It is a big job that these committees are undertaking and we hope they get full cooperation from everyone.

The County Welfare Department offices will be closed on Friday of this week. This will be commemoration of the anniversary of the birth of Jefferson Davis first president of the Confederacy.

That open house you have been waiting for will be held next Wednesday. We're referring to the open house to be held at the Cooper Community House. Time is 9:00 a.m. until 3 p.m. You are invited.

Eleanor Craig says she don't give typing lessons no more. The Linotype operator hit the wrong key in setting the classified ad last week about the typing classes at the high school and gave 794 instead of 704. Well, 794 happens to be Mrs. C. C. Craigs telephone number and it was all a mistake. We apologize to Eleanor Craig and hope she wasn't too put-out about it all.

Jim Plott says he has bee ntrying to get us to write him a "thank you" note to the voters of Chilton County ever since last election but something keeps happening. Well, let us take this opportunity to s[illegible] to you that Ji ndeeply appreciated the support of his friends and is humbly grateful for the fine support he received.

The merchants are not cooperating too well in putting floats in the peach festival parade. Time is growing short and if the merchants wish it to be a successful peach festival they should get their order in for a float immediately. If you are interested call Joe Jackson at 735.

David Cobb recently brought two roses of different color on the same stem to the News office. Guess David is wondering how come it took so long for his roses to be noticed in print but it just seems like there has been a political campaign going on and confidentally David, it was the slam-bangingest campaign it has ever been our pleasure of witnessing.

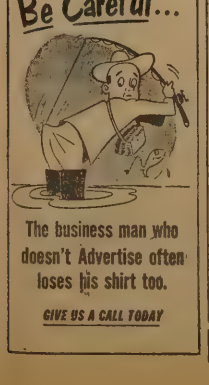
EBENEZER CHURCH

The homecoming at Ezenezer church will be held the second Sunday in June, the 13th. Everyone has a cordial invitation to attend. Come and bring a well filled basket.

All singers and lovers of music be sure to come. Come and worship with us and you will be glad you did.

Come one, come all.



For Better Shows--

County Cattlemen's Association Proposes Exhibit Improvements

An effort inaugurated by the County Cattlemen's Association and supported by the County Board of Revenue and Control, the Chilton County Peach Festival, Dairymen, Businessmen, and others, to make major permanent improvements in the airport facilities is being rushed to final reality. The proposed improvements are to include the following:

1. A 48'x200' exhibit shed.

2. A permanent shed on west end of large hangar, 24'x98' with rest room facilities in central area.

3. A stage and portable seats inside hangar.

The above facilities have long been needed in connection with permanently established events now being staged in the County (County Fair, Peach Festival, 4-H and FFA Rallies, Farm Bureau Rally, etc.) and can be used for many other county-wide activities.

The Cattlemen's committee (after a number of meetings, each of which brought up additional suggested public uses for the buildings) has deemed it desirable to solicit aid from all Chilton County groups. After completion of the permanent improvements the County will have a more desirable area for holding many of Chilton's larger meetings. The facility will belong to us all.

Chilton's County Fair, the Peach Festival; and many other County and area events have been staged with makeshift facilities that certainly haven't been convenient for the faithful workers that plan and develop the events, or comfortable to our visitors and spectators. The Peach Festival, our County Livestock Shows and our County-wide Rallies are our "show-window" events. People from many sections of the state and other states attend and form opinions of us from what they see. Some of the visitors have been, and probably will in the future, be industrialists considering Chilton County as a home for a new industry. Many have been and will this year, no doubt, be buyers of our farm produce. Certainly we should make the best possible impression.

Chilton County Cattlemen's Assn. in taking the lead in airport building improvements, have started a job that is a duty of all Chilton County citizens. The local papers and the local radio station join cattlemen in making this appeal to every Chilton County citizen, cattlemen are soliciting a donation from every citizen of the County to assist in playing the cost of improving the "stage" for our "show-window" events.

Regardless of how large or how small, complete the form below and send your donation on in this week for your share of the County exhibit facility improvement. As complete plans, funds [illegible] necessary, and plans should be rushed to completion by June 20th.

Next week's paper will [illegible] complete list of all who [illegible]

JUDGE CARR TO BE SPEAKER AT FESTIVAL

Clanton, Ala.—Chilton countians are making preparations for their biggest and best annual Peach Festival to be held June 25-30 and indications are that the county will have one of its best peach crops on record.

Plans being made by the Chamber of Commerce and Chilton County Peach Festival Association call for the crowning of the Festival Queen on Friday night, June 25, and a junior queen the following night.

The annual parade from Thorsby to Clanton is scheduled for Wednesday, June 30. Other than this and baseball games scheduled the final day, the Festival events will be held at the Clanton Airport Hangar.

Judge R. B. Carr, presiding judge of the Alabama Court of Appeals will be the featured speaker on June 30 and the prize baskets of peaches will be auctioned off by Tom McCord of Montgomery.

Peach Festival chairman this year is Lamar Shields; co-chairman is Joe Jackson.

THANKS VOTERS

I wish to Express my sincere thanks and appreciation to the Citizens of Chilton County for the fine vote you gave me on June 1, 1954. I especially appreciate the fine work that my friends did in my behalf and I assure you that I hold no ill feeling toward anyone, and anytime that I can be of service to anyone, please call upon me.

Respectfully yours,

CADET COL. JOHN RICHARD KEMP GETS MERITORIOUS ACHIEVEMENT AWARD

Cadet Col. John Richard Kemp, Regional Commander of the Army ROTC at the University of Alabama was awarded the Meritorious Achievement Award by Headquarters, Third Army in Governor's Day ceremonies at the University recently. The award was presented by the Governor's representative, Judge Pelham J. Merrill, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of Alabama. The citation was presented "in recognition of having been selected as the ROTC student who developed qualities of leadership to the highest capacity."

Richard Kemp is the son of Mrs. M. C. Brauso of Phenix City and the late John R. (Dick) Kemp, and the grand son of T. W. Kemp, of Clanton. He attended the Clanton Elementary School, Chilton County High School and graduated with honors from Central High School at Phenix City. At the University he has been named to the Dean's list each semester. He is a member of Phi Eta Sigma, Freshman honorary, Pi Mu Epsilon, Mathematics honorary, 1st Lieutenant (vice president) Scabbard and Blade, military honorary, Distinguished Military student and president of Signa Pi Sigma, Physics honorary.

PAYTON WINS IN RACE FOR SHERIFF

R. Odell Payton

R. Odell Payton won the race for sheriff of Chilton County in the election held Tuesday by 68 votes. This, of course, is the unofficial count as the official count will be made later this week.

Both candidates had paid to get their pre-election expense accounting but were not disqualified and were allowed to continue in the race to determine who the winner would be. This will probably determine who the nominee of the Democratic party will be in the November election in case both candidates are considered disqualified at a later date.

The Democratic Executive Committee can appoint any one they choose to represent the party if both Kendrick and Payton are disqualified. Chairman J. B. Atkinson will call the Committee together within the near future to determine what course to pursue.

In the state races A. L. Patterson led Lee (Ked) Porter in the race for Attorney General 173,157 to 172,478; Secretary of State, Mary Texas Hurt, 217,695 and Ed H. McBride 124,886; Associate Supreme Court Justice, James Mayfield, 179,856 and Preston Clayton 144,592; Superintendent of Education, Austin Meadows 189,904 and D. P. Culp 157,706.

CHILTON COUNTY GRADUATES AT U OF A

UNIVERSITY, Ala.—A total of 606 students were candidates for degrees from the University of Alabama at its [illegible] commencement exercises at 2 p.m. Sunday, May 30, in Denny Stadium.

The University conferred four doctor of philosophy degrees, two honorary doctor of laws degrees, 47 masters degrees, 31 bachelor of laws degrees, and 416 bachelors degrees. State Sen. J. Miller Bonner, Camden, and Thomas Waverly Palmer of Havana, Cuba, will receive the honorary degrees.

The University of Alabama Medical School in Birmingham conferred 61 doctor of medicine degrees, and the University School of Dentistry conferred 47 doctor of dental medicine degrees.

Dr. Oliver C. Carmichael, president, will confer all degrees. Commissions in the Army of the United States and the Air Force of the United States will be awarded at the same ceremonies.

About 80 per cent of the graduates are from Alabama. Jefferson county has 108 graduates, Tuscaloosa county has 55, Mobile has 49, and Montgomery and Calhoun have 17 each. Twenty-three other states, Colombia, Greece, India and Peru are also represented.

In addition to the 606 academic degrees, 42 students were candidates for diplomas in nursing, and 60 were candidates for certificates in medical technology, anethesia, radiological technology, dental hygiene, or school library service. (See special list at end.)

The list, by Alabama counties, of those to receive academic degrees:

Chilton County:

Clanton: Jon Will Pitts, BA; Mary Dell White, BS in Education.

Jemison: Joe Burton Bratton, D. M. D.; James Lester Pate, BA.

Stanton: Gerald Waddell Everett, M. D.

Certificates in nursing: Clara Ray Gilliland, Clanton; and Dorothy Mae Sheppard, Clanton.

Pretty Peaches Wanted For Queen Contest

Calling all peaches.... peaches from 15 through 25 years of age in Chilton County

You're wanted as a contestant in the 1954 Chilton County Peach Festival Queen's contest.

Time is at hand for girls throughout the county to enter the queen contest, and any single girl between the ages of 15 and 25 is eligible to enter the contest.

The lucky girl who will succeed Miss Pat Broadhead as queen of the Peach Festival will be named Friday night, June 25, and there isn't too much time left for the contestants to send in their entry blanks.

Any single girl who is between the ages of 15 and 25 who would like to become a candidate for queen of the Chilton peaches is asked to contact Mrs. Julia Crowe, Jr., 1704 Greenwood Avenue, or call her at Clanton 669-J.

Mrs. Crowe is chairman of the queen committee and she invites all girls who would like to enter the contest to contact her immediately

Plans Made For Biggest, Best And Longest Celebration

The 1954 Chilton County Peach Festival is taking shape and the men and women who are going to make [illegible] biggest event [illegible] all have been named to [illegible] committees to [illegible] general [illegible] Paige Payne, [illegible] J. Hollis Jackson and M. P. Grissett.

All of these chairmen are busy naming the members of their committees, and plans for the festival are taking good shape at the Clanton Airport Hangar this year.

The hangar at Gregg Field is being improved for the occasion, and it is expected to be capable of seating several thousand persons who will attend the various events on the Festival week program.

[illegible] got under way on Friday night, June 25, and will last through Wednesday night, June 30.

First event on the calender will be the selection of the peach queen Friday night, June 25

The Sylacauga Male Chorus will give a concert on Tuesday night, June 29, while the highlight of the festival week will be the parade and regular peach festival celebration Wednesday morning, June 30

The parade will be from Thorsby to Clanton as usual.

[illegible] to bring the six-day event to a musical close, two of the nation's leading quartets, the Blackwood Brothers and the Statemen's Quartet, will appear in concert Wednesday night, June 30

Harold Foshee, president of the Chilton County Chamber of Commerce, sponsors of the festival, has some big things in store for the merchants in connection with the festival this year. He is expected to have an announcement on this feature by next week. This is expected to make the festival one of the biggest attractions Clanton and Chilton County have ever had.

Another feature of this year's festival will be a concentrated effort to sell more peaches in the county. Copies of the official Peach Festival program will be sent to peach buyers throughout the nation, inciting them to come to Chilton County to buy their peaches.

Bumper stickers are being placed on automobiles stopping at the roadside peach sheds, as well as on trucks leaving Chilton County for markets throughout the U. S.

So by the time June 25 rolls around, everybody should be acquainted with the fact "Chilton County Peaches Are Tops," and there are plenty of them available.

ANNUAL SINGING HELD AT SHILOH

The annual singing at Shiloh was held last Sunday, May 30th, with S. V. Miller serving as chairman. It was a grand turn-out from every standpoint, including a bounteous dinner at noon.

Besides local directors and singers, there were several from other communities and even from out of the county, among them being: J. E. Minor of Mt. Pleasant, Henry Driver of Coopers, C. N. Billingsley and two quartets from Prattville, Boone Family group from Montgomery, I. D. Huett of Prattville, L. T. Grant of Clanton, Mr. and Mrs. Burbet Bean of New Salem, Ruben Devaughn, and the Devaughn Sisters a group from Sylacauga, and others.

The chairman wishes to acknowledge the assistance extended him by the Shiloh pastor, Rev. J. L. Adams; Rev. Adams had to leave in the afternoon to attend the Baptist convention in St. Louis, Mo. Also the help from all visiting singers was highly appreciated.

JOHN PARK MIMS RECEIVES DEGREE

Among those receiving M.D. degrees fro mthe Alabama Medical College, Birminham, on May 30, 1954 was John Park Mims, of Vida.

Dr. Mims was born in Clanton, son of Mrs. Alma O. Mims and the late Park Mims. He completed his pre-medical trainin at Auburn in 1950.

He served for five years in the Naval Air Force as a pilot, attaining the rank of lieutenant Senior Grade, and saw action in the Pacific, European, and African theatres of World War II.

Internship will be served at Nashville General Hospital of Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn.

LLOYD WARR TO ENTER MEDICAL SCHOOL

Lloyd C. Warr, Junior, son of Mr and Mrs. Lloyd C. Warr, has been notified by the Medical College of Alabama of his acceptance for admission to the freshman class of 1954-1955.

Lloyd is at home from the University of Alabama where he has completed his pre-medical studies in the College of Arts and Sciences

During the past three years while attending the University, he has been a member of Alpha Epsilon Delta, honorary fraternity for pre-medical, a member of the Pershing Rifles, honorary military society and a member of Kappa Alpha social fraternity.

He will begin his medical studies in the fall of this year.

LOCAL ORGANIZATION AIDS UNFORTUNATE

Various organizations of Chilton county are continually doing deeds of munificence. Sometimes such actions call for especial mention, for instance: The local Disabled American Veterans recently contributed $60 toward keeping a Chilton county person in the Montgomery TB sanatorium. The American Legion post expects to take care of the expenses for one month, and the patient is expected to need three more months of such care. This is not an appeal for further help, but as to give credit to these groups that have been helping and will continue to extend such assistance in the future. Our community is proud of possessing such organizations.

CLANTON PILOT CLUB MET

The Clanton Pilot Club met in the private dining room of the Dixie Cafe on May 25th at 7:00 o'clock.

Miss Faye Wooley, club president, presented the Pilots President Pin to the past club president, Mrs. Helen Brinker.

Mrs. Ruby Willingham, chairman of attendance committee, was in charge of the program. She introduced Mrs. Frances Maples Camp of Maplesville who spoke to us on her recent trip to Turkey and the Holy Land.

Guests of the club were Mrs. Alma Simms and Miss Louise Foshee.

VEGETABLES NEED CAREFUL STORAGE

Vegetables must be stored carefully at home to preserve food value and freshness.

Here are some suggestions from API Extension Nutrionist Mary Hulsey on conserving space and maintaining vegetable quality.

Potatoes, onions, turnips, parsnips, and beets keep best when stored in a cool, dry, well ventilated vegetable or refrigerator bin. Leafy green vegetables must be kept slightly moist in the fruit or vegtable hydrator or in refrigerator bags.

Pod vegetables and corn should be kept unshelled or unhusked in the refrigerator until just before cooking. Tomatoes store best uncovered under normal refrigeration

BASEBALL AT THORSBY SATURDAY AND SUNDAY

Lomax will play Randolph Saturday at 2:30 p.m.

Lomax will play Billingsley Sunday at 2:30 p.m.

Both games will be played on Thorsby ball ground.

PEACH COMMITTES HUMMING

Committees of the 1954 Chilton County Peach Festival that will run for one week beginning June 25th, are busy as bees.

An attempt is being made by the Chairman to get the Governor-Elect, Hon. James E. Folsom and his family to be honor guests for Family Night on Saturday, June 26th.

The entire organization is getting wonderful cooperation from the farmers and merchants this year and Chilton County promises to have the biggest and best Peach Festival yet.

CHILTON'S COW PALACE

The businessmen, the farmers, the citizens in fact all of Chilton County are preparing to build a Cow Palace at the airport.

The County Board of Revenue and Control has made a substantial contribution to the structure as has many of the business houses in the county along with several civic organizations.

However, what started out to be a cow palace will more than likely end up a community building for the entire county to have their singings, speakings, festival things and anything of like nature that is appropriate.

The good part of the whole project is that those backing it and working hardest for its fulfillment do not especially want large contributions from anyone. Rather would they get a dollar, or five dollars, from several hundreds of Chilton County citizens than a large contribution from one individual

The drive starts this week. You will find a story elsewhere in this issue giving you full details. If you can give a dollar, or five dollars, do so. It will be returned to you a thousand fold.

IS YOUR CAR OR TRUCK UNSAFE?

More than one out of every four cars and trucks on the road in Alabama today apparently are defective in one or more of the 10 most vital points of safe operation.

Cumulative results of two exhaustive voluntary vehicle check programs conducted in Alabama this year show that 25.6 per cent of nearly 36,000 cars and trucks failed a simple surface check of the 10 points.

Sponsors of the two programs, at Dothan and Montgomery, realized, too, that perhaps thousands of vehicles known by their owners to be in unsafe condition were not driven through the check lanes.

Exact extent that vehicle defects figure in accidents is not known in Alabama or nationally, and probably never will be. In many cases, accidents involving defective vehicles are caused by a driver violation not connected with the defect. In other cases, defects are obliterated by collision damage.

But L. B. Sullivan, director of the Alabama Department of Public Safety, said during the Montgomery program held in May that any one of the defects "could cause, contribute to, or fail to prevent" a fatal traffic accident.

Of the 9108 deficiencies located among 35,612 vehicles in both programs, lighting front and rear led the list. One out of every six cars and trucks checked had defective lights—headlights bright and dim, parking lights, turn indicators front and rear, stop lights, tail lights, or license plate illuminators.

Next in order of defects located were: Tires, in one out of 19 vehicles; exhaust systems, one out of 36; brakes, one out of 38; windshield wipers, one out of 39; steering, one out of 48 horns, one out of 60 glass areas, one out of 64; rear vision mirrors, one out of 168.

Report from Washington

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

To those who have always realized the potentialities of the great river systems that traverse the Sixth District, the development of these waterways over the years must certainly have seemed slow, if not altogether stymied. There is every indication, however, that 1954 will prove a banner year in the further development of at least two of these great waterways.

Coosa River

The Coosa River, located on the eastern boundary of the Sixth District, is in line for the addition of five hydroelectric dams by the Alabama Power Company, provided Congress enacts legislation necessary to allow the Power Company to go forward with its plans. This legislation, introduced in the House of Representatives by me and by seven other members of the Alabama Congressional Delegation, advanced another important step when it received a favorable report last week from the House Public Works Committee. There is a good possibility we may get a special rule on this legislation so that the members of the House can vote on it in the very near future.

In appearing before the Public Works Committee in favor of my bill and the seven other identical bills, I pointed out my reasons for favoring the Alabama Power Company's proposal. First, Alabama's present need for additional electric power will be answered and at no extra cost to the taxpayer. Second the construction of the proposed dams will give added impetus to the economic development of the Coosa River Valley. Third, additional county, state, and federal taxes will be provided. Fourth, the lakes to be formed will provide additional recreational facilities and home sites. Fifth, by reducing the cost of the overall development of the river, the possibility of obtaining federal funds for the addition of navagational facilities will be enhanced. Sixth, there is no choice at the present time between the use of federal funds and private capital in the further development of the Coosa. This choice is between development by private capital or no development at all.

I do not anticipate any real difficulty in the enactment of this legislation in the House of Representatives. Both Senators from Alabama have introduced identical legislation in the Senate, and I feel certain they will urge early Senate approval. If this legislation is enacted by Congress before we adjourn we can expect a tremendous construction to begin on the Coosa River within the next twelve months.

On the western side of the district, further improvement of the Warrior-Tombigbee is assured. The Senate approved last week a $2 million appropriation for the Warrior Lock and Dam to be located between Hale and Greene Counties The House of Representatives had already approved $1.5 million to begin construction of this modern installation that will eliminate locks and dams 8 and 9 on the Warrior River. The Senate also approved an appropriation of $3.4 million for the Demopolis Lock and Dam that is scheduled to be completed next year.

Warrior Headwater Dams

Progress has also been made this year towards the possible authorization of improvements on the headwaters of the Warrior River Less than two months ago the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors recommended as an ultimate plan for the headwaters of the Warrior River the construction of New Hope, Dorsey Creek, and Smith Ford Reservoirs, and power installations at dam 17 and new dam 13 when constructed. The Board further recommended the immediate construction of the New Hope Dam and Reservoir and the power plant at dam 17, both to include initial power installations. The report of the Board of Engineers has now reached the Bureau of Budget. If the Budget Bureau has no objection to the submission of the report of Congress, it is then sent by the Secretary of the Army to the House Public Works Committee who print it as a public document to be presented as a part of the next Rivers and Harbors Authorization Bill

It should be emphasized at this point that after a project is authorized, the next and most difficult step is to obtain funds to build the project. Many projects have been authorized for years where funds for construction have never been appropriated. Improvements on the Coosa River, for example have been authorized since 1945 Yet, no federal funds have ever been obtained for actual construction. Now it is necessar for Congress to de-authorize the proposed federal improvements on the Coosa River before the Alabama Power Company can construct the five additional dams that will so greatly benefit the Coosa River Valley and the State of Alabama.

The construction of headwater dams on the tributaries of the Warrior will directly affect those who live downstream, and in my opinion, will bring definite benefits to the Sixth Congressional District. I am therefore very much interested in the construction of these headwater dams, and I shall certainly support legislation authorizing them Yet, it is my considered opinion that federal funds for the construction of headwater dams will not be forthcoming in the near future and that these dams can be built many years sooner if built through the use of private capital. I have called this matter to the attentinn of officials of the Alabama Power Company, and I hope others will request them to seriously consider the possibility of undertaking the construction of these dams before they are authorized by Congress.

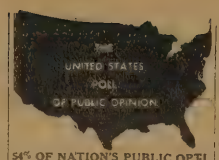
EARLY CARE HOLDS HOG PARASITES LOW

Internal parasites rob Alabama hog growers of thousands of dollars every year. And the thieves operate continuously on most producers' farms.

G. B. Phillips, API animal industry specialist, says the best way for farmers to cut parasite losses is to follow a sanitation program and keep little pigs from becoming infested. This can be done by washing sows before farrowing, scalding farrowing pens with lye water, and putting sows and pigs on clean green ground when they leave farrowing quarters.

"Unless this sanitation proram is followed," says the specialist, "little porkers will need worming with sodium fluoride when they are 10 to 12 weeks old. Ask your county agent for instructions."

Lambs should be weaned at 65 pounds and the mothers confined to a small area to allow their milk flow to dry up.



54% OF NATION'S PUBLIC OPTIMISTIC ABOUT BUSINESS AND JOB PROSPECTS

Optimistic Trend Continues To Inch Forward

PRINCETON, New Jersey — confidence in the nation's business and job prospects is greater today than it has been at any time during the past six months

A United States Poll survey just completed shows that a majority of the nation's adult population — 54% — expects more or the same amount of business and jobs for the U. S. during the next few year's than it has during the past year or two.

At the same time, more than two out of every five — 41% — across the country see less business and fewer jobs ahead.

In other words, those who see more or the same amount of business and jobs ahead for the . US during the next few years outnumber by a margin of better than five to four those who see less business and fewer jobs ahead.

Eight weeks ago, 52% expected more or the same amount of business and jobs; 43% expected less business and fewer jobs, and 5% expressed no opinion.

Today's findings thus represent 2% more optimism and 2% less pessimism in the nation since early April.

The significance of today's optimistic upswing—small though it is—can be fully appreciated when it is realized that during the period between March, 1953, and March, 1954, there was a slow but steady decline in optimism regarding business and job prospects on the part of the nation's adult population.

The United States Poll report on April 8, 1954,—eight weeks ago—marked a halt in this decline by registering a 5 per cent upswing in optimism.

Today's survey findings continue this optimistim upswing, albeit by a margin of only 2 per cent.

They also indicate that people across the U. S. are not expecting any serious recession in the very near future.

When United States Poll staff reporters asked a representative cross section of the nation's adult citizens:

"How do you feel about business conditions in this state for the next few years? Do you think there'll be more business and more jobs than during the past year or two or less business and fewer jobs?"

These were the results:

NATIONWIDE:
More or the same 54 per cent
More 23 per cent
Same 31 per cent
Less 41 per cent
No opinion 5 per cent

Since December, 1947, Princeton Research Service has been making periodic measurements on people's outlook on future business and job conditions in various parts of the nation and in the U. S. as a whole

Today's .U S. Poll results in the light of the experience of the past years would indicate that the nation can look forward to business and job prospects slightly better than they were in 1950 (prior to the Korean Outbreak) and better than they were in the period between December, 1947, and December, 1949, but not so good as they were in the period between the outbreak of the Korean War and December, 1943.

STATE'S POULTRYMEN WILL MEET NEXT WEEK

AUBURN, ALA. — What kind of broilers will poultrymen grow in the future?

That's one of the big topics to be discussed at the Second Annual Poultry Industry Association convention June 15-16 in Birmingham

John P. Weeks, API Extension poultryman, says the meeting will be attended by representatives from all segments of the poultry business hatcherymen, feed dealers, producers, and processors. Those present will hear experts discuss producing eggs and broilers, improving poultry feeds, and cutting labor costs.

Dairy foods for taste, health, and economy—the slogan of National June Dairy Month—is resounding throughout Alabama now as dairymen proclaim the importance of their industry.

Vegetable plants near maximum size and those making fruit require more water than small ones.

VACATION JOB HUNTERS TOLD OF CHILD LABOR LAWS

Birmingham, May 30—School children of Alabama were urged today to look for summer time jobs which won't cause their prospective employers to run afoul of Federal Child Labor Laws.

Homer E. Krog, Regional Director of the U. S. Department of Labor's Wage and Hour Division here gave this advice as closing schools throughout the State began pouring forth boys and girls eager to earn vacation spending money.

"The first step in preparing yourself to go job hunting," said Krog "is to be sure you can supply proof of your own age. Your employer will need this proof to secure a certificate of age from your local school official." He pointed out that employers hiring minors under 18 in general employment or 18 and 19 in hazardous occupations should have an age certificate on file.

Restrictions on youthful employment are contained in two Federal laws. Broadest of the two is the Fair Labor Standards Act which classifies as oppressive child labor and illegal, employment of minors under 16 in general. Krog also stated that children under 18 were prohibited from working in or about an establishment handling or producing goods for out of State shipment

While age limits are relaxed to allow 14 and 15-year olds to work under restricted conditions in offices, banks, and certain non-manufacturing and non-processing occupations, hazardous occupations orders under the Fair Labor Standards Act raise the hiring age in eleven types of employment. Typical of such jobs in which 18 is the lowest age of hiring are elevator operator, logger, mines, sawmill worker, truck driver or helper, punch press operator, and others which Mr. Krog said were listed and explained in a child labor bulletin available from his office without charge. He added that "employers in placing newly hired teen-agers will want to avoid hazardous jobs for safety's sake and to stay clear of unintentional violation of this law."

The Walsh-Healey Public Contracts Act is the second law which prohibits employment of boys under 16 and girls under 18. This law appiles to firms engaged in production of goods for the government under contracts amounting to as much as $10,000.

The Wage-Hour Regional Director said that his office at 1007 Comer Building, Birmingham, is prepared to furnish full information to young job seekers or to their employers on problems of compliance with the two Federal laws.

County Cattle Ass'n. President Writes Cattle Producers For Aid To Improve Show Facilities

Dear Sirs:

One of the County Cattlemen Association's 1954 goals—planned at the beginning of the program year was that of completing an exhibit shed to house cattle during the Annual County Shows. This is a very desirable goal for several reasons. First, the County Shows have annually been housed under rented tents. Tent rental for one week has cost approximately one-fifth as much as it will cost to construct a permanent building. Tents are not only very expensive, but are serious fire and windstorm hazards. The tents have also failed to give adequate or desirable display space for an effective presentation of the county's better cattle.

In addition to the above important reasons for completing this project for cattle shows, the permanent building can be used for many other purposes.

Farm Bureau groups, 4-H and FFA Clubs, County Peach Festival exhibits, and County road and bridge crews need and can use such a facility.

A County Cattlemen's Ass'n. committee has been active in making plans for completing the exhibit shed. A proposed shed 48'x200' has been blueprinted. A cost estimate of approximately $3,000.00 has been made. The County Governing Body and others have been contacted and partial financial assistance secured. To complete the structure we are asking all cattlemen to contribute as much as they will. We are also asking that contributions be made immediately so that construction can be completed prior to this year's Peach Festival.

Every segment of the County's population, including beef and dairy cattlemen, businessmen, and professional workers benefit from the progress that is being made in livestock development. The County Shows are a source of encouragement to our livestock producers to secure and produce a better type and more profitable cattle.

The Cattlemen's Committee is asking that every Cattleman and Dairyman contribute to the construction cost of the exhibit shed. If each of Chilton's dairymen and cattlemen will contribute to the funds, no heavy burden will be put on anyone. We will all own the facility and will all be proud of it when it is completed.

Please send your donation to Cattlemen's Association Secretary and Treasurer, C. C. Fiquette, Clanton, Ala., by the next mail if possible. Construction must begin this week.

Yours very truly,
Charles L. Patterson,
President, Chilton
County Cattlemen's Association.

ADVENTIST CHURCH NEWS

"It is the Blood that maketh an Antonement For the Soul", will be the Sabbath II a. m. sermon topic.

Text: "And almost all things are by the law purged with the blood; and without shedding of blood is no remission". Heb. 9:22. Jesus just before his death, pra "Father if it be possible - let this cup pass from me". We may be sure that if some other way could have been found to make "remission of sins" possible - that prayer would have been answered and Jesus need not have died for our sins". But all mankind had gone into "transgression of the law" which Jno. 3:4 says, "is sin." And because of this, "death passed upon all men for that all have sinned" Rom. 5:12. If Jesus had not loved us enough to pay this penalty by his death - all of us would have died and always stayed dead. But now that the penalty has been payed that gives all men an opportunity for an endless life. God is good He gives us this life to decide what he shall do with us at the judgement. In receiving Jesus we receive life "and I will raise him up at the last day." Jno. 6:44. Then such will be invested with "immortality" - which means a deathless life. All others will go into the "lake of fi - which is the "second death". Rev. 21:8. And "so it is appointed unto men once to die" - not twice. The "second death" will be human choice in spite of everything which has been done to get the sinner to "choose life and live".

300TH TELEVSION STATION JOINS WITH NETWORKS

Three hundred television stations over the nation are now receiving network service, it was announced today.

The 300th station to be linked for network service was WKNY-TV Kingston, N. Y. It was connected to the Bell System's nationwide network of TV facilities yesterday via local installation provided by the New York Telephone Company.

WKNY-TV, the first television station for Kingston, began receiving network programs over the New York-Albany communications route of the Bell System.

The Long Lines Department of American Telephone and Telegraph Company, which provides transmission facilities that tie radio and telephone systems as well as television into national networks, said the interconnection brought the rollcall or network TV service to 191 cities in the United States.

More than 54,000 channel miles of coaxial cable and radio relay facilities are being used to provide these cities with network television

There are now about 380 TV stations on the air in the United States These stations, located in some 250 cities, broadcast to an estimated potential audience of 109,000,000.

Long Lines said that before the year is out about 60 more TV stations are expected to be added to network facilites.

Six years ago this month, when network television was inaugurated commercially, there were fewer than 1,000 miles of TV cannels in operation. These linked 12 stations in five cities—Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington

By the end of 1948, the embryo network facilities had been extended to 31 stations in 15 cities. During each of the next four years, an average of 7,000 channel miles was added.

Thus far in 1954, 55 stations have been added to the network list maintaining the rate of almost three stations a week that marked 1952, as a record year of growth for network television.

Peach Festival Committee Requests Aid Of Growers In Improving Show Facilities

CHAIRMAN WRITES ALL PEACH GROWERS

The Chilton County Peach Festival is to be staged this year June 28-29. The Peach Festival is a peach sale effort and is of direct financial benefit to all peach growers.

The 1954 event is to be centralized at the Clanton Airport. In past years arrangements for the Festival have been skimpy, uncomfortable, and of a temporary nature. Plans are underway to make certain needed improvements in the large hangar at the Airport. The addition of a stage, dressing rooms, rest rooms, and improved seats are being considered. At the same time, Cattlemen are rushing to completion their plans for livestock exhibit sheds that can also be used for Peach Festival exhibits. All improvements are to be erected on County property and can be used for many other public gatherings. The facilities will be ours and used by all of us.

The committee has been requested to contact all peach growers and ask each individual grower to share in the cost of constructing the needed improvements. By putting a little extra effort into this year's arrangements, and by making the improvements permanent, we will be able to stage future Chilton County programs more efficiently.

The Committe is not suggesting [illegible] any certain [illegible], but we are asking that each grower share in the building program. my Pet Peeve by Mike Bennett

AN INFLUENTIAL national magazine recently came up with a "Rate Your Town" survey-questionnaire which received widespread publicity and use throughout the country.

The idea was a good one. By answering "yes" or "no" to various questions about industry, recreational facilities, service organizations, etc., most any hamlet could pretty well decide how it stacked up as a good, solid community.

However, I can't think of one very pertinent question that should have been included, a simple one, like: "Does your town have a Coffee Club?" This may sound to some like an irrelevant question. But it is really an important one. Every town should have a Coffee Club—or it could just as well be tea, root beer, or what have you.

I have seen such clubs in many towns and in each they expressed the same—an example of Democracy at its best.

About the hour of nine-thirty in the morning is the most popular meeting time. The Dentist ambles into the town restaurant from his office across the street and joins the city judge. Next come a department store manager, a real estate salesman, photographer, a news reporter, maybe a truck driver.

The order of business is always a concentrated discussion of whatever is making news on the local or national scene. Philosophy, business, even religion, are subjects for discussion.

My only complaint about such organizations is that, according to custom the member who loses out in a guessing game or a game of chance picks up the tab for the membership. It's always me.

FELLOWSHIPS FOR STUDY

Montgomery, Ala.— Fellowship for study of self-designated programs of liberal education have been awarded to Alabama teachers

They are Miss Mary W. Jones English teacher at Dothan High School, and Miss Katherine Fossett, Selma Junior High health and physical education teacher. They were among 274 teachers chosen from the U S. and its territories.

The fellowships will enable them to pursue their study without having to continue in their regular teaching duties. It will enable them to improve their teachings abilities in their chosen fields and to increase their effectiveness as members of their schools and communities.

TRAFFIC TOLL EXCEEDS THAT OF SAME WEEK IN 1953

Montgomery.—Alabama's officially-tabulated traffic toll this week (May 28) reached 296, twenty-two higher than during the corresponding year of 1953. Director L. B Sullivan of the Alabama Department of Public Safety said the 1954 score "actually is about 312," with current yet-unreported deaths.

Sullivan said his department expects its radar speed-meters back from the manufacturer within a week, and immediately will send them over the state on demonstrations for officials and citizens. The devices will be operated by Alabama Highway Patrolmen recently graduated from a special training course in principles and operation of radar for law enforcement.

Whenever conditions permit, Sullivan said, demonstration schedules will be announced in local newspapers, since "it is our objective to have the greatest number of Alabamians see this device in action before we begin enforcement with it We want our people to see it is a scientific enforcement instrument, not a 'speed trap gadget' as has been charged and doubtless will be charged at various times by a few crank objectors."

SUNDAY'S SERMON

Rev. Robert H. Harper

Christ, the Living Bread. John 6: 48-59, 66-69.

Golden Text: John 6: 35.

Through the mazes of the wilderness, God sustained the Israelites with manna from heaven. Jesus told the disciples and the people with them that he had come from heaven to be the bread of the soul.

Some who heard Jesus, said, "How can this man give us his flesh to eat?" Some live for the body alone, to the extent that they cannot understand how Jesus can nourish the soul. They are like the foolish farmer who thought he could feed his soul on corn, saying to his soul, "Thou hast much goods laid up for many years."

Others, with the discernment of faith, understand that as bread is life to the body, Jesus is the life of the soul, and that all who lay hold upon Jesus as the Saviour will have eternal life.

Peter declared that there is no other name than that of Jesus whereby men may be saved. (Acts 4: 12). But before that time and after Jesus had spoken of himself as the bread of life, when many of the disciples went back and walked no more with him, Jesus turned to the inner circle, to the chosen twelve, and asked if they would also go away. It was a question that was answered by a question. Peter said, "Lord to whom shall we go?" So let us know that Jesus is the only way to redemption and eternal life.

TAX STAMPS ARE REQUIRED RULED

Montgomery, Ala.—The stamp tax [illegible] manufacturer or seller of commercial feed is an inspection fee and is required by law to be collected from the manufacturer or seller upon all feed sold, including all feed sold by such manufacturer or seller to the Commodity Credit Corporation for delivery to its agents in Alabama, Atty. Gen Si Garrett has ruled.

In answering the request from Agriculture and Industries Commissioner Frank M. Stewart for the opinion, the attorney general said:

"Your inquiry here has arisen as a result of transactions in which the purchaser (the Commodity Credit Corporation) buys commercial feed from an Alabama manufacturer. The purchaser buys the feed and accepts delivery at the seller's premises here in this state.

"The purchaser sends for and transports the feed to its own warehouse facilities here in this state where it is offered for sale to its customer consumers. Some of the feed is afterwards shipped by said purchaser to other states where it is then offered for sale to its customer consumers in those states.

"The food manufacturer contends that the stamp tax fee of 20 cents per ton should be collected from him on the tonnage of feed being purchased by the CCC since that agency is an instrumentality of the federal government, and because a portion of the feeds is, after being purchased here by the CCC, afterwards shipped into some other state.

"I am unable to agree with this contention," Garrett declared, pointing out the fee is levied on the manufacturer or seller and not upon the purchaser.

JEMISON NEWS

(MRS. GEORGE NAISH)

Dony you hear the blackbirds, bobolinks, oriole and wren, singing their very sweetest, from meadow, hill and glen? Cany you hear them telling you in their liltin' tiltin' tune, the roses are blooming, for its the month of June.

Soon after Mother Day was set aside as a special day to honor mothers, the 3rd Sunday in June was set aside as Father's day. It was first celebrated on June 16th 1946.

June is also the month of roses brides, Flag Day, and everybody's day that loves nature and the beauties of the great outdoors. All should enjoy every minute to the fullest degree, that more beauty and grace may be added to every day living.

June 14 is Flag Day. It was resolved by Congress June 14, 1777 that the flag of the thirteen United States, be stripes of alternating colors, red and white and that the Union be represented by the thirteen white stars on a blue field. The flag is the symbol of our country and should be reverenced and cherished.

God bless our flag, the stars and stripes,
And see it safely through,
God bless and keep our colors,
The red, white and blue.

A FRIEND AT THE DOOR

"Behold, I stand at the door, and knock: if any man hear my voice and open the door, I will come in to him, and sup with him, and he with me." Revelation 3:20

This oft-repeated verse is usually the victim of misinterpretation We preachers generally think of it as a call of the Lord to the unconever will lead to the discovery verted. A study of the context however, that it is His invitation to weak and discouraged believers to confer with Him in the interest of their own spiritual welfare.

According to the New Testament teaching, an unbeliver is dead—not physically, but spiritually dead "trespasses and sins." Since this passage refers to one's eternal outlook rather than to his temporal concerns, and since he is totally unable to do anything for his own soul's salvation—because he is spiritually dead—the logical question naturally arises, How can a dead man open the door? Therefore it must be addressed to the living.

The members of the church at Ladoicea were desperately sick spiritually speaking, but they were not dead. The invitation quoted here was to them. They could at least to open the door. The generous visitor was offering to take the initiative toward healing their heart maladies. (please pause here and read Revelation 3:14-22, and you will see the point.)

Every Christian congregation in the world today has some sick members of the Laodicean type. Some of them compiain to their pastor that they get little, or nothing, out of their religion; others, that going to church means nothing to them; others, that prayer is merely a routine performance; others, that reading the Bible is a fruitless task, and yet others, that devout Christians are usually dull folks. Consequently, like the Laodicean, they drift away from constructive Christian living.

The Son of God, through the agency of the Holy Spirt, stands ready with a guaranteed remedy for all the ailments of the soul. His willingness to perform this glorious office is reflected in the old hymn

"Come, ye disconsolate, where'er ye langiush:
Come to the mercy seat, fervently kneel.
Here bring your wounded hearts here bring your anguish:
Earth knows no sorrow that heaven cannot heal."

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATION

IF YOU ARE BUILDING A HOME

1. Remember the advantages of DRY lumber. If uncertain have the lumber checked on the job site.
2. Deal only with reputable contractors and reliable lumber dealers.

IF YOU ARE BUYING A NEWLY BUILT HOME

3. Request the specifications for the job to see if properly seasoned lumber was called for—and used.

IF YOU MAKE UP THE SPECIFICATIONS

4. Specify the following: For framing and sheathing — 19% maximum moisture content; for finish, woodwork and flooring—12% moisture content.
5. If unable to judge lumber grades or the condition of seasoning, require that lumber be certified with a grade-mark of a recognized inspection agency, or have it competently inspected when it is delivered.

IF THE JOB CALLS FOR BIG DELIVERIES

6. When there is a constant flow of incoming lumber, it is wise to employ qualified graders to check each delivery before unloading. Electrical instruments known as moisture registers or meters are now commercially available for testing lumber to determine the moisture of each piece.

SHOULTS NEWS

Mrs. John McKinney, Mrs. Sherman Motley and Mable, Mrs. Ezra Lee Lawley, Mary Lee and Sandra shopped in Selma Tuesday of last week.

Mrs. Dan Maddox is still confined to the hospital in Selma but seems to be doing well as could be expected. Mr. Maddox had X-rays taken of his side and found a rib broken this week. We truly wish for them a speedy recovery.

Mrs. Bill Hathcock honored son James, with a birthday party Wednesday afternoon from 4:00 to 6:00 o'clock. Cake and ice cream were served and games were played. Some of the children that enjoyed the party, there were some names that your reporter did not get, were Brenda, Gary and Harley Harrison, Lynn and Brenda McAfee, John McAfee, Harvey and Wallace, Herman Shoults, James and Gene Hathcock.

Mr. and Mrs. George Shoults honored the young people of the community with a party Wednesday night. Many games were played and candy was served. Those enjoying this party were: Freddie and Jimmy Shoults, Carolyn, Jean and James Hathcock, Jo Ann Lawley, Marjorie and Joyce McAfee, Odis Smith, Maudine, Helen and Mary Ann Maddox, Barbara and C. K. Sewell, Sherwood Grover, Felix Burt, Henry Latham, Cleoborn Oden, Leonard and Hugh Stewart.

Mr. Cleve Latham had the pleasure of having some of his children home Sunday. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Kay Latham and daughter of Marion, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Latham and two children of Orrville, Miss Ruby Latham of Montgomery.

Miss Mary Lee Lawley spent a few days last week with her grandmother, Mrs. John McKinney.

A large crowd attended the home coming at Pleasant Grove No. 2 church Sunday. People from far and near, young and old were there. We were glad to recognize Mrs. Mattie Mannis of Tuscaloosa. She was reared in this community and she has lived a happy long life. There were many others that make a point of being at the church annually.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wallace motored to Montgomery Sunday due to the death of the brother of Lee Wallace's wife. We extend our heartfelt sympathy.

Mr. Johnny Hicks has returned to his home in New Jeresy for the summer vacation. He attended the University of Alabama through the winter here.

Amos 5:14 — Seek good, and not evil, that ye may live, and so the Lord, the God of hosts, shall be with you, as ye have spoken.

Rev. W. Jones delivered the noon sermon and Rev. E. Jones the evening sermon. Everyone enjoyed both services.

Our singing school will open June 28th and run for three weeks. Mr. L. Boswell will be instructor.

We enjoyed very much the hymn which Rev. E. Jones sang.

The men's Class of B. T. U. gave a nice performance. A quartet consisting of T. Kendrick, Clint McGee, Monroe Foghee and Charles Riggins accompanied by Mrs. Edna Gilbert sang a hymn which everyone enjoyed. Tipton Eiland led the devotional. Sunday night the little folk will give their BTU program.

Mrs. Ed Derrick of South Bend, Ind., is visiting with her parents and family, the J. E. Minors. She was formerly Ruth Minor. She will be home for two weeks.

Mr. D. Minor and family, and Mrs. Connie Belt and daughter of Birmingham visited with the J. E. Minor family Sunday, laso with the Grady Minors.

Wednesday night is prayer service.

Our annual singing will be held June 13th. Please plan to be with us J. E. Minor is our chairman.

In many instances, the big plantation owners had to spend so much money for upkeep that they were not men of great wealth in early Alabama.

In the last half-century, the Cheasapeake and Ohio Railway has handled more than 330 million tons of coal at its piers at Newport News, Va., enough to make up a single trainload of hopper cars 51,663 miles long, or twice around the globe at the equator.

Practically the entire American rice crop is grown in four states—Louisiana, Texas, Arkansas and California.

Chicago, although it is an inland city, handles more water-borne traffic than the Panama Canal.

An impressive candlelight ceremony marked the installation of new officers of the Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Clanton First Methodist Church on Sunday night, May 23. Also included on the program was the dedication of the Steinway Concert Grand Piano which was bought by members of the WSCS and given to the church.

In the dedication of the piano, musical responses were given by Mrs. W. E. Huddleston on the piano with Mrs. Myrtle Pitts on the organ following each series of dedications by members of the WSCS.

Mrs. R. C. Williams gave a short talk, "An Invitation to Service," and was followed by Mrs. Joe Mullins who explained the meaning of the life membership of the WSCS. Afterwards, pins were presented one to Mrs. Erwin Wilson by Mrs. Clara Mullins, and one for Mrs. W. M. Polk, presented to Mr. Polk in her absence, by Mrs. Joe Edgar.

In the candlelight service with a cross making the altar, the installation of officers for the year 1954-55 was led by Mrs. C. C. Fiquette. Those who were installed were as follows: president, Mrs. Joe Mullins; vice-president, Mrs. Joe Campbell; treasurer, Mrs. Ed Waldrup; recording secretary, Mrs. Ernest Dailey; secretary spiritual life, Mrs. W. F. Haywood; secretary of promotion, Mrs. R. C. Williams; secretary of missionary education, Mrs. Morgan Reynolds; secretary of christian social relations and local activities, Mrs. Clara Mullins; secretary of children's work, Mrs. Ottis Miller; secretary of youth, Mrs. Hollis Jackson; secretary of student work, Mrs. Clifford Traywick; secretary of status of women, Mrs. N. L. Roberts; secretary of supplies, Mrs. Milton Diefenderfer; secretary of literature and publications, Mrs. George Tucker; and circle chairmen, Mrs. J. G. Newton, Mrs. B. N. Studdard, Mrs. Campbell White, Mrs. M. K. Vickers, Mrs. Ottis Miller, Mrs. Ed Waldrup, and Mrs. B. G. Godwin who represented circle six.

Following the installation services Rev. Marvin Vickers gave the commission. A prayer of united women was offered with a special prayer for binding women and service.

In closing a choir composed of members of the WSCS sang the inspiring hymn, "Breathe On Me."

JOY S. S. CLASS MET WITH MRS. WOOD

DRESS REHEARSAL

By R. G. CROCKER

NANCY gripped Bob's hand, tensely Currents of excitement rippled from her eyes, as she whispered breathlessly: "I'm only sixteen, Bob! The folks still think I'm a kid. You can't convince them! I'll bet you can't!"

Bob, more cockily than he felt, grinned back: "They expect us to get married some day. Why not now?"

Nancy dubiously agreed: "Marie told me at the Drama Club last night that she and Jerry are getting married this summer. She's only a year older than I am."

"You can think of your darned old club at a moment like this!" Bob demanded, aggrieved. "We're facing the most serious decision of our young lives—the real turning point." Nancy repressed a half hysterical giggle, and reached for the door knob. "They'll really hit the ceiling!" she whispered.

Nancy's parents looked up as they entered Her mother smiled up from her sewing, and her father nodded, an ear glued to the sports-cast as if it were an ordinary evening. Nancy hesitated only a moment then announced brightly: "Congratulate us, folks! Bob and I have decided to get married!"

"What!" Nancy's father exploded. His pipe fell out of his mouth, scattering ashes in his lap.

"Now, Dad," Mrs. Parker said slowly, the anesthesia of shock wearing off. Her hand rested persuasively on his arm. "We were young once, remember?"

"THAT young?" he said bitingly "Now, what's this all about?"

Bob's arm circled Nancy protectively as he said: "We want to get married."

"That's nice," said Mrs. Parker quietly. "You'll make a good son-in-law, Bob. But you're both pretty young. What's the rush?"

"No particular reason," Bob said lamely, coloring. "It's just that we're going to get married anyway sometime, and we'd rather get married while we're young and adaptable. I love Nancy, Mrs. Parker, and I'll take good care of her, honest!"

Mrs. Parker smiled, but with no mirth. "I'm not against young marriages — as long as they make sense!" she said decisively. "Let's do some figuring."

"I'm sure you love each other so that's settled," Mrs. Parker said impersonally. "We'd better start with finances. Have you a list of budgeting? Any apartment will be at least $15 a week, food about $20, furniture to buy, and odds and ends—. Of course, Bob," she continued, glancing at him keenly, "you'll have to forget about that engineering course—."

"And children?" Nancy's mother asked. "You'll want to raise your family while you're young. Of course, Nancy dear, it's going to be hard on you, with Bob in the Army. But you'll get used to walking the floor nights alone, and washing diapers!"

"But, we didn't plan to get married before September," Bob was stammering.

"Nonsense. You'll want a June wedding. We'll get to work on announcements in the morning, Nancy."

"You sound anxious to get rid of me!" Nancy said, shakily. "Bob's going to be an engineer, remember?

Bob rose and pulled Nancy toward the door, saying gently: "Maybe we'd better talk this over a bit more, honey." Nancy nodded, relieved. Like a couple of carefree teen-agers, they escaped out the door. The Parkers sighed in unison, and her father said weakly: "We stopped that! A tornado would be easier to cope with!"

Out on the sidewalk, Nancy giggled uncontrollably, "Oh, the dears! They were so utterly cute about talking us out of it! They'd disown us both if they knew we were just practicing!"

Bob said glostingly: "Woman you've got a new landing me Now tell me I'm not good enough for your darned old Drama Club.

SCANNING THE NEWS

THE Department of Health, Education and Welfare celebrated its first birthday as a full-blown cabinet department in April, but it administers some very old programs—the Public Health Service, for instance, had its start in 1798.

The past year has seen a thorough review in HEW of the procedures under which these programs are carried out, and Secretary Oveta Culp Hobby has asked Congress for authority to make important changes in the means by which funds are paid for a variety of purposes are made to the states.

At present, the Public Health Service makes six separate grants to state health authorities, conveying earmarked funds to be used for cancer, tuberculosis, control of venereal disease control, mental health, cancer control and communicable disease control. Money given for one of these purposes cannot be used for another.

HEW claims that this earmarking introduces rigidity into state health plans, keeps available dollars from going as far as they would if state health authorities had more freedom in use of the funds. Authority was requested to make a unified public health grant to the states, to be allocated at their discretion.

HEW's new grants-in-aid seem likely to be unified, with funds supplied as: Support grants, to help maintain basic services, given on the basis of financial need; extension and improvement grants, given on the basis of population; and special project grants, given on the basis of unusual problems and opportunities.

The one exception probably will be grants for mental health. Members of Congress and a number of state officials believe that lumping these with other funds will cause mental hygiene programs to be submerged in other health activities.

Lobby groups which do not often see eye to eye on national issues joined forces to shoot holes in the Eisenhower Administration proposal for a health insurance program.

The National Chamber of Commerce and American Medical Association worked horns in the past joined other groups in voicing opposition the bill drawn up by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and introduced into both houses of Congress.

HEW Secretary Hobby said the legislation would: Establish a reinsurance fund to stimulate insurance carriers to broaden benefits and service; authorize $25 million to reinsure "abnormal losses," the fund meeting 75 per cent of losses, the carriers the remainder, among other things.

Said the AMA . . . "The bill will not fill its intended purpose and may in fact inhibit satisfactory progress which is now being made by voluntary insurance companies." Said the Chamber of Commerce: ". . . (It) would add nothing to the present rapidly expanding and successful system . . . (and might lead to) socialized medicine under a compulsory health insurance plan."

DALE CARNEGIE

AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING"

MRS. EMMA JENSON, 345 Dearborn Avenue, Chicago, Illinois, is the mother of five children and she also operates a nursing home for elderly people.

About a year ago a doctor was brought into her nursing home. During the time he was a patient his mind was clear at times, but at other times not so clear. This wonderful doctor had a wife and children whom he loved dearly. Unfortunately they did not reciprocate.

After a few months the doctor became steadily worse, and it was evident that his span of life would soon be over.

CARNEGIE

One Saturday night, as death drew near, Mrs Jenson was watching by his bedside. He slowly stretched out his hand towards her, calling his wife's name, "Mary, Mary," over and over. Then he murmured the names of each of his children. Knowing his great need, and that in his condition he could not recognize features, she played the role of his wife. Softly he murmured, "Mary, dear, put my arms around you that I may love and kiss you once more before I go." Mrs. Jenson did as he requested, and that once esteemed doctor and wonderful man left this earth to meet his Maker, with only a strange nurse at his bedside.

Mrs. Jenson's reason for telling this story is to suggest that if you have an old mother or dad, or any other loved one who is ill, keep in mind that what they most want is your love and affection; your arms around them in their hour of need, not those of a strange nurse.

HOME DEMONSTRATION FOOD PRESERVATION LEADERS LEARN HO TO MAKE CHEESE

Food preservation leaders of the Home Demonstration Clubs learned how to make cottage cheese at a Leadership School at the Clanton City Hall, Friday, May 21st. Miss Lavada Curtis, Food Preservation Specialist, from Auburn gave the demonstration on making cottage cheese.

Miss Curtis taught the leaders a newer and easier method of making cottage cheese. Making cottage cheese is one way the home can use the excess skim milk. Cottage cheese may be used in a number of different ways—salads, sandwiches, fruit cakes and cereal. The leaders were given some recipes for using cottage cheese.

Making cottage cheese is the demonstration to be given in the Home Demonstration Clubs during June. Miss Curtis suggested that leaders serve cottage cheese in some form in the Clubs that serve refreshments.

Nine Home Demonstration Clubs were represented at the Leadership School by the following twelve leaders: Mrs. C. H. Ellison, Minooka; Mrs. Gladys Glenn and Mrs. Aubrey Smith, Poplar Springs; Mrs Reese Wells, Mt. Carmel; Mrs Johnnie Culpepper and Mrs. Jewel Wright, Baker; Mrs. Leo Headley and Mrs. I. B. Yeargan, Mt. Pisgah; Mrs. Harry Sims, Friendship; Mrs. Lester Connell, Alabama Mills; Mrs H M Kelley Thomas Jr and Mrs G M. Durbin, Fairview

COST CUTS WILL KEEP POULTRY EARNINGS UP

AUBURN, ALA. — Alabama poultrymen can expect smaller profits this year unless production costs are trimmed to offset lower broiler and egg prices

API extension Poultryman John Weeks said here this week that broiler prices have been relatively low for the past five months and egg prices for the next six months are expected to be off some from those of the same period of 1953. Faced with this situation, poultrymen must find ways to lower their cost of turning out eggs and broilers.

Weeks offers these suggestions:

1. Cut feed waste. Stop feeding culls, use better feeds, fill feeders properly, kill rats, and keep wild birds out of the buildings.

2. Reduce feed costs. Self-feed whole grain and high protein supplement to growing pullets and laying hens, buy feed in bulk and in larger lots, use home-grown or locally produced whole grain, get a year's supply of oats, grain sorghum corn and wheat during the harvest season, provide a good grazing pasture for growing pullets, use high protein broiler supplements mixed with local or home-grown grain and pay cash or use bank credit

3. Use manure to cut fertilizer cost and raise crop yields.

4. Reduce flock mortality. Use strict sanitation practices and buy only stock having a low mortality record.

5. Cut the cost of plant upkeep Make repairs as soon as needed and take the best possible care of equipment

CATTLEMEN TO MEET IN MONTGOMERY

Montgomery, Ala.— Hundreds of cattlemen from all over the nation will gather here in April, 1955 when Montgomery will be host to the annual meeting of the National Hereford Association.

The convention was awarded Montgomery at a recent meeting of the group of Colorado. The Alabama Hereford Association and Montgomery Chamber of Commerce are making plans for the event.

Officials of the two organizations said it will be the first time a cattlemen's convention of this size has been held in Alabama or the Southeast.

HYBRID SEED CORN OUTLOOK NOW GOOD

AUBURN, ALA. — If all goes well with producers, Alabama's hybrid seed corn supply for 1955 is practically assured.

Ralph R Jones, API Extension seed crps specialist, says over 3000 acres of Experiment Station developed hybrids are being grown in the state this year for seed purposes These hybrids include Dixie 18, Dixie 22, Dixie 33, North Carolina 27, and Georgia 101. In addition to these commercial companies are growing for seed about 2000 acres of various hybrids which they developed.

Jones reports that acreage planted for seed production this year is about equal to that f last year. And if the crop makes a normal yield, he says it will supply about one-third of the volume of hybrid seed corn needed in Alabama in 1955.

To freshen hard rolls or muffins, sprinkle them with water, place in a brown paper bag, and warm in a hot oven for a few minutes.

NEWS FROM VETERANS ADMINISTRATION

Montgomery, Ala. — Summer school, starting soon, will provide the last chance for hundreds of Alabama post-Korean veterans to start training under the Korean G.I. Bill a Veterans Administration officer warned today.

Harley A. Smith, Alabama Regional Office Manager of the VA. said the Veterans who must act in a hurry, if they want G.I. schooling are those who were discharged or separated from service before Aug 20, 1952, and who have not yet taken advantage of the G.I. training benefit.

Under the law they must enroll in and actually begin, an approved program of training before this coming August 20 in order to continue afterwards. For veterans who fail to act in time, the chance to train will be gone for good. The problem facing school-going veterans is that few summer schools will be in session on the August 20 deadline, date, Smith explained.

For that reason, these veterans will find that summer classes, getting under way shortly, will be the last chances in which they can start training before the cut-off date.

For veterans planning GI on-job-training, the need for action just as important, if not so immediate. Job training programs must be started by August 20, but arrangements for beginning training are not tied down to the beginning of a term, as is the with schools.

The August 20 deadline for ing applies only to post-Korean veterans who left the service on before August 20, 1952, Smith emphasized. All veterans separated after that date will have two years from the time of their release began.

To be eligible for training under the Korean GI Bill, a veteran must meet all three of these requirements:

He must have been separated from active service under conditions other than dishonorable.

He must have been on active duty in the armed forces any place in the world—not necessarily in Korea—after June 27, 1950.

He must have had at least 90 days of active service in the armed forces unless he was discharged sooner because of a nactual service connected disability.

Have you ever caught two or three fish on a single cast??? That is exactly what is being done at this time on the fever beautiful Coosa-Talladega lakes. You may think that this is just another fish story, but any dock operator will tell you that many are taking the creel limits of (5) Stripes hooking them two and three at a time. Yes sir! Stripe Bass are making law violators out of a lot of us. It's hard to count 'em when they are scattered all over the bottom of the boat, that's where you throw 'em when you fish a swarming school. Between schools you probably could count your fish, but then, who is calm enough to count fish. You are too busy watching for another school.

No matter how good the fishing prospects are you still talk to some disgruntled angler that had no luck at all they were fishing the same lure as everyone else. One very observing fisherman advanced this tip for those unlucky ones: While waiting between schools, remain seated in your boat. The water is clear and fish have very sharp eyes. Those that stand frighten both the Shad and Stripes away and at the same time stand a good chance of falling overboard.

Fishing prospects are looking much better in all species. Large and Small mouth Bass; Crappie and Bream are being taken in large numbers from all the lakes. Several outstanding catches were entered in the Alabama Power Company Fishing Contest during the past week.

LAKE JORDAN

C. A. Owen's trunk stop, near Waywick Bridge, above Wetumpka reports: Joe McDonald. Jordan man 11 years of age, tried red worms, cane pole and a river slough and hooked the largest Shellcracker entered in the contest so far this year. It weighed 24 ounces.

Evans' store, downtown Slapout reports: W. C. Sanders, Holtville used live minnows as bait to catch a 4 pound, 8 ounce Largemouth Bass.

Mrs. J. R. Gibson, manager Blackwell's fishing Lodge, Shoal's Creek, near Holtville, reports: Truman Franklin, Wetumpka, fly fished Shoals Creek with a popping bug and caught a 3 pound, 9 ounce Smallmouth Bass.

LAKE MITCHELL

H. S. Pinson's Mims Ferry Fishing Camp, below Lay Dam and near Clanton, reports: Travis Duckworth fished with B. B. Sherrill, Sr. and Jr. Homewood, and the party boated 25 Largemouth Bass ranging from 1 pound to 3 pounds, 14 ounces. Travis caught the big one. H. H. Craig, Pelham, used a Peck's popper in the upper reaches of Mitchell Lake and landed a nice string of Largemouth Bass. His largest weighed 3 pounds, 8 ounces.

Raymond Wyatt's Fishing Camp Walnut Creek, near Clanton, reports: A. R. Scott, Clanton, fished river sloughs with a white water popper to hook a nice 3 pound, 8 ounce Smallmouth Bass. J. G. Hall, Birmingham caught a fine string of Smallmouth Bass by using a Snakedoctor as bait. His best was 4 pounds even. Grady Popwell, Birmingham took his string of Smallmouth Bass on a Cisco Kid. Grady's best this trip was 4 pounds, 12 ounces.

LAKE LAY

G. O. Norred's Store, Talledega Springs, reports: G. S. Whitfield Leeds, fished Rock Springs Creek with a spinning rig and sacked up the limit on Bass. His largest Largemouth Bass was 4 pounds, 12 ounces but the very best catch of the day was a 2 pound Stripe Bass.

LAKE YATES

H & W Grocery Store near Talassee, reports: Frank B. Burnett Sylacauga, entered his best whopper catch of last week in the contest Frank's Largemouth Bass tilted the scales to 5 pounds, 7 ounces taken on a Heddon Spook. Truman Ingram, Tallassee, fly fished crickets for Shellcracker and did right well His two best were 10 and 14 ounces each. Contest Judge, Carl T. Ingram Tallassee, used the same rig as Truman and cleaned up with the Bluegills. His best was 10 ounces.

CHIEF ALAPOCO SAYS:

In the case of a swamped or overturned outboard it is usually safer to stay with the boat. The hull rarely sinks and it is generally farther to shore than it appears.

TURN EXTRA PASTURE INTO PAYING SILAGE

Don't waste that surplus pasture Turn it into good silage to cut milk production costs.

A grass-legume mixture harvested at the proper stage makes silage almost equal to corn or cane silage, says John Parrish, API Extension dairyman.

Parrish recommends putting the forage in an upright silo and packing it as the structure is filled "Don't let juice leak out during storage," he warns, "for it contains large amounts of food value."

Sodium bisulphite is a good silage preservative to use when putting up the succulent ration. Apply eight to 10 pounds to each ton of feed — more than this will bleach the silage and lower its palatibility.

Governor Proclaims June Dairy Month

GOVERNOR Proclaims June Dairy Month—In a proclamation declaring June to be Dairy Month in Alabama, Gov. Gordon Persons has asked individuals and business and civic groups to cooperate in observing the occasion in order to increase the public appreciation for milk and dairy foods. He said use of more of these foods will improve the health of consumers and the [illegible] of all in the dairy industry.

In [illegible] Gov. Persons signs the proclamation are, left to right John A. Garrett of Montgomery member of Alabama Farm Bureau's dairy committee; State Senator John L. Whatley of Opelika, prominent Lee County dairyman, Harold E. Johnson of Gadsden, state chairman of the June Dairy Month program; Mrs. Margaret Bear of Montgomery, executive secretary of the State Milk Control Board, and John Parrish of Auburn, API Extension dairyman.

SUMMER SKIN TROUBLES

With the coming of hot and humid weather, many persons will have skin troubles. Over exposure to the sun is a dangerous practice. Apart from any more or less immediate pain it can produce, there are more serious troubles which can develop. Naturally, the amount of sun any of us can take is dependant primarily on the amount of pigment or skin coloring Redheads, for example, low in pigment and consequently, burn easily Blondes are also more likely to blister than brunettes.

Creams and lotions should be used in acquiring a sun-tan and your tan should be gotten slowly. While a rich mahogany tan may be considered glamourous, the skin can be made much rougher and scalier in the process of getting such a tan A severe burning should be avoided because it can result in infections and very often a course dry skin The wise person will expose his skin to the sun in gradual amounts of time

Too much perspiration, particularly when it is not able to [illegible] can freely can produce various local irritating effects on the skin the best known of which is prickly heat. Indirectly, large amounts of perspiration can favor the development of fungous infections, particularly ringworm of the feet. The horny layer of the skin becomes wet especially between the toes; and the moist, damp areas become nesting places for fungi which may lie dormant for months and even years.

Careful cleansing and drying of the feet are essential, and the application of talcum powder is a pleasing precaution against the infection Once it develops, the ringworm infections are difficult to clear up.

ALABAMA HIGHLIGHTS

Alabama in its early days was a great agricultural state as it is now But in the early days there was less industry.

In the early days of Alabama history there was a feeling among some persons that too much cotton was being grown and producers began studying ways of cutting down production in the hope that the price would stay up.

Alabama would have been better off, it was suggested in those early days, if more money and labor were invested in manufacturing and less in cotton growing.

A cotton mill was being operated on the Flint River near Huntsville by Horatio Jones and Company as early as 1820.

No cotton cloth was produced at the Jones and Company Cotton Mill on the Flint River when it was founded. Only yarn was spun and it was sold locally.

The Bell Factory was chartered by the Legislature in 18[illegible] and was located on the Flint River where water power was available Slave labor was used to operate the 3,000 spindles and 100 looms that soon were in operation.

In 1834 a cotton mill was opened at Scottsbille and in 1845 it was producing 4,500 yards of shirt cloth per week, most of which was used in making clothes for slaves.

Tallassee was the scene of the opening of a cotton mill in 1846, and a year later Daniel Pratt began production of both yarn and cloth at his mill in Prattville

Alabama's cotton mill total had climber to 12 by 1850 and these mills were producing 790,000 pounds of yarn and 3,081,000 yards of cloth valued at $382,200

Alabama was the scene of development of iron production. Early furnaces and foundaries were located in Talladega, Calhoun and Bibb Counties.

Value of iron produced in Alabama had reached $280,876. by 1850 prior to the War Between the States but little was done to develop the rich deposits in Jefferson County.

Towns grew slowly in early Alabama because of a lack of industry to stimulate their growth, and when industry did begin to develop, the growth was at loactions where there was water power and locations where there were transportation facilities.

Slow Down, And Keep Living

A joint declaration of war on traffic deaths by the governors of 24 northeastern and [illegible] will take effect tomorrow night when police [illegible] Memorial Day [illegible] the 1954 campaign [illegible] year by 11 [illegible] Maine to Maryland.

[illegible] as [illegible] will [illegible] highway safety [illegible] warning [illegible] with [illegible] Emphasis will be on arrest and conviction of speeders, who are considered by highway safety experts the number one cause of automobile faltalities. The campaign will start at 6 p.m. tomorrow and run through the Labor Day weekend.

The joint declaration, signed late last month by Governor Gordon Persons and the 23 other state heads, says in part, "We are convinced that the many courteous, cautious drivers suffer at the hands of those who are [illegible] and 'in a hurry' complex. This state of mind manifests itself in excessive speed, in [illegible] too fast for conditions, in following too closely, in failing to yield the right of way and in improper passing."

The Northeastern State Safety Coordinators and the Southern State Safety Coordinators coordinators of the statewide campaign, declare the program is not a [illegible] tic speed trap."

Captain C. E. Taylor of the Florida Highway Patrol, chairman of the Southern State Safety Coordinators group, said "The sole purpose of this drive is the saving of lives on the highway. STATE BUILDING COM. ALLOCATED FUNDS FOR INSTITUTIONS

Montgomery, Al... State Building Commission has allocated $985,400 of its funds for capital outlaw purposes to institutions of higher learning and other state agencies.

This brings to $2,354,900 the amount the commission has allocated from funds it had available this year. Effective the first of the current fiscal year, Oct. 1, 1954, the commission allocated $1,459,500.

Most of the funds available to the group for this year came from the state general fund. A state law provided that the surplus in the general fund on Sept. 30, 1954 would be turned over to the Building Commission for capital outlay purposes

Alabama's Educational Television Commission was allocated $252,000 of the $895,400 just released by the Building Commission. The TV group has authorized one station to be located atop Mt. DALE CARNEGIE

AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING"

WHEN AUDINE STEARNS, 28430 Terrence Road, Livonia, Michigan, was just a little girl and her mother put her to bed one afternoon for a nap, she looked up to her mother and said, "Mother, I hope I die the very same minute you do; I don't want to live without you." Her mother said, "Oh no, you won't want to die when I do: you will be older then and much wiser." That answer satisfied Audine for a long time.

CARNEGIE

But there came a day when her mother was very ill. She had been ailing for a couple of years, and one day as she and her father sat on the edge of the bed talking, she again said, "If anything happens to either of you, I just don't know how I will ever live through it." That was in 1937.

Later that year her mother began failing fast and eventually fell into a coma. She had been up day and night with her mother. So kind neighbors sat with her mother and she closed her eyes and turned to God wholeheartedly in prayer, pouring out her heart to Him. Never before in her life had she prayed as she did that night! About to lose the best friend she had on this earth, her mother! Finally she closed her eyes and said, "Oh God, please take away Mother's suffering and pain." Very suddenly a sharp pain crossed over her right eye and she saw a bright light up high. It was brighter than an electric light, brighter than any star she had ever seen it was there only an instant and then it was gone. Immediately a feeling of peace came over her and she fell asleep.

The next day her mother passed away with Audine holding her hand. For the first time in her life she attended a funeral without shedding a tear. Not only that, but the peace that was given her that night she poured out her heart to God has remained with her.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

Annie Francis Williams returned home this week after an absence of 28 years. She is now Mrs. Fife and is a resident of Birmingham, however she has been there only a short while having spent all of her life in Florida since she was three years old. Mrs. Fife was taken to Florida by an aunt when her mother and father died in 1926, when she was three. Since that time she has had no contact with her people here and only through the efforts of Rubin Lowe, our postmaster, did she find them at all. Mrs. Fife is the granddaughter of the late F. C. and Mollie Caton and a niece of Mr. and Mrs. J. Fonzie Mullins. On Sunday, June 13, there will be a homecoming at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Fonzie Mullins in honor of Annie Francis Williams Fife to welcome her back to the family she has not known for more than a quarter of a century.

Congratulations to Dyer and Mrs. Shakelford on their new daughter. When we called Wednesday Dyer was in bed. We presume it was because he was up all night Tuesday night and not because he couldn't stand the pressure. We do wish for their new daughter all the happiness in this great big beautiful world and know she couldn't have finer parents.

Jamie Propst who had a bad eye injury last week is at home after the second operation on his eye and is improving fast. Mrs. Dubie Chancellor is still in critical condition at Selma Baptist Hospital. Alonza Askins is back home and on the way to health which make his friends very happy. Little Ricky Easterling, son ot Mr. and Mrs. Clement Easterling is still a very sick little boy but hope for his complete recovery is announced by the family. John Still is still in serious condition at the Selma Baptist hospital also as is Melvin Langston Melvin, however, is improving fast. We wish a speedy recovery for all the sick and hope they are all back in circulation real soon.

It's a pleasure to work with Jack House on the peach festival catalog this year. Jack is a man who knows his business and gets things done. We believe the committee acted wisely in selecting House as publicity man for this year's extravaganza.

Got a sign hanging over our desk saying "Why be disagreeable? With a little effort you can be a real stinker." And you don't necessarily have to be a skunk either.

They held open house at the Cooper Community House Wednesday and quite a crowd attended. Was talking to Mrs. Archie Taylor about it and she seemed quite excited. The residents of Cooper and especially the ladies, are to be commended on the work they have done for their community. It is a lesson that could be copied by more of our rural communities in Chilton County.

AUTOMOBILE WRECKED IN CITY MONDAY

A car driven by Mildred Gross, formerly of Jemison, was wrecked in front of the Southern Bell Telephone Company Monday afternoon. Witnesses said that the driver, lost control of the vehicle and it hit another automobile doing some damage to it. The car driven by Miss Gross was badly damaged. No one was hurt in the crash.

City police arrested the driver of the car and charged her with DWI.

PSC ORDERS INVESTIGATIONS

Montgomery, Ala.—The Alabama Public Service Commission has ordered an investigation into the general intra-state oil hauling costs.

Calling the investigation, a hearing which has been set for June 15 here, may forestall a possible price war that could be shaping up between the railroads and truckers over hauling of petroleum products.

To be considered by the commission will be the question of whether to impose minimum rates on both railroads and motor lines. The step was taken after several railroads proposed to lower their pteroleum rates as much as 15 per cent.

The PSC said, in ordering the investigation and hearing, that if the lower rates proposed by the railroads went into effect some trucking lines might be driven out of business.

Freight rates on oil shipped by truck are now about 5 per cent lower than the railroad rates. There is no minimum rate in Alabama.

Report Made In Recent Cancer Fund Drive

E. R. (Ed) Yeargan, County chairman in the recent Crusade for Funds for the American Cancer Society, reports that this year's drive went over the quota for Chilton County by several hundred dollars. According to chairman Yeargan this is the first time for the local Chapter to even reach their quota.

Yeargan made public his final report this week:

Whole County Has "Peach Fever"

This year the Chamber of Commerce wishes to carry on a program for the benefit of the merchants which will tie in with the Peach Festival. As you know in the past we have been asked to participate in the Peach Festival by buying advertising in the program, decorating our stores, buying floats etc., but very little real participation was had and the merchants gained little direct benefit from the Peach Festival program.

This year we would like to have your merchants participate by having a trade promotion program of some kind which will be held during the 5 days in which the peach festival activities are going on.

The idea is still in the formative stage but so far the program would work like this: Each merchant that wishes to participate in the program will hold its own sales program on specials around the Peach Festival theme. They will be furnished banners or placards that will show that your store is carrying on a sale and to stimulate the trade each merchant will be given tickets which he will give out with the purchase of goods or services from which will be drawn names for prizes to be given away. We know that the surest way to carry out a trade promotion is to give away prizes.

This year the Peach Festival Program starts on Friday night with Peach Queen selections and continues through Wednesday night of the Festival. This gives the opportunity to keep interest up during the 5 days. If possible we would like to give 1 or 2 prizes away at each of the activities and then give away a grand prize the day of the Peach festival when the most people will be there.

The cost of the program will of course be governed by the number of merchants participating but an approximate budget would be similar to this:

Cost of tickets $2.50 per thousand or 50,000 tickets $125.000.

Cost of 200 placards or banners in color $30.00.

Two full pages of newspaper advertising to be run showing merchants participating. $120.00

One grand prize of television set or something of similar value $200.00

10 smaller prizes of approximately $25.00 value each $250.00.

(Luggage small appliance, clothing, etc.) $725.00.

From this you can see that if as many as 50 merchants in the County participate the cost will be approximately $15.00 each, if as many as 30, the cost will be approximately $25.00 each so that the smaller merchants may participate at a reasonable cost and yet the average be maintained, the thought is to set a minimum participation cost at say $10.00 and give this merchant 500 tickets. Then the larger merchants will pay $10.00 for the first 500 tickets plus 50c for each additional 100 tickets the merchant needs. With a maximum set at 2 or 3 times the minimum cost so as to to insure the average amount will be provided. These tickets could be given for purchases of 25c to 50c or whatever the merchant decide is the best for their use. On service businesses the formula could be different so that every type of business that wants to participate might do so.

This program will be run independent to the peach festival and the funds supplied will be used for this program only. All funds paid in must be used either for advertising or prizes so the more that participate in it, the bigger it will be, and the more we will be able to gain from it. I believe that a great deal of good can be derived from this and the advertising alone will be worth the cost of the program.

We felt that the fairest way to each merchant was to share the total cost rather than have some donate prizes and ask for participation in that basis. Although we will not solicit prizes, there may be some merchants that will want to give away additional prizes, which is certainly allright provided the rules of the drawings are followed.

Older 4-H Youth To Meet Next Saturday

The second meeting of the "Older 4-H Youth" is to be held at the Clanton City Hall at 9:00 a.m., Saturday, June 12th. This is a new organization for 4-H boys and girls who are between the ages of 14 and 21 years of age. Many boys and girls of this age are interested in continuing their 4-H Club work so this organization will give them an opportunity to do so. The regular school schedule does not provide time for high school students to attend 4-H Club meetings; therefore, these meetings will be held out of school.

Plans for the "Older 4-H Youth" are: Any boy or girl in the County between the ages of 14 and 21 is eligible to belong; at least six meetings will be held each year with the time and place being announced prior to each meeting; 4-H projects must not be listed as that of any other organiaztion; and boys and girls will meet jointly after each meeting for recreational activities.

Mrs. Johnnie M. Lane, Assistant Home Demonstration Agent, announces that any boys and girls interested in this organization of "Older 4-H Youth" are urged to be present Saturday, June 12. Officers need to be elected, plans for summer recreational meetings are to be made and other business will be discussed. Refreshments will be served after the business session.

Maplesville Gets Gas Allotment

It was announced today by the city officials of Maplesville that after numerous months of waiting the Federal Power Commission has finally granted Maplesville a natural gas allotment.

This same allotment will also furnish the communities of Stanton, Plantersville and Jones.

Democratic Execut. Committee To Meet

A meeting of the Chilton County Democratic Executive Committee will be held next Monday Afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the courthouse. All members are urgently requested to attend this meeting as very important business is to be brought before the committee.

Greatest progress in early Alabama education was made in Mobile, where as early as 1826 a board of commissioners was authorized by law and empowered to established schools.

Clanton Little Leaguers To Open Season Wednesday

FOUR TEAMS PLAYING IN DOUBLE-HEADER

The Clanton Little League opens its season next Wednesday, June 16, with a double-header between the Junior Chamber of Commerce Cardinals and the Kiwanis White Sox in the first game, and the Lions and Methodist Braves in the second.

The schedule calls for a double-header each Wednesday and Friday until each team has played 18 games.

The local league has received an official franchise from Little League, Inc., and is all set to enjoy all the advantages of the National organization except this years tournament play. A new league must operate one year before being eligible for tournament participation.

The roster for the teams are as follows:

Mr. W. A. (Bing) Lecroy is manager of the Cardinals, Mr. Eddie Waters manages the White Sox, Mr. Charlie Patterson handles the Lions with assistance from J. E. Easterling, and Rev. Marvin Vickers is manager for the Methodist Braves. Umpires for the league are Bobby Cary Wyatt, Jack Dennis, Bobby Joe Davis, and Richard Easterling. Mr. Bob Windham is responsible to the league for umpires. Other officers of our league are: Russell Sutley, President; Watson Yeager, Vice-Pres.; Ott Miller, Secretary; Jimmy Bell, Treasurer. J. E. Easterling served as chairman of the committee to secure playing equipment and uniforms, Gabby Tiffin was chairman in charge of playing fields, and Hollis Jackson headed the group working with the managers. Jack Hayes, our own Mr. Baseball, is to lend his helping hand wherever and whenever and to whoever needs his assistance.

As you probably knw already, there is no admission charge to any Little League game; But, your help and support will be deeply appreciated — not only by the little men, but also by those who have worked so diligently to bring this chance to all the boys in the community.

Watch this paper for box scores, league standings, etc. And, come on out to the ball games each Wednesday and Friday. Let's keep this program going for those too young to play.

Dr. Ralph M. Riggs At Temple Assembly

Dr. and Mrs. Ralph M. Riggs, General Supt. of the Assemblies of God will be at the Temple Assembly of God church on June 20, which is Fathers Day.

This will be observed as Father and Son Day, and Dr. Riggs will speak to all the men and their sons during Sunday School hour.

Dr. Riggs spent several years as a missionary in Africa. He is quite a pugent speaker, and Bible teacher. He is mentioned in Who's Who, and is the author of several books, some of which are used in our Bible Schools.

Dr. Riggs' headquarters are in Springfield, Mo., which is one of the largest Christian Publishing houses in America. Several million publications of different kinds are turned out there each year.

STATE EMPLOYMENT TO DIRECT MANPOWER

Montgomery, Ala. — The Alabama State Employment Service has been named by the State Civil Defense Department as the agency to direct manpower for relief and rehabilitation in stricken areas in the event of enemy attack in Alabama or in case of a natural disaster.

The arrangement was worked out at a recent meeting between officials of the State Civil Defense Department, Highway Department and Industrial Relations Department, under which the Employment Service operates.

In the event of attack or disaster, the Highway Department and other agencies concerned will go to the Employment Service for needed manpower.

Should an attack or disaster occur, persons desiring to offer their services—professional men, truck drivers, laborers and others—should register with the Employment Service immediately, according to Col. James M. Garret, Jr., director of the Civil Defense Department

HOMECOMING DAY AT EASTVIEW CHURCH, JUNE 13

The homecoming at Eastview Church will be held the second Sunday in June, the 13th. Everyone has a cordial invitation to tatend. Come and bring a well filled basket.

All singers and lovers of music be sure to come. Come and worship with us and you will be glad you did.

Cemetery Cleaning At Collins Chapel

There will be a cemetery cleaning at Collins Chapel Saturday morning, June 12. Everyone please come and bring tools to work with.

Tucker Resigns As Demo Committee Sec.

R. M. TUCKER

R. M. Tucker resigned as secretary to the Chilton County Democratic Executive Committee this week. He has held the post for the past 16 years.

In his letter to J. B. Atkinson, Chairman of the Committee, Tucker stated that after 16 years continuous service he thought it was time for another to "take over" in that capacity.

He also stated in his letter of resignation that the Committee and the party could depend on his full support at all times and that the full support of the Chilton County News could be depended upon to help build a bigger and better Chilton County; "which I know is the ambition of every member of this committee."

NOTICE

I expect to be out of my office from June 15, to about July 15, for the purpose of attending the Convention of the American Medical Association in San Francisco. On my return I hope to do some postgraduate observatory review work in abdominal and pelvic surgery at the Mayo Clinic. I am sure the other doctors will be glad to take care of any of you who consider yourself my patients if you will be considerate of their feelings. Try to see them at their regular office hours and for off hour emergencies go to the hospital.

ALABAMA OBSERVING JUNE DAIRY MONTH

Elaborate plans have been made for the observance of June Dairy Month throughout Alabama.

So said Harold E. Johnson of Gadsden, state June Dairy Month chairman, who urged everyone to join in the observance.

Johnson reminded adults that they never outgrow their need for milk. To get the calcium they need, they must drink milk daily. As a word of comfort to those watching their diets, he added that the three glasses needed daily by the adult supply only 500 of the 2400 calories required by the average woman.

To repair a knobless pot lid, push a sharp, pointed screw through the hole and twist a cork onto it; the cork is heatproof.

Retail sales show first decline in sixteen months.

Now that the final vote is counted we can all start worrying about something else.

From the size of the vote by Mary Texas Hurt in the Secretary of State race a pretty face is no handicap in politics.

AN AUTOMATIC GARAGE

It seems that the largest city in the East, New York, is about to get its first automatic garage. Although several of these automatic garages have been operated in western states, they are a novelty in the East.

We are inclined to think they are the coming thing in the garage world. For example, consider what happens in the average big-city garage today, when you drive up in your new fliver, and turn it over to the hotrod pilot who has that develish grin to start with.

The young squirt is really a test pilot and he tests every car he parks. He zooms off into the lot while you hold your breath and hold back a few choice words. Then, in the worst cases, when you come back to get your car, you find a new dent or scratch.

The automatic garage, however, parks your car automatically and no driver touches it. You can even lock it up when you step out of it and let the automatic parker take over. And what's more, it is returned automatically, too

THINGS DOING IN CHILTON

Things are humming in Chilton County these days what with the Peach Festival coming off this month—June 25-30th.

The county hospital is well under way with the foundation in and each day sees fulfillment of a dream.

Committees are at work getting ready for the County Fair that will start September 6th and run through Sept. 11th. The Fair this year will feature commercial exhibits, dairy cattle show, beef cattle show, county 4-H Dairy Maid contest, county Maid of Cotton selection, community exhibits, county organizations educational exhibits, county school system exhibits, food and refreshment concessions, fireworks (if possible), and last but not least the Lee Amusement Company for rides, etc.

At present a campaign is on for a better City Park program and much is being done there for our children.

Report from Washington

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

The Social Security revision bill that passed the House last week by a vote of 355 to 8 extends insurance coverage to more than nine million additional people. As a result of this extension of coverage, three-fourths of all persons over 65 will be eligible for insurance benefits by 1960, as compared to half at the present time.

This legislation was considered in the House under a rule prohibiting amendments except by direction of the Ways and Means Committee. An attempt to defeat this rule so that amendments might be offered from the floor of the House failed.

The bill adopted by the House of Representatives follows President Eisenhower's recommendation in all major aspects, departing from them in only a few details. Yielding to opposition from the American Medical Association, the Ways and Means Committee rejected the President's proposal for compulsory coverage by physicians. The committee also decided to leave out about half the farm workers that the Administration had wanted to bring under the program.

Those who will be brought under Social Security for the first time if the House bill is adopted by the Senate include about 3.8 million self-employed farm operators whose net earnings from farm self-employment total $400 or more in a year; 400,000 lawyers, dentists, accountants and other self-employed professionals (except physicians) whose self-employment total $400 or more per year; 1.3 million farm workers paid at least $200 in a year by one employer; 250,000 household employees; 150,000 federal employees not covered by other retirement systems; 100,000 industrial employees who work at home; and 50,000 engaged in commercial fishing and related activities.

Approximately 3.5 million state and local government employees (except firemen and policemen) will be made eligible at the option of the employers, provided a majority of the employees of a system vote in a referendum on the question and two-thirds of those voting favor coverage. About 250,000 ministers and members of religious organizations will be covered under a similar optional basis.

According to provisions of the House-approved bill, minimum monthly benefits under the Social Security System will be raised from $25 to $30, and maximum benefits for those now participating from $85 to $98.50. The present limitation on the earnings of beneficiaries under 65 will be altered to permit the earning of as much as $1,000 per year.

Social Security taxes will continue at the present rate of two percent for employers and employees alike until 1960. After 1960, the taxes will increase about one-half per cent every four years until 1975 when the employer and employees will be paying four per cent. The self-employed will pay one and one-half times these rates.

These and other changes were included in the Administration-backed bill that passed the House by an overwhelming vote. The measure now goes to the Senate with excellent prospects of passage during this session of Congress.

Things we -SEE- and Hear

by "Tuck"

Looks like ol' sol finally decided to come on the heat. We were wondering if maybe he'd forgotten what time of the year it was, but now we're sure he hasn't.

We're wondering what ever happened to the City Park development program. Are we or ain't we developing it. Last we heard they were going to do big things down there, but things aren't buzzing yet. Maybe we're a little ahead of time but we're just wondering. What ever happened to the there won't be improvement ... we mean [illegible] Attitude ... a good thing some activity.

NUMBER'S UP

Flee fly, before you're floored.
That female's found the flapper.
Her aim's a shame we can't ignore.
But, buddy she'e no napper.

Equipped you are with real radar,
And eyes that number many
But, even so, you are no match,
She's got your number, 20.

You're number 20 little fly,
You'll not do no more buzzin.
Nor walkin' o'er the pastry dish,
With all your other cousins.

Your number's up the sayin' goes
You'd better start to prayin'.
Or straighten up and fly right, fly,
She don't look like she's playin.'

Hear where one of the "Banner Boys," as we call 'em, is moving his abilities to the Journal at Selma. Seems like that's the next stop when a printer leaves Clanton. The fella's name is Howard Mims and we wish him well in his new job.

Had a CATastrophe down our way the other day. One of the many kittens around there evidently was defective in the qualities of having nine lives and passed on in just one accident. A neighbor runned over him. He had it against him to start off with anyway, though; he was black.

Two old farmers were swapping talk one day when the subject wandered to the sensibility of old sayings. One mentioned the one about practicing what you preach and the other remarked, "Ya know, there's only one thing wrong with me and that sayin'; and that's that I preach a lot better than I practice."

Hear where television is on its way out . . . out of the living room and into the dining room.

Like to congratulate Callen Allred and the rest of the folks on the remodeling of their drugstore. A fine improvement. Looks very modern and up to date. We don't know what they're going to call it but we suppose it'll be Calloway's. That's what it'll go by whether they call it that or not it has for so many years now.

There's nothing as easy as saying yes to something that doesn't concern you.

Why is it that a man with authority has to act like a man with authority, even though he knows folks won't like him for it.

Things we're seeing and hearing: Things sure buzzing around the courthouse.

The new hospital getting under way.

Many new improvements in communities over the County.

Chilton County getting a fine write-up in the Trans Gas publication.

Quite a bit of vacationing being done.

Just to prove that folks can do whatever they want no matter what their handicap may be. Fellow came into the News office the other day. He was deaf and he couldn't speak, yet he had worked as a floorman on the Birmingham News for around 17 years. Only a person knowing the trade could really appreciate the effort he must have put out trying to overcome his condition. He is a success in spite of odds against him which just proves that a man can do what he wants within himself.

Coosa Bill Passes

As I predicted in last week's column, a special rule was granted last Tuesday on legislation to permit the Alabama Power Company to further develop the Coosa River.

The House considered and passed this measure the following day by a voice vote. It is hoped that this legislation will be considered by the Senate in the very near future.

REV. ROBERT H. HARPER

Amos Denounces Intemperance (Temperance Lesson)
Lesson for June 13; Amos 2: 11-12; 4: 1-2; 6: 1-7.
Golden Text: Romans 13: 13.

In this lesson we find Amos giving attention to a very distressing thing in regard to the use of strong drink — the efforts put forth by drinkers to induce others to share in their carousals. For they offered wine to Nazarites, the members of a very strict sect who gave themselves wholly to the service of God and denied themselves the use of wine.

Amos also found that women were indulging freely in strong drink. In no flattering terms, the prophet called them the "kine," cows, of Bashan. It is a lamentable thing that so many women of the present are indulging in the use of strong liquor. The whole attitude of the large number of women in our country seems changed toward the matter of drink. It is seen in the glittering cocktail bars and cocktail lounges present nearly everywhere.

The prophet warned the people in general against the evils of strong drink and urged them to think of the doom that threatened their nation with the continuance of their carousals. The nation, he insisted, was in imminent danger from foes that were attacking from within, and the men and women who were holding high carnival would be the first to be taken captives into a strange land. Beware of the evil that ruined Israel in the long ago.

GOP INCHES UP IN CONGRESSIONAL RACES BUT DEMOCRATS STILL AHEAD

Princeton, New Jersey—Over the past two months, the Republicans have made a small gain in Congressional strength, but survey figures reflecting sentiment as of late May show that if an election were held today, control of the House of Representatives would very likely go to the Democrats.

Here are the figures that show present day Republican-Democratic strength across the nation::

"If the elections for Congress were being held today, which party would you like to see win in this state—the Republican or the Democratic?"

The following table shows the results nationally, among those who had an opinion on the above question, or who, if undecided, stated toward which party they "leaned."

NATIONWIDE VOTE FOR CONGRESSMEN (House of Representatives)

Democratic	51.5 per cent
Republican	48.5 per cent

Eight weeks ago, the vote on the same question was Democratic 52.5 per cent; Republican 47.5 per cent. Today's findings thus represent a 1 per cent gain for the GOP and a 1 per cent loss for the Democrats over the past two months.

The fact that more people across the nation say they would like to see the Democrats win in the race for Congress is due in large part to the heavy Democratic vote in the South, which today's survey findings show holds to its traditionally Democratic Congressional preference.

Outside the South, the GOP has made a small gain over the past eight weeks. This gain is, however, not big enough to overcome the Democratic advantage in the South.

A clearer picture of the political situation can be had by examining the vote separately in the traditionally Democratic South on the one hand and in the areas outside the South on the other.

SOUTH ONLY
(House of Representatives)

	Rep.	Dem.
1950 Election	20%	80
1952 Election	20%	80
Eight weeks ago	21%	79
TODAY	21%	79

And here is the vote outside the South since 1950:

OUTSIDE THE SOUTH
(House of Representatives)

	Rep.	Dem.
1950 Election	53%	47
1952 Election	55%	45
Eight Weeks ago	50.5%	49.5
TODAY	51.5%	48.5

Today's figures of 51.5 per cent outside the South marks a loss in GOP strength of 3.5 per cent compared to the way voters in these states cast their ballots in the 1952 Congressional Election. (In this same 1952, Congressional Election, the GOP won control of the House of Representatives by a margin of 3 seats).

Analysis of today's findings by sections of the country outside the South show that the GOP is strongest in the East Central and the Mountain and Pacific States.

	Rep.	Dem.
New Eng.-Mid Atl.	48.5%	51.5
East Central States	53.0%	47.0
West Central States	51.0%	49.0
Mountain-Pac. States	56.0%	44.0

It must be kept in mind that today's findings reflect sentiment nearly five months in advance of the election, and that much can happen between now and next November.

The Chilton County News presents the reports of the United States Poll exclusively in this area.

JEMISON NEWS

(MRS. GEORGE NAISH)

Murray Junior Is Four—

It was a very happy birthday for Murray Glass, Jr., when he celebrated being four years old, on Thursday when his mother, Mrs. Murray Glass entertained at a children's party at her home.

The party took place on the lovely lawn of the home. Many toys were at the command of the children. Pictures of the group were made on the lawn as the honoree opened the lovely gift wrapped packages.

The birthday cake was white, decorated with pink rosebuds and held four tiny candles. As refreshments of ice cream was served the tiny tots sang the Happy Birthday song.

Enjoying the party with Murray were Janette Lenoir, Julian Cobb, Sarah Johnson, Melissa and Charles Bethany, Donna McNeill, Faye Porter, Sandra Rogers, Harriett and Charles Young, Velera Nell Pate, and Judy Lawrence. Mothers present were Mrs. C. W. Bethany, Mrs. Harry Young, Mrs. V. O. Lenoir, Mrs. Lottie Adams and Mrs. Glass.

Party For Young Married People—

Thursday night June 3rd, at 7:30 the members of the Young Married Peoples Class of the Baptist church were entertained by their teacher, Rev. Louis Brasher, in the dining room of the Baptist church.

The table was lovely with a central arrangement of summer flowers, greenery, trailing from this to the ends of the table to bowls of candy.

The group enjoyed a delicious meal of baked ham, string beans, potato salad, slaw, pickles, olives, hot rolls, peaches, cake, ice cream and iced tea.

While seated at the table contests were the entertainment, answers being the names of trees, flowers and cars. Another game, Personality, caused much mirth. There the group tested their artistic ability as they passed a blackboard, each one drew a line to form a church. Later ping-pong was played. Mrs. Brasher assisted her husband in the entertainment.

Enjoying this occasion were: Mr. and Mrs. William Vines, Mr. and Mrs. I. H McNeill, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Woodley, Mr. and Mrs. McSmith, Mrs. Lamar Chancellor and Mrs. C. W. Bethany.

Mrs. Walter McNeill Hostess—

The June meeting of the Home Demonstration Club was held at the home of Mrs. Walter McNeill on Wednesday June 2nd. The group assembled at 12:30 and enjoyed a covered dish luncheon of fried chicken, slaw, beans, potato salad, tomatoes, pickles, banana pudding, strawberries, pound cake, hot rolls and iced tea.

The meeting was called to order by the vice-president, Mrs. Tom Cost. Mrs. Cost gave the story of the song of the month, "God Be With You," the group sang the song.

Mrs. I. H. McNeill, Sr., gave the devotional, reading Psalms 86:11-17. The thought was "Teach Me Thy Way."

The vice president gave the thought of the month, It is Only the Great Hearted who can be true friends. Mrs. Wells, Home Agent, gave a report on Farm Bureau. She also gave places for the County Fair. Mrs. McNeill aided Mrs. Wells in giving a demonstration on making cottage cheese.

Members responded to roll call by naming a new flower they had grown.

The club repeated the collect in unison and were dismissed.

ADVENTIST CHURCH

Sabbath School 9:45 a.m. followed with preaching service at 11.

From time to time we hear of those who are being arrested and brought to tiral for "teaching the overthrow of the American government" which is based on the Constitution and its amendments. These men are called communists and are a menace to our American way of life.

Even more dangerous are Ecclesiastical communists who are teaching the overthrow of the principles of the divine government which are gased on the Commandments of love to God and love to man. Jesus was warnmar against such when He said "Whosoever therefore shall break one of the least of these commandments and shall teach men so shall he be called least in the kingdom of heaven" Mat 5:19. These communists in the realm of religion are abroad in our land and it behooves us to beware of them and their satanic teachings.

MT. PLEASANT GETS LOCOMOTIVE BELL

The bells are ringing—again! Seven "retired" engine bells—removed from as many scrapped locomotives—have just been donated by the Louisville and Nashville Railroad to seven small churches located along its lines. These bells went to the following:

Skaggs Creek Baptist Church, Mt. Vernon, Ky.

Calvary Free Will Baptist Church, Dryden, Va.

West Side Methodist Church, Bowling Green, Ky.

Christian Church, Stanford, Ky.

Mt. Pleasant Baptist Church, Clanton, Ala.

Big Creek Baptist Church, Big Creek, Ky.

Ebenezer Baptist Church, Ellijay, Ga.

The Louisville and Nashville Railroad has now donated a total of 294 of its scrapped engine bells to small, needy churches along its lines, chiefly located in rural areas, since it initiated the practice more than three years ago.

MORE GRAIN SORGHUM IS NEEDED IN STATE

AUBURN, Ala.—A state farm leader this week pointed to the need for larger acreage of grain sorghum in Alabama this summer.

Dalton Harbor, API Extension agronomist stressed the point that grain sorghum out yields corn when both are planted this late in the season. Almost as high in feeding value as corn, grain sorghum can well be used to add to the farmer's total feed supply.

Harbor said best varieties are as follows: North Alabama—Martin Combine; Central Alabama—Early Hegari and Combine Sagrain; South Alabama—Combine Sagrain. Recommended planting dates are June 15 to July 1 in the northern half of the state and June 15 to July 15 in the southern half. Five to eight pounds of treated seed per acre should be drilled in 36 to 42-inch rows.

Lime all soils that are moderately or highly acid, advised Harbor. No additional fertilizer will be needed if the grain sorghum follows a good growth of winter legumes that were fertilized with both phosphate and potash. Otherwise, apply at planting time 300 pounds of 8-8-8 or 4-10-7 fertilizer per acre and side-dress with 200 to 300 pounds of nitrate of soda (or half that amount of ammonium nitrate) per acre at the second cultivation.

Light-colored molasses can be darkened for ruse in dark gingerbread by adding a teaspoonful of melted chocolate to each cup of molasses.

Wires or lamp cords under rugs wear ridges into the fabric, are a fire hazard, and may void fire insurance policies.

Motorists To Receive Pamphlets On Safety

The Public Safety Department today announced plans for the distribution of a new highway safety pamphlet entitled "Has the Dream Become a Nightmare?"

L. B. Sullivan, Director of the Alabama Department of Public Safety, said the new pamphlet has been produced in cooperation with the Alabama Petroleum Industries Committee and will be sent to motorists and officials of the state, as well as being distributed through civic clubs at their regular meetings.

Pointing out that individual driver failures are the cause of a good 80 percent of all highway accidents, the pamphlet underscores the point that "safe drivers make safe highways."

He added that this is important because "one of the gravest threats to highway safety today is the driver who is lulled into reckless speed by the feeling that he is protected against accidents by the safety features 'engineered' into the car he is driving and the road he is traveling."

Noting that traffic fatalities on Alabama highways have been averaging about 803 a year, and that the nation's death toll in highway accidents in a mere 50 years of automotive history has surpassed the number of American lives lost in all wars in which this country has been engaged, Sullivan declared:

"A study of these highway accidents reveals that excessive speed is still the No. 1 Killer on our roads, and the paradox of the situation is that as our highways are improved and modernized, speed becomes more and more a factor.

"The pamphlet emphasizes the human element of traffic hazzards and contains a number of revealing quotations from traffic engineers, public officials, jurists and casualty insurance companies, all tending to discount the dangerous and all too high an attitude that the modern car is foolproof."

LOSS TO LIC[E] COSTS FARMERS MONE[Y] ILY

External parasites cost hog growers thousands of dollars each day.

One pest that helps pile up the loss is the hog lice. This parasite constantly irritates the hog, slows his rate of gain, and raises the farmer's feed bill.

Most trouble with lice stems from the fact that too many farmers do too little to control the pest, says G. B. Phillips, API Extension animal industry specialist. "Farmers take lice on hogs for granted, figure the parasite will be with them always."

"But," continues Phillips, "lice can be eliminated by a vigorous spraying program." He suggests a spray containing one pound of 25 per cent wettable lindane powder in 25 gallons of water for control of the pest. He adds that one pound of BHC (six per cent gamma wettable powder) mixed with five gallons of water will also give good control.

Ottootan soybeans are good supplementary green grazing for hogs.

THE ADOLESCENT GIRL

The beginning of adolescence in the young girl is very important and deserves an understanding from every member of the family. This is the time the little girl starts to grow up. Both the physical and emotional changes point the way to maturity.

The adolescent girl has three problems to solve before she can reach the stage of emotional maturity. First she must seperate herself from the dependent ties which bind her to her parents. This does not mean a rebellious, independent relationship, but rather the ability to take responsibilities in relationship to other people.

The second problem is to prepare herself for a career. Today, nearly every young girl works in some occupation for a few years after adolescence and until her time of marriage. It is quite common today for women to combine their careers with marriage.

The third problem is the preparation for marriage and for children. A good basic understanding of physical and emotional needs of everyday problems of family living and an honest attitude toward them are essential to a happy married life.

Thus the physiological and emotional changes that occur during adolescence are a part of growing to maturity. The basic needs are for fulfillment by taking one's place in a mature society.

Farm Leader Outlines Fine Cotton Progress

Auburn, Ala.—One of the most remarkable accomplishments in Alabama agriculture during recent years has been in the production and marketing of our oldest cash crop—cotton, reports A. W. Jones, API Extension marketing specialist.

Twenty-five years ago Alabama was noted for short staple, low quality cotton, explains Jones. County agents, agronomists, farmers, ginners, cotton buyers, and all others interested in the cotton industry worked hard on this problem.

"Their effort," says the specialist, "brought us to the point where, in 1953, the staple of Alabama cotton was as long or longer than that of any major southeastern cotton growing state. In addition, the grade of Alabama's 1953 cotton crop was higher than that of these states."

What has been done, specifically, to Make Alabama cotton better? Jones reports that research people have bred better varieties of cotton and these have been mass produced for plantings on thousands of farms. To protect quality, farmers have done a better job in harvesting their crop; ginners also have done a tremendously good ojb. And, according to the specialist, each year more cotton is being officially graded by the state classing service, and marketed on the basis of these grades

Jones points out that the most significant proof of cotton improvement is in price. Last year, the plains, Alabama's cotton crop for the highest average price all the 20 cotton producing states in the country except one

ALABAMA PLACES SIXTH IN BROILER INDUSTRY

Auburn, Ala.—Only six areas in the U. S. now lead Alabama in broiler production.

And this state stands a good chance to place even higher if present broiler output continues to climb, believes API Extension Poultryman John Weeks. Five years ago Alabama was near the bottom in the broiler industry.

Weeks said Alabama broiler production is now 46 per cent greater than at the same time last year. From Jan. 1 through May 22 of this year a total of 20,069,000 broiler chicks were started; in the same period last year 13,065,000 chicks went into houses.

For a period of 14 consecutive weeks ending May 22 Alabama growers placed over a million broiler chicks per week in their houses.

William F. Perry was named first state superintendent of education following the creation of that post by the 1854 Legislature. Among his jobs were those of visiting schools and making reports to the governor.

CLANTON LITTLE LEAGUERS ATTEND EAST-WEST GAME IN BIRMINGHAM FRIDAY

Since the Clanton Little League is officially franchised by Little League, Inc., and must follow the rules and regulations of that body—one of which prohibits traveling to play outside of their league—a group of public spirited citizens furnished transportation to the small fry for the big East-West Game in Birmingham last Friday evening. The trip was sponsored by the same civic groups that sponsor our Little League; namely the Junior Chamber of Commerce, Kiwanis and Lions Clubs, and Methodist Mens Club.

Earlier in the week each member of the Little League was invited to attend this party, and the parents were notified of the plans. The Methodist Church was chosen as the point of departure and plans were for the motorcade to leave here at 4:30 p.m. There were thirteen car loads under the guidance of Herb Salter, J. E. Easterling, Ed Mullins, Henry Wyatt, Fonzie Coe, John Foshee, Roscoe Williams, Honri Little, Dick Scott, Herman Lecroy, Ott Miller, Dr. M. L. Ware, and Hollis Jackson. It must be added that Rev. Don Esty, Clifford Jones, and Russell Sutley had other cars ready to go, but they weren't needed.

From all reports the boys thoroughly enjoyed the trip, the games and Al Schact—the Clown Prince of Baseball. By the way, Mr. Schact took time out to visit shortly with Jack Hayes, and renew old acquaintances. Schact was Jack's coach when Jack was with the Washington Senators. And, judging from the consuming of peanuts, pop corn and soda pop, it goes without saying that every one DID have a swell time.

The ball players are all set to open the season now, and will be looking for YOU at the City Park each Wednesday and Friday afternoon at 4:30 when they will be playing a double-header with all four teams involved in a mad scramble for the league championship. There are no admission charges for any of their games; just come on out and root for the team of your choice.

"I REMEMBER" BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Leola Heath, Detroit, Michigan: I remember doing janitor work and shoveling snow while, cooking about 60 grade pupils for was a month My family was de- pleted My sister had done the same thing before me for $25 a month and my father before her received 35 cents a day and board.

I remember with joy the horse-propelled merry - go - round where on once with your "sweetie" for 5 minutes for 5c a ride. The owner's main amusement" would wear out on the suckers and Santa Claus goes to the real children's delight. How wonderful it was to have Santa call one by name! I do remember with sorrow how those whiskers caught fire from the tree candles of his daughter's first job as "teacher"; the merry-go-round and our Santa were no more.

The churches served lunches and ice cream at the Fourth of July picnics for 5c for each article and many a swain ate and said, "Licking good. Sal buy yourself some." (Dutch treat we say now.)

Funerals were from the home and the neighbors dug and filled the graves, often making the caskets from trees cut on their home place. The church. The burial might be in the home-yard or it might be on the home-place, with a few put about the grave to keep the cattle off.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in full length gown of chantilly lace and nylon which featured a bouffant or chantilly lace over her four-tiered nylon skirt. A fitted bodice of chantilly lace over satin was made with a built up neckline of nylon net. Her sleeves were fitted with a calla lily point over the hand. She wore an elbow length veil of pearls. Her flower was a white orchid and tube rosese with satin streamers which she carried on a prayer book.

Mrs. J. B. Shaw, sister of the bride was matron of honor. Maid of honor was Miss Frances Wood Bridesmaids were Miss Dabara Thompson and Miss Gail Nix, cousins of the groom. Their floor length dress of nylon net over taffeta were in pastel colors. Their fitted bodices were cut in an off shoulder style with matching stoles. Each wore a white satin bandeau and carried a nosegay of white carnations with illusion of net.

Flower girls were Miss Patricia Aldridge and Miss Donna Tew. Their dresses were of baby blue net over taffeta with a tiny rubble over the shoulders. Their baskets were covered in blue taffeta and net. their head dress was bandeaux of white satin.

The bride's mother wore a dress of silk shantung with white accessories. The mother of the groom wore a black and white figured nylon dress with white accessories. Their flowers were shoulder corsages of white carnations.

Serving the groom as best man was Stanley Mims. Ushers were John Zimmerman, Leonard Farley, Jr., Jimmy Roberts, and James Mims.

Nuptial music was presented by Miss Mary Wills. Miss Shelby Stoddard sang the Lord's Prayer.

The ceremony was performed against an embankment of greenery centered with ten lighted candles, and flanked on either side by seven burning tapers. Standards of white gladiolas and Queen Ann's lace adorned the background.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents. The three tiered wedding cake, was centered on an Irish linen cut-work cloth. A rubble of nylon net which encircled the cake was interspersed with white gladiolas and flanked on either side by nine burning tapers. Assisting in the serving were Mrs. W. C. Davidson, Mrs. Andrew Hickman, Misses Peggy and Mary Sue Wilhams.

Miss Shelby Stoddard presided over the musical bride's book.

After a short wedding trip the couple will be at home in Bessemer. For traveling the bride wore a dress of light blue with navy accessories.

Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Miss Mary Wills, Mr. R. E. D. C. D. Storie, Mr and Mrs. and Mrs. M. Mims, Mr. and Mrs. Miss W. Watts, Mr. Stanley Mims, Mr. Sutts Gilder, Mr. and Mrs. Grover L. Williams and family and Mrs. Maxine Aldridge, all of Birmingham; Mr. and Mrs. L. M. MISS WILLIS HONORED WITH SHOWER

Mrs. Cliff Klie honored Miss Warrena Willis with a kitchen shower at her home Tuesday night, June 1. The occasion was to honor the forth-coming marriage of Miss Willis and Harold Lee Broadhead on June 5.

The living room was gay with a floral arrangement of red and white carnations.

Several games of bingo were played with the prizes being given to the honoree.

The dining room table, covered with a white linen cloth, was centered with a crystal punch bowl encircled with daisies and ivy and banked on either side by burning tapers held in crystal candelabram. Mrs. Kenneth Hayes served the punch.

The highlight of the party came when the honoree opened her many lovely gifts and displayed them for the guests to see.

BETTER SPEECH CLUB IN PROGRESS NOW

Reports come that Miss Roberta Curry is doing a marvelous job with the beter speech classes which have been in progress for two weeks now. A good number of local people have enlisted as pupils and meet with her three times each week for the general self-improvement course through the rhythmic speech. There are three different classes: one group of adults, one of teen-agers and one of business women.

Miss Curry comes well qualified for this class of work. In addition to being a highly successful teacher of Rhythmic Speech at Walt Whitman School in New York City, she has had rich experience in concert, radio and the theatre.

After finishing these classes in Clanton, Miss Curry leaves July 1 for Steamboat Springs, Colorado where she will teach drama and radio techniques at the Perry Mansfield School Theatre.

WSCS HELD ITS BUSINESS MEETING

The Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Clanton Methodist Church held a business meeting June 7 at 3:00 p.m. in the M. Y. F. Room with Mrs. Joe Mullins presiding.

The arrangement of the room added much to the impressiveness of the program. The group sat in a semi-circle and faced a worship center which included a cross, an open Bible and burning candles. A basket of white gladiolas were placed on either side of the room.

Mrs. Clifford Traywick, who was in charge of the program, used the theme, "Students in Today's World." Mrs. W. F. Haywood gave a devotional, "We Are His Witnesses," using verses from the following chapters: Matthew, 4, John 4, and John 12.

Music was presented by Ann Fisquette and Elinor Warr, who sang a duet and who were accompanied on the piano by Janice Young.

Three college students gave talks on the following subjects: "Hunting don's Christian Association," by Ann Figuette, "Student Work Camp" by Elinor Warr, and "Methodist Youth Conference," by Don White. Mrs. Traywick concluded the program with a few words of thanks for the inspiring talks.

New and old business was taken up.

The meeting was closed with Mizpah by the nineteen members present and the guests.

Next month, Mrs. Clara Mullins who is secretary of Christian, Social relations and local church projects, will be in charge of program.

HOSTESS MRS. ALRED ESTS TO MIAMI

Mrs. Allen Alred was hostess at a Coke-Cola party Tuesday morning, June 7, which was in honor of Mrs. Howard Losey, Jr., and Mrs. Howard Losey, Sr., who are visiting here from Miami, Fla.

The guests were greeted by Mrs. Alred, the two honorees and Mrs. Hance Alred.

The receiving rooms were very attractive with arrangements of daisies, gladiolas and day lillies. The dining room table covered with a white cut-work cloth was centered with an old fashioned bouquet of spring flowers.

Approximately 50 guests called during the party hour.

MISS MIGNON BATES, BRIDE-ELECT, IS COMPLIMENTED

Miss Mignon Bates bride-elect, was complimented with a miscellaneous tea-shower on Wednesday, afternoon, June 2, when Mrs. B. L. Venecable was hostess at her home. Co-hostess was Mrs. L. A. Speaks.

The guests were greeted as they arrived by Mrs. Speaks. In the receiving line were: Mrs. Venable, Miss Bates, Mrs. Marvin J. Bates, mother of the bride-to-be.

The soft glow of candlelight prevailed throughout the house with the wedding colors of green and white dominating in the decorations. Arrangements of daisies, queen's lace, and greenery were used thruout the receiving rooms.

In unusual attirement was the dining room table which was centered with a silver candelabra whose intertwining branches held nine burning tapers from which white satin streamers ending with gardenias fell in a cascade to encircle a mirror plaque. The table was covered with a white linen cut-work cloth.

The wedding colors were carried out further in the individual white cakes embossed in green. Mrs. Hugh Bates served punch from a cut glass bowl. She was assisted in serving by Mrs. Jack Bates.

The bride's table was adorned with candles and white gladiolas. Miss Faye Bates, sister of the bride-elect kept the bride's book.

Presiding over the gift room was another sister, Mrs. U. L. Baker. The gifts were displayed on long white covered tables along which was placed several budoir lamps which spread soft light.

Miss Bates and Samuel T. Beaton, Jr., of Opp, Alabama, are to be married June 26 in the First Methodist Church of Clanton.

my Pet Peeve by Mike Bennett

IT NEVER fails to tickle my funnybone just the wee bit when I hear a doting parent explain away the mischievious deportment of a teen-age wonder-child with the statement, "Oh, the poor child is merely developing a personality." He'll get over actions of this sort."

He sure will. The day that he dies. Then, his personality will have reached its peak. He'll never learn a new trick, hear a new word or phrase, develop a new craving, or find something new to love, dislike or maybe even hate.

One must, of course, go along with mother's theory that Junior is "developing a personality." Under the guise of developing the "personality," however he is not playing a good solid foundation for future development in what is commonly called among the old generation a "character."

I don't think that progress can any right to permit us to allow our children to commit venial sin in the name of personality. One child used some very good "personality development" to make the younger generation what it is today and one of us is willing to admit that he personally developed into anything but a fine, upstanding citizen.

Take me, for example. I can truthfully state that I am bubbling over with personality, intelligence, wit, etc., but I'd sure rub noses with the guy who said I was a "character."

The only evidence of my personality development are in the fact that I don't like razor strops or castor oil. I saw so much of the both of them in youth that the first decision I made for myself was to forget either existed and allow my personality to develop as best it could without them.

Sparkman Says Further Delay On School Aid Will Be Sabotage

Senator John Sparkman, D., Alabama, in testimony before the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee, said that to neglect further our school needs "is to sabotage our future as a great and free country."

The Alabama Senator, along with Senator Hill and eighteen other Senators, is a co-author of legislation that would provide federal aid for school buildings to individual States on the basis of need.

Under the formula of the bill, Alabama would share in federal funds for school construction purposes on a 3 to 2 basis. For example, from every $100,000,000 of federal funds, Alabama would receive approximately $3,591,380 by expending only $2,285,950.

"The important point," Sparkman told the Senate Committee, "is not whether or not you recommend this specific legislation. It is important, though that the Committee recommend some program that will begin immediate steps to provide the necessary buildings and teachers for more adeqqate instruction of our youth."

Senator Sparkman warned against efforts of Administration spokesmen to delay school construction aid until Commissions can be appointed to study building needs

He explained that extensive studies have been completed in recent months that show those needs clearly—studies by both the U. S. Office of Education and the National Education Association.

"These studies," the Senator said, "show the Nation needs at least 70,000 new public schools teachers. We need 350,000 more classrooms. It will require $10 billion to bring the Nation's public school facilities up to minimum standards. In Alabama alone, this job will require $300 million.

"Teachers' salaries should be brought in line with other professions that require similar periods of training."

Continuing, Senator Sparkman said: "Indeed, the President himself showed that he is aware of the extreme urgency for a school building program when in his State of the Union Message last January, he said: 'Youth—our greatest resource—is being seriously neglected in a vital respect. The Nation as a whole is not preparing teachers, or building schools fast enough to keep up with the increase in our population.'"

Sparkman told the Committee: "Let us no longer break faith with our children by postponing action which Congress must eventually take if the citizens of the future are to be prepared to save democracy as we know it.

"Let us move ahead with the job of saving our schools and thus of saving the Nation."

BE SURE TO USE YOUR LADDER SAFELY

Do you use a ladder for odd jobs about the house, barn or garage? Here are some safety suggestions from Dr. D. G. Gill, State Health Officer:

(1) Examine your ladder to be sure it is in good condition. If it is unstable or defective in any way, get another. (2) Be sure the ladder you use is not likely to slip on smooth floors. If there is danger of that, anchor it at the bottom in some way, such as by tying it to some fixed object. Or post someone there to hold it. (3) If the ladder has to be placed in front of a door either lock the door or station someone to keep it from being pushed open. (4) Examine your shoes before you climb the ladder. Be sure they are not muddy or slippery from any other cause. (5) Place the ladder against the wall at an angle of about 75 degrees. (6) Never go up or down a ladder with the face turned away from it. (7) Always hold onto the ladder when ascending or descending. (8) Don't carry tools in the hands when climbing or coming down from a ladder. That is especially true in the case of sharp tools.

ALABAMA POWER TO CONSTRUCT 5 DAMS

Montgomery, Ala.—The Alabama Power Company's proposal to construct five dams on the Coosa River in Alabama and Georgia has been given the green light by the U. S House of Representatives which has passed a bill, with only one dissenting vote, to authorize the construction.

The bill for the five dams, to cost an estimated $100,000,000, has gone to the U. S. Senate where Alabama solons have said they will press for immediate consideration.

Around OUR HOUSE

by Kathryn Tucker Windham

We have a new addition to our household: the five-year-old has adopted a scrawny, dingy dog of uncertain breed (mostly terrier) that strayed into the yard last week.

At first, the dog was completely listless, but now, nourished by the scraps the seven-year-old bought out of her allowance, he scampers about the yard with the children. The one-year-old is delighted with the new pet. Each time the pup comes up to her and wags his stump of a tail, she claps her hands and gurgles at the happy miracle.

Already, the five-year-old is making ambitious plans to teach his dog (inappropriately named Prince) lots of tricks so that they can perform in a circus together.

"That dog doesn't look too smart," I remarked to the proud owner. "How do you know he can learn the tricks?"

"He's smart all right," the five-year-old replied. "I can tell he's smart because he already knows how to scratch so good!"

The next door neighbor, that thrifty soul, discovered the other day after she had washed her ruffled curtains that the ruffles were too badly worn to be mended.

But she didn't discard the curtains, not she. Instead, she cut off the worn ruffles and stitched two rows of colored rick-rack braid around the edges of the curtains. She used matching braid on the tie-backs, and now her windows look more attractive than ever.

The neighbor around the corner, who has more imagination than money, has been experimenting with curtains, too. Using bright yellow Indianhead, she has made buttoned curtains, drapes really, for the big window in her den.

Down the inside edge of one drape she sewed big white buttons, six of them on the edge of the other drape she put six bound buttonholes. And the drapes actually button when they're drawn together!

It was this same neighbor who changed a drab wall of her kitchen into a conversation piece by papering it with dust jackets from cook books.

She collected the cook book covers all around the neighborhood, trimmed them to size and pasted them to the wall. After the paste was thoroughly dry, she gave her new wall paper a coat of clear varnish. Now she says she is trying to improve her cooking so she can turn out dishes like the illustrations on her kitchen wall.

The neighbor down the street, the one with the big family, has made bright curtains of unbleached domestic for her children's rooms, decorating them with "balloons."

She cut dinner plate size circles of solid material in several different colors, appliqued them to the curtains and then embroidered a long black string for each "balloon." When her children have guests, she sometimes uses real baloons on the tie-backs, but she admits it's not a practical plan.

For a June meal, our good cook neighbor recommends this congealed fruit salad:

Dissolve 1 package orange flavored gelatin in 1 cup hot orange juice. Add 1 cup ginger ale. When cold and about to jell, fold in ¾ cup chopped apple, ¾ cup drained crushed pineapple, and ¾ cup chopped nuts. Serve with cream cheese dressing.

JUNE 20TH IS FATHERS DAY

Montgomery, Ala.— Sunday, June 20, has been proclaimed Father's Day in Alabama by Gov. Gordon Persons.

And in urging the citizens of the state to observe the occasion with the proper ceremony, Persons said:

"I also urge that we remember Father every day of the year that we may enjoy the blessings that flow from good fatherhood, good citizenship and a strong family life."

It is fitting that Fathers be honored, the governor said, because of the part they play in the home, in business, in the community, state and nation and for their steadying influence.

"In these days of strife and world turmoil when the forces of evil are extending more and more their ever grasping hands, it is essential that we in the United States, the nation to which the rest of the free world—and much of that which is enslaved—looks to for enlightened guidance, maintain our sense of fair play and love for freedom," he added.

It is in the home that the principles of good citizenship are first taught and understood and it is the father who is looked to as the teacher of our young in the importance of good ethics, fair play, peace and brotherhood throughout the world," he continued.

"Father's Day is sponsored nationally by the National Father's Day Committee, and that group has chosen for this year's slogan "Good Citizenship Begins at Home."

TRAFFIC TOLL MORE THIS YEAR THAN LAST

Montgomery, Ala. —Alabama's traffic toll stood this week (June 2) at 320, twenty-six higher than during the corresponding period of 1953.

Alabama Public Safety Director L. B. Sullivan said reasonably stable April traffic records show a toll of 62 for the fourth month. Rural deaths totaled 47, five less than "normal," while urban deaths totaled 15, one higher than "normal."

Cumulative fatality figures for the first four months showed the state one under "normal," Sullivan said. "Normal" for the period was 244 killed, against an actual score of 243 recorded thus far.

Slim's "Gassing" Game

Nobody's running out of gas around town these days — not since Slim Thomas started his "Guess how much it takes and your tank full free" contest.

"Used to be a guy would come in and ask for a dollar's worth," Slim says. "But that doesn't cut his gas bill any. He just has to fill up again sooner—and maybe not here.

"Now everybody takes a guess," explains Slim, "and fills up. You'd be surprised how many people guess right, but it pays off anyway in new business."

From where I sit, guessing is all right — sometimes. But most businessmen can't afford to guess — they've got to be as right as they can be. That's why our beer retailers go all out to co-operate voluntarily in the Self-Regulation Program the Brewing Industry sponsors by keeping their places clean and orderly. They know it's right because of the full measure of good will they get from you and me.

MINUTES OF THE BOARD OF REVENUE AND CONTROL OF CHILTON COUNTY, ALABAMA OF MAY 24, 1954.

Board Meeting
May 24, 1954

The Board of Revenue and Control of Chilton County, Alabama met in regular session at the county courthouse at Clanton, Alabama, on May 24, 1954, at 9:00 o'clock, a.m. The following were present: M. D. Tingle, Judge of Probate and Chairman of said Board, and the following Associate Members of said Board: V. O. Lenoir, A. H. Smith, Sherman Motley, and J. M. Dunlap. Judge Tingle presided as Chairman of the meeting and, a quorum being present, declared the meeting open for the transaction of business.

WHEREUPON, the Clerk of the Board read the minutes of the meeting of the Board held on May 10, 1954, whereupon the Chairman of the Board asked for corrections or additions to said minutes; there being no corrections or additions to said minutes and the same being correct, Mr. Smith made a motion that said minutes stand adopted as read, whereupon Mr. Dunlap seconded said motion, which motion was unanimously carried, and all the members of said Board affixed their signatures to said minutes in the presence of the Board and the Clerk.

Mr. Motley offered the following resolution for adoption; which was duly seconded by Mr. Lenoir:

BE IT RESOLVED AND ORDERED: That the Board of Revenue and Control does hereby authorize M. D. Tingle, Chairman of said Board, to enter into the following supplemental agreement in the name of and on behalf of said Board, by and between said Board and the State Highway Department:

SUPPLEMENTAL AGREEMENT COVERING PROJECT SACP 326-C

County: Chilton
Description: Sardis Church to Ala. No 22

WHEREAS, by a certain project contract signed on July 27, 1953 by the Board of Revenue & Control of Chilton County and on July 27, 1953 by the State Highway Department of Alabama, the said parties entered into an agreement for the survey preparation of plans, and construction for that certain county road described and designated as Alabama Project SACP 326-C; and

WHEREAS, the State Highway Department of Alabama has requested the County to approve a revision of the plans, specifications, and estimates for the said project to provide for the increased cost due to construction changes in accordance with section 104.03 of the standard specifications of the State Highway Department of Alabama; now

THEREFORE, it is mutually agreed by and between the State Highway Department of Alabama and Chilton County that the plans, specifications and estimates be revised in the following manner to provide for the increased cost of the said project.

The Project Contract is hereby amended to care for the overrun of the Project Contract amounting to $6,685.20 in accordance with the final audit.

It is also agreed that the State Highway Department of Alabama and Chilton County pay its pro-rata share of the cost of the surveys, plans, and construction of the said project as revised and in accordance with the Rules and Regulations of the "Farm to Market Road Act of 1943" and that the amount of the Project Contract between the State Highway Department of Alabama and Chilton County be amended from $70,400.00 to read $71,447.97.

Except as herein specifically modified the said project contract shall remain in full force and effect.

The above stated resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote of all the members present and the Chairman declared said resolution duly adopted.

Mr. Motley offered the following resolution for adoption; which was duly seconded by Mr. Lenoir:

BE IT RESOLVED AND ORDERED: That the Board of Revenue and Control does hereby authorize M. D. Tingle, Chairman of said Board, to enter into the following supplemental agreement in the name of and on behalf of said Board, by and between said Board and the State Highway Department:

SUPPLEMENTAL AGREEMENT COVERING PROJECT SACP 312B-A

County: Chilton
Description: Maplesville to Bibb County Line

WHEREAS, by a certain project contract signed on August 24, 1953 by the Board of Revenue & Control of Chilton County and on August 24, 1953 by the State Highway Department of Alabama, the said parties entered into an agreement for survey, preparation of plans, construction for that certain county road described therein and designated as Alabama Project SACP 312B-A; and

WHEREAS, the State Highway Department of Alabama has requested the County to approve a revision of the plans, specifications, and estimates for the said project to provide for the increased cost due to construction changes in accordance with section 104.03 of the standard specifications of the State Highway Department of Alabama; now

THEREFORE, it is mutually agreed between the State Highway Department of Alabama and Chilton County pay its pro-rata share of the cost of the surveys, plans, and construction of the said project as revised in accordance with the Rules and Regulations of the "Farm to Market Road Act of 1943" and that the amount of the Project Contract between the State Highway Department of Alabama and Chilton County be amended from $96,800.00 to read $103,485.20.

Except as herein specifically modified the said project contract shall remain in full force and effect.

The above stated resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote of all the members present and the Chairman declared said resolution duly adopted.

Mr. Lenoir offered the following preamble and resolution for adoption; which were duly seconded by Mr. Motley:

THAT WHEREAS there is a vacancy in the membership of the Board of Directors of the Chilton County Hospital Board of Chilton County, Alabama for the term expiring February 1, 1959, which said vacancy was caused by the death of O. H. Arledge, and

WHEREAS, Lonnie L. Cobb is a resident of Chilton County, Alabama and is not an officer of the County or a municipal corporation and is fully competent and qualified to serve as a member of the Board of Directors of the Chilton County Hospital Board.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED AND ORDERED, That Mr. Lonnie L. Cobb be and he is hereby elected a member of the Board of Directors of the Chilton County Hospital Board for the term expiring February 1, 1959.

The above stated preamble and resolution were adopted by a unanimous vote of all the members present and the Chairman declared said resolution duly adopted.

Mr. Dunlap offered the following resolution for adoption; which was duly seconded by Mr. Smith:

BE IT RESOLVED AND ORDERED That the Board of Revenue and Control enter into the following maintenance agreement with the State Highway Department:

MAINTENANCE OF PROJECT SACP-3118-B

Article VII—The County hereby assumes the obligation of perpetual maintenance of the project beginning on the date same is completed and accepted by the State Highway Department. Such maintenance shall preserve the riding surface and typical section of the roadway by means of systematic routine and periodic repair, the nurture and replacement when necessary of grass, and, ditch checks, or other devices for prevention of erosion, the protection of inflammable structures from fire, and maintaining the inlet and outlet ditches to drainage structures in such condition that the said structures may function properly at all times. The County agrees that failure on its part to maintain the project in condition satisfactory to the State Highway Department shall be cause for said State Highway Department to defer beginning a new project until the maintenance of this project has been brought to satisfactory condition.

In witness whereof the parties have hereunto affixed their signatures, the County on the day and year above written and the Director on the ___ day of _____, 19___. The above stated resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote of all the members present and the Chairman declared said resolution duly adopted.

Mr. Smith offered the following preamble and resolution for adoption; which were duly seconded by Mr. Dunlap:

WHEREAS, for the purpose of promoting the agricultural resources of Chilton County, Alabama, the Chilton County Peach Festival will be held in Chilton County, Alabama on June 30, 1954.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED: That there is hereby appropriated and set aside the sum of $100.00 in the General Fund of Chilton County, Alabama for an advertisement in the 1954 Chilton County Peach Festival Program.

The above stated resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote of all the members present and the Chairman declared said resolution duly adopted.

Mr. Motley offered the following preamble and resolution for adoption; which were duly seconded by Mr. Smith:

WHEREAS, on May 13, 1954 J. D. Bullington, County Engineer, filed requisition number 51 with Harold H. Radar Car To Tour State For 5 Days in First Tryouts

Montgomery, Ala.—A radar research car operated by the New York University Center for Safety Education will tour Alabama for five days in connection with the Alabama Safety Board and Highway Patrol's vacation driving program, it was announced in Montgomery.

Dr. Herbert J. Stack, director of the center, said the car, on a tour of most of the 24 states, will be in Alabama on June 10 and 11, and June 15-17. It will come from Louisiana, and go to Florida, he said.

A radar expert traveling in the vehicle will be joined for the Alabama tour by one or more Alabama Highway Patrolmen schooled recently in the principles and uses of radar for traffic law enforcement.

Public Service Director L. B. Sullivan announced.

Sullivan said the visiting radar unit will supplement Alabama's own radar speed-meters in their previously-announced educational tour of the state during June.

Sullivan announced the following demonstration schedule for the traveling radar unit:

June 10—Mobile, 8:30-10:30 a.m.; Brewbard, 11-11:30 a.m.; Selma, 3:30-5 p.m.

June 11—Montgomery, 8:30-10:30 a.m.; Homewood, 1-1:30 p.m., Birmingham 2-4 p.m., Bessemer, 4:30-5 p.m. June 12 Tuscaloosa, 8:30-10 a.m. Decatur, 2-3 p.m. Huntsville 4-5 p.m. June 14—Gadsden, 8:30-9 a.m. Anniston, 11-12 noon, Talladega, 1-2 p.m., Sylacauga, 2:30-3 p.m.; Alexander City, 4-5 p.m. June 17—Auburn, 8:30-9 a.m. Opelika, 9:30-10:30 a.m., Phenix City, noon, Eufaula, 1:30-2 p.m., Dothan, 3:30-5 p.m.

"There are short stops, and widely scattered," Sullivan acknowledged, but we're trying to have the demonstrations cover as much ground as possible in the time allocated to us by the nationally prominent service."

Director Alabama Highway Patrol Sullivan will contact local officials in towns to be reached by the unit, to arrange demonstrations of maximum effort.

The real beginning of Alabama's public school system was in 1854.

In 1854, under the leadership of Judge A. B. Meek of Mobile, the legislature of Alabama passed a bill setting aside certain state funds for education and authorizing counties to levy school taxes.

Under The Study Lamp
OF ALL SCHOOLS—THE PRE-EMINENT

"Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me." Matthew 11:29.

These words were spoken by the Teacher of teachers; the most competent, most generous, most gracious, most purposeful teacher who ever lived.

Among the Jews, a pupil who submitted himself to the instruction of a certain teacher was said to take his yoke. "Take my yoke upon you," is therefore only a figurative way of saying, Because you are my pupils (disciples) give dutiful attention to my instruction, and learn of me. That means of course, that becoming a disciple of Jesus is far more than merely imitating His example, although some people seem to think otherwise.

Our Lord's helpers in that day were people who had been suffering type of compulsory education that under a galling yoke—that of the Scribes. They were victims of a was nothing more than mental and moral enslavement. Under haughty and proud appointees of the Jewish government, the only instruction they received was incorporated in a system of petty regulations, both lifeless and purposeless; a system that offered no freedom for the mind nor hope for the soul. The words they were now hearing were from the lips of One who was meek and lowly of heart. Therefore they were ready to hear this invitation: "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you and learn of me."

All religions profess to give rest for the spirit; but Christianity alone can fulfill the promise. It alone affords a well-founded and lasting repose, as to our guilt, our inability to gain God's favor, and our sinfulness of nature. As over against the traditional Jewish view it offers a hope that is not dependent on a multitude of minute outward observances, but on a spiritual morality that grows increasingly easy to the spiritually minded. We may observe that our Lord's invitation is supported, not only by the assuring promise, "ye shall find rest for your souls," but by two encouragements; one, the personal character of the Teacher, "meek and humble in heart"; the other the fact that His requirements are not severe and oppressive: "my yoke is easy, and my burden is light."

This glorious offer is to all who are willing to enter the school of Christ, regardless of race or nation. That was a new note to the oppressed Hebrew people of that day; a note that has never been revised or delimited, and that holds good to this day. He yet stands as the Great Teacher, who alone can give true and saving knowledge of God, and whose teachings, while hid from the worldly wise, are revealed unto babes. Though rejected by many, and even slandered and reviled, the invitation still holds good, in the fulness of His wisdom and the gentleness of His love. To this good day He still waits, and invites all the toiling and burdened to come to Him, to wear the easy yoke of His instruction in order that they may find rest for their souls. It is therefore no wonder that it is still called "the glorious Gospel of the Son of God."

SCANNING THE NEWS

THE then nine-month old Small Business Administration, under fire from some Senators as too conservative in its loan policy, at the end of April had made disbursements on 37 small business loans.

SBA, established by Congress last July in terminating the Small Defense Plants Administration and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, has stepped up the pace of its loan approvals. A total of 261 business loans had been approved by May, the figure not including disaster loans, which SBA also handles.

The total of 261 loans approved was $15,777,000, and Wendell Barnes, SBA Administrator told the Senate Select Committee on Small Business that loan applications are now being received at the rate of 400 a month.

Chairman Edward J. Thye, (R Minn.) told Barnes the SBA should adopt a more "liberal" lending attitude. Other Senators also questioned SBA policies, but Sen. Barry Goldwater (R Ariz.) indicated that he believed SBA was carrying out the intent of the act by which Congress created it.

The act empowered the agency to:

Make loans, from a revolving fund authorized to run as high as $150 million, to small businesses unable to obtain credit from private sources, within an upper limit of $150,000 for any loans. Loans may be either direct, with the SBA supplying all the funds, or participation loans in which private sources and SBA both share. SBA's part being limited to 90 per cent.

Help small concerns get government contracts, and take up to $100 million in prime contracts from defense procurement agencies for parceling out among small suppliers.

Make disaster loans up to a total of $25 million.

Congress' SBA appropriation for fiscal 1954 was $55 million.

Chairman Thye said that under the first administrator, William D. Mitchell, SBA failed to "get airborne." When Mitchell resigned on Oct. 20, no loans had been approved. In part, observers say, the slow start may have been due to administrative delays coincident with the establishment of a new agency, but two other factors may have been:

Caution on the part of the new Administration lest the so-called RFC scandals be repeated, and Reservations, among some top Eisenhower Administration leaders and supporters, as to the suitability of the lending business as a government function.

Barnes, former general counsel of SBA, became head of the agency in November. On Nov. 13 the first two loans were approved, and on Nov. 16 a new loan policy was announced, that "any small business enterprise with a good management record and able to give reasonable assurance of repayment is eligible to apply to SBA for a business loan."

Things we -SEE- and Hear

by "Tuck"

Last week we mentioned something about wondering how the park was coming along and we were informed of such, so now we can pass it along in fact form.

From reports desirved from Mr. Bulger who is supervisor of the park this year there have been decided improvements of which we will attempt to mention a few. Aside from the swimming pool and ball park which we have been using for the past few years they have now added to the agender; tennis, volley ball, horsheshoes and the like. Mr. Bulger says he is optimistic about future improvements and is planning for many new facilities for the use of the public.

Working along with Mr. Bulger this year is Mrs. Lally Bates the former Miss Janie Lou Wade. She is giving swimming instructions and also helping with the tennis playing and instructing. She's doing a fine job and is to be commended for ability as well as her desire to help others.

Mr. Bulger is grateful for the funds which he has received for the promotion of the park, but with expeases as they are it doesn't go far these days. He requests aid and suggestions from all folks who are interested in bettering their children and their community. If you have any idea you believe might be of help let someone know so we can make our park useful and entertaining.

Monday night is Family Night at the park and all families who would like to see for themselves the improvements made in the past few months are invited and urged to come on down and make themselves at home. If you care to go swimming the price for that night will be 50c per family. Whether it's one, two, or a half dozen.

We've got our park and we have someone to manage it, let's support it by patronizing it. We'll get no more out of it than we put into it ourselves.

It's Peach Festival time and the peachiest peach crop that ever was peached is expected in Chilton county this year. We got five days to celebrate our favorite crop so let's do it up right. Everybody aughta have a peach of a time. With two varieties on hand, one to look at and one to eat, everybody should be satisfied and have a good time.

We've been considering it for some time now and we feel that it would prove interesting for all concerned if more folks would let me hear from them. I don't care who you are. I'd like to believe that all my readers felt free to wirte to me. Suggestions or contributions, they'll all be considered and appreciated. I think it would be interesting to your neighbors and friends if it were about you or some of them. You can reach me just by addressing to: "Things We See And Hear" in care of the Chilton County News.

We haven't had an opportunity to congratulate and wish Harold Jones the best of luck in his new position. Well, it was new a few weeks ago. Harold has been in service and took a job with his dad at Jones Furniture Co. when he returned. If he's half the salesman his old man is he'll do alright.

Well, now we're wondering what happened to Chilton's new industry it was going to get. As much talk as is on the matter we should be seeing some developments. We know it's a long and tedious task. We just hope the interest of the County and it's people comes before personal gain. You know that's what's happening to most of our young people. They can't find jobs so they're moving to greener pastures. What we want is green pastures right here at home.

Don't measure folks by what they used to be, but rather what they're trying to be now.

Two Injured In Truck Accident Tuesday

Dovered Lockhart, Jr., was seriously injured and his companion Miss Ollie Jean Misseldine was hospitalized Tuesday night about 7:20 when their pick-up truck was in collision with a truck driven by Charles Leonard McCraw. All three are residents of Clanton Route 3. Miss Misseldine and Lockhart from the New Cedron Community and McCraw from the Sardis community.

State Highway Patrolman Hugh Champion, who investigated the wreck, stated that McCraw it appeared, pulled out to pass another car and when he saw that he could not make it because of an on coming car probably jammed his brakes and lost control going into a ditch on the left side of the road. The accident occurred just this side of Tippett's Store on the Maplesville Highway.

Lockhart has not regained consciousness and Miss Misseldine had to have 49 stitches in her face and scalp, it is reported. McCraw was given first aid and released. No charges have been brought in the case

Negro Killed In Fight Sunday

Sunday afternoon about 2:30 o'clock Anderson Bethel, about 50 years old, killed Phillip Johnson who was about 23 years old, in a fight near the Chilton County Training School.

Bethel is being held for murder in the county jail.

According to Police Chief Charles Tucker, Bethel called the police immediately after he had killed Johnson. He had cut him in the stomach with a large scout knife. Johnson died before reaching the hospital. Exact cause of the fight was not determine dby the officers.

Korean GI Bill Deadline Nears

According to Bob Fullen, Chilton County Veterans Service Officer, the number of Korean veterans who have enrolled for education and training under Public Law 550 continues to be disappointing. For many of these veterans, a deadline is right around the corner and will be a positive bar to this opportunity.

All Korean veterans who were discharged on or before August 20, 1952 must be in training on or before August 20, 1954 or two years after discharge—whichever is later. It is vital to the economic welfare of this County and Alabama for our young veterans to capitalize to the fullest on the educational privileges which are offered under this law.

Fullen stated that a veteran may enter training for a period of as little as one day and interrupt so long as he goes back in training or to school within one year and retain his entitlement.

Many WW II veterans who intend to enter trade schools should keep in mind that most of the courses offered by these schools are two year courses. All schooling or training for these veterans must, under the present regulations and laws, be completed by July 26, 1955. This means that they must be in school or training not later than July 27, 1954.

To many veterans this schooling or training means the chance of a life-time so do not let it get away from you.

ALABAMA HIGHLIGHTS

Alabama's population in 1850 was 426,514 whites, 334,844 slaves and 2,265 free Negroes.

There had been private schools in Alabama since territorial days John Price, of Connecticut, opened the first of these in 1799. It was in a log cabin at the boat yard on Tensaw Lake.

The Legislature, while Alabama was still a part of the Mississippi Territory, chartered Washington Academy at St. Stephens in 1801 and Green Academy at Huntsville in 1812. Later, many others were chartered by the Alabama Legislature.

Adequate money was never available to the early academies chartered in Alabama.

Congress, when it passed enabling legislation for Alabama to draw up a constitution and become a state, provided that the sixteenth section from every township of public lands would be set aside for schools

The "sixteenth" section lands set up for school use in Alabama in those early days could be sold or leased to raise money.

Much of the "sixteenth" section land money was lost in the failure of the State Bank where it had been deposited after the bank's founding. The legislature in 1848 ordered that in the future money from the land would be deposited with the State Treasurer, the money to be divided among the townships of the state, which get very little.

THORSBY RESIDENT RECEIVES APPOINTMENT AT U. OF A.

UNIVERSITY, Ala.—Dean Robert E. Tidwell of the Extension Division of the University of Alabama announced this week end the appointment of Marvin Dawson, Jr., as assistant to Director Jim Cummings of Audio-Visual Service.

Dawson received a masters degree in audio-visual production from Indiana University, June 9. He was awarded the BS in Chemistry by the University of Alabama in 1951.

Already credited with four years' experience in the University's Audio-Visual Services as a student assistant from 1947-1951, Dawson will now supervise the distribution, utilization and production of audio-visual materials.

Upon graduation from the Capstone in 1951, he was commissioned a second lieutenant in the U. S. Army. He spent 10 months in the Korean War with the Infantry.

Dawson is a graduate of Thorsby Institute, Thorsby, Ala.

T. W. Bryan, Long Time Resident, Dies

T. W. Bryan, commonly known here as "Judge" Bryan died last Saturday at Central Alabama Hospital.

Bryan was a familiar figure to all Chilton countians having been a Justice of the Peace for many years and active in Old Age Pension work here and in the state.

On July 25 the "Judge" would have been 84 years old.

Funeral announcements will be made by Spigener Funeral Home who will be in charge.

Open House At The Coper Community House Wednesday

Last Wednesday afternoon the Home Demonstration women held Open House at the new community house at Cooper.

The rooms were very attractive with huge baskets of gladioli donated by the Montgomery Curb Market and Mrs. Oscar Kelly. Approximately 100 guests called during the day. They were from Clanton, Stanton, Prattville and Montgomery. Several members of the County's official family ate lunch at the new community house.

Acting as hostesses were: Mesdames Elbert Glenn, Calvin Grant, Archie Taylor, Oscar Kelly, John Cagle, Alvin Driver, Archie McTaylor, Charlie Moore and Lee J. Grant.

This new community center will mean much to the residents of Cooper and surrounding community and those visiting during Open House all complimented the ladies on their public spirit and accomplishment.

BRAVES AND CARDINALS WIN IN FIRST LITTLE LEAGUE DOUBLE-HEADER

In a five-inning game between the Methodist Braves and the Lions Wednesday evening the Braves won by a score of 8 to 2 with Jimmy Tiffin pitching.

In the second game of the Wednesday evening double-header the Jaycee Cardinals beat the Kiwanis White Sox by a score of 3 to 2 with Wayne Little pitching.

Beginning next week the Little Leaguers will play a double-header each Tuesday and Friday, instead of on Wednesday and Fridays as was first planned.

Admission's free, so be sure to be on hand for the next big game Friday, June 18 at the City Park.

Chilton Democratic Party Presents A United Front

The Chilton County Democratic Executive Committee met at a called meeting on Monday, June 14, in regard to the appointment of a candidate for the office of Sheriff of Chilton County.

This meeting was called to order by J. B. Atkinson, Chairman, with 33 of the 41 members present. Lawrence F. Gerald, Jr., candidate for County Solicitor read the recommendations of all the Democratic Candidates. This recommendation was, "That due to the act that we were living in a democracy, where the belief is that the majority rule, and due to the fact that R. Odell Payton received the majority of the votes on June 1, it was the belief and recommendation of the democratic candidates that R. Odell Payton should be appointed as the Democratic candidate for Sheriff."

After a full discussion of the issues by the public, a motion was made and carried that the Executive Committee go into closed session for voting. After a full discussion by the Executive Committee of the law applicable to this appointment a motion was made that R. Odell Payton be appointed as Democratic nominee for Sheriff. This motion was carried without a single dissenting vote.

A motion was made and carried that the Office of Secretary not be filled until January 1, 1955, at which time new committee members would take office. A motion was also made and carried unanimously commending Chairman J. B. Atkinson for the honest and impartian manner in which the difficult problem of selecting a sheriff was handled

It was generally agreed by all the executive members and the candidates and public present, that a fair decision had been reached and a decision in conformity with the mandates as indicated by the people on June 1. It was also generally felt that the full cooperation as indicated by this appointment and the democratic spirit that was displayed at this meeting, that a stronger and more united Democratic Party was assured for Chilton County.

The merchants retail sales promotion in conjunction with the 1954 Peach Festival is progressing day by day with more of the local merchants coming in to take part. Many have not yet been contacted but will be contacted as rapidly as time will permit. Anyone wishing to participate may do so by contacting the Chamber of Commerce or Ray Enfinger at Chicago Sales Company, who is acting as treasurer

The program will be as follows: Each merchant will be furnished tickets for registration for prizes for his customers to register for the drawings. These tickets will be for registration only and no sales will be required to participate. Furnished each merchant will be large placards showing his store is participating. He is urged to run special sales on his merchandise to be sold at the time the registrations are going on. In addition to the registration tickets and placards furnished 2 full pages of advertising, one to be run on the Thursday preceding the Peach Festival. All this cost is paid for with the $10.00 participation cost paid by each merchant.

The prizes will be governed by the number of merchants participating. One grand prize to be given the day of the Festival will be a $100.00 U. S. Savings Bond. Many smaller prizes will be given at this and other events taking place during the Peach Festival. Many additional prizes are being given by the merchants of which a list will later be published

The following merchants so far are participating with possibly many more to follow: Bell Hardware Co.; Big Four Hardware Co.; Rockets Hardware, Teel Brothers Hardware Lawrence Paint Co.; Radio & TV Service Co.; Jitney Jungle; Hayes Chev. AS THE Army-Senator McCarthy dispute droned on and on, one question was pondered more and more by observers of the political scene: How has the affair affected the popularity of Joe McCarthy?

It is impossible to say for certain, but most veteran observers seem to feel that many McCarthy supporters dropped off the line during the lengthy hearings. Those who so believe say the hearings alone didn't cause Joe a loss in following, the consensus being that the Senator hurt himself most by openly challenging and defying the President.

While the hearings developed inevitably into a conflict between the Administration and the Senator, Eisenhower very carefully avoided a public showdown with the Wisconsin Senator. The President's most decisive action in the matter, that of placing a ban on testimony about a high-level Executive meeting, drew strong fire from McCarthy, who said the President was ill-advised. Some considered this a backhanded slap at the Administration in general and at the same time not a compliment to the President.

A great number of the American people decided two things about the hearings. The first was that the hearings will do the Republican Party no good. The second, despite the charges and countercharges, Senator McCarthy was very much on trial. Many citizens opened up a conversation (or an argument) with the words: "Are you for, or against McCarthy?"

Is the American Indian in danger of being scalped or about to be emancipated?

A raft of bills are now pending before Congress to end federal administration of Indian Affairs in 14 states. Their backers say the time has come to give the Indians the same rights and responsibilities as other U.S. citizens.

The National Congress of American Indians, probably the largest of the Indian lobby groups, and a number of law firms representing Indian tribes are on the warpath against most of the bills.

Congress last year adopted a resolution declaring it was the policy of Congress "as rapidly as possible to make the Indian . . . subject to the same laws" as other citizens and "end their status as wards of the United States. . . ."

In compliance with this resolution, the Interior Department drafted a series of bills providing for withdrawal of federal supervision in eight tribal jurisdictions. Later other bills were introduced that would affect tribes in California, Florida, Kansas, Montana, Nebraska, North and South Dakota, New York, Oregon, Nevada, Texas, Utah, Washington and Wisconsin.

The end of federal trusteeship would halt such services to Indians as roads, health and education. Spokesmen for the tribes say taxation of their trust property—now tax free in most states—would cause them to lose their land and, if not protected, lesser-educated Indians might be cheated out of such resources of tribal lands, as oil, uranium, rich timber and grazing areas.

INEXPENSIVE RECREATION

On these hot summer days quite a few of the people of Chilton County "head for the river," so to speak, looking for a cool and lazy place to spend a quiet evening and maybe enjoy a picnic.

It seems that the governing body of Chilton County could easily provide the people with a good picnic and recreation area on the river at a relatively small cost.

With very little effort a spot could be cleared out at a convenient place on the bank and with the addition of some concrete benches and tables, trash cans and barbecue pits we would have a picnickers paradise.

It could be taken a step further and a nice beach scraped and leveled with plenty of shallow water for the kids to wade in, since picnicers are generally folks with children.

All of this, as we said before, would be relatively inexpensive, and would benefit the entire county without the need of constant supervision and maintenance.

COLLEGE STUDENTS HOME

We're seeing a lot of our college students around and about since school is out for the summer holidays.

We're always glad to see them back and they all have a look of bright optimism on their faces.

We welcome them back home and hope when their days of schooling are through they will come back to Chilton county to help make it a better place in which to live.

CLANTON'S POLICE CHIEF

Clanton's Chief of Police should be highly commended for the good work he is doing as head of our city law enforcement body.

Chief Charles Tucker has proven that he can be a good policeman and guardian of our law without being overbearing or letting the authority go to his head.

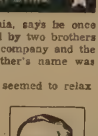
It means much to a public servant, no matter which office he holds, to be told once in a while that he is doing a good job. The citizens of Clanton should remember this and commend our public servants when they show outstanding merit in their work.

DALE CARNEGIE

AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING"

CHARLES WILLIAM JACKSON, Anaheim, California, says he once worked for a Road Improvement company owned by two brothers in a small central Illinois town. It was a prospering company and the two brothers were quite wealthy. The youngest brother's name was Hal and the older was George.

Hal was a nervous type. Always on the go, never seemed to relax. Everything was business with Hal, and it all had to be just so or he would be running around like a chicken with his head cut off.



CARNEGIE

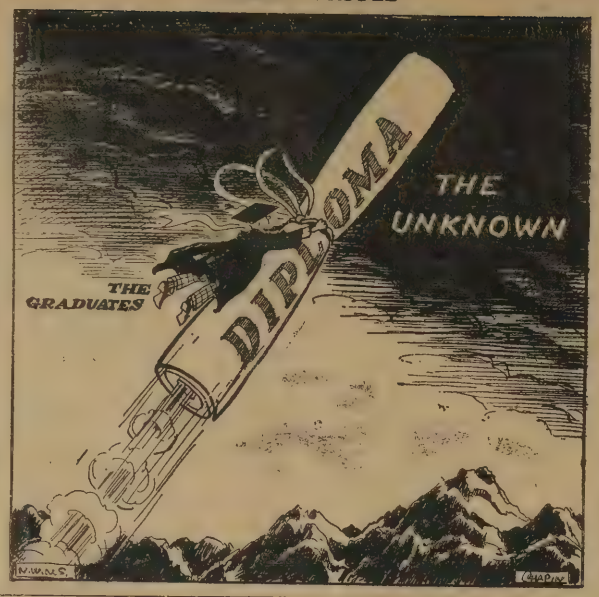
George, the older one, was different. He never got excited, was never in a hurry. He would walk around in an old pair of overalls with a chew of tobacco in his mouth, not seeming to care whether or not the sun set.

About twice a year Hal would get in such a frenzy he would take a two week trip to the Mayo Brothers Clinic in Minnesota for a rest. It puzzled Charles Jackson why Hal would have to go for a rest while George always seemed to be the same year after year.

One day, as Hal was preparing to leave for the Clinic, Charles said to George, "George why is it that Hal takes these trips to the Clinic all the time? I never see you going up there." Said George, "I'll tell you. Hal has always been a worrier. Even at night he takes his troubles right to bed with him and fights with them all night long. But I try a different way. At night before I go to bed I walk through the kitchen and leave my troubles right on the kitchen table, then in the morning when I get up I come out and pick them up again with a fresh and clear mind."

And that is why a man five years older than his brother looks and acts five years younger.

GUIDED MISSLE



Report from Washington

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

Vocational Education Funds Increased

After three days of debate the House passed and sent to the Senate last week a bill appropriating for fiscal 1955 just under $2 billion for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and the Department of Labor. Before passage of this legislation, the House adopted several important amendments.

The first of these amendments provided $23.7 million for vocational training and education for the coming fiscal year. The adoption of this amendment constituted an increase of $5.3 million over the amount recommended by the Appropriations Committee.

Funds providing vocational rehabilitation grants to the states were increased by amendment from $21 million to $23 million. At the same time, an amendment was adopted repealing certain restrictive language which stipulated that grants to the states for fiscal 1955 could not exceed the sum of one dollar for every seventy-five cents provided by the states.

A third important amendment added $10 million to the Public Health Service Funds for grants for hospital construction. This amendment increases to $75 million funds for Hill-Burton hospital construction for fiscal 1955.

Trade Agreements Act Extended

At the close of last week's legislative session, the House approved a one year extension of the Trade Agreements Act which permits the President to enter into trade agreements with foreign nations. House approval of the measure came only one day before the Act was scheduled to expire.

The Ways and Means Committee announced that thorough public hearings will be held early next year on the nation's entire foreign trade program. Such hearings were planned for this legislative session, but the Ways and Means Committee found it necessary to devote most of its time to the voluminous tax revision bill and to the social security extension bill.

Several months ago I discussed in this column the passage of legislation that authorized the establishment of an Air Force Academy. At that time, I promised to give further details concerning the selection of cadets for the Academy when such information was made available by the Air Force. This information has now been released, and members of Congress have been requested to submit their nominations as soon as possible. The deadline for nominations for the first class is February 18, 1955.

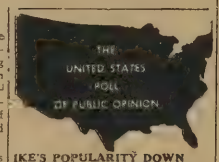
The number of appointments to each state is proportionate to the state's representation in Congress. Alabama has been allotted five places for the first class of 300 cadets who will be enrolled in July, 1955. Each Alabama Congressman will be allowed to nominate not more than 10 persons to compete for these vacancies. Under this arrangement, maximum of 110 young men may be competing for the state's five appointents to the Academy. Based on competitive examinations, the five appointments will be made from among qualified candidates in order to merit.

This method of appointing cadets will be used as long as the academy is in temporary quarters since the classes must necessarily be small. Later, when the permanent academy is completed, the proceeds ure for nominating persons for the new academy will be similar to the system now used in the nomination of West Point cadets.

In order to qualify for admission to the Air Force Academy, a candidate must be: (1) a citizen of the United States; (2) of good moral character; (3) at least 17 years of age, but must not have reached the age of 22 as of July 1, 1955; (4) unmarried; (5) medically qualified for flight training; and (6) a resident of the state, territory, or Congressional district from which appointed.

After a member of Congress has selected a nominee, the Air Force will determine whether or not he is qualified to take the final entrance examinations. All qualified candidates who meet the above requirements will compete for appointments as Air Force cadets by taking scholastic aptitude tests, achievement tests in English and mathematics, and a pilot aptitude test. Appointments will then be made from the qualified list in order of merit.

I have available in my office applications for those who are interested in taking the entrance examinations for the Air Force Academy. I am anxious for the Sixth District to be represented in the new academy's first class, and I will be very pleased to hear from any young men in the District who would like to obtain additional information.



IKE'S POPULARITY DOWN 6 POINTS SINCE MARCH

Princeton, New Jersey.— President Eisenhower is still popular with voters across the nation, but somewhat less so than he was 14 weeks ago.

At the present time, just about two out of every three voters interviewed in the nationwide survey completed last week say they approve of the way the nation's chief executive is handling his duties.

27 in each 100 say they disapprove.

In other words, those who approve of the way Eisenhower is doing his job outnumber by a margin of better than two to one those who disapprove.

When United States Poll staff reporters asked a representative cross section of the nation's voters:

"Do you approve or disapprove of the way Eisensower is handling his job as President?"

These were the nationwide results:

Eisenhower Popularity
Approve	66%
Disapprove	27%
No opinion	7%

The March survey showed 72% approval, 22% disapproval and 6% no opinion.

Today's findings thus represent 6% decrease in approval and a 5% increase in disapproval.

Highlight of today's survey findings is the close division of opinion among rank and file Democratic voters across the nation.

At the present time, fewer than one out of every two Democrats in the nation express approval.

And more than two out of every five Democratic Party members express disapproval.

Democratic Voters Only, Nationwide:

Approve	48%
Disapprove	42
No opinion	10

In the March survey, Democrats voted as follows :Approve, 55 per cent; disapprove, 37 per cent; no opinion, 8 per cent.

Among the nation's Independent voters, 28 in each 100 today express disapproval. On the previous survey 23 per cent expressed disapproval.

Independent Voters only, nationwide:

Approve	66%
Disapprove	28
Noopinion	6

14 weeks ago, 73 per cent of the Independents expressed approval, 23 per cent, disapproval, and 4 per cent had no opinion.

Among the nation's GOP members, sentiment has changed little since the previous survey.

Today, 89 per cent o fall GOP members express approval of the way the President is doing his job. In March, 90 per cent expressed approval.

GOP members only, antionwide:

Approve	89%
Disapprove	7
No opinion	4

As measured in this same type of survey over the past 16 months, the President's popularity has ranged from a low of 64 per cent in November, 1953, to a high of 74 per cent in April, 1954. ( per cent approve today.

At the same time, the disapproval vote has ranged from a low of 6 per cent in March, 1953, to a high of 28 per cent in November, 1953. (Today's disapproval vote is 27 per cent.

HOG'S NOSE TO GROUND SPEELS HIGHER PROFIT

Auburn, Ala.—You've got to keep a hog's nose to the ground to make the most money from him.

That's just another way of saying "keep 'em grazing on tender legumes and corn right out of the field when it's ready, explains G. B. Phillips, API Extension animal industry specialist. Grazing boht forage and grain—ties hogs to the land and is the money-making way to raise market hos.

When shotes begin hogging-off corn during the next few weeks, its highly important to follow three simple rules, warns Phillips. First, have grazing, protein supplement, mineral mixture, water, and shade all close together and handy to the corn field. Second, use temporary fences to confine animals on the amount of corn they can clean up in three to four weeks. And, third, push the hogs to an early market.

Your National Guard Is Big Business Says Hanna

Montgomery, Ala.—While it isn't usually thought of as a business, the National Guard in Alabama is a business—"big business," according to Maj. Gen. Walter J. Hanna, Alabama adjutant general.

Every county feels the impact of the National Guard, either the Ground Guard or Air Guard, because there is at least one unit in every county, according to General Hanna.

These units, 221 strong, have a total enrollment of over 11,000 Guardsmen.

The war in Korea helped the Alabama National Guard build up—after first wiping it out. That came about when the state's 117 Air and Ground Guard units were inducted into federal service at the beginning of the hostilities.

A building program was begun to replace the federalized units and the objective was to put at least one unit in every county. There had been 26 counties without Guard units at the time of the federalization.

If Alabama were to bring its Air and Ground Guard units to full authorized strength there would be more than 24,000 Guardsmen in the state.

As an example of what the National Guard can mean to the State, General Hanna cited the 160th Tactical Reconnaissance Squadron at Montgomery, a part of the 117th Tactical Reconnaissance Wing which has its headqquarters in Birmingham.

The squadron has 75 full-time mechanics and maintenance personnel. More than 100 persons are employed by the federal government here to take care of Army and Air National Guard eqquipment. Salaries of the full-time people in Montgomery amount to more than $500,000 a year, according to the general.

"The state itself expends only $1,526 a year for the 160th," General Hanna said. "Installations cost about $3,500,000 and value of the eqquipment for the 160th is about $75,000,000.

The general estimated that the National Guard means about $15,000,000 a year in federal pay alone to the state.

In addition to the money, the state benefits from the armories, he continued. The state pays a fourth of the cost of Ground Guard Armories and the federal government the rest, but the entire cost of the Air Guard Armories is paid by the federal government.

General Hanna said that while the state is well ahead of others in armory construction already, about 20 more are being processed in Washington and will be built when they are approved there.

In addition, he said, before the end of the year it is expected construction will get under way for, air engineer buildings costing more than $1,300,000(to be paid for entirely by the federal government.

REV. ROBERT H. HARPER

Hosea Pleads with Israel.
Lesson for June 20: Hosea 6.
Golden Text: Hosea 6: 6.

Unlike Amos, Hosea was a native of the Northern Kingdom, but he also directed his attention to the corruption prevailing in the country. He was a tragic figure because he was a great lover who bore with his faithless wife and redeemed her from the wretched condition to which she had come after she had deserted her husband and children to become a prostitute. Amos thus preceded by 2700 years an American general who took his erring wife back into his home, stating that he knew of no law of God or man that made it a heinous thing for a man to forgive a women.

The bitter experience of Hosea and his own forgiveness of the erring Gomer reminded the prophet of the love of God and his desire to win back the love of his people and to save them from destruction. Like Amos, the prophet Hosea saw the terrible corruption all around him and realized that the sin of the people was whoredom. And as he had pleaded with Gomer to return to her husband and children and to make again a home, so did Hosea plead with his erring people to return to God and live according to his word, assuring them that the Lord would receive them again into his favor and blessing.

This restoration to favor with God would save them, Hosea assured them, from their appalling danger and bring them out of their great wretchedness.

ADVENTIST CHURCH

Daniel's last-day prohpecies" will be the sermon topic for next Sabbath 11 a.m.

Texts: "Understand, O son of man; for at the time of the end shall be the vision." Dan. 7:17. "But thou, O Daniel, shut up the words, and seal the book, even to the time of the end... many shall run to and from knowledge shall be increased." Dan. 12:4. "And I heard, but I understood not; then said I, O my Lord, what shall be the end of these things? And he said, Go thy way Daniel; for the words are closed up and sealed till the time of the end. Many shall be purified and made white, and tried; but the wicked shall do wickedly; and none of the wicked shall understand; but the wise shall understand. Dan. 12:8-10.

How thankful we should be that we are now in "the time of the end" and that these prophesies of Daniel are now being unfolded to the inquiring world. The preacher who is silent about the prophesies in his pulpit has no message for the people of this generation.

We were very happy to see Rev. P. G. Johnson of Aldrich in our midst Sunday. He delivered the evening sermon, which was fine.

Remember our singing school starts June 28th. Everyone invited.

Mrs. G. W. Melton is on the sick list and also Mrs. Albert Snider. Let's all pray for the sick folks in our community.

Our annual singing Sunday was a huge success. The church was filled to capacity. A fine dinner was served to over a hundred persons and we wish to thank singers, directors, and pianists for the part they had in making this singing the finest we have had. What a joy it was to hear the duets and trios.

Opening prayer by Mr. J. R. Robinson. Welcome service by Rev. P. G. Johnson of Aldrich. Directors were Audie Brown, Henry Driver, J. E. Minor, Stancel Boswell, S. S. Baker, Bufford Jones, Jack Jones, Hazel Brown, J. R. Robinson, Sharon Jones, Harvie Lee Riffe, A. O. Boswell, Marion Easterling, S. V. Miller, Floyd Bailey, Herman Kendrick, Wallace Kendrick, Sam Henley, Phillip Heacley, Lloyd Boswell, E. D. Langston, Lee Grant, Howard Wyatt, Mrs. B. Bean, Dock Harris, Francis Kendrick, Miss Ella Bailey. Two duets by Allie and Kathy Kenbert. The Wyatt Sisters trio from Concord sang several numbers, and a trio from Collins Chapel sang. All were a joy to hear and we thank them one and all and hope they'll be with us again. J. E. Minor, chairman, deserves a lot of credit and thanks for his untiring efforts in making this our truly best singing ever. Closing song, Lee Grant.

All you folks in Mt. Pleasant Community do not be alarmed if some Sunday morning you should hear a bell ringing loud and clear, from the steeple of Mt. Pleasant Church. If you've never heard a church bell on Sunday morning calling all to come to God's House you've missed a fine blessing. When it brings to mind this world and all within belongs to the Lord, it reminds one to forgive as the Lord has forgiven. So when you hear that bell, come be with us and know you are always welcome.

Visitors of C. W. Riggins family were Mr. and Mrs. L. Oaks and Mrs. B. Price.

Ivan Smith is home renewing old acquaintances He leaves July 20 for the Army.

Sunday guests of Mrs. L. Johnson were Rev. P. G. Johnsn of Aldrich and Harvey Lee Riffe.

START ALFALFA WORK FOR SUCCESSFUL WORK

Auburn, Ala.—Now's the time to start preparing for alfalfa that will be seeded this Fall.

To succeed with alfalfa it is necessary to carefully follow best planting and management practices, cautions API Extension Agronomist D. R. Harbor. He says growers should now select alfalfa land, begin seedbed preparation by turning the land, and arrange for fertilizers and seed.

Harbor advises planting alfafa only on fertile, well-drained soil. Both surface and internal drainage should be good; alfalfa cannot stand "wet feet" over long periods.

"Start land preparation by turning the land deeply in late June or early July," Harbor continues. "Leave land in the rough until after a good rain. Then start shallow disking and harrowing to cotnrol grass and weeds until planting time

It is not too early to arrange for lime, fertilizer (including borax), seed, and inoculant. Be sure to get high quality materials. See your county agent for recommendations on materials and how to grow the crop

MRS. CATHERINE D. COLLUM

Around OUR HOUSE

by Callaways Timber Mullins

FOR days now, the seven-year-old and the five-year-old have been trying to decide what to make for the head of the House for Father's Day. The one-year-old has shown complete lack of interest in the project.

In the midst of discussing the possibility of decorating a box to hold stamps, the five-year-old asked suddenly:

"Mother, why do we have Father's Day?"

"Well," I explained, "We have it to thank Daddy for all the things he dose for us. You know, he gives you clothes to wear and a nice place to live and good food to eat and . . ."

"Oh, no," the five-year-old interrupted. "That's not Daddy, that's God."

THE seven-year-old decided to make for her Daddy, among other things, a set of clothespin clip to help him keep his desk organized.

She has already gotten three spring-type clothespins and the enamel she will use to paint them. After the enamel dries, she will use a contrasting color to print (with a tiny brush from the bottle of nail polish) LETTERS on the clothespin, BILLS on another and MEMOS on the third. The letters may be scraggly and a bit blurred, but her Daddy will think his present is wonderful.

The neighbor around the corner says her gift to the head of her house is going to be a pocket sewed to the inside of the shower curtain to help him keep the soap corralled while he takes a shower. And if her sewing urge continues, she plans to give him cause for real celebration by sewing on all the missing button of his shirts and mending the pockets of his pants.

THIS neighbor has been doing some sprucing up of the family bathtub this week. Using a worn chenille bedspread, she has made an attractive bath set.

There was enough good material left in the bedspread for her to cut a large rectangular bath mat, two of them in fact, and a lid cover. She bound the edges of the new pieces with tape and dyed them to match her curtains. Now she's looking forward to getting another old chenille spread so she can make another set, and next time she plans to salvage enough material to make curtains to match.

Speaking of old bedspreads, the next door neighbor who knows how to put everything to good use, was proudly showing off a summer spread she had just finished, when we stopped by yesterday.

She had ripped the fringe from a worn hobnail bedspread and had sewed it around the edge of a large colored sheet, making a perfect spread for use during the hot months.

As we were leaving, this neighbor gave us a dish cloth she had made from old net curtains. She cut the curtains into 15-inch squares, put six or eight squares on top of each other, and stitched them together with the quilting attachment on her machine. It was a good dish cloth she made, too.

TO make a sauce that's as easy as it is good, cobbine canned applesauce with crushed pineapple. Serve atop vanilla ice cream or slices of homemade cake.

If you run out of shoe polish, paste floor wax is a handy substitute.

Curtains in children's room should be tied back so that little hands will not be tempted to pull on them.

M. C. HENLEY WRITES ON WASHINGTON TRIP

We left Clanton at around 6:00 a.m. Thursday June 3, 1954, for Patuxent River, Md., and spent our first night of the trip at Lexington, N. C. We continued the next morning into Virginia, passing through Danville, we saw the Dan River Mills where the well known Dan River fabrics are made. We saw along the way in N. C. and Virginia, tobacco growing farms which we had never seen, and also tobacco processing and manufacturing plants in Richmond, Va., where some of the leading brands of cigarettes and tobaccos are made.

In the afternoon of the second day of our trip, we crossed over the Patomac River Bridge, leaving Virginia and entering Maryland. We reached the point of our destination, Patuxent River, about 5:00 p.m. We visited while there with our son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Ifenley. Douglas is stationed at the Naval Air Station there.

Patuxent River is about 60 miles from Washington, D. C., and of course, is near the Patuxent River and also the Potomac River, so of course we had to try our luck at fishing. We first tried fishing for bass on some small lakes near the rivers, but our luck was not too good. Then we did some salt water fishing for white perch, using crabs for bait, and caught a nice string.

Sunday we went to Washington, visiting the Capitol, the White house, the Blair house where President Truman lived while the White House was being renovated, and incidentally while here, we saw the spot on the sidewalk in front of the Blair House where the would be assassin law after being shot while attempting to assassinate President Truman

On our tour of Washington we saw many of the Government buildings which house the various governmental branches of our national government. We visited such places of interest as the beautiful Arlington cemetery, the unknown soldier's tomb, the Lincoln Memorial, the Washington Memoral and other places of interest.

Later that day we spent a little time looking over the Naval Air Base at Patuxent River. This base borders on the beautiful Chesapeake Bay, and is a beautiful place.

On Monday we visited the old State House, an exact reproduction of the first State Capitol of Maryland, and incidentally the oldest in the nation. Some of the old documents etc, are still there on display. This building well represents structural modes of the earlier days of our country.

The old State House does not stand on the exact spot that it originally did due to the fact that that ground became a cemetery before the State of Maryland rebuilt it, but it is not more than fifty yards away, and on the site of the original State House is a monument, and four corner stones, marking the exact location of the original old Capitol, and the monument bears this wording:

"On this site was erected in 1676 the First State House of Maryland."

A few steps away stands another monument bearing this wording:

"Erected on the site of the old Mulberry tree, under which the first colonist of Maryland assembled to establish a government where the persecuted and oppressed of every creed and every clime might repose in peace and security, adore their common God, and enjoy the price less blessings of civil and religious liberty."

On these same grounds several yards away stands another marble marker bearing a bronze plaque with this wording:

"The Landing of The Ark and the Dove."

This marker marked the landing place of these pilgrims, the leader of whom was Leonard Calvert, the first governor of Maryland. A caretaker of these grounds and the old State House informed us that this was the exact site of the Pilgrims landing. The water of the Chesapeake Bay was only a few feet away.

All of this is in a large, and very old cemetery where both whites and negro slaves are buried.

We noticed a very old grave with a big cedar tree growing in the middle of it bearing this inscription: "Sacred to the memory of Miss Jane E. Brisco, of Washington City. Died Sept. 1819."

Upon entering these grounds we stopped and read the wording on a metal plaque standing beside the road which read: "St. Mary's City, First Maryland Settlement, March 27, 1694. First Capitol of Maryland, 1634-1694. First movement of Women's Suffrage, originated by Margaret Brent 1647. First freedom of religion in the world, established here through the acts, "Acts of Tolerence, April 1649."

After leaving these grounds, in a short distance, we crossed the old "Mattapany Path," of historical note. We went on to Point Lookout which is several miles away, and where stands the United States Confederate war monument. It is said that this is the only monument erected by the United States Government.

This monument is very beautiful and stands on spacious grounds that are well kept and beautiful. A wording on this monument reads: "Erected by The United States to mark the burial place of Confederate soldiers and sailors who died at Point Lookout, Maryland while prisoners of war, and were there buried to the number of 3384, but whose remains were subsequently removed to their respective homes, or to this cemetery wher their individual graves cannot now be identified."

On the four sides of this monument is eight bronze plaques bearing the names of all these soldiers and sailors, their Co. numbers, and states. There were many from Alabama.

Not far from this scene is said to be the landing place of the first imported horses, and incidentally, is the scene of a very recent murder, which is still unsolved, but a suspect is being held. The victim was a U. S. A. W.A.V.E.

Other interesting things we saw on our rounds included the site of the birth place of President Madison. We saw on our way to Washington the home of J. Edgar Hoover, and we stopped several miles out of Washington to read a Metal Plaque that stands by the road side with this wording: "John Wilkes Booth, the Assassin of Lincoln stopped here at the house of Mrs. Surratt to secure ammunition on the night of April 14, 1865. He rode on to "T. B." and then to Dr. Mudds who set his broken leg."

This plaque stands directly in front of an old large dwelling which could have been there at the time from its looks.

A brief historical sketch of John Wilkes Booth states that he was the son of Junius Mrutus Booth, an English tragedian, and the brother of Edwin Booth, an American tragedian of great eminence from 1833 to 1893.

We completed our visit and tours Monday afternoon and started for home. We decided to drive some at night, and consequently did not stop on our way back except for food, drinks, and fuel.

We arrived back at home safe and sound, but very tired, Tuesday afternoon around 6:00 p.m. Our speedometer registered from Patuexent River, Md., to Clanton 870 miles.

327 MORE STILLS WRECKED IN MAY

MONTGOMERY, Ala.—Law enforcement officers made it tough for moonshiners again in May, knocking off 327 of their illicit stills in the state last month.

According to Joseph T. Burton, chief of the enforcement division of the ABC Board, the 327 stills destroyed were capable of making 71,184 gallons of moonshine whisky a month, which at prevailing prices would have had a market value of $284,736.

Burton said the officers—state, local and federal —arrested 248 persons and made out 463 cases in May.

The officers seized and destroyed 180,310 gallons of mash and seized 3,094 gallons of whisky, 65 gallons of homebrew, 6,613 bottle of beer, 2 1-4 gallons of wine, 32 vehicles, 7,250 pounds of sugar, 1,265 pounds of bran, 2,000 feet of hose, 818 gallons of fuel oil, 30 feet of pipe, seven pumps and two pistols.

Tuscaloosa County, which voted dry last May, was the top county for the destruction of stills. The officers destroyed 37 there.

Counties in which 10 or more stills were destroyed were Cleburne 33, Colbert 16, Coosa 12, Jefferson 34, Mobile 15, Shelby 14 and St. Clair 17.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

BURSITIS

Bursitis is a painful condition, frequently so acute that the person is "laid up" for days. It is an inflamation of a bursa or sac which is filled with a sticky fluid and which lies between parts of the body that move upon one another. Normally this fluid has a lubricating effect, but in bursitis changes take place which cut down movement and cause pain.

There are twenty-six bursae in the body; and they all contain the lubricating fluid to ease friction points such as the top of the shoulder, back of the shoulder blades and over the hips. When too much friction is brought on by irritation or bruising, bursitis is apt to occur. In fact, a new bursa may develop from the same cause in an area of the body where such a sac is not normally present. For example, a bursa may develop over a bunion.

What happens in bursitis? Actually when a bursa is inflamed, the lubricating substance may stick together and hamper motion, and this causes a severe pain at the joint. Calcium deposits may form, and they cut down motion, thus increasing the pain.

"House maid's knee," "tennis elbow" and "tailor's bursitis" are all terms that refer to particular forms of the condition. However, it is not limited to these occupations. It may develop in any occupation or hobby requiring a given pressure in handling a tool, for example a carpenter's drill. Infection, as well as injury or irritation, can cause bursitis.

Bursitis is so painful that afflicted persons can't sleep without the aid of sedatives. Movement creates such pain that the victim does everything possible to avoid motion. While the bursae are designed to protect our joints and tissue through lubrication, they themselves can be harmed by stress and strain. Remember irritation and infection may be the cause. Watch out for bursitis.

Pretty Peaches Plentiful In Peach Pageantry Parade

The 1954 Chilton County Peach Festival is growing bigger and better.

In former years, it was confined to one night and one day—selection of the queen on one night and all of the other festival activities being held the following day.

But the 1954 Chilton County Peach Festival will last almost a week, with something offered almost every day in the week.

Starting with Friday night, June 25, and lasting through Wednesday night, June 30, it will be one continuous round of activities.

The queen's contest, opening feature on the program, will be held at the Clanton Airport Hangar Friday night, June 25. Then the following night wrestling matches will be staked at the hangar.

Wednesday, June 30, of course, is the big day. That's when 12 or 15 floats and several bands will take part in the mile-long parade, starting at Thorsby at 8 o'clock and ending at the Clanton airport hangar, where the main celebration will be held.

Judge R. B. Carr, of the Alabama Court of Appeals, will make the main talk, while Miss Pat Broadhead, the 1954 queen, will crown the new queen. Only it will be Mrs. Miles Aldridge who crowns the queen and not Pat Broadhead. She was married June 5.

There will be other festivities on June 30, of course, and these will include baseball games at City Park in the afternoon and the personal appearance of the Blackwood Brothers and The Statesmen's Quartets that night.

Most of the night events will start at 8 o'clock.

Latest addition to the Peach Festival program is an all-star wrestling card which will be held at the hangar Saturday night, June 26.

Rowdy Red Roberts, of Little Rock, former Southern junior lightheavyweight champion, will headline the program. An outstanding opponent is being selected for Roberts, who headlined the mat card at the Birmingham City auditorium last Monday night.

Nick Gulas and Roy Welch, who promote the Monday night matches in Birmingham, have been contracted to provide the wrestling program, and they have assured Chairman Shields they will have the best mat card Chilton County fans have ever seen.

Gulas and Welch are trying to get two women grapplers for the festival porgam. They say they know where they can get a couple of peaches.

Chairman Shields said that the festival committee this year has added wrestling and baseball to the program to give the residents of the county a variety of events.

"Maybe some of the persons who don't care too much for singings will like the wrestling or baseball, or vice versa," Mr. Shields declared.

Meanwhile, Co-Chairman Joe Jackson and numerous committee chairmen have other parts of the festival well planned. The grounds at the hangar are being put in fine shape for the Festival. Towns throughout the county are being decorated, and it's going to be a week long to be remembered.

On top of all this, the Chilton County Chamber of Commerce has announced that merchants are going to have something special in store for buyers during Festival Week.

The festival is sponsored by the Chilton County Chamber of Commerce, and Harold Foshee, its president, says there is little doubt about this year's event being the greatest of them all.

The following girls have already entered the queen's contest:

Mary Lou Green, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank D. Green, Clanton.

Ramona Tucker, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Tucker, Maplesville.

Enthusiasm Mounts As Festival Nears

With only two weeks remaining before the big event, Chilton County has an acute case of "peach fever."

Everybody is talking about peaches.

And it will remain that way for two more weeks, at least, perhaps longer.

Because the 7th annual Chilton County Peach Festival, to be held from Friday night, June 25 through Wednesday, June 30, is attracting more attention than ever before.

It's going to be the greatest and best peach festival of them all.

Here are some of the things that are in store:

Between 40 and 50 of Chilton County's most luscious peaches will compete in the annual queen contest at the Clanton Airport Hangar at 8 p.m. Wednesday, June 30, one feature that's sure to be a big crowd pleaser.

Miss Pat Broadhead, Jr., reports that a number of girls have entered the contest. Girls between the ages of 16 and 20 are eligible and June 15 is the deadline for entering.

The winning girl and her court will go to Birmingham one Wednesday for radio and television appearances, staying with [illegible] Mrs. Miles Aldridge, former peach queen and her husband.

From Friday night until the following Friday night, June 25, queen and her court attendants will be guests at various social affairs in the county, and then on the Friday night, the second big event of festival week will take place.

It will be the appearance of the famous Sylacauga Male Chorus, one of the leading chorus groups in the entire nation. This chorus also will appear at the Clanton Airport Hangar, which is being turned into [illegible] for the festival program.

And then, starting bright and early next Wednesday, June 30, it will be PEACH FESTIVAL DAY in Chilton County.

The gala parade, with several military and high school bands and [illegible] of the finest floats ever seen in the county, will get under way at 9 a.m. It will [illegible] Clanton, then down the highway to the County Court House in Clanton, where it will turn left and go to First Street. There it will turn left and go straight to the airport, where the [illegible] will take place.

Then the King and queen will be crowned, and a [illegible] will take place.

Judge R. B. Carr, of the Alabama Court of Appeals, will speak, after which [illegible] will take place.

As a grand finale to the biggest peach festival of them all, a Battle of Quartets" will take place Wednesday night, June 30, when the Blackwood Brothers of Memphis, Tenn., and the Statesmen's Quartet will appear in a concert starting at 8 p.m.

The Chilton County Peach Festival is sponsored by the Chilton County Chamber of Commerce

LOOKING for cool, delightful ideas on a warm day? These will make your family feel more like eating.

Cooked vegetables don't always have to be served hot. These are good when chilled and served with French dressing; asparagus tips cauliflower, carrot strips

Potato salad looks and tastes good when served in green pepper rings or cups. Garnish with slices of tongue and ham, plum tomatoes and celery strips.

Cold salmon steaks are excellent salad material for a main course.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Jellied Tomato Bouillon
(Serves 3)

1 package lemon-flavored gelatin
2 cups boiling tomato juice
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon paprika
1 teaspoon onion juice
Dissolve gelatin in tomato juice. Add remaining ingredients and pour into a pan which is one inch deep. Chill until firm. Cut into cubes and serve cold

Serve with soured cream, sliced cucumbers and hard-cooked egg slices.

Here's what you can do with cold roast chicken to make a luncheon pretty enough for a guest: slice the chicken and team with slices of avocado, tomato aspic and marinated asparagus

With a heavy dinner you'll want the lightest of salads. Try lettuce hearts, small tender spinach leaves, watercress and sliced radishes. Simple oil and vinegar dressing will be best for this.

Have your salad and dessert course all in one: strawberries, pineapple spears, melon balls, green grapes, peach halves and a scoop of sherbet.

Offer your family a cold meat and cheese platter for variety: slices of ham, tongue and turkey served with mounds of potato salad, marinated green beans and cold slaw.

Montgomery, Ala.—Endorsement of the use of radar for traffic law enforcement in Alabama came this week from one of the state's major motorists' groups.

J. B. Hull, director of the Alabama Motor Club, state affiliate of the National Automobile Assn., wrote the Alabama Motor Club, state affiliate of the National Automobile Assn., wrote the Alabama Council on June 7 that he believed "there is no other way out for us than to use the radar-controlled cars. I am certainly alarmed by the increase in traffic deaths in Alabama, and will go along . . . on any legitimate program that will stop this slaughter on the highways."

The endorsement came as L. B. Sullivan, director of the Alabama Department of Public Safety, disclosed Alabama's 1954 traffic toll stood (June 11) at 343, thirty-five higher than the 308 deaths recorded during the same period of 1953.

Sullivan said the 343 total includes a proven current average of 16 fatalities by which the official count trails actual experience.. The officially-recorded score this week was 327.

Both the Alabama Safety Council, a citizens' group headed by Sylacauga industrialist Hugh Comer, and the Alabama Safety Commission of state officials headed by Conservation Director Earl McGowin, have endorsed use of radar as an enforcement weapon in Alabama. The Commission further recommended recently that the Department of Public Safety "institute this device at the earliest practicable time."

Meanwhile, a radar research car operated by New York University's Center of Safety Education was in Alabama this week for a five-day tour of 26 cities in connection with Alabama's participation in the 24 state Slow Down and Live! summer vacation driving program. Sullivan said this vehicle is serving as the forerunner of a statewide demonstration period of Alabama's own radar equipment to begin when it is returned from the manufacturer after a final operating check.

ALABAMA HIGHLIGHTS

Alabama's first superintendent of education, William F. Perry, who took office under the 1854 law creating the position, found little that was encouraging in his first inspections of the state's public schools.

The first public schools that was established in Alabama were without decent buildings and had no equipment. The teachers were called "deplorably ignorant."

Money was what was needed to remedy the poor school situation in Alabama in the early days, but money was the one thing neither the state nor the counties were willing to provide.

Little interest was evidenced by the great mass of people in education in early Alabama and they appeared particularly distinterested if taxes were required.

Progress in higher education in early Alabama had been slow, as it had been in the field of grammar schools.

The burden of higher education in early Alabama was carried by private and church colleges.

Congress, when Alabama became a state, donated 46,080 acres of public lands for the support of a state university; and when the 1819 Legislature authorized establishment of the University of Alabama it was planned for Tuscaloosa.

Although the University of Alabama was authorized by the Legislature in 1819 the school did not open its doors until 1831, with the Rev. Alva Woods as the first president.

A competent first faculty was recruited in the north for the University of Alabama but the members were not popular with the student body and the faculty resigned in a body in 1837.

After the resignation of the University of Alabama faculty in 1837, the Rev. Basil Manley became president. Only 38 students enrolled during the first year of Manley's administration.

With the failure of the State Bank, the University of Alabama lost the money it had collected from the sale of its lands. There was no money and only a few acres of land left the University only with much difficulty kept the doors open.

CURRENT FOOD SPENDING ON PAR WITH 1954 BOOM

American families are spending about as much for food in 1954 as they did during the "boom" food year of 1953, reports Austin Ezzell, API Extension marketing specialist.

He says so far this year some belt tightening has been necessary because of slightly lower incomes in certain areas. However, most of the slow up in buying has hit goods and services other than food.

Stubborn food burns on enamel pans can be cleaned with a solution of weak soda and water.

FIN-FAN ITEMS

By R. L. SCOTT

Alabama Power Company Fishing Contest Judges have chosen the month of May cash award winner. It was agreed that young Joe McDonald, of Jordan Dam Village, made the outstanding catch of the month by landing a 24 ounce Shellcracker. R. L. "Dick" Webster, Sylacauga, was hot on the aril with an 8 pound, 6 ounce Largemouth Bass but, according to contest rules, fell short by a few points. A Bream whighing 1 pounds or better is hard to beat but then not many are caught. As Bream go, 8 to 12 ounces are considered very nice catches, and Whopper Catcher Certificates are awarded for their entry in the contest. The month of June should be another good month for catching large Bream, because as the water warms and willow flies begin to hatch, these game little fighters are out in large numbers ready to challenge any morsel of food that may come their way.

Yesterday, above The Narrows on Lake Lay, several were large hatches of willow flies were sighted covering the tree limbs overhanging the water. The water above The Narrows is stained but clears as you go downstream. Weoka Creek is stained at the steel bridge, but the power dams on Bass and Bream. Beyond these is clear, so is the river at Lake Law Dam. Best catches are made early in the mornings and late in the afternoons. Lake Mitchell is clear but prospects are relatively slow at this time. Jack Jordan offers slightly more activity than Mitchell. Several small hatches of willow flies have inspired the lazy Bass and frisky Bream. Stripes are roving about in schools but don't seem to stay up very long at a time. Business has been a bit slow on Lake Martin. Lake Hill Inn keeps a watchful eye on what's being caught on Ilkahatchee Creek, and during the past week only a few medium size Bass and Bream have been taken from there. Large numbers of small Bluegills hav eben taken from Lake Yates on flies and crickets during the week. If you have never tried Yates, then you should give it a twirl. It is located immediately below Martin Dam and a couple miles above Tallassee. Fishermen like W. H. Boggs, Alexander City, and C. T. Ingram, Tallassee, have fished all over the country but have found Yates hard to beat. The lake is small but offers some mighty fancy Black Bass and Bluegills.

Your next catch may be a prize winner. Let your boat dock operator enter your fish in the conets. Last week's entries are as follows:

Lake Lay—

Ed Hardiman, Manager, Riverview Fishing Camp, above Lay Dam and near Clanton, reports: Walter Ambrose, North Birmingham, used a Fiddle Dee Dee plug to hook a 4 lb. 8 ounce Largemouth Bass from a river slough near the summer cottages.

B. J. Phillips Paint and Tackle Company, Synacauga, reports: Clay Isbell, Childersburg, took the creel limit of Largemouth Bass with a spinning outfit. The whopper on the string weighed in at 7 pounds, 2 ounces and was caught on Cedar Creek.

Lake Mitchell—

Cox's Fishing Camp, Cargile Creek, near Verbena, reports: Leon Kontos, Birmingham, took 12 Black Bass and Stripes from the points by fishing deep and using spoons as lures.

Lake Jordan—

Mrs. J. R. Gibson, Manager, Blackwell's Fishing Lodge, Shoals Creek, near Holtville, reports: J. W. "Bill" Hamilton, Irondale, made himself a lure and used it very well on Shoals Creek. Bill picked up a nice string of Blask Bass and his best catch weighed in at 5 pounds, 6 ounces. F. F. Huett, Montgomery, fished deep with live minnows and brought in some dandy Crappie. The string included a Whopper Catch, 1 pound and 8 ounces.

H. H. Sears, Swayback Bridge Boat Dock, Sofkahatchee Creek, near Wetumpka, reports: Jimmie Granger, Wetumpka, used a Peck's popping bug for bait while fly fishing Sofkahatchee Creek for Largemouth Bass. Jimmie was quite surprised when a 7 pounder took his fly and flounced right into the boat. WHOW!!

CHIEF ALAPOCO SAYS: It's gratifying to see so many sportsmen using such good common sense while fishing, these days. You seldom ever see one without a life jacket or cushion, and isn't it nice to have a boat slow down upon approaching and respect your safety.

WIRE TRAY OR BASKET WILL COOL EGGS FAST

Use a wire tray or basket to cool eggs before packing them in cases.

In a cool room it takes three hours to cool eggs on a wire tray and five hours in a wire basket. In comparison, eggs require 11 hours to cool in a solid pail and 19 hours in an egg case.

Because eggs lose qquality fast at high temperatures, gather them at least three times a day, suggests John Weeks, API Extension poultryman. After cooling, keep eggs in a cool, fairly moist place.

SOCIAL SECURITY NEWS

How much covered employment or self-employment income will you need in order to be eligible for social security benefits when you reach 65?

According to Mr. Lucius E. Brannon, Acting Manager of the Birmingham social security office, there is better than an even chance that your answer —if you have one— will be wrong. Why? Mr. Brannon explains it this way: Because thousands of older workers have already qqualified for benefits with as little as a year and one-half of covered earnings, many people have assumed that any person can do the same. Actually that is true only where the individual is already 65 or will attain that age before July 1, 1954.

Anyone reaching 65 after June 30th of this year will need two more quarters of covered employment or self-employment for every additional year up to the time he reaches 65. Thus, a person who will reach 65 three years from now will need 6 more quarters in addition to the 6 already required, or a total of 12. The maximum coverage requirement is 40 quarters minimum is 6.

The Birmingham social security manager stated that a pamphlet explaining fully the eligibility requirements and other social security questions is available upon request at any social security office. Administration, 1825 First Avenue North, Birmingham, Alabama. Persons approaching 65 who have any doubt about their ability to meet the employment requirements are urged to obtain a copy.

Bellane Baptist News

(Rev. Herman Lowery, pastor)

We had a record attendance Sunday. We also had a wonderful service with the Spirit of the Lord there in a big way. Sunday night was Communion Night. "And as they were eating, Jesus took bread, and blessed it, and brake it, and gave it to the disciples, and said, "Take, eat; this is My body." Matt. 26:26. That was just before he gave his all that we might have life. The baptismal service was Sunday afternoon at 3:00 with 12 following the Lord in beautiful baptism. There is only one way to meet the requirement of this symbolism and that's immersion as you will see in Rom. 6:3 and Col. 2:12 the symbolism of the Lord's burial and resurrection. The Bible tell's us he came "straight way out of the water," Matt. 3:16

Sunday night was another good service and good crowd. We appreciate our visitors so much and we give them a cordial invitation to come back any time.

Let's remember Bro. and Mrs. Headley and the family in prayer for the loss of a wonderful mother. Bear in mind, "Our loss is Heaven's Gain." Psalms 116:15. "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints." It grieves us so much, but we have one consolation, we'll see them and know them after a while.

Let's all remember the second Sunday in July is our all day singing. We're expecting a good one on the fifth of July Prof W M DeVaughn will begin a singing school here. Everyone is invited to attend.

Let's not forget Mrs. Chancellor who is in a Selma hospital in serious condition.

Remember all our sick and shut-ins everywhere

LOIS TAYLOR

Chestnut Creek Baptist Church—

Rev. Hymon Atcheson, pastor

Bro. Atcheson brought two of the most wonderful sermons Sunday that I have ever heard. Are you asoul-winner? This was his question and it was a very inspiring message. There was a very good attendance Sunday and several visitors. We give them a cordial invitation to visit with us again. Sunday night Bro. Atcheson preached on sleep, spiritual sleep. This made us all sit up straight and take notice. No one likes to be caught asleep, not even spiritually.

The Associational Young People's leader, Mrs. J. W. Johnson, will teach the book, "Thus it is Written," Monday night, June 28, at 7:30, at the Chestnut Creek Baptist Church. We give everyone who has not heard this book taught an invitation to come and be with us. We would enjoy having you and know you will enjoy hearing Mrs. Johnson.

Bro. Atcheson is in a revival at the Mill Village in Clanton. He reported a wonderful meeting Monday night with a good group present. The people of the First Church are hoping to build a Baptist Mission there.

WMU Meeting—

Circle II of the WMU met Friday night, June 11 at the Community House. Devotional was by Mrs. Archie Mc Taylor, prayer by Mrs. Elbert Glenn. There was a short program before the business. TOO MANY THIN CALVES MAKE BIG PRICE SPREAD

Auburn, Ala.— Too many thin calves going to market are caus- ing a more than normal price spread between low-grade and high-grade calves.

Calves grading good or choice are selling at very good prices—from 18 to 21 cents at present. W. H. Greg- ory, API Extension livestockman, reported in Auburn this week. How- ever, calves grading utility and commercial are bringing only about half as much.

Because of this market situation Gregory strongly urged cattlemen not to sell any thin calves if they can possibly avoid it.

"Creep feeding," said the farm leader, "will usually raise a calf one or two grades, depending on how much grain it eats. Farmers whose calves are grading below good should think seriously about feeding them grain in a crop."

Another possibility, continued Gregory, is to wean thin calves at eight or nine months of age and run them over as yearlings on good pasture. Then give them a 90-day feed. This should get the animals into the class most desired by con- sumers—a good or low choice year- ling weighing 800 to 1000 pounds. These, known as handy-weights in the trade, are always in strong de- mand.

OAT BLAST EXPLAINED BY SEED SPECIALIST

Farmers who find numerous empty seed spikelets in their oats this season need not be alarmed—no new disease has invaded the crop, the trouble comes from a condition commonly called blast.

Blast is due to [illegible] of the [illegible] and is believed to be caused by unfavorable temperature and moisture, says Ralph Jones, API Extension seed specialist. Affected spikelets appear as colorless empty [illegible] at time of heading. Most are at near the bottom of seedheads. The amount of seed reduction de- pends on the extent of blasting. Jones says the severity of blast va- ries with the seasons and with the variety of oats.

Enjoy COOL, Refreshing Mountain Weather All Summer Long

Air conditioning brings the cool, refresh- ing comforts of crisp "mountain air" into your home to make your days more pleasant. . . your nights more rest- ful with sound sleep. There's less cleaning, too, because the air is filtered — windows and doors are kept closed. By removing excess moisture, air conditioning also elim- inates that disagreeable "muggy" feeling you often ex- perience when the humidity is high.

To enjoy the full benefits of a Room Air Conditioner be sure to make arrangements for proper wiring; it won't operate satisfactorily if wiring is inade- quate. Make your selection now—before the rush.

From the Catskill Mountain Star, Saugerties, New York: He brushed his teeth twice daily with a nationally advertised tooth paste. The doctor examined him twice yearly. He wore overshoes when needed. He stuck to a strict diet. He had his tonsils and appendix removed. He never smoked, drank or lost his temper. He did his daily dozen and slept eight hours nightly. Funeral services will be held Wednesday. He is survived by 18 specialists, 4 health institutions, 6 gymnasiums and numerous manufacturers of health foods and antiseptics. Death occurred when he forgot to stop, look and listen at a grade crossing

From The Republican-News, St. Johns, Michigan: A man in a neighboring community recently found liable in a damage suit will have to pay $14,000 as the result of the jury's verdict.

This man had only $5,000 liability insurance on his car. He will be out $9,000. The difference in insurance cost between $5,000 liability and $25,000 liability is about $5.75 on the average car.

For $7.05 more, he could have been insured for $50,000 liability. Since jury verdicts are higher than they used to be, a damage suit can easily wreck a life-time of saving if you aren't insured. A moment's carelessness on the highway can cancel out years of hard work in accumulating what money and property you have. It's a big gamble, to save $5.75.

From the Seville Chronicle, Seville, Ohio: Quite a bit of criticism of the Chronicle's new local temperature reports has reached my ears. A number of readers think it's not logical that Seville should have daily high temperatures in the 30's and 40's and low temperatures in the 70's and 80's.

I must talk to our thermometer watching editor about this.

Of course, it may be awhile before he can be contacted; he was the same one who set a holstein story under a Boy Scout headline on page 6 last week, and he has not yet returned from Siberia.

From the Suburban List, Essex Junction, Vermont: The editor got a lot of kidding last week when a little item was printed that a woman in Bellow Falls was 103 years old. Telephone calls were numerous and there were a lot of letters. The honey in the milk for the editor was that he knows a lot of people read his paper and particularly the small items

STANTON NEWS
RUTH HICKS

A number of our people attended Homecoming at Friendship church near Lawley, Ala., last Sunday. They reported a very enjoyable day.

Mrs. E. R. Player (Katherine Weaver) underwent surgery at the Baptist Hospital in Selma last week. We are glad to state that she is doing nicely at this writing.

Mr. Robert E. Gay has returned to his home after spending several days in Foley, taking treatment for Asthma.

Mrs. Ollie Gay left Tuesday morning for Birmingham, Ala., where she will undergo surgery on her face. Seems that Mrs. Gay is having trouble with the nerves in her face. We wish for her a speedy recovery.

Mrs. Alice Reynolds has returned to her home after spending several days with her daughter, Mrs. Robert Hines and family in Camden.

Miss Judy O'Neal spent last week in Demopolis, Ala., with Mr. and Mrs. Preston O'Neal and Mrs. J. H. Wood. While in Demopolis Judy attended Vacation Bible School

Vacation Bible School is going on at the Baptist church. All children have an invitation to attend

Mrs. Gertrude Woolley returned to her home after several days visit in Tennessee with her brother, Morris Woolley and Mrs. Woolley.

Mrs. Mattie Wooley has been with her daughter, Mrs. Elbert Cooper and family in Selma for several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Eaves are in Montana visiting with their children, Mrs. Cecil Walker, Mrs. Merritt Walker and Mr. Ernest Eaves and their families.

Week end visitors in the Earl O'Neal home were Mr. and Mrs. Preston O'Neal and Mrs. J. H. Wood of Demopolis, Ala. Sunday visitors were Mr. and Mrs. J. W. O'Neal of Montgomery, Ala.

A two-day-and-night search for a pretty Selma secretary who had been missing since Sunday night, June 6th, ended early Wednesday, June 9th, when her body was recovered from the Alabama River about five miles downstream from the city. Forty-two-year-old Miss Cornelia Thrash left her home unannounced around 10:30 p.m. Sunday and was last seen walking on the Pettus Bridge span clad in pajamas and raincoat. The pajamas and raincoat and one red high heel shoe were still on the body when it surfaced at 4:45 a.m. on Wednesday and was recovered by police Capt. Wilson Baker and Ken Carmichael. The two men had been on the river almost constantly since Monday noon, along with other officers and volunteers who joined the search. The remains were taken into the boat and brought to a landing on the Selma side of the river a short distance upstream from the bridge and then carried immediately to the Breslin-Service Funeral home.

Graveside services were held in the New Live Oak Cemetery at 4 p.m. Wednesday. The Rev. John Dillingham, pastor of the Church of Christ officiating.

Miss Thrash, who lived with an unmarried sister, Dorothy, had been under the treatment of a Birmingham physician for the past several months for a nervous condition but had been active at her job as secretary at Privett Insurance and Bonds, Lauderdale Street, through Saturday. Sunday night, Miss Thrash attended church services and took communion, and after returning home, retired to a room which she occupied alone around 9:30. Her absence from home was discovered by the sister around 6:30 a.m. Monday and an immediate police search was launched. Less than an hour later her locked, abandoned automobile was discovered parked off highway 80 at the east end of Pettus Bridge. Miss Thrash was the daughter of the late John Ed Thrash and Mrs. Allie Bradford Thrash. A number of relatives live in this and adjoining communities.

Miss Elizabeth Fowler of Cuthbert, Ga., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Fowler and Lt. William C. Ruddick of Madison, Wis., son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Ruddick of Stanton, were married Sunday afternoon, June 13, 1954 at New Cedron Baptist Church at 5 p.m. with the pastor of the church, Rev. Eddie Leon Ruddick, officiating. Rev Ruddick being a brother of Lt William C. Ruddick. Miss Fowler is a registered nurse having graduated from Peabody School of Nursing and Lt. Ruddick is in charge of Navy and Marine Training in Madison, Wisc.

Miss Ruth Hicks was in charge of decorations for the wedding and was assisted by Mrs. Olivia Apperson. Miss Hicks used branched candelabra, palms, gardenias, shasta daises, white gladioli, budded and wide open Magnolia blossoms and their foliage.

Mrs. Annie Laurie Potts of Maplesville, was in charge of the nuptial music.

The wedding was witnessed by members of the immediate families and a few very close friends.

After the ceremony the couple left for an unannounced honeymoon destination. Soon they will return to the home of the grooms parents from which they will leave for Madison Wis., where Lt. Ruddick has a furnished apartment awaiting them.

The Plantersville Eastern Star held their election of officers last Tuesday night. Worthy Matron Nell Warren, Worthy Patron Welch Roebuck, Associate Matron Thresa Gay, Associate Patron Robert E. Gay. Gladys M. Gay is the outgoing Worthy Matron.

News of an accident involving Agee Harrison of Montgomery, was distressing. "Bolly" was in a four lane highway riding a motorcycle and was making a left turn when an automobile struck him. The motorcycle going in one direction and Bully in the other. Bully was thrown on the hood of the car by the impact and then fell and the car ran over him. He is badly bruised and has several cuts on his body, but it is hoped that he is not seriously injured. Relatives from this section spent Monday with him in St. Margarets Hospital in Montgomery. They report that they think Bully will pull out of the accident alright unless complications set up.

Just learned that Mrs. Jim W. Gay returned to her home from Birmingham, Ala., late Tuesday and will not undergo surgery on her face at this time. Doctors in Birmingham decided to treat her and see if they couldn't clear up the suffering without surgery.

Rev. and Mrs. G. B. Golden will not return to Plantersville to live news. They are being sent by the at this time as stated in last weeks Methodist Conference to Camden, Ala., where they will make their home at present. This decision leaves Mrs. Ruby Harville with a nice, freshly redone apartment for rent in her home. We regret that the Goldens will not return to Plantersville to live, however we do wish them much happiness in their new location.

Things we -SEE- and Hear

by "Tuck"

Always did think Res Driver had the qualities of a good mind reader. We've been talking about him coming up an dscraping down some ruts and bumps around our parking place and darned if he didn't come without us even seeing him. We know he's no mind reader but he sure can drive a mean Caterpillar.

We always did agree with the ol[d] saying that some hoods are better than one, but not when they are on the same shoulders.

We know with the 4th of July week-end drawing near folks are going to be urged time and again about the need for safety on the highways. Of all the things we don't understand, we don't understand some drivers the most. It is distressingly noticeable that on the highways and in the towns, these days the number of maniacs is far too many. Maybe it's that, being human, we don't seem to be able to see our mistakes as well as the other fellas. We all make them, but why couldn't we all just as easily be courteous and careful. You can't write enough to encourage a person to be careful. It's just like drink; he'll have to want to do it himself. He'll regard his fellow motorists with as much courtesy as he would demand himself. No law, no highway patrolman, no rules and regulations will stop us from killing each other. We'll just have to realize it and then think of what we might do to eliminate it. It's like forest fires, only you can prevent it.

In case you're wondering if this years peach festival is going to be a success or not we'll tell you. It'll be a success if you're there. Anything is a success to you as long as you take a personal interest in it.

Had a visit from our good friend Ott Miller yesterday and it reminded us of the public spirit that we've been harping on for some time. There is not a man in the whole of our fair city, yes even our county that is more generous with his abilities or more interested in bettering himself and his neighbors than is Ott. I've heard different opinions of Mr. Ott, some good and some better and in my book he's as good as the best of them.

Like the fella said, "Any friendship you can buy, costs more than it's worth.

Lot of us have darn good reasons for having an inferiority complex.

Biggest And Best Peach Festival Will Get Under Way Tomorrow

The 1954 Chilton County Peach Festival gets under way at Clanton Airport Hangar Friday night

And entertainment the like of which Chilton County has never seen before is in store from them until Wednesday niht, June 30.

Pretty Peaches Possess Plenty Of Pulchitrude

From the looks of things, the five judges who select the queen of the 1954 Chilton County Peach Festival Friday night are in for a tough time. Here are some of the 35 girls who will compete in the queen's contest. They are shown as they attended a swimming party at Dr. Nix's Pond at Maplesville. The girls are, left to right, front row: Mary Griffin, Betty Vines, Sue Horton, Mary Lou Green, Patsy Young, Jo Ann Royal, Amelia Chism, Martha Bell, Virginia Littleton, Ardith Askins, Paula Nivens, Jerry Cobb and Peggy Rasberry. Back row: Bobbie Gray, Jean Thompson, Carol Pattillo, Dorothy Jones, Virginia Robinson, Wanda Shaw, Melba Littleton, Jeannene Childress, Evelyn Grant, Betty Jo Brown, Joyce Sewell, Norma Foshee, Annie Sue Walker and Faye Brown.

Peach Queen Judges Named

A panel of five judges representing as many Alabama colleges will select the 1954 Chilton County Peach Festival queen at Clanton Airport Hangar Friday night

The judges are:

Henry C. [illegible], Howard College Birmingham.

John F. Mars, Alabama [illegible] Montevallo.

Miss Lucretia Austin, Judson College, Marion.

Stuart Main, Birmingham Southern College, Birmingham.

Charles C. Turner, Jr. Huntingdon College, Montgomery.

The judges were chosen by Mrs. W. B. Crowell, chairman of the queen's committee

They will select three girls, first second and third place winners.

ONE JAILED IN HIGHWAY ACCIDENT

A negro man, Theodis Morten, Rt. 10, Box 294, Birmingham, Alabama was lodged in Chilton County jail Wednesday afternoon and charged with reckless driving.

Morten was attempting to pass a line of cars near Jemison when he met oncoming traffic In an attempt to get back into his line of traffic he sideswiped a coal truck driven by Pierre Austin Oates of Prattville and was overturned

One negro was injured in the accident. He was Elder Phillips of Birmingham. An ambulance carried him to a hospital there

State Highway Patrolmen [illegible] and Champion investigated.

DEMOCRATS—WAKE UP

The Democratic Party in Chilton County needs to take stock of itself before it is too late.

Such slack rules and regulations governing our party as has been practiced in the past need revising.

For instant we are sick to the pit of our stomach of so called democrats being afraid to take a stand on this issue or that issue because some Republican votes might be influenced one way or another.

Our contention is, and always has been, if you are a Democrat then speak out and say you are a Democrat and stand on the party's platform. If you are a Republican then the same rule applies.

There are entirely too many Republicans coming into our Democratic primaries when it is no concern of theirs who we nominate on the Democratic ticket to run against their "hand picked" candidate in the general election in November.

The Democratic Executive Committee has the power to stop this if they would only ask that Democrats declare themselves each two years.

We wish to commend the Democratic Executive Committee and their Chairman on the honest and conscientious way in which they decided the affairs of the party last Monday when the Democratic nominee for the office of Sheriff was named. It is cooperation among ourselves and our supporters who believe in fair elections that will win in November.

CO ONE STEP FURTHER

The Chilton County Democratic Executive Committee did the right thing Monday afternoon at a called meeting when they passed a Resolution condemning the lawlessness in Phenix City and the untimely death of Hon. Albert L. Patterson, however, they should go one step further.

The local Democratic Executive Committee should pass another Resolution calling on every God fearing man and woman in Chilton County to pledge themselves that no such thing ever occur here.

The Coosa River which has long been a mecca for residents of Chilton and surrounding counties could easily become a "gold coast" for gamblers and the like.

Let's see that it doesn't happen here.

SOME THINGS DON'T CHANGE

In the days when the horseless carriage was very new, a speed of 20 miles an hour was considered reckless. Indeed, any driver having the temerity to clatter down the road at such an unseemly pace was promptly slapped in jail.

And rightly so. Such a speed was dangerous on roads traveled mostly by harness horses whose top speed usually averaged around 12 miles an hour.

Times have changed. The harness horse has all but vanished from the Alabama road, and the descendants of the horseless carriage bear little resemblance to their ungainly ancestor.

But the principle that made 20 miles an hour a reckless speed in that slower-paced age is still around. It's the principle that speed must never be judged as a separate item. It must always be judged in relation to the conditions in which it operates.

Today we have a few roads smooth as marble and many automobiles capable of traveling at fantastic speeds. This has given many of us a false sense of what constitutes a safe speed. We seem to think that the existence of these two conditions—good road and good car—automactically sanctions absolute top speed.

Actually, there are any number of conditions, and combinations of conditions, that must be taken into consideration in determining a safe speed. An intelligent driver knows this. He selects his speed with the same good sense he uses in making his other day-to-day decisions—on the basis of all immediate conditions in which he finds himself.

Speed will never kill an intelligent driver, because he always travels at a speed that is safe for the conditions of road, weather, his vehicle and all others on the road with him, and his own physical and mental state. In a phrase, he will "slow down, and live."

LAST CHANCE TO PLANT 1954 COASTAL BERMUDA

Auburn, Ala.—Farmers who missed planting coastal berumda grass last spring have one more chance to get it in before the year is over.

Extension Agronomist J. C. Lowery says the crop may be set as soon as the summer rains begin. But he warns farmers to have a firm seedbed prepared and be ready to plant immediately after a shower when there is plentw of moisture in the ground. Grass planted on a freshly prepared seedbed ar good chance of dying before it can be established.

If coastal berumda follows a good crop of winter legumes, top-dress with 125 to 200 pounds of ammonium nitrate per acre or twice that amount of nitrate of soda. About twice as much nitrogen is needed where no winter legumes were turned.

SHADOW OF A PARTIAL ECLIPSE

Report from Washington

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

On Wednesday of last week the House approved legislation authorizing the disposal of $1.3 billion of farm surpluses abroad by our government over a period of three years.

As passed by the House, the bill authorizes the President to exchange $1 billion farm surpluses for foreign currencies, goods, and services over a three-year period. The monies to be acquired by this exchange will be spent abroad for strategic materials; for foreign economic and military aid programs, such as bases; and for loans to promote multilateral trade and economic development. These farm surpluses will come mainly from stocks acquired by the government under farm price supports. However, the House voted authority for exports of surpluses other than those now in federal storage.

ity for the President to use the ity to rthe President to use the remaining $300 million in surpluses for foreign emergency relief. This authority in no way restricts the President's unlimited power to use farm surpluses in relieving disasters at home.

This Administration-backed measure is designed to accomplish two purposes. First, to improve the foreign relations of the United States. Second, to isolate a large amount of farm surpluses in order to facilitate the application for flexible farm price supports.

There is serious doubt in the minds of many members of Congress as to whether the program of giving to other nations has made any permanent improvement in our foreign relations. Yet, there is no question but that the measure passed by the House last week will make it possible to remove some of our surplus farm commodities. Whether or not it will facilitate the application of flexible farm price supports is highly debatable. Not only is there strong opposition among many members of Congress to the application of flexible supports may well develop into a major floor fight before Congress adjourns.

When I was elected president of Washington's Alabama State Society almost a year ago, it was decided that the Society's final function of 1954 would be a chicken barbecue.

This barbecue was made possible last week by several Hale Countians interested in the broiler industry who shipped 300 broilers to the State Society were G. W. McKinney, Purina Feed dealer; Lewis Lawson, vice president of The Peoples Bank; C .O. Stephens, district manager of the Purina Feed Company; and L. N. Messengale, manager of the Messengale Poultry Processing Plant; all of Greensboro.

Besides contributing the main course, Hale county also furnished the "cooks" for the barbecue. Journeying up to Washington from Greensboro to prepare the chickens were two barbecue experts— John Deavours, county agent, and Clarence Lawson, tax assessor.

Included among the almost 500 Alabamians who attended were eight Alabama members of the House of Representatives and their wives. Congressman-nominate and Mrs. George Huddleston, Jr., of Birmingham were guests of the Society, and Rep. Lester Johnson of Wisconsin attended with Alabama friends Former 6th Distirct Congressman, Pete Jarman, and Mrs. Jarman were also present, as were former Congressman and Mrs. Carter Manasco.

All who came to the barbecue agreed that Alabama-grown chickens barbecued by Alabama "chefs" were the best they ever tasted.

Visiters from Clanton

It was a pleasure to see Judge and Mrs. Dave Tingle, and daughters of Clanton who stopped in Washington last week en route to New York.

Included among those attending the Alabama State Society barbecue last Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. John Higgins of Clanton and Miss Mary Ellen Higgins, formerly of Clanton and now residing in Washington

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama

THE FOURTH

Even though there is a law forbidding the sale of fireworks, many persons will get them illegally and give them to their children on the Fourth. Accidental burns, loss of sight, an arm, or a leg can be the result for some children because the law was broken.

The first real holiday of the summer months is usually marked with a rush to the beaches where children and adults alike spend hours in the sun. Over exposure in an attempt to get a tan too quickly is not wise. Sunstroke and sunburn are not pleasant conditions, and they result from not following a few rules of common sense.

The automobile is a convenient vehicle to take the family on a jaunt to the country, away from city heat. How many will arrive at their destination safely, because they attempted to get there too soon? Caution should be used on the roads. Speeding should be avoided, and certainly anyone driving a car should not drink.

Mental and physical alertness is necessary to avoid accident. Remember it may not be you but the other fellow who has taken the chance. Be ready so that you can avoid the accident.

Parents should also caution youngsters in other rules for playing safely. A bicycle, for example, should not be given to a child until he understands that he is being given a trust. Carelessness on the streets with bicycles has resulted in permanent injuries, even death, as well as weeks of illness through broken and crushed bones.

Holidays are intended for fun and recreation. Keep them so. Whatever your plans, include a little common sense so that you and your family will be intact to enjoy the next one.

LITTLE CHANGE IN UNEMPLOYMENT

Montgomery, Ala.—Little change was noted on the Alabama labor front during the month of May. "Unemployment insurance claims were heavy and job opportunities were limited," said Joe L. Coleman, Director of the Deaprtment of Industrial Relations. "Temporary layoffs and short work weeks continued to affect employment adversely," he said.

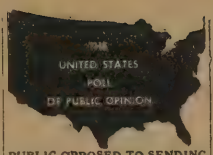
Usually in May new work applications show a marked increase. This May was no exception. At almost 13,000, new applications were approximately 1,700 above the year ago total.

An optimistic note was that for the third straight month the number of nonfarm job openings received and placements made by local Employment Service offices showed gains, as compared with the preceding month. As compared with May 1953, however, placements were substantially down.

A run-down on the unemployment situation in the state reveals that there was a healthy drop in initial claims for unemployment insurance during May. The May total of 15,753 was the lowest since November, but was 66 per cent higher than in May one year ago.

Money paid out in unemployment insurance totalled nearly two million dollars in May . . . a 15 per cent increase over the preceding month. This was more than double the amount paid out in May a year ago. There was a sizeable payment increase in the manufacturing division, a net gain over April of nearly 12,000 payments occurring principally in primary metals, transportation equipment, apparel, textiles and lumber.

Although payments to construction workers were off, they were considerably higher than one year ago.



PUBLIC OPPOSED TO SENDING U. S. TROOPS TO FIGHT IN INDO-CHINA BY 2 TO 1 VOTE

Princeton, New Jersey.— Public opinion in this country today is overwhelmingly opposed to sending American soldiers to fight in Indo-China..

Results of the latest United States Poll, completed less than 10 days ago, shows that seven out of every ten voters questioned in the survey are opposed to the idea of sending American soldiers to take part in the fighting in Indo-China.

Only one in five says he would approve.

In other words, those who are opposed to sending American soldiers to fight in Indo-China outnumber by a margin of better than three to one those who would favor such action.

When United States Poll staff reporters asked a representative cross-section of the nation's voters:

"The United States is now sending war materials to help the French fight the Communists in Indo-China. Would you approve or disapprove of sending U. S. soldiers to take part in the fighting there?"

These were the results:

NATIONWIDE
Approve	20%
Disapprove	72%
No opinion	8%

Four months ago—in mid-February—the vote on the same quuestion was approve 10 per cent; disapprove, 84 per cent; no opinion 6 per cent.

Today's findings thus represent a 10 per cent increase in approval, and a 12 per cent decrease in disapproval since the previous survey.

Survey findings show that higher proportions of Republicans and Democrats disapprove of sending U. S. soldiers to fight in Indo-China than do rank and file Independent voters.

Even among Independent, however, solid majority sentiment—three out of every five—disapprove of sending our troops to fight in Indo-China.

The vote by political party affiliation:

	Repub	Dem.	Inde.
Approve	73%	75%	60%
Disapprove	88	17	26
No opinion	5	8	14

Worthy of mention, too, is that opinion on the question of sending American boys to fight in Indo-China is highly uniform among all segments of the nation's population examined.

For example, at least three out of every five in each population group examined say that they would disapprove of sending U. S. soldiers to take part in the fighting in Indo-China.

And in no single group examined do more than 26 in each 100 say they would be in favor of doing so.

These groups include men and women, and people in all sections of the country, city sizes, age groups, occupations, and political parties.

Answers to a second question in today's survey show that the American public is also opposed to sending air and naval forces, but not ground forces, to help the French in Indo-China by a margin of about five to three.

"Would you approve or disapprove of sending air and naval forces but not ground forces to help the French in Indo-China?"

Approve	35%
Disapprove	54%
No opinion	11%

Statements made by high government officials in Washington over the past three weeks would indicate that the U. S. government does not intend to send American troops to fight in Indo-China at the present time.

Such statements, of course, do not rule out the possibility of the U. S. sending troops to fight in Indo-China at some future time.

FINAL APPROVAL FOR 5 DAMS

Montgomery, Ala.—Final Congressional approval has been given to a bill that would permit the Alabama Power Company to construct five dams on the Coosa River in Alabama and Georgia at an estimated cost of $100,000,000.

The bill now awaits the signature of President Eisenhower to become law. But before it can go ahead with the projects, the power company must get permission from the Feleral Power Commission.

Under the provisions of the bill the first dam would begin within one year, and APC President L. M. Smith has said the first one to be built probably will be located at Leesburg in Cherokee County.

In addition to Leesburg dams are planned for Lock 2, Howell Shoals, Columbiana and Wetumpka.

Smith said reservoirs created by the dams would be in Floyd County, Ga., and Elmore, Shelby, Talladega, St. Clair, Calhoun, Etowah and Cherokee Counties, Ala. The Leesburg Dam reservoir would be the largest covering approximately 35 square miles.

Sunday School 9:45 a.m.
Morning worship 11 a.m.
Evening worship 7:30 p.m.
Prayer meeting Wednesday 7:30 p.m.

At the evening service this coming Sunday we will continue consideration of the topics to be discussed at the meeting of the World Council of Churches. The subject will be "The Responsible Society in a World Perspective."

Lutheran Church —

Services will be conducted at 3 p.m. as usual next Sunday afternoon. Since the pastors are having their vacations now, we are not sure just who will be here next Sunday, but this we know, that you will hear a good sermon and that one of the three pastors will be here. Please plan to be with us, won't you.

The Women of the Church had a very delightful and a most inspiring meeting last Wednesday June 16th, when they were joined by the women of Christ church and Shades Valley church of Birmingham. The topic for discussion was "One World in Christ". Leading this discussion was Mrs. Lena Love. Mrs. Chas. Howard and Mrs. Nels Peterson. Mrs. Smith of Birmingham made an interesting talk on the World Council of churches, and Mrs. Nelson also gave a talk. After the program which was held in the church, the ladies went to the home of Mrs. Reagan, where delightful refreshments, furnished by members of the Concordia Society, were served to 35 ladies. All enjoyed the meeting very much.

VENIDA HAIRNET rules the waves!

Around OUR HOUSE

by Kathryn Tucker Windham

Right now the five-year-old is in the process of rearing what promises to be the world's most well-mannered turtle.

The turtle, name of Timothy, was picked up beside the road and brought home in an empty ice cream carton which happened to be handy in the car at the time. At home, he was moved into an apple box with a pan of water, a big rock and a bunch of grass.

The seven-year-old and the five-year-old consulted the encyclopedia and decided that raw hamburger would make a proper meal for Timothy.

Soon after the hamburger was placed in Timothy's box, the five-year-old called excitedly from the back porch:

"Mother! Bring a napkin quick. Timothy has some hamburger on his chin, and I want to wipe it off for him."

It isn't every little that uses a napkin!

THE neighbor around the corner, the one who has been busy redecorating her kitchen, finally succeeded in getting her husband to build her some narrow shelves on the inside of her pantry door. The new shelves take up no needed room, but provide her with lots of extra storage space.

She's especially glad to have some where to put her trays and tops of her pots and pans. Wide strips of elastic held in place with thumb tacks were stretched across the door between the shelves where support for big trays was needed.

When we stopped by to admire the new shelves, this neighbor was putting a strip of waterproof adhesive tape around the top edge of her white enamel garbage pail, brand new, of course.

"The tape will keep the enamel around the top from chipping," she explained, "And since it is waterproof, I can wash it every time I scrub the garbage paid."

THE next door neighbor has had shelves on the backs of several of her closet doors for a long time to hold the old magazines she saves.

She has found that most doors can hold five such shelves, giving room for even the tall magazines. She nails strips of plywood at shelf-level and between the shelves to keep the magazines upright.

THIS neighbor, systematic soul that she is, writes the titles and page numbers of the articles she's interested in on the covers of the magazines she saves. When she wants to refer to something she has read, she doesn't waste time thumbing through the magazine in search of the elusive articles, not this neighbor.

Her system works fine in a childless household, but around our house the seven-year-old, the five-year-old and the one-year-old leave mighty few magazine articles intact.

OUR good cook neighbor brought over a tuna salad loaf the other noon that was so good we had to have the recipe. Here it is:

Soften 1 envelope unflavored gelatine in 1-2 cup cold water. Add 1-2 cup boiling water and stir until gelatine dissolves. Add 1 tablespoon lemon juice and 1-2 teaspoon salt and chill until slightly thickened. Combine one 7-ounce can solid pack tuna, 1-2 cup finely chopped celery, 2 tablespoons chopped sweet pickles, 2 tablespoons chopped pimiento, 3-4 cup cottage cheese, 1-2 cup mayonnaise and 1 tablespoon finely chopped onion. Mix well with gelatine mixture and chill until firm.

NEW HARMONY

We had good crowds over the week end. Our pastor was with us and brought some inspiring messages. We had our baptismal service Sunday afternoon. Seven were baptized, and four united with the church Sunday night.

Bro. John Castleberry of Wetumpka preached for us Sunday. Other visitors to our church were our State Overseer, Bro. Luther Lumpkin of Talladega. Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Nelson and girls, Mrs. W. J. Nickols and boys, Thurston and Willie. We are always glad to have visitors.

A-3c A. J. Smitherman left Tuesday going back to camp. Lets not forget to pray for our boys in service.

Revs. Luther Lumpkin and John Castleberry had Sunday dinner with Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Littleton.

Bro. Herbert Misseldine and wife had Sunday dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Audis Littleton.

Remember church and Sunday Schol over the week end and prayer meeting on Wednesday night. Come and be with us.

It's Time All Dogs Was... Vaccinated

Dr. C. F. Gaines announces that all dogs 3 months of age and older are required by law to be vaccinated against rabies. We have had several cases of rabies in the last 12 months, in all parts of the county. We think this is due largely to lack of dog vaccination.

Due to the fact that we have had several cases of rabies in the county, we will have to enforce the law to the fullest extent. Your cooperation to meet these clinics and get your dog vaccinated will be greatly appreciated. It should be of personal interest to each individual to aid in elimination of rabies by having their dog vaccinated.

Below is a list of places where the clinics will be held. The price will be $1.00 per dog until September 1st, then it will be $2.00. Please meet at your most convenient place.

DIXIE DIVISION RETURNED TO DIXIE

Montgomery, Ala. — The 31st (Dixie) Division, gallant fighting unit, once again belongs to Alabama and Mississippi.

The National Guard Division which was called to federal duty after the outbreak of hostilities in Korea, has officially been returned to the two states.

That took place on June 15 at Camp Carson, Colo., when the division's colors were turned over to a representative of the states

Alabama already had its units back in all but name. For some time the state has been operating companion units and all that was required to restore the 31st to the state was to return the colors and by proper orders make the units a part of the division

At the time the Dixie Division was returned to Alabama the unit on federal duty was redesignated the 8th Division.

And with the return of the colors the state honored Maj. Gen. Harry J. Collins, commander, by awarding him the Distinguished Service Medal of the State of Alabama.

In the general order awarding the medal General Collins was called "a master in developing men into the type soldiers who have had the courage, confidence, inspiration and training to discharge their most sacred and honorable duty when called upon to meet a deadly enemy."

Sunbeam Meeting—

The Sunbeams met Wednesday, June 16, at the home of their counselor, Mrs. Junior Moore. After the program, games were played and refreshments were served to the following: Cris Davis, Linda Sorrell, Donnie Bryant, Clara Mae and Coral Ann Thomas, Aledene and Carolyn Cagle, Faye and Sammy Robinson, Mike Moore, Bobby Taylor, Carolyn Taylor and a visitor, Patricia Jones.

The next meeting will be Wednesday, June 30.

Bro. Atcheson is still in the meeting at the Cotton Mill Village. He says the meetings have been wonderful and extends a very cordial invitation to everyone to meet them there each night at 7:30.

Everyone keep in mind the book, "Thus it is Written," will be taught Monday night, June 28, at the Chestnut Creek Baptist Church by Mrs. J. W. Johnson, Associational Young Peoples Director. If you have not heard this book taught you are invited to come hear it with us.

Mrs. Bill D. Vance is visiting her children in Elmore County this week.

Miss Bettie Jinks of Key West, Fla., is spending the summer here with Mr. and Mrs. Junior Moore and her grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Culver She plans to enter school at the University of Alabama this fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Robinson of Clanton, Mr. and Mrs. Truman Thrash and children of South Carolina and Mrs. Agnes Ellison of Selma spent last Tuesday with Mr. and Mrs. John Boswell.

Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Culver had as their week end guests Mr. and Mrs. George Culver of Birmingham.

Mrs. Annabelle Jones spent Sunday with Mrs. Maybelle Adams. They attended church services at the Mill Village Sunday evening.

We are sorry to hear that Mrs Ethyl Patterson is sick and hope to see her up and about again soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Buster Sansom of Birmingham spent the week end here with Mrs. Sansom's mother, Mrs. Bessie Driver.

Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. McKinney were Mr. and Mrs. Joe Marcus of Clanton, Mrs. Chester Culver of Verbena, Mr. and Mrs. Luther Cannon of Ensley Highlands, Birmingham, and Mrs. Lorraine Wallace and Mr. Jack Trakenbuhl, also of Birmingham.

Miss Billie Ruth Litaker, John Ed Bates Are Wed In Chestnut Creek Church—

Miss Billie Ruth Litaker of Birmingham and John Ed Bates of Clanton were married at 8:00 p. m Saturday at Chestnut Creek Baptist Church. The Rev. Hymon Atcheson officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Litaker of Birmingham. Parents of the bride-groom are Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bates of Clanton.

An arch covered with ivy formed the back ground for the nuptial setting which was centered with 2 white standard of white gladiola, palms, and ferns. White Cathedral tapers burned in the two seven-branched candelabra and cast a soft glow over the wedding scene. Placed before the altar was a prayer bench covered with white satin. The family pews were marked with white satin bows.

Miss Bobbie Gray, pianist, presented a program of pre-nuptial music and played the traditional wedding march. Joe Douglas Grooms sang "Because," and as the couple met for the benediction he sand "The Lord's Prayer."

The candles were lighted by Dewey Clyde Cooper, cousin of the bride.

Miss Betty Jones, the bride's sister, was matron of honor. She wore an aqua dress of tulle over taffeta with Chantilly lace bodice.

Bridesmaid was Miss Frances Floyd and brides matron, Mrs. Larada Roper. Their dresses were like that of the honor matron, but in pink. All dresses were ankle length.

The attendants carried bouquets of pink carnations.

Sandra Cooper, the brides cousin, was flower girl. She wore an aqua taffeta dress with tulle overskirt.

Mr. Litaker gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a satin, ankle-length dress with tulle overskirt, edged in chantilly lace. The short sleeved bodice had a yoke of illusion, also bordered with a lace ruffle.

The illusion veil fell from a head piece of Chantilly lace trimmed with sequins and seed pearls. The bride carried a white Bible marked with a white orchid.

Mr. Bates was best man for his son. Ushers were Dalton Cooper and George D. Cooper, uncles of the bride.

The bride's mother wore a navy and white silk dress with matching accessories. The mother of the bride groom wore a pink dress with white accessories. Both mothers had white carnation corsages.

After a wedding trip to Chattanooga and the Smoky Mountains, Mr. and Mrs. Bates will make their home in the Henley Apartments on the Selma Road.

MR. J. I. CREW HONORED ON FATHERS DAY

It was a happy Father's Day for Mr. J. I. Crew when all of his children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren honored him Sunday with a surprise family reunion at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Crew.

It was a great thrill for Mr. Crew when his eight children, their families and many other relatives and friends paid tribtue to him on Fathers Day.

His sons and daughters are Mr. Dewey Crew, Mrs. Alf Barner (Sadie), Mr. Herman Crew, Mr. J. B. Crew, of Tallassee, Mr L. J. Crew of Tallassee, Mrs George Smith, (Clara), Mr. Raybon Crew, and Mrs. Melvin Powell (Lottie). Twenty grand children and thirteen great-grand children were present. Sixty-two relatives and friends were present in all.

A bountiful picnic dinner was served from a picnic table on the lawn. It was centered with a huge basket containing Fathers Day gifts and carried the inscription "Happy Fathers Day". Miss Willie Holly of Birmingham, a cousin of Mr. Crew, gave grace.

Friends present for this lovely occasion were Miss Patsy Hayes, Mrs. Varden, and Mrs. Hissler.

In the afternoon Mr. Semmie Scott took group pictures.

LOCAL BOY SCOUTS ATTEND SCOUT CAMP

The largest group from Clanton ever to attend a Boy Scout Camp was Troop 57 which attended the scout meeting last week at Camp Tuckabatchee near Prattville. Ten of the fourteen members spent six happy days participating in swimming, boating, rifle target practice and many other healthful sports. They also learned handicrafts such as wood carving and Indian bead weaving.

However, it was not all play for the scouts because amid the recreation are classes they were working to win their scout badges. John Hollis Jackson, Eddie Morris, C. C. Craig jr. and Marvin Vickers Jr. all succeeded in winning their life saving and swimming merit badges, the pro marksman and marksman badges. In addition to the above John Hollis Jackson won the other star scout badge. He was also elected to the order of the arrow by the members of his troop and was inducted at a ceremony Thursday night.

Other members attending the scout camp were Norman Roberts, Lucky Rawlins, Roy Messer, Ronny Rogers, Randy Rockett, and Roy Price. Rev. Don Esty, the troop leader, Mr. B. L. Adams, and Mr. Lewis Walker, explorer advisor for the group, visited the camp several days. Other visitors during the week were Mr. and Mrs. Claude C. Craig and Mr. and Mrs. Hollis Jackson

ADVENTIST CHURCH NEWS

Sabbath School 9:45 a.m. Our preaching service to follow. Sermon topic: "He Came to His Own and His Own Received Him Not."

For thousands of years the Jews looked for the coming of the Messiah. The millions of bleeding lambs offered on their sacrificial altars were fortelling that the Lamb of God would come and die for the sins of men. At long last their Messiah did come "and they knew him not." What is the explanation? Their entire religious system drifted into a continual routine of legal worship and their priests had no message for the times. The prophecies and their fulfillment had no place in their preaching. Jesus said unto their religious leaders, "thou knowest not the time of thy visitation." Daniel had foretold, "Know therefore and understand that from the time of the going forth of the commandment to restore and build Jerusalem, unto Messiah the Prince shall be seven weeks threescore and two weeks." Dan. 9:25. When that time prophecy ran out, the Messiah was here, but their religious leaders "knew not the time." We are living those days over again. The prophecies are many explaining these "perilous times" in which we live. But the modern pulpit is totally silent concerning these prophecies and all it is being done that can be done to keep their members from going to where they can be heard. The coming of the Lord to all such will be "as a thief in the night".

ALLEN WALKER, Pastor.

GATEWAY TO GOD
By M. K. Vickers

Prayer is the Christian's greatest resource and the one least used. It is his greatest obligation and the one most neglected. It is the most neglected. It is the most common form of devotion, yet the one least understood. Prayer is the gateway to God's presence, but few enter, but in most lives it is clogged. Many Prayer is the channel of God's grace requires prayer as the condition of regard prayer as optional, but God His working, and where there is no prayer there is no power.

The ground of prayer is personal relationship to God All men are created by God, but not all are His children. God has proclaimed to the world, "This is my beloved Son: hear him." If men refuse to hear Him, God refuses to hear them. Until the natural man receives Christ the only prayer God surely answers is the prayer of the publican: "God be merciful to me a sinner."

Prayer is the source of power from on high. Jesus said: "He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto my Father." What amazing bestowal of power that we should do the miraculous works of Jesus; much less "greater works." Jesus explains it when he said: "Because I go unto my Father." In performing these greater works, the channel of God's grace is the fervent, effectual prayers of those who have access into the holiest by the blood of Jesus.

Prevailing prayer is grounded on faith. Where faith is lacking, Jesus did not many mighty works there because of their unbelief." Jesus said, "All things are possible to him that believeth." Many times Jesus revealed that the power of prayer is only limited by faith, as when He said: "What things soever ye desire, when ye pray, believe that ye receive them, and ye shall have them." Prayer is the cure of anxiety. With the heritage which is ours in Christ Jesus we need no longer be concerned about the lack of material things, for Jesus assured us that "Your Father knoweth what things ye have need of." The burden of our prayers should be for spiritual gifts that God may be glorified for Jesus said, "If ye, then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children: how much more shall your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them that ask Him?"

Prayer is essential to fulfilling the Great Commission. The need of prayer in making known the gospel was revealed by Jesus when He admonished His disciples, "Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth laborers into his harvest." God uses human agencies to evangelize the world and requires the prayer of faith to empower them for this service. If the world is not evangelized in our generation, it will be for lack of prayer.

Prayer is communion with God. God made man in His image, after His likeness, that he might have communion with him. When the image was marred by sin the bond of fellowship was broken, but when the image is restored in Christ, we are also restored to fellowship with the Father and with the Son. Communion with God in prayer is the Christian's highest privilege.

The highest office of prayer is the ministry of intercession. When Christ died upon the cross he interceded for us. Jesus, who "loved us," and washed us from our sins in his own blood... hath made us kings and priests unto God and his Father" and committed unto us the ministry of reconciliation "Now then we are ambassadors for Christ, as though God did beseech you by us: we pray you in Christ's stead, be ye reconciled to God.

Through the gateway of prayer may we enter into the very presence of God.

BYKOTA S. S. CLASS MET WITH EVELYN WINDHAM

The Bykota or the Be Ye Kind One to Another Sunday School class of the First Baptist Church met with Evelyn Windham at her home Monday night, June 21. The living room was lovely with arrangements of summer flowers. The dining room table was centered with a bouquet of beautiful home grown gladioli in a huge array of many colors.

The devotional was given by Dot Lord. She chose for her subject, "The Christian Home." Her scripture reading was taken from Matthew 18:5-10. She closed with a prayer.

Evelyn Windham, vice-president, was in charge of the business session during which time class prospects and absentees were discussed.

A social hour followed the business meeting. Delicious ice cream and cake were served by the hostess to the following members: Harriet Wyatt, Nell Mullins, Irma Durbin, Elizabeth Norris, Ruth Bulger, Nell Powers, Bill Wyatt, Dot Lord, and Ann Coppinger. Nell Mullins, the teacher, dismissed with prayer

Fishing has been good and spotty on all Coosa-Tallapoosa Lakes during the past week. Heavy hatches of willow flies and many scattered showers are responsible for the renewed activity in some areas. Wherever you see willow flies on the overhanging trees there are willow grubs nearby, and this offers a great attraction to the Bass and Bream and by carefully fishing these locations one is likely to have very good luck. Also the cooling showers are washing insects from the woods into the water along with a certain amount of silt that stains just enough to make prospects best.

J. E. Easterling, Clanton, fished the river sloughs of Lake Lay and hung a nice Bass last Wednesday just at dark but lost him in the weeds. Bright and early the next morning J. E. returned to attend to some unfinished business and hooked a nice Bass weighing over 4 pounds. He didn't know for sure whether or not this was the same Bass hooked the day before but J. E. was willing to settle for the one he caught. Dr. J. L. Bennett, Clanton, has had very good luck with Bass and Bream lately. He sets out for one or the other species and usually comes in with the creel limit. Last week Dr. Bennett fished Lake Lay on two occasions and highly recommends it to those interested.

Lake Lay is stained at this time but offers good prospects to those willing to work a little and hunt them down. This is the time of year when skill and know-where counts the most. Ask your boat dock operator for information on local conditions.

Lake Mitchell is clear except for some of the tributaries. Prospects are good here too, if you hunt a little. Several good catches were made last week by trolling deep. Ruben Lowe picked up some nice Stripes and Crappie from Walnut Creek. Mrs. Lee Smith says that she believes fishing is good on Bird Creek every other day. This sounds logical coming from one that fishes most every day, but the catch is this she didn't say what the prospect were for today.

Lake Jordan is pretty and clear. Drum, Stripes and Largemouth Bass are being caught in the upper reaches of the lake on willow grubs. On down the lake flies and plugs are taking Bream and Smallmouth Bass. Shoals, Weoka and Sofkahatchee Creeks are in fine shape. Id prospects are above the average on these early and late hours of the day.

Lake Martin's Blue and Kowaliga Creeks have been only fair pickins' for the fisherman during the past few days. Several nice catches have been made lately but fishing is a little slow for the occasional visitor at this time. Bass and Bream are the main attractions on Lakes Martin and Yates, and those that know the lakes are having the best luck.

Fishing Contest entries were few and far between this week. Lake Jordan fishing camps are the only ones responding and they are as follows:

Mrs. J. R. Gibson, Manager, Blackwell's Fishing Lodge, Shoals Creek, near Holtville, reports: Jack Nixon, Deatsville, use da casting Nixon, Deatsville, used a casting mouth Bass from Shoals Creek. Jack's Whopper was 7 pounds, 9 ounces. Damon Marvel, Elmore, flipped a firefly to the right spot to snag a 4 pound, 10 ounce Smallmouth Bass. W. O. Bush, Dothan, tried a Joe's Grasshopper in Shoals Creek and did well with the Bluegills. His best catch weighed in at 9 ounces.

Joe Smith, Log Cabin Beach, near the Rockford Ferry on Highway 22, reports: G. L. Moore, Sterrett, Alabama, cleaned up with the Drum and Stripes from the upper reaches of Jordan. His best Stripe was 2 pounds, 8 ounces.

CHIEF ALAPOCO SAYS: Every boat has its limitations. Learn what you can expect from your boat.

9 Chiltonians Visit Aboard USS Chilton

LITTLE CREEK, Va., June 14—(Special to The Chilton County News)—A reunion was held today—a reunion between nine men from Chilton County, Alabama, and a United States warship that has proudly borne that County's name throughout the world.

The nine Chiltonians are all members of the Third 105mm. Howitzer Battalion, Birmingham's Marine Reserve Unit that meets every other Sunday at 1500 at Graymont Ave. They are here at Little Creek, Va., with the Alabama unit, participating in two weeks of summer training.

The warship is the USS Chilton, an attack transport with a colorful 12 year history, that is docked at the nearby Norfolk Navy Base.

The nine Marines, privates all, visited the big ship through the joint efforts of the Third 105mm. Howitzer Battalion and the executive officer of the Chilton, who is himself the son of a native and former resident of Chilton County.

So despite the fact that none of these nine young Marines had ever seen this proud ship before, this event was indeed a reunion. For these men were the representatives of one of the few counties in the nation ever to have been picked as the namesake for a ship of the U. S. Navy, an honor usually reserved for states. Chilton County was taking a look at its ship.

For those who might have forgotten, Chilton County was singled out for this honor in 1943 in recognition of being the first county in the nation to meet its War Bond quota. Formerly known as the USS Sea Needle, this ship became the USS Chilton on May 29, 1943.

The nine Chiltonians visiting "their" ship included: Privates Bobby J. Davis, Bernell E. Heniey, Norman L. West Jr.; Alton R. Mims, James L. Traywick, Charles A. Hay, Jerrell N. Tatum, Gifton E. Rush, and James L. Roberts. All nine hail from Clanton, Ala., county seat of Chilton County.

Accompanied by Cpl. Wise D. Stewart, their drill instructor; Major James L. Dent, commanding officer of the Birmingham Reserve Unit; Lt. Col. J. E. King and Warrant Officer Harold Wilson, both Marine instructors on duty with the Third 105mm. Howitzer Battalion in Birmingham, the nine Chilton County representatives journeyed to the USS Chilton by bus from Little Creek this morning.

Welcoming the Alabama Marines aboard the big ship was Commander Harold J. Kicker, the ship's executive officer. The young Chiltonians were visibly pleased when Commander informed them that his father, Mr. J. M. Kicker, had been born and raised in Chilton County. There was several minutes of "Alabama and Chilton County" talk before the visitors began their guided tour of the ship.

The guests were soon impressed with the fact that the operation of a ship of war is a major undertaking. The tour included stops at the troop debarkation stations, the communications shack, the engine and boiler room, and the bridge where the Leathernecks got a captain's eye view of the ship.

The tour was topped off with dinner in the ship's chow hall. The honored guests sat down to a steaming meal of fried ham, string beans, mashed potatoes, lettuce and tomato salad, iced tea, and apple pie. Here the Chiltonians got an opportunity to meet some of the sailors who man the ship.

Following dinner the nine Chiltonians assembled on the quarter deck of the ship and on hand to see them off was Commander Kicker. As souvenirs of their visit the young Leathernecks were given printed copies of the ship's eventful history.

Briskly saluting the officer of the deck and the ship's flag, the visiting Marines filed off the big ship. With a backward glance to Commander Kicker, one of the nine was heard admonishing the executive officer, "We certainly enjoyed it, Commander, and please take good care of our ship."

NEW LIBRARIAN TAKES OVER DUTIES

Montgomery, Ala.—Miss Evelyn D. Mullen of Roanoke Rapids, N. C., has taken over her new duties as director of the State Public Library Service.

It marks the first time since January that the Library Service has had a permanent director.

Miss Mullen succeeded Mrs. Gretchem Scneuck of Summerdale who has been holding the job in the capacity of acting director.

The position became vacant Jan. 1, when Mrs. Lois Rainer Green's resignation became effective. The new director was named by the PLS Board.

Credit Bureau of Clanton announces the inclusion of the signal credit system

EFFECTIVE JULY 1, 1954

THE PURPOSE:

The purpose of the Signal Credit System is to standardize and clarify credit information and to widen the range of credit buying. It was NOT designed to work a hardship on anyone, but to protect both the purchaser and the merchant.

The function of the Signal-Credit System is two-fold:

FIRST: To widen the range of credit buying to sound credit risk without subjecting the customer to embarrassing delays and inconvenience, and SECOND: To enable both the buyer and the sellers of goods and services to enjoy the mutual benefits of sound credit responsibiilty.

Signal Credit System

Green — SIGNIFIES GO! Your Credit is Good

Amber — SIGNIFIES CAUTION! You May Be Endangering Your Credit.

Red — SIGNIFIES STOP! Action becomes Necessary to Maintain Your Good Credit Record.

Under this system the customer is assured of a fair and impartial credit rating. HE RATES HIMSELF. Ample time is allowed him to adjust his account before his credit standing is endangered.

Religion Vs. Environment

"And Manaen, which had been brought up with Herod the tetrarch." Act 13:1.

In the Bible you will often find the record of facts that are borne out by undeniable evidence, but for which the Bible offers no explanation. Consequently in such a case we read the record, but have to draw our own conclusions about a certain man that is hard to believe; that knocks into smithereens the theory that environment alone is responsible for the shaping of one's character and consequently success or failure. From the sociological viewpoint Manaen should never have amounted to a row of pins. But we shall see.

Manaen's name appears only once in the Bible, and here it is, in one clause of one sentence; "and Manaen, which had been brought up with Herod the tetrarch." They were playfellows—Herod the prince, and Manaen a peasant lad. Look at them in the backyard of the palace for a moment, and guess the future of each, if you can.

Herod the tetrarch (Antipas) was the son of Herod the Great. His mother was an ambitious woman who craved prominence, who gave more time to politics and travel and speechmaking than to the raising of her son, thereby contributioning to his becoming a wholly immoral person and adulterer and murderer Smart? Yes, but possessed with the wrong kind of smartness. Jesus spoke of him as a coward, a man of superstitious cunning. (Go and tell that fox," etc. Luke 13:32.) In a word, he was a logical product of a corrupt environment. What else could you expect?

So much for the power of environment But look again. "And Manaen, the foster-brother of Herod the tetrarch." What do we know about him? Only this, that something happened to him in his young adulthood that in spite of environment, changed the entire course of his life—a miracle requiring as much power as it would take to turn the Mississippi River upstream. All the influences of evil environment were torn to shreds. A supervening power had entered the scene. Manaen has become a humble follower of Jesus Christ, and has allied himself with the persecuted group of Christians, later to become in the mertopolitan city of Antioch one of the six leaders of the mightiest movement of all time.

There is a well-known expression in our Reformed Theology—"invincible grace." It means that the mercy and power of God form a combination in the penitent's interest that brooks no obstacles. In that power and in that alone lies the answer to every evil force, organized or unorganized, that assails the moral or spiritual, or even physical welfare of any individual, or community, or nation. That is the explanation of the outcome of Manaen's life as contrasted with the tragic end of his boyhood companion on the palace lawn. Proper environment, created by human skill, is helpful. But without God even improved environment fails to meet humanity's ultimate need. Only invincible grace can do that.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

The "Write" Prescription

Noticed three half-finished letters lying on the counter down at Jones' Drug Store last week. "Writing three at once, Doc?" I asked.

"No," Doc said, "you are—you and the rest of the town. These are for the boys from our town who are at the National Guard encampment.

"Everyone who comes in adds a line or two, and when a couple of pages are filled, I mail them. That way the boys hear from folks who might not write otherwise. They sure do enjoy it."

From where I sit, little things can add up pretty big. A few short notes make a letter. Boys from our little town help build up a strong National Guard to protect our freedom. Even freedom is made up of a lot of things—living where we like, voting the way we think is right, choosing between coffee, tea, or beer at dinner. And anything that adds up to freedom gets my stamp of approval.

Mrs. Robert Latham remains in a Selma hospital. She had an operation on her leg and is doing well at this writing.

Mrs. Walter Lawley received a letter from her son. Willard, Monday saying that he is on his way home from overseas and would see everyone soon.

Mrs. Harvey Grover received a letter from her son, Sherwood, saying that he arrived in San Antonio, Texas, and that he is liking the Air Force fine and would like for all his friends to write to him.

The June meeting of the WMU was held at Mrs. John Foshee's home on June 17 at 2 o'clock. The hymn of the month was, God Be With You Till We Meet Again. The devotional was taken from Psalm 86:11-17. The members answered the roll call with a new flower they had grown. Making cottage cheese was the demonstration, and the thought for the month was, It Is Only The Great Hearted Who Can Be True Friends.

A great number of the members were present vice conditions long existent in Phenix City and have not seen fit to use to the utmost the authority committed to them to rid Phenix City and Alabama of this vicious and lawless element which would spill the innocent blood of God-fearing men and women in the streets of our towns and cities, and,

WHEREAS, the law-abiding and honest men and women of Chilton County and Alabama have reached that point in the affairs of men where our Democracy is on trial and where they must fight for the inalienable right to serve God humbly, to espouse law and order, and to practice honesty, decency and morality in their daily pursuits of life, liberty and happiness, or to surrender their lives and the processes of our government to the ways of the gangster, the murderer and to those who would corrupt the morals and souls of men, women and children for money, and,

WHEREAS, by this latest brutal crime gamblers and vice lords of the underworld hav challenged the strength and power of the State, County and city governments and dared the might of good men and women throughout Alabama.

THEREFORE, be it RESOLVED that the Chilton County Democratic Executive Committee does hereby respectfully urge, plead and petition the Governor of Alabama, the Attorney General, Court officials of whatsoever rank and all law enforcement agencies of Alabama to take positive and immediate steps to apprehend the criminal who ruthlessly took the life of Albert L. Patterson and to cooperate with men and women of good will everywhere in bringing to justice the criminals who by their deeds have brought disgrace to the fair name of Alabama and shame to our people, and be it further

RESOLVED, that we call upon all good people of whatsoever race, color or creed to unite their efforts in support of the authority of our constituted officials, so that in future years men and women of good report, men and women of good will and men and women whose only defense is the "right" will no longer have to die by gangsters bullets because they dared to strive for a decent way of life; and be it further

RESOLVED, that we respectfully call to the attention of the State Democratic Executive Committee that our great democratic institutions are on trial by the issues in this tragedy and that the good men and women who direct their policies and the great hodre of democratic privates in the rear ranks will not further tolerate the rule of corruptionists and gangsters, directly or indirectly, in Phenix City or elsewhere in the State of Alabama. We further respectfully and humbly suggest to the Democratic Executive Committee that in the designation of the Party's nominee for Attorney General of Alabama that due consideration and regard be given to the issues in the most recent primary elections for the office of Attorney General and that our Party consider only applicants who are dedicated to the high purposes and ideals of our Party and to those of Albert L. Patterson who has just lost his life in defense of these principles and ideals, and be it further

RESOLVED, that we, the Democratic Executive Committee of Chiltonton County, express to the widow and bereaved family of Albert L. Patterson our deepest and sincerest sympathy in their great sorrow which is theirs today and lament with them the irreparable loss which all of us feel so keenly and which our State has suffered in the passing of a great Alabamian who dared to do right and to live right as God had given him the right to see, therefore be it further

RESOLVED, that a copy of this resolution be immediately directed to the family of Albert L. Patterson and copies be mailed forthwith to the following: Governor of Alabama, Attorney General, Chairman of the State Democratic Executive Committee, the Montgomery Advertiser, The Birmingham News, The Birmingham Post-Herald, the Chilton County News, the Union-Banner and the news gathering agencies of Alabama.

READ, INTRODUCED AND ADOPTED, this the 21st day of June, 1954.

BIGGEST AND BEST PEACH FESTIVAL

Then Harold L. Foshee, president of the Chilton County Chamber of Commerce, sponsors of the festival, and J. Archie Ogburn, publicity chairman and father of the festival, will introduce the dignitaries.

An address by Judge R. B. Carr, presiding judge, Alabama Court of Appeals, will bring this program to a close.

Following the morning main ceremony, a barbecue will be held at City Park at 12:30 p.m., and this will be followed by American Legion baseball games starting at 1:30 p.m. Clanton plays Talladega and Columbiana plays Childersburg. The two winners then meet in a third.

A battle of quartets will ring down the curtain on the 1954 festival when the Blackwood Brothers and The Statesmen lock horns starting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, June 30, and lasting until everybody leaves.

"It's going to be a big time in Chilton County from Friday night through next Wednesday night. Y'all come.

PAYTON THANKS COUNTY VOTERS

R. Odell Payton, Democratic nominee for the office of Sheriff thanked the voters and the Democratic Executive Committee this week for the votes he received and for the nomination by the Committee.

Payton said: "I hold no ill will toward anyone and humbly ask for your support and cooperation this Fall that we may have honest law enforcement with no favoritism to any community, party, or person."

Payton again expressed his thanks to the people who supported him and repeated his vow that, if elected, his only aim was to be the best sheriff that Chilton County has ever had.

RECIPROCAL TRADE AGREEMENTS ACT

WASHINGTON. — Senator Lister Hill (D-Ala.) today called President Eisenhower's failure to press for a three-year extension of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act, as recommended by his own Randall Commission, "a blow to our foreign trade."

"It shows," Hill said, "the extent to which the high tariff advocates have gained control of the Administration."

"Ever since the Administration took office," Hill said, "we have heard its spokesmen lamenting the loss of our foreign markets and proclaiming the need to increase our foreign trade. But while they have talked, our foreign trade has further declined." Hill continued:

"Under the Reciprocal Trade Program we have been successful over the past twenty years in expanding our foreign trade and opening up new markets for the products of our agriculture and our industry. Even with the sharp drop in agricultural exports since the present Administration took office the United States is still exporting a large percentage of its cotton, cotton textiles and other cotton products." Hill added:

"Alabama's export trade includes iron and steel and foundry products, structural metal and clay products, heating and cooking equipment, machinery and many other products of our mills and factories. Cotton fabric exports alone amount to an esitmated 30 million dollars a year. Alabama's exports of lumber and other forest products are great."

"A strong, healthy international trade is vital to the nation's economic strength and security and to the maintenance and building of world peace," Hill declared.

PRIZE DAD . . . Paul G. Hoffman, industrialist and former ECA head, was named "Father of the Year" by national father's day committee. He's parent of 5 boys and 2 girls.

Things we -SEE- and Hear

by "Tuck"

Almost with the exception of one of us we think our job is the absolute toughest of any of them. I've never watched Joe Smith change a tire, or Ralph Johnson fill a prescription, or one of the Carter boys work on a radio or TV, or Sleepy Miller work on a car, or any of the other folks in town their way do you know who's is the toughest. Nobody's is toughest, we just like for the other fellow to know we work hard. It's interesting to try to figure another fellow out, and besides there is too much judging before you know anything. You don't have to work with your back all day to work hard, working at a job that is a skill or one that requires concentration is as tiring if not more so than the strong arm jobs. Because you don't see a man work is no right of way to say he has it soft. If he actually does it soft then you can bet your boots he worked his head off getting there. So next time someone says, "there goes John Doe, he never hits a lick at a snake," think about whether or not this guy really knows what he's talking about. Truth of the matter is, it's usually the good for nothings or the ones who really don't work hard that try to pick out the folks who do or don't work and they're usually way off the beam. The other man's life is no more peaches and cream than yours even though it appears to be. Remember that and be satisfied when you start envying another man.

All this talk about who eats Chilton County peaches and we've yet to hear a mention about all those we put away ourselves.

Noticed a unique little sign in front of Ellis' Tourist Court one night last week. It's a statue of a little negro boy and he's holding the hose in one hand and watering the lawn. Pretty ingenious too, it moves it's arms around so you don't have to move it yourself.

If you admit your faults openly to the fellow who wants to argue, you'll throw him so off guard that he won't have a leg to stand on and one of you might save a friend.

It isn't the summertime that's getting everyone down, it's the heat.

Start riding a bicycle to work every day and everybody looks at me like I was either a clown or crazy. Well, I'm neither! I'm a Scotchman.

Went down to look over the park Monday night, which, by the way, is family night and saw some of the improvements and additions that have been made in the past few months. Just about any sport you like they've got facilities for, so go on down and enjoy yourself. Yeh, don't take my word for it, see for yourself and we know you'll agree that Mr. Bulger and his crew of hard workers have made tremendous strides in bettering our park for a better community. And if you like picnics, well you couldn't find a more suitable location with barbecue pits, tables and playthings for the kids. That "wild out doors" feeling right here in town.

To many times we don't profit by the other fellows mistakes because we won't. It has to happen to us first hand before we realize the consequences. One saying that will always hold true no matter what, is that "Experience is the best teacher."

FOOD IS NOW BEST BUY BELIEVES FARM LEADER

Auburn, Ala.—Some people feel that food costs too much and that prices to farmers are too high.

But this feeling is wrong, P. O. Davis, API Extension director said here this week. In fact, he believes that food is the biggest bargain now on the American market.

Davis explained that non-farm people buy their food with pay from fewer hours of work than ever before. In addition, they have better food and a greater variety from which to choose.

"Only 26 cents of the customer's dollar is needed to buy food," said Davis. "And only 45 cents of each dollar a wage earner spends for food gets back to the farmer. This means less than 12 per cent of the consumer's income is paid to farmers for food.

"For this small portion, farmers must work long hours, study hard, and invest $12,000 to $25,000 in land, buildings, and equipment per worker."

If a cracked dish or plate is boiled in a pan of milk for 45 minutes the crack usually disappears and the dish actually becomes stronger.

MRS. WALTER HAYWOOD REPRESENTS TEACHER'S ASSOCIATION

Mrs. Walter Haywood has been selected as a delegate to represent the Chilton County Teachers' Association at the 92nd annual convention of the National Education Association, (NEA), scheduled to be held in Madison Square Gardens, New York City, June 27-July 2. NEA is a professional organization of teachers.

Mrs. Haywod teaches a section of the fifth grade in Clanton Elementary School. She will be accompanied by her son, Michael and yb her brother, Mr. C. U. Lecroy and Mrs. Lecroy of Castleberry, Alabama. Mr. Lecroy is the president of Conecuh County Teacher's Association, and is NEA delegate.

PLAN FOR MORE ACRES IN GRAZING AND GRAIN

Plan now to put every acre possible in late summer and early fall-seeded crops.

What to plant will depend upon the needs of each farm, says D. R. Harbor, API Extension agronomist. "Most farmers need to increase their acreage of perennial crops, including alfalfa, clover-grass permanent pastures, and white clover for grazing or seed production."

Farmers also should plant some annual crops, believes Harbor. These include annual winter legumes—grass or small grain mixtures for winter grazing and small grains, includin oats or wheat, primarily for grain or hay production. Another important group of fall-seeded crops is winter legumes for soil improvement. These include vetches, crimson clover, and Austrain winter peas.

It is especially important to select land now for the perennial and annual crops that will provide winter grazing, warns Harbor. Land preparation for these crops should be started by early July, particularly in North Alabama.

Harbor points out that there is stillstill time to take soil samples from fields to be used for winter grazing and send them to the API Soil Testing Laboratory for lime and fertilizer recommendations. If farmers act right away they will get soil test results before time to buy lime and fertilizer.

"And," continues Harbor, "it is not too early for growers to check with their county agents on seed varieties best for local farm conditions. Then they can locate recommended seed."

HOMEMAKERS WILL HAVE WIDE CHOICE OF FOODS

AUBURN, Ala.—Of all months in the year, July brings about the widest variety and greatest abundance of foods from local production areas.

And W. A. Jones, API Extension marketing specialist, suggests that homemakers use this abundance by either serving the foods fresh or storing them for later use by canning, preserving, and freezing.

There will be unusually large supplies of most fruits and vegetables, reports Jones. These include peaches, watermelons, cantaloupes, beans, fresh corn, squash, tomatoes, potatoes, sweet potatoes, okra, field pears, and cabbage.

In addition, says the specialist, there will be an abundance of high quality livestock and livestock products, including broilers, fryers, turkeys, beef, milk, ice cream, other dairy products, and increasing supplies of pork.

READY-TO-USE FOODS HAVE INCREASED FAST

Auburn, Ala.—Housewives like to prepare meals the quickest and easiest way.

The fast rise in the use of ready-to-serve food items gives further proof of this fact, reports Austin Ezell, API Extension marketing specialist. He says that while total U. S. consumption of meat rose 20 per cent in the last dozen years, the use of canned meats jumped 150 per cent. During the same period fresh fruit consumption dropped 21 per cent, but canned fruit rose 37 per cent, canned juices soared 255 per cent, and frozen juices shot up 690 per cent. Other canned items showing a big increase in demand over fresh products during the period were vegetables and instant coffee.

Ezzell says these changes in eating habits are important to Alabama agriculture because they bring changes in the marketing of farm products.

WRECK TUESDAY MORNING EARLY

A wreck between a car and a milk truck early Tuesday morning caused considerable property damage to vehicles but no one was injured.

The milk truck was driven by S. D. Posey and the car by Samuel Padgett of Jemison, Route 1.

The two vehicles met at the crest of a hill one-half mile south of Oak Grove Church on the Oak Grove-Center Hill Road. Officer Hugh Champion investigated.

WILKINS REUNION AT BETHSALEM

There will be a Wilkins Reunion at Bethsalem Church on July 5. All of the Wilkins relatives and friends are invited to come and bring a basket and spend the day. There will be drinks and dinner for all. Bring a feeling of good fellowship with you.

FOLSOM PLEDGES ALL AID TO AUTHORITIES IN PATTERSON INVESTIGATION

O. H. Finney, Jr., Executive Secretary to Governor-Nominate James E. Folsom, said in Cullman today that the Governor Nominate was enroute to an undisclosed vacation spot out of the State when he learned of Attorney-General Nominate Albert L. Patterson's murder. Finney said Folsom immediately wired a sympathy message to Mrs. Patterson in which he stated, "you and yours have our deepest heartfelt sympathy in the great tragedy that has come to you and our State. Alabama has lost one of its great public servants . . ."

He said Folsom further wired Governor Gordon Persons that he (Persons) had Folsom's full support in "apprehending and bringing to justice those responsible for the dastardly murder of A. L. Patterson, Attorney General Nominate of Alabama." He added that Governor Nominate Folsom and expressed to him (Finney) by telephone deep concern over the lawlessness surrounding Patterson's death, and although at the present time he had no authority in the matter that it was his sincere hope that the proper authorities would do everything in their power to bring about justice.

The Governor Nominate's Secretary said that Folsom and his family were expected to be away from the State for several weeks on vacation.

SOIL CONSERVATION NEWS

Leslie Robinson, a cooperator of the North Central Soil Conservation District, and located just West of Pool's Cross Road, is carrying out a good soil and water conservation plan on his farm. Leslie has several acres of good Kudzu that he depends on for grazing during dry weather, or when other grazing runs short. The Kudzu was overseeded with Rescue Grass last fall and Leslie says "I like the combination very much, but I grazed the Rescue Grass until May 1st and hurt the Kudzu." The growth of the kudzu was pretty good as it is but Leslie said, "It is just half as good as usual and with this combination of Kudzu and Rescue you must watch and not graze too late in the spring.

C. A. Nelson of Verbena, Rt. 2, states "Older fellows like me should give more thought and work to conserve the soil and timber for the younger generation."

Walter Fiquette has combined Jackie and Durwood Teel's Kentucky 31 Fescue. From seven acres nineteen hundred pounds of seed was harvested. Most of the seed will be used to expand the Fescue Acreage of other Teel land.

PREPARE BULLS, COWS FOR NEXT FIVE MONTHS

All beef bulls in Alabama should go on vacation for the next five months.

W. H. Gregory, API Extension livestockman, advises farmers to separate bulls and cows from July 1 to Dec. 1. This avoids having calves born between early April and the first week in September. Calves dropped during this period have a hard time because hot weather causes digestive upsets and increases the dangers of parasites and diseases.

If bulls are removed, calves will be dropped during Sept and Oct—the most profitable time for calves to come, says Gregory.

AMERICAN LEGION GIVES PEACH PARTY

The American Legion Post 206, Thorsby, and the Post Auxiliary sponsored a "Peach Party" at the Veteran's hospital in Tuscaloosa on Sunday afternoon, June 20. 53 baskets of prime peaches were donated by the Thorsby vicinity growers for this party. Growers giving peaches were: Bentley Farms, Ellic Pounds, A. D. Headley Farms, Newt Minor, John Childress, Herman Robinson and J. M. Higgins.

Members who went over with the peaches were: Post Commander, Grover A. Bice, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Turner, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Smith, son Bill and daughter Marie and Mrs. Henry Parker.

They reported back that this was the best "Peach Party" ever sponsored by the Post and the Veteran's and staff at the hospital very gratefully received the peaches and appreciate the work done by the Thorsby Post and Unit and the farmers who grew and donated the peaches.

MONTGOMERY — Alabama's normal 1954 Fourth of July week end traffic toll will be 15 killed, 525 injured, 3375 accidents, and an economic loss of about $1,425,000.

But, the Alabama Safety Council warned in announcing these predictions, if Alabama drivers perform as savagely as they did during the Independence Day week end last year, the toll can be expected to reach 26 deaths, 910 injuries, 5850 accidents and a $2,470,000 bill.

The holiday period begins at 6 p.m. Friday, July 2, and closes at midnight Monday July 5.

"Last year we murdered a man, woman or child ever ythree hours and 22 minutes in traffic during our celebration of the Fourth," Council President Hugh Comer said. "The Alabama Department of Public Safety tells us it was the bloodiest hour-by-hour holiday traffic toll in Alabama's history."

The 1953 Fourth of July score was 16 killed during a 54-hour holiday week end, from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday.

The Council president urged motorists and pedestrians "to guard your lives as you never guarded them before during this very dangerous period. More cars will be on Alabama's roads than ever before, so there will be more hazards than ever before."

He said motorists should remember the five major summertime fatal accident violations currently being emphasized in Alabama's Slow Down and Live! program—excessive and unsafe speeds, following too closely, improper passing, and failing to yield right-of-way.

"These violations will cause most of our holiday accidents and deaths" Comer said. "A little common sense and common courtesy will prevent the violations. Remember the slogan: "Slow Down and . . . Live!"

NEARLY TIME TO TURN HOGS ON CORN FIELDS

Earlye corn is about ready for those shotes.

Turn porkers in the corn field when you can rub off grains by hand, says G. B. Phillips, API Extension animal industry specialist. He reminds farmers to fence off a small area of the field so the hogs will harvest the corn quickly and with little waste. As soon as one area has been hogged-off, move the fence to another section of the field.

If kudzu is handy, let the hogs graze it while on corn. This practice, explains Phillips, makes hogs turn corn into ham and bacon quicker and at lower cost.

RESIDENTS ASKED TO CURTAIL USE OF CITY WATER

Mayor C. Fenn Jones stated Tuesday that residents of Clanton should be very careful with extravagant use of city water as the supply is low. According to the Mayor notice has already gone out to service station and others who use a lot of water to be more careful because of the shortage

Mayor Jones said to remedy this the city will have to install another pumping station to increase the water supply to the city reservoir as there was plenty of water in Yellow Leaf Creek but the facilities of the city water system was inadequate

The Mayor called on the residents and user of city water to please be careful and not use any more water than was necessary until the supply could be increased At this time the users will be notified the Mayor said

BETTER LUMBER MARKET REPORTED BY FORESTER

Auburn, Ala.—Like every other crop, the tree crop has its ups and downs on the market.

And for the past few months the rather weak timber market has lowered the demand for stumpage, reports I. R. Martin, API Extension forester.

However, adds Martin, "there are signs that this downward trend has stopped, particularly in the hardwood field. For example, during the past several months the largest hardwood manufacturer in Alabama has been operating one eight-hour shift. Recently this manufacturer was forced to return to two shifts to meet rising demands."

Martin points out that during the timber market decline the older and larger sawmillers have had very little difficulty selling well manufactured products. "The poorly manufactured and lower grade boards are the ones that won't sell," he says. "This situation may place Southern yellow pine in a better and more competitive position by forcing manufacturers to place higher grade materials on the market."

"Such action should do much to reduce the inroads which Western woods are making on local pine markets. And it will help guarantee better products for home builders and contractors who are beginning to realize that Southern yellow pine is unsurpassed in strength, nail-holding qualities, and other structural reqquirements."

GIRLS TAKE OVER STATE CAPITOL FOR ALABAMA GIRLS STATE

Montgomery, Ala. —High school girls from all over Alabama took over the state government here last week as a part of the annual Girls State.

Most of the time the girls were here was spent at Huntingdon College where they made a study of government and elected their officers. But then they came to the Capitol to put some of their practice into operation.

Jane Ann Thompson of Cullman was elected governor of Girls State and Joy Hudson of Opelika was named lieutenant governor.

Other officials were: Peggy Jackson of Sheffield, secretary of state; Kay Cleckler of Childersburg, state treasurer; Margaret Peake of Selma, state auditor; Jackie Eichold of Mobile, attorney general; Becky Knowles of Headland, commissioner of agriculture and industries; Sylvia Gilliland of Roanoke, superintendent of education.

Ann McIntosh of Leroy, president of the Public Service Commission; Barbara Bunkley of Mobile, associate member of the Public Service Commission; Bette Ann LeBlanc of Brewton, chief justice of the Supreme Court; Ann Harrison of Garden City, national-Nationalist committtewoman, and Joy Hair of Andalusia, national Federalist committeewoman.

NOTICE

To The Citizens of Clanton

The collecting and disposing of the garbage each week is a great expense, and there is not a special tax provided to pay this cost; therefore, it is very necessary that we do this service for you as economically as is possible so the drain on the general fund of the City will not be greater than it can bear.

You can help greatly in reducing the cost by providing a metal container for all garbage that can be put in one, and we respectfully ask that you, at once, purchase a can. There are several ways to prevent the worthless dogs turning the can over. Many homes do not have a container, and the garbage is thrown on the ground. So much time is consumed in gathering it from the ground, we may refuse to take the garbage unless you provide a container. Time saved is money saved.

We want your cooperation and hope you will not ignore this appeal. Be a good citizen and assist in keepin gthe City Clean. I shall ask the men who take the garbage how many new containers were put in use in response to this request. Your interest and help, or lack of it, will determine what future regulation the City Officials will make to more efficiently and economically move the garbage.

MRS. MARY E. STEWART

Mrs. Mary E. Stewart, age 36, of Clanton died at the home at 12:40 p.m. Funeral services were held from Poplar Springs at 11:00 am., conducted by Revs. Cox and Deason Interment in church cemetery.

Pallbearers were Grady Bates, Frank Willis, J D Collins, Walter Fiquette, Webster Hill and Preston Traywick. Flower ladies were Iris Bates, Ester Lou Cox, Jessie Mae Dykes, Ester Smokes, Delene Willis, Mary Varden, Sonya Coggins, Dorothy Hill, Pearl Edwards, Elaine Maddox, Carolyn Hill, Mrs. Nelson Traywick, Irene Hand, Gladys Bowden, Mrs. Nabors, Linda Messer, Geraldine Milder.

She is survived by the husband, Jack Stewart; one son, Tommie W. Stewart of Clanton; mother, Mrs. Etta Tibb of Bessemer; three sisters, Jessie Barns, Ruby Webster and Dovie Lucas of Bessemer; one brother, Wilbern Tibbs of McCalev. Martin Funeral Home in charge.

WISE GARDENERS STOP PESTS BEFORE DAMAGE

The best plan for controlling insects and diseases in the home garden is to prevent damage before it occurs—not after the plants are attacked. John Bagby, API Extension horticulturist, advises gardeners to use regular weekly applications of dust or spray. He recommends the Auburn-approved garden dust, which contains one per cent rotenone to kill insects and six per cent zineb to control diseases.

GREAT CRIME WAVE

J. Edgar Hoover, head of the FBI for 30 years, has given the major part of his active career to ferreting out criminals and subservient elements in the nation, and now he is giving more attention than usual to the greatest crime wave in the history of the United States.

He calls attention to the fact that the majority of criminals are now teen-agers, age 17 or less. He blames adults for putting every temptation in the paths of the youths. Youthful criminals are prevalent all over the nation; they lead in car thefts, robbery and even murder. Youths of 17 or younger lead in car thefts especially.

Another headache for the F B I is the narcotic trade, and teen-agers are a more easy prey for narcotic trade than adults, and many crimes are committed by addicts of the narcotic trade. Murder has been committed by youths while under the influence of narcotics.—Jasper Mountain Eagle.

SHOULD 18-YEAR-OLDS VOTE

Last week President Eisnehower urged the nation's two million 4-H club members to get behind his proposal to grant the vote to 18-year-olds. He also urged the same in his State of the Union message last January. "Your judgment is about as good as some of us who are years your senior," the president said. He wants an amendment to the Constitution granting suffrage to 18-years-olds and older.

Such an amendment should be voted down by Congress. It is true that a person 18 who is old enough to fight for his country is old enough to vote, but suffrage should be granted to him by his home state and not by the federal government. A state should pass its own election laws; it is the right of a state to do so.

Alabama's representative in Congress would probably vote against a federal amendment lowering the voting age to 18, because it would be a dangerous departure from state right's to give the federal government control of any part of our election laws.

In the meantime, the Alabama Legislature should start a movement to grant suffrage to 18-year-olds.—Jasper Mountain Eagle.

"OFF LIMITS"

We would guess that Phenix City is the only city of more than 20,000 persons in the United States where a man could be murdered in cold blood without some substantial clue as to the identity of the slayer being uncovered within a week.

The very slowness of the investigation into the shooting of Albert L. Patterson adds stench to a situation that casts a dark shadow on Alabama.

The entire economy of Phenix City, for years, has been established on the operation of honky-tonks, night clubs and the gambling centers.

Many critics blame the local and state governments of the present and past years for the shame that Phenix City has brought Alabama.

Those are not without some guilt.

But the most effective means of leveling Phenix City today is to remove the income taken from soldiers.

That can stem, only, from a strong and permanent permanently "off-limits" to all military personnel, the order by the Federal Government. If Phenix City is held Russel County capitol will be a "ghost town" in just a matter of weeks.—Andalusia Star News.

TOMBIGBEE-WARRIOR AWARD WINNER 1953-1954

Akron, Ohio.—Tombigbee-Warrior soil conservation district has been selected as Alabama's grand award winner in a 1953-1954 national soil conservation competition it was announced here today by Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., sponsor of the program. All of the state's 12 soil conservation districts entered the competition.

J. M. Cain, Box 238, Tuscaloosa and Charles E. Greer, Rt. 2, Sullignt, will be guests of the sponsor with 98 other winners representing the other 47 states on a vacation trip to Wigwam guest ranch, Litchfield Park, Arizona, in December.

Cain was selected by the Tombigbee-Warrior district as its representative for the Arozina trip and Greer was named the outstanding farmer cooperator. Rules of the contest provide for one representative of the state's first place district and the outstanding farmer-cooperator selected by the district to make the vacation trip with all expenses paid by the sponsor.

Other members of the Tombigbee-Warrior district governing body are O. L. Kivette, chairman, of Brilliant; A. C. Burnett, Haleyville; J. C. Davis, Fernbank; George Koon, Rt. 1, Gordo; H. C. Langston, Rt. 1, Winfield and J. D. Smith, Rt. 2, Jasper.

Second place honors for the state were earned by Wiregrass soil conservation district, which nominated Theo Lee, Rt 1, Daleville, as outstanding farmer-cooperator. Members of the Wiregrass district governing body are C. F. Reynolds, chairman, of Headland; Charles A. Mallory, Kinston; M. A. Deese, Newton; C. B. Johnson, Geneva; Glenn Lawrence, Rt. 2, Ashford and Sam S. Williams, Troy.

Both first and second place districts will receive bronze palques as permanent symbols of their achievements in soil saving at regional meeting of the National Association of Soil Conservation Districts later this year.

Members of the Alabama judging committee who selected the state's winners are J. C. Canno, chairman, state supervisor vocational agriculture; P. O. Davis, director of extension; D. L. Yarbrough, member state soil conservation committee and S. R. Doughty, extension soil conservationist.

GOT A SUMMER COLD TAKE 666 for symptomatic RELIEF

INDEPENDENCE DAY, THEN AND NOW

Report from Washington

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

Air Force Secretary Harold E. Talbott announced last Friday that he has selected Colorado Springs, Colo., as the site for the new 126-million-dollar Air Academy. He picked this location after an advisory board had narrowed the possibilities to three places—Colorado Springs; Alton, Ill.; and Lake Geneva, Wis. A total of 580 sites were considered by the board.

Secretary Talbott has designated Lowry Air Force Base in Denver as the temporary air academy. The law establishing the new "West Point of the Air" stipulated that a nearby existing Air Force base be selected as temporary headquarters, after the permanent location was chosen. Lowry is located about 60 miles north of Colorado Springs. The first two or three classes of cadets are expected to enter at Lorry.

The Air Force Academy will be opened officially next year with the first 300 cadets entering in July, 1955. Congressmen are now accepting applications from those interested in competing for appointments. I hope all young men in the Sixth District who are interested in making application will write to me as soon as possible.

Veterans Legislation

The House Veterans Affairs Committee, of which I am a member, recently approved a measure that will, if passed by Congress, increase federal pension and compensation payments to former servicemen and their dependents.

As approved by the Committee, this proposal will increase pensions and compensations by nearly 10 per cent, via a sliding scale in most categories. A flat 10 per cent hike was voted for veterans who receive monthly compensation checks because of service connected disabilities. Widows and dependents of such veterans will get average increases of approximately $7 monthly.

Veterans of World Wars I, II and Korea currently receive payments of $63, $75, or $129 which the bill raises to $68, $80, and $135 respectively. Childless widows of such veterans now drawing $48 monthly will get $54. Widows with one child will be entitled to an increase from $60 to $67.50, and those with several children get a raise from $7.20 to $8 for each additional child.

The bill is now before the Rules Committee, awaiting a special rule that will bring it to the floor of the House for debate and vote.

Warrier River Funds

As I predicted in this column more than a month ago, the Senate approved the full $2 million recommended by the Senate Appropriations Committee for construction of the Warrior Lock and Dam, and a House-Senate conference committee agreed on a final sum of $1.8 million. Both houses have approved the conference report and the bill containing the appropriation for the Warrior Lock and Dam is now awaiting the President's signature.

Alabama Diplomat

In a recent newspaper column written from Hanoi, Indo-China, Jim Lucas, famous war correspondent, told of an Alabamian who is America's top diplomatic spokesman and representative in the region that may soon be under seige. The American Consul in North Viet Nam, covering the Red River delta is Turner C. Cameron, Jr., of Faunsdale, Ala.

Mr. Cameron's home is located only a few miles south of the Sixth District of Alabama.

On February 22 of this year I had lunch with Turner, a long-time friend, when he stopped in Washington prior to the departure for Indo-China to assume his new diplomatic post. He had previously been in Belgrade, Yugoslavia, where he was head of our Embassy's political section.

In his column Correspondent Lucas said, "Mr. Cameron was dropped into this diplomatic spot at a particularly critical time. He arrived in Hanoi last April 13. Dien Bien Phu was already a month old, and its fall less than a month away." Lucas then goes on to point out that if the situation in Indo-China becomes worse, the 30 to 50 Americans living in the Red River delta will depend on the 39-year-old Alabamian to get them out of the war area.

I am sure Turner Cameron's friends in the Sixth District join with me in wishing him much success in the handling of this important assignment.

ALABAMA'S RURAL MINISTER OF YEAR

Birmingham, Ala.—A minister who serves three Alabama churches has been selected as Alabama's Rural Minister of the Year by The Progressive Farmer and the Town and Country School of Emory University.

He is Rev. Robert G. Forester, pastor of churches in Allsboro, Cherokee, and Maud.

Rev. Forester has been chosen for this award for his "outstanding service to his church and his community."

His story is told in the current (July) issue of the farm magazine.

"After he graduated from Cumberland Presbyterian Theological Seminary he moved to Allsboro to begin his ministry on the field for three churches he had served as student pastor," the story tells.

"Since he and Mrs. Forester came in 1952, membership at Allsboro has grown from 58 to 85, a Cherokee from 11 to 47, and Maud from 32 to 39.

"The playground is one of the main improvements at Allsboro. The children gahtered scrap iron to pay for equipment.

"Maud is remodeling the church and adding Sunday School rooms. Cherokee has finished paying a debt of $1,350 and plans to start a Sunday school annex this fall.

"To increase number of services at each church, a cooperative parish with these three churches, and possibly two others in the area, is being organized. Rev. Forester will remain pastor of the three churches with students from the seminary to help.

"Vitally interested in community affairs, Rev. Forester helped to organize the PTA and community-improvement program in Allsboro."

This year The Progressive Farmer and Emory have chosen ministers in 14 Southern states as Rural Ministers of the Year.

Last year Rev. A. L. Strozier, Enterprise, was Alabama's Rural Minister of the Year. These awards are made annually.

THE UNITED STATES POLL OF PUBLIC OPINION

ONE OUT OF EVERY FOUR AUTO DRIVERS HAS BEEN IN AN ACCIDENT

36 PER CENT SAY THEY'VE DRIVEN 75 MPH OR MORE

Princeton, New Jersey— With the long July Fourth week-end expected to exact its customary toll of smash-ups, injuries, and deaths, the United States Poll has collected some facts for drivers to keep in mind when they ride on the highways over the coming holiday week-end.

1. The driver of every fourth car on the road has had an automobile accident while he was at the wheel.

2. A higher proportion of men than women drivers have had an accident while driiving, and somewhat more younger drivers than older ones have been in accidents.

3. More than one out of every three drivers, or 36 per cent, has driven a car 75 miles an hour or more at some time or other.

4. And one out of every ten drivers admit to driving a car 95 miles an hour or more on open hiighways, with 115 miles an hour being the top speed named.

5. And in every section of the country, at least one out of every five drivers has been in an accident, ranging from a high of 28 per cent in the Midwest to a low of 20 per cent in the Far West.

That's what United States Poll reporters found after talking personally with a representative cross-section of the nation's adults in every section of the country.

Today's Poll first asked each person:

"What is the fastest speed you have ever driven a car?"

Here are the replies of the 69 per cent who drive or have driven:

Fastest Speed Driven?
45 mph or less	11%
46 to 54 mph	16
55 to 64 mph	20
65 to 74 mph	17
75 to 84 mph	15
85 to 94 mph	11
95 mph or more	10

The above figures do not necessarily mean that car operators always drives as fast as the top speed mentioned. But they do show that many motorists feel the urge to see how fast their cars can go.

A total of 31 per cent, or roughly 11 million adults, stated that they had never driven a car. 15 per cent of the men have never been at the wheel, compared to 46 per cent of the women.

A second question was asked of all those who drive:

"Have you ever been in any accident while you were driivng?"

	Yes	No.
NATIONWIDE	25%	74
Men	30%	70
Women	18%	82
21-29 years	28%	72
30-44 years	25%	75
45 years & over	24%	76

Survey findings show that somewhat fewer people living in the Far West say they have been in an accident than do people in other sections of the country.

Been in an accidefit while at the wheel?

East	25%
Midwest	28
South	25
Far West	20

Over the years, Princeton Research Service in various parts of the country and in the nation as a whole has found widespread popular sentiment in favor of measures to control accidents and speeding.

For example, solid majority sentiment—better than three out of every five—favors jail terms for drivers found guilty of driving while drunk.

Nearly seven out of every ten say they would be willing to have a governor (regulator) put on their cars that would let them drive no faster than 50 miles per hour at any time.

And 50 miles per hour was the median average figure named by drivers when they were asked what they themselves thought should be the maximum (top) speed for automobiles on open highways.

Auto drivers on the road this holiday week-end would also do well to remember these additional facts. In 1953, in the nation as a whole, more than 38,000 people died and more than 100,000 people were seriously injured as a result of auto accidents.

The Chilton County News presents the reports of the United States Poll exclusively in this area. The service is operated by the Princeton Research Service staff of trained reporters.

If bulls are in a run-down condition, give them a limite dration consisting mainly of oats and some corn in addition to regular pasture.

Four gallons of milk daily per 100 hens plus grain and green feed, free choice, will provde a good laying ration.

DALE CARNEGIE
AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING"

WHEN RUTH M. KENNEDY, 45 New Lawn Avenue, Arlington, New Jersey, graduated from high school, she had her heart set on going to college, but because of an eye condition, the doctor advised against it — and almost broke her heart. She had been preparing for four years and the letdown was too much. She had not the qualifications for going right out into the business world so her parents suggested a secretarial school for a year. This was the last thing she had wanted to do. But to please her parents, she graduated — and made a flop of it. She got to the point where she was building up resentment toward everyone. She would cry if anyone dared make a remark to her, but she would tell no one what troubled her. By the time she got a job the change was too much for her.

CARNEGIE

There were no signs of nerves in the beginning, but she had pains in her stomach, refused to eat, and finally was sick in bed. She lost over forty pounds and the doctor finally said she must go to a hospital for intravenous feeding. The intravenous feedings did give her a little strength, but they didn't help her otherwise. The doctor finally brought in a psychiatrist who recommended shock treatments. These helped a lot, but it wasn't until she realized that nothing would cure her completely except her change of mental attitude that she began to help herself. With God's help, eleven months later she was back on her feet; but not until she had caused a terrible heartache for all concerned. Today when things don't go just right she talks it over with God in prayer, and she doesn't wait until she gets to church to kneel.

At last, she declares, she has learned how to live.

JEMISON NEWS

(MRS. GEORGE NAISH)

In July we celebrate "Independence Day," July 4th. Each year brings to us new realization of the responsibilities shouldered by our forefathers. The flag of our country has been displayed in public places as well as in our homes. In spirit and song we re-dedicate our allegiance to the flag that are the floating emblems of our country. All of this is a show of patriotism. And an expression of love for our country. In Psalms 33:12 are these words: Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord ;and the people who he hath chosen for his own inheritance."

In Leviticus 25:10—Proclaim liberty throughout the land unto all the inhabitants thereof." Liberty is one of the greatest blessings that Heaven can bestow on mankind. Liberty, not to live as you desire, but as you ought. "Let freedom ring." Liberty is the state of being free. May we pay our respects to all people everywhere upon whom we depend for life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

Church News—

The Church of Christ has just closed a fine series of meetings.

The series of meetings will begin at the Methodist Church Sunday, July 4th. Services at night only, at 7:30. Rev. G. O. Hughen, pastor, will do the preaching

Baptistmal services were held at the Baptist Church Sunday night, June 27 Four candidates were baptized.

The vacation Bible school began Monday June 28th, at 8:30. Eighty-four were present the first day.

Mrs. Leo Langston Entertains Club—

On Tuesday evening, members of the Quest Club met with Mrs. Leo Langston for the June meeting.

The president, Mrs. C. L. Walton, called the meeting to order. The club collect was read in unison. The secretary called the roll, members responding by giving a fact about Japan or the Japanese.

The secretary read the constitution and by laws of the club.

Guests of the club were welcomed, Mrs. Hollis Messer and Mrs. G. B. Ray of Anniston, daughter of Mrs. Marvin Dawson.

The president appointed the following chairmen of various federated activities to serve for the ensuing year: American home, Mrs. Louis Brasher; Project chairman, Mrs. Walter McNeill; Americanism, Mrs. A. A. Beaman; Public Affairs, Mrs. Marvin Dawson; International Affairs, Miss Carolyn Welch; National Defense, Mrs Stanley Cost; Fine Arts, Mrs. Leo Langston; Welfare, Miss Sybil Langston; and communications, Mrs. Geo. Naish.

The nominating committee for 1955-56 officers, Mrs. J. E. Littlejohn, Mrs. Leo Langston and Mrs. V. O. Lenoir.

Plans were made for a special trip to Montgomery when visits will be made to the state capitol, first white house of Confederacy, State Dept. of Archives and History and other points of interest.

Mrs. Walton presented Mrs. C. W. Bethany who received the book, "Over the Bamboo Fence," a study of the problems of the Japanese women and their attempts to adjust to a super-imposed democracy. Mrs. Bethany gave excerpts from two other books. This was done in a very deft manner to the enjoyment of all present.

A social hour followed the program.

The hostess served chiffon pie, open face sandwiches and cold drinks.

Jordan-Pate Wedding—

The Dauphin Way Baptist Church was the scene for the wedding of Miss Dorothy Sue Jordan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Jordan of Mobile, to James Lester Pate, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester M. Pate of Jemison, on Tuesday, June 8th, at seven o'clock in the evening

The background was of palms, gladioli and candlabra entwined with palm leaves. The baptistry was decorated with croton leaves, arrangements of beggar-fir and ivy. The vows were said before the satin draped communion table which held an open Bible and two candles. Dr. Harold W. Seener officiated.

Preceding the wedding, Mrs. Robert F. McClintock rendered nuptial music and Robert F. McClintock was soloist. The taperk were lighted by ushers Richard Prater and Ray Yeager.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an original gown of Chantilly lace and bridal satin. The fitted bodice of lace featured a round, low scalloped neckline. The skirt was fashioned with a panel of lace down the front and a peplum of scalloped lace in the back and swept into a cathedral train. Her fingertip veil of illusion was edged with lace and fell into two teirs from a half hat of satin and lace embroidered in seed pearls. She wore a pearl necklace and earrings which were gifts of the groom. A cascade of white roses, surrounded by flour d'amour, stephanitis and tufts of tulle was carried by the bride.

Miss Shirley Palmiter, maid of honor, wore a dress of moon blue organdy over taffeta. The neckline of the dress was formed by crushed folds of the blue organdy drape. An open crown, lace trimmed picture hat of blue organdy and lace trimmed mitts completed her ensemble.

The attire of the brides maids was identical to that of the honor attendant, They were Miss Hazel Compton, Mrs. Carole Cromer and Miss Nancy Chipman of Atlanta. They carried a crescent arrangement of shaded pink asters with pink-striped lilies, tied with pink and blue ribbon.

Junior bridesmaid was Lynn Mills who wore a dress of moon blue organdy over taffeta which featured a round neckline with a bertha and wide sash edged in lace. She wore a hat and mitts and carried a bouquet all of which were identical to that of the other attendants.

Kay Mills and Velera Nell Pate served the bride as flower girls. Their ensemble was identical to that of the junior bridesmaid. They carried a nosegay of pink mixed flowers.

Lester Pate attended his son as best man. Groomsmen were Louis Lackey, Richard Armbester and Edgar Dixson.

Mrs. Jordan chose a dress of beige-rose lace with matching hat and beige accessories. A blue dress with matching hat and white accessories was worn by the groom's mother. Their corsages were white orchids.

The reception was held in the social hall of the church. The bride's table was covered with a white lace cloth and centered with a beautiful three-tiered wedding cake embossed with wedding bells and white roses. On either end of the table were silver candelabra.

The cake was cut by Mrs. L. L. Sims and served by Miss Ann Morgan. Presiding at the punch board were Miss Evalee Ward and Mrs. James Powers. Miss Mary Lou Marback was in charge of the bride book.

For traveling, the bride wore a princess styled beige linen dress topped by a brown bolero. Her accessories were beige and brown and her corsage was of green orchids.

Following a trip to New Orleans, the couple will live in Mobile.

The groom's parents entertained with an after rehearsal party at the Jemison Restaurant.

Meeting of Junior and Intermediate Auxiliaries of WMU—

The Junior and Intermediate GA's met June 18 at 3 o'clock at the church to observe the State Day of Prayer for the Kathleen Mallory offering for missions.

The opening prayer was by Peggy Blackmon. Miss Mary Clements, the Young People's leader, gave the devotional. Taking part on the program were Martha Willis, Ann Woodley, Peggy Blackmon, Martha Griffin and Elaine Davenport. Sentence prayer closed the program. Present, other than those already mentioned, Jackie Morgan, Della Cost, Ann Sims, Willie Lee Blackmon, Shirley Kay Varden.

The Sunbeams met the same afternoon and when all had concluded the programs, ice cream and cookies were enjoyed.

Picnic for Intermediates—

On Tuesday evening, June 22, members of the senior intermediate girls class went on a picnic. They met at the home of Miss Mary Clements, their teacher.

The group then drove to Morehawn Creek and waded for awhile. Soon all were hungry. They turned on the car lights and ate a nice lunch. Then to the home of Miss Clements where they enjoyed watermelons and conversation.

Soon it was time to go home and Miss Clements took them home.

Enjoying this occasion were; Annie Sue Cofer, Joann Lewis, Betty Jean Varden, Shirley Ann Watson, Mary Nix, Shirley Varden and Peggy Ann Blackmon.

Mr. and Mrs. Joyce Howard and the children, Charlotte and George, his mother, Mrs. Mattie Howard, spent the week end with Miss Ol[illegible] Rogers. All had been on vacation in Florida, spending time in St. Augustine, Jacksonville and St. Petersburg.

Spending this week with Miss Mary Clements are two of her neices, Sue and Betty Clements, of Birmingham.

Mr. C. J. Davis, of Montgomery spent several days with his sister, Mrs. Annie Cooper.

Mr A. C. Bratton has returned home, having been in St. Vincent's Hospital. He is up and about now.

Mrs. G. B. Ray of Anniston spent last week with her mother, Mrs. Marvin Dawson. Mr. Ray, their two daughters, Judy and Carolyn, were over for the week end and all returned home

Mrs. E. D. Roulaine and daughter, Mila, spent Sunday with Mrs. Susie Middlebrooks and Mrs. Mettie Burnette.

Mrs. Lena Pierce of Bessemer is spending some time with her sister, Mrs. John Webb, and Mr. Webb.

Mr. and Mrs. Blair Scurlock and two children, Grey and Susan, of Gadsden are spending the week with her parents, Mr and Mrs. Tom Cost.

Mr. Carl Glasscock, of Gadsden has been in Jemison several days on account of the serious illness of his brother, Mr. Leonard Glasscock. At this writing Mr. Glasscock is still very sick.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Avery and small son, Tom, Jr., of Atlanta and his niece, Sis Avery, of Newnon, Ga., Mr. and Mrs. Bobby McNeill were guests of their parents, the Irby McNeills, for several days.

EXPERIMENT STATION TOUR HELD

An experiment Station tour was held at the Chilton Area Horticultural Station (Collins Chapel) Wednesday, June 23, beginning at 1:00 p.m.

One of the major research projects that growers had an opportunity to observe was the Peach Variety Test Experiment. Mr. Carlton, Superintendent of the Station, has sixty-four different varieties of peaches that are being produced and studied on the Station's peach experimental area. Spray materials, borer control methods, and culture studies, and other very important peach management items are being studied and can be observed on this tour.

In addition to a report on peach work, a number of other fruit and vegetable crops and practices were observed. Some of the more important items observed on the tour are:

1. Home grown plant production.
2. Buch grape variety and culture studies.
3. A small irrigation system in operation
4. Practical land use management of rough areas on a fruit and vegetable farm.
5. Strawberry and blackberry production methods and insect control studies.
6. Tomato cultural methods, insect and disease control methods, and cost of production studies.
7. Sweet corn, Sweet potato and Melon production studies.

A dust mixture containing five per cent TDE (Rothane) and six per cent Zineb controls worms and most diseases on tomatoes.

From the Seville Chronicle, Seville, Ohio: Weekends we're privileged to have a grandstand seat for the automobile test track that is East Main Street, Seville, during the first warm weather each spring.

Music lovers of Stan Kenton persuasion would be delighted to hear the effect achieved by a fenderless jallopy with a brainless driver when it spins 180 degrees at the Liberty Street intersection. The trick is seldom demonstrated before midnight; presumably the acoustics are better during the late hours.

Most of the participants come here from neighboring towns to test their cut-outs and other accessories. It's nice to have a reputation for hospitality . . . maybe we ought to extend it to the point of free board and room for a few days!

From the South Pasadena Review, South Pasadena, California: Politically speaking, California is a crazy mixed up place. The voters are predominatly Democratic but vote predominatly in the Republican column in State contests and very often in national tests. We have two Republican senators, a Republican governor and the State Legislature has a Republican majority as has our congressional delegation. To further confuse the picture we have a report on California registrations which show that the GOP has made a big gain than the Democrats since 1952. but the Demos are now doing better than their opponents. To put it another way, the Republican registrations in California since 1952 have climbed 150,856 and the Democrats 115,197. But since the first of the year the score is 98,490 new GOP registrations and 175,564 Democratic. (The reason for this latter figure for the Democrats exceeding their net registration increase since 1952 is explained by the fact that they lost ground during 1953.) After reading this article we're sure it will be all very clear to you. Then you can explain it to us.

From the Audubon County Journal, Exira, Iowa: Advice of all kinds is heaped upon the 1954 graduates. just the same as former graduates received in previous years True—most of it goes in one ear and out the other but, basically, youth will find their oldsters trying to give them the benefit of personal experience, often the result of many years of hard work. But it takes about 20 years before they realize it.

What You Don't See

from the top of this Radio Relay Tower

You see a familiar scene — a peaceful, prosperous Southern countryside.

What you don't see is the miracle of microwaves. Yet the miracle is there.

By means of microwaves, radio relay speeds Long Distance telephone calls and television programs through space without wires. It can carry hundreds of calls at one time.

Advances like radio relay are the work of telephone scientists and engineers, who are always seeking and finding better ways for us to serve you. But it takes more than this. To get investors to supply the money to continue expanding and improving telephone service requires a fair profit on the money invested in telephone property.

The marriage of Miss Mary Ann Oglesby and Aubrey E. Neeley was solemnized Sunday, June 27, at five-thirty o'clock in the Clanton Presbyterian Church by the Rev. Don R. Esty.

Miss Oglesby is the daughter of Mrs. Mary C. Oglesby of Clanton and Mr. J. R. Oglesby of LaGrange, Ga. The bridegroom's parents are Mr and Mrs J. R. Neeley of Clanton.

The altar, centered with a standard white gladioli and white asters against a background of Southern smilax, was lighted by candles in cathedral candelabra.

Miss Elizabeth Oglesby, sister of the bride, Mrs. Erle Ellis, and Miss Patricia Huddleston gave the nuptial music. John Bealic Deramus, Jr., and James Edward Neeley, brother of the groom, lighted the candles.

Mrs. Russell Burson, cousin of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Lenore Oglesby, sister of the bride, and Miss Alice Deramus. The attendants' princess-styled dresses were of Porchi blue crystalette finished in the back with a large bow at the V-neck. They wore a bandeau of blue velvet with a veil of love knots and carried French nosegays of fleur d'amour, carnations, and tube roses.

Elisa Neeley, niece of the groom, was the flowergirl. She wore a blue organdy dress and carried a small nosegay.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, J. R. Oglesby, wore a waltz-length dress of white net over taffeta with a matching white taffeta coat. Over the shirred front of the basque bodice was a scroll design of satin cording embroidered in pearls and sequins. The veil of illusion fell from a bandeau of orange blossoms. She carried her grandmother's wedding handkerchief and a nosegay of fleur d' amour centered with a white orchid.

The bridegroom's best man was his brother, Wallace Neeley. Groomsmen were James Edward Neeley, John Bealic Deramus, Jr., J. Sam Johnson, and Jerry Studard.

The bride's mother wore a beige linen dress with navy accessories and a corsage of fleur d'amour. The mother of the bridegroom wore navy blue lace with white accessories and a corsage of fleur d'amour.

Following the ceremony, the bride and groom received the guests in the vestibule of the church. Miss Betty Robertson presided at the bride's book.

After a wedding trip to North Carolina the couple will be at home in Birmingham. For traveling the bride wore a suit of beige linen with brown accessories and the orchid from her bouquet.

Out of town guests were: Mr. and Mrs Paul Smith, Mr and Mrs C rise G Smith, Miss Delma Foster, Mr. and Mrs. G C Starcher, Mr. and Mrs Jack Spigener, Miss Rubice Fay, Mrs H H Thomas, Miss Nonie McWilliams, Mrs Gordon Mesgrove, Miss Lila McWilliams, Judge and Mrs F L Gaddis, Miss Sarah Louise Gaddis, Mrs. Albert Smith, Miss Ann B Smith, Mrs. Gladys O Wade, Mr and Mrs W L Owinn, all of Prattville. MISS MARY ANN OGLESBY COMPLIMENTED AT GARDEN TEA

Miss Mary Ann Oglesby, bride-elect, was complimented on Thursday afternoon, June 24, when Mrs. W. E. Huddleston and daughters, Pat and Ann, were hostesses at a garden tea at their home.

As the guests arrived they were greeted by Mrs. Huddleston. Others in the receiving line were: Miss Oglesby, the honoree Mrs. Mary C. Oglesby, mother of the bride-to-be; Mrs. J. R. Neeley, mother of the groom-to-be and Miss Janice Neeley, a sister.

Mrs M. C. Hayes was in charge of the brides book and of registering the guests. Adorning the garden table was an arrangement of magnolia blossoms. Also marking the table was a replica of a bridal bouquet centered with gardenias and lilies of the valley.

The tea table which was made of glass and wrtght iron was centered with a bouquet of daisies, zinnias, and Queen Anne's lace placed underneath the glass top. The crystal punch bowl was banked with gardenias.

Mrs. Otto Jones presided over the punch bowl. Others assisting in serving were Mrs. Joe Campbell, Miss Shirley Neeley and Miss Mary Elizabeth Oglesby.

Around 70 guests called between the hours of 4:00 and 6:00 o'clock.

SHERRY LORD IS FIVE YEARS OLD

It was a happy occasion for Sherry Lord when a group of her friends helped to celebrate her fifth birthday on Friday afternoon, June 2o. Sherry is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Lord

Each guest was greeted on the lawn of the Lord home where they all enjoyed party games

A color scheme of pink and green was used throughout the party decorations. The birthday cake which was white and embossed in pink and green was topped with five pink candles. Each guest was served an individual cake tinted in green and topped with a miniature pink candle. As Sherry blew out the five lighted candles on her cake each little guest blew out the candle on his own cake.

A big attraction of the party was a lemonade stand from which was served huge cups of lemonade.

Parting favors of miniature fans for the girls and horns for the boys were presented to the guests as they departed

Those who enjoyed this delightful occasion were: Marilyn and Douglas Jones, Margaret Ann Robinson, Ricky McGee, Sandra Leibold, Cissy Gibson, Danny Jean Hill, Sherry and Christy Cox, Gary and Don Williams, Brenda LeCroy, Barbara Morrison, Rebecca Wilkins, Leigh Waldrup, Guy Higgins, Nancy and Jimmy Walker, Skipper Reynolds, Albert Patterson III, from Phenix City, Jan and Jackie Wright from Montgomery, Judy Lawrence from Greensboro, and Laurel Lou Champion of Verbena.

Mrs. Lord was assisted in serving by several of the mothers.

MISS FLETCHER CLAIRE FUNK WED TO PVT. DAVID WILMONT MORGAN, III

Miss Fletcher Claire Funk and Pvt. David Wilmont Morgan, III, were married June 26, 1954, at 2 p.m. at the First Presbyterian church, Arlington, Virginia. The Rev. George Hileman Yount officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Roland Funk, Sr., of Arlington, Virgina, formerly of Thorsby, Ala. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Wilmont Morgan, Sr., of Arlington, Virginia. Both are graduates of Washington-Lee High School of Arlington, Virginia.

The church decorations were Palms, candelabra, and standing baskets of white summer flowers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a white ballerina length gown with net and lace. The veil was held in place with orange blossoms. She carried a white Bible with a white orchid.

The nuptial music was presented by Betty Jean Sullivan, soloist.

The Maid of Honor was Elizabeth Ann Krigbaum, wearing a pink ballerina length gown with matching wide rim hat. Her flowers were a colonial bouquet of summer flowers. Bridesmaids were Barbara Ann Morgan, sister of the bridegroom and Patricia Ann Fairfax, cousin of the bridegroom. Their costumes were aqua ballerina length gowns with matching wide rim hats and bouquets of summer flowers.

Mr. David Wilmont Morgan, Sr. served his son as best man. Ushers were Darryl Allen Morgan, brother of bridegroom and Bernard Franklin Sullivan, cousin of bridegroom.

A reception was held in the Social Hall of the church immediately following the ceremony. The bride's mother wore a dusty rose lace dress with white accessories. The groom's mother wore a white dacron with navy polka dots, with white accessories.

Assisting with the serving were Nancy Lee Jenkins, wearing a lavender ballerina length gown; Elizabeth A. Corder, wearing a lavender ballerina length gown; Mrs. Alma Currie, aunt of the bride, in a chartruse dress; and Mrs. Eva Morgan, grandmother of the bridegroom, wearing a lavender nylon dress.

For traveling the bride wore a light blue linen suit with white accessories, and her corsage was a white orchid.

After a wedding trip to the Blue Ridge Mountains the couple will reside at Arlington, Virginia.

PILOT CLUB HELD ANNUAL PICNIC

The members of the Clanton Pilot Club held their annual picnic Tuesday afternoon, June 22 at the river camp of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Thompson.

For relaxation the members and their guests enjoyed boating.

A lucious picnic supper, provided by the club members who brought picnic baskets, was enjoyed by all.

MYF DONATES 20 BOOKS TO PUBLIC LIBRARY

Twenty more books have been added to the Chilton County Public Library. These books containing both fiction and reference materials were collected and donated by the Methodist Youth Fellowship of the Clanton Methodist church. There books were collected at a MYF party when members went out on a book-hunt.

The AAUW who sponsors the library extends their thanks to the fine group of young people. The library is closed temporarily for the summer but plans are being made to open it again in the fall.

MINUTES OF THE BOARD OF REVENUE AND CONTROL OF CHILTON COUNTY, ALABAMA OF JUNE 14, 1954

BOARD MEETING
June 14, 1954

The Board of Revenue and Control of Chilton County, Alabama met in regular session at the county courthouse at Clanton, Alabama, on June 14, 1954, at 9:00 o'clock a.m. The following were present: M. D. Tingle, Judge of Probate and Chairman of said Board, and the following Associate Members of said Board: V. O. Lenoir, A. H. Smith, Sherman Motley and J. M. Dunlap. Judge Tingle presided as Chairman of the meeting and, a quorum being present, declared the meeting open for transaction of business.

WHEREUPON, the Clerk of the Board read the minutes of the meeting of the Board held on May 24, 1954, whereupon the Chairman of the Board asked for corrections or additions to said minutes, there being no corrections or additions to said minutes and the same being declared so read, whereupon Mr. Dunlap seconded said motion, which motion was unanimously carried, and all the members of said Board affixed their signatures to said minutes in the presence of the Board and the Clerk.

WHEREUPON, the Clerk of the Board read the minutes of the meeting of the Board held on May 31, 1954, whereupon the Chairman of the Board asked for corrections or additions to said minutes, there being no corrections or additions to said minutes and the same being correct, Mr. Smith made a motion that said minutes stand adopted as read, whereupon Mr. Dunlap seconded said motion, which motion was unanimously carried, and all the members of said Board affixed their signatures to said minutes in the presence of the Board and the Clerk.

WHEREUPON, the Clerk of the Board read the minutes of the meeting of the Board held on June 3, 1954, whereupon the Chairman of the Board asked for corrections or additions to said minutes, there being no corrections or additions to said minutes and the same being correct, Mr. Lenoir made a motion that said minutes stand adopted as read, whereupon Mr. Dunlap seconded said motion, which motion was unanimously carried, and all the members of said Board affixed their signature to said minutes in the presence o the Board and the Clerk.

Whereupon, the County Engineer, J. D. Bullington, informed the Board that he had employed, subject to the approval of the Board, Earnest Ratliff, as Day Laborer, effective May 24, 1954, and request ed the Board to approve such employment.

Whereupon Mr. Motley offered the following resolution for adoption; which was duly seconded by Mr. Lenoir:

BE IT RESOLVED AND ORDERED: That the Board does hereby approve the employment of Earnest Ratliff as Day Laborer effective May 24, 1954 and his rate of pay is hereby fixed at $5.50 per day.

The above stated resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote of all the members present and the Chairman declared said resolution duly adopted.

WHEREUPON, the Clerk of the Board presented to the Board a list of claims and accounts filed with him against the County. Whereupon the Board proceeded to audit all such claims, and it appearing to the Board that each of the following claims are itemized and sworn to, as provided by law, with evidence of delivery of each item to the county, as provided by law, that the various machinery, equipment, supplies and services covered by the county for use on public roads, bridges and ferries were in spected and approved by the County Engineer, as provided by law. And it further appearing to the Board that all said claims are just due, correct and unpaid and that no part thereof has been previously paid. Whereupon Mr. Motley offered the following resolution for adoption; which was duly seconded by Mr. Smith; and unanimously adopted by the vote of the Chairman and all the members of the Board: BE IT RESOLVED AND ORDERED: That said claims are hereby audited, allowed, passed and approved by the Board. And be it further ordered by the Board that the Clerk issue warrants payable to the respective parties, as hereinafter set out, for the materials or services, as hereinafter set out, and in the amounts, as hereinafter set out, be allowed. AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED AND ORDERED: That the Chairman of the Board is hereby directed and authorized to draw a proper county warrant on the county treasury for the correct amount in the payment of each of said claims, in favor of the person, firm or corporation to whom it is due, for the items listed:

Mr. Smith offered the following resolution for adoption; which was duly seconded by Mr. Dunlap:

BE IT RESOLVED AND ORDERED: That the Board of Revenue and Control enter into the following maitenance agreement with the State Highway Department on Project SACP 325-C.

MAINTENANCE OF PROJECT SACP325-C

Article VII The County hereby assumes the obligation of perpetual maintenance of the project beginning on the date same is completed and accepted by the State Highway Department. Such maintenance shall preserve the riding surface and typical section of the roadway by means of systematic routine and periodic repair, the nature and replacement when necessary of grass, and ditch checks, or other devices for prevention of erosion, the protection of inflammable structures from fire and maintaining the inlet and outlet ditches to drainage structures in such condition that the said structures may function properly at all times. The County agrees that failure on its part to maintain the project in condition satisfactory to the State Highway Department shall be cause for said State Highway Department to defer beginning a new project, until the maintenance of this project has been brought to satisfactory condition.

The above stated resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote of all the members present and the Chairman declared said resolution duly adopted.

Mr. Lenoir offered the following resolution for adoption; which was duly seconded by Mr. Motley:

BE IT RESOLVED AND ORDERED: That the Board of Revenue and Control enter into a supplemental agreement with the State Highway Department for the basing and paving of project SACP-3126-A for the amount of $46,704.25. The above stated resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote of all the members present and the Chairman declared said resolution duly adopted.

WHEREAS, Mrs. W. P. Cofer and R. L. Leach entered into contracts with Chilton County, Alabama for the moving and relocating of storm cellars on project SACP-3126-A, and

WHEREAS, the said Mrs. W. P. Cofer and R. L. Leach have executed releases to Chilton County, Alabama fore the moving and relocating of said storm cellars,

WHEREUPON, Mr. Smith offered the following resolution for adoption; which was duly seconded by Mr. Motley:

BE IT RESOLVED AND ORDERED: That said releases executed by Mrs. W. P. Cofer and R. L. Leach be and the same are hereby accepted by Chilton County, Alabama.

The above stated resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote of all the members present and the Chairman declared said resolution duly adopted.

|s| M. D. Tingle
Judge of Probate

The above stated resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote of all the members present and the Chairman declared said resolution duly adopted.

Mr. Dunlap offered the following preamble and resolution for adoption; which were duly seconded by Mr. Lenoir:

THAT WHEREAS, Company I, 200th Infantry, Alabama National Guard is now an active National Guard organiaztion with the boundaries of Chilton County, Alabama, and

WHEREAS, The Board of Revenue and Control deems it wise and patriotic to render such National Guard organization financial aid,

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED: That there be, and is hereby appropriated to said National Guard the sum of $75.00 to be paid by warrant drawn by the Chairman of said Board on the General Fund of Chilton County not otherwise appropriated, and payable to the Commanding Officer of Company I, 200th Infantry, Alabama National Guard for its maintenance.

The above stated preamble and resolution were adopted by a unanimous vote of all the members present and the Chairman declared said resolution duly adopted.

Mr. Dunlap offered the following resolution for adoption; which was duly seconded by Mr. Motley:

BE IT RESOLVED AND ORDERED: That the County Engineer forthwith survey a right-of-way sixty feet in width beginning approximately ¼ mile north of Pinedale Church, thence southerly and westerly to the Lay Dam paved road where same intersects the city limits of the City of Clanton.

The above stated resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote of all the members present and the Chairman declared said resolution duly adopted.

Mr. Lenoir offered the following preamble and resolution for adoption; which was duly seconded by Mr. Smith:

WHEREAS, Chilton County has constructed and improved a permanent type of paved road in Chilton County, Alabama, which said road runs from Jemison to Mars Hill, and which said road has been designated as Project Number SACP 3103-A, a map of plat of said road being duly recorded in the office of the Judge of Probate of Chilton County, Alabama in Map Book Number 2, at Page 129;

AND, WHEREAS, a supplemental map to said project has been duly recorded in the office of the Judge of Probate of Chilton County, Alabama in Map Book 3, Page 46;

AND, WHEREAS, in order to maintain said road in a safe condition, the Board of Revenue and Control of Chilton County, Alabama has determined that it is necessary to acquire, in addition to the right-of-way now held by said County, a small triangular lot or parcel of land lying between the North boundary line of said new paved highway and the South boundary line of said old road, at or near Station Number 32-61 as shown on supplementary to Map SACP-3103-A recorded in Map Book 3, Page 46, the boundaries of said triangular tract of land being marked in red on said map;

AND, WHEREAS, Perry Peoples and Floyt Headley are the owners of said land;

AND, WHEREAS, it is necessary to make, construct, widen and extend said public highway or road over and across said tract of land for the use of the citizens of Chilton County, Alabama, and the public at large.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED: That Chilton County proceed immediately to institute and prosecute condemnation proceedings to acquire the necessary rights-of-way and easements to make, construct, widen and extend and improve said highway upon, over and across the lands designated in said supplementary map as the property of Perry Peoples and Hoyt Headley, all of said lands lying and being within the boundary of said supplementary map.

AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLED: That Joe Mullins, Attorney at Law, be, and he is hereby employed and authorized to file and prosecute said condemnation suit on behalf of Chilton County, and to do any and all acts necessary for the acquisition of said rights-of-way and easements as shown by said supplemental map.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED: That the compensation for services rendered by said Attorney shall be fixed at a reasonable amount upon the entering of a final decree in the Probate Court in said matter.

AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED: That said rights and easements acquired with the condemnation suit, shown and embraced within the property rights of said supplemental map as recorded, be, and the same are hereby declared a public road or highway.

The above preamble and resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote of all the members of The Board of Revenue and Control present, and the Chairman approved said resolution as adopted.

Mr. Motley offered the following resolution for adoption; which was duly seconded by Mr. Lenoir:

BE IT RESOLVED AND ORDERED: There being no further business to come before the meeting, that said Board adjourn. The above stated resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote of all the members present.

I, Harold H. Smyer, Clerk of The Board of Revenue and Control of Chilton County, Alabama, hereby certify that the foregoing minutes of the proceedings of said Board meeting held on June 14, 1954 were entered and recorded in this minute book, reproduced and a sufficient number of copies of same were filed in the office of the Probate Judge, a copy of same furnished to the Chilton County News, a newspaper published in Chilton County, for publication, and a copy of the same was posted in a conspicuous place in the courthouse on the 24th day of June, 1954.

ALABAMA HIGHLIGHTS

Alabama produced many great leaders during its early days and these men had a tremendous influence on the state.

Instrumental in the friendly relations between Indians and whites in early Alabama was George Strother Gaines who in 1804 became manager of the government trading post at Fort Stephens.

It was the great respect the Choctaws and Chickasaws had for George Strother Gaines that kept them from going to war against the whites when the Indian chief Tecumseh visited Alabama.

Alexander Beaufort Meek, a native of South Carolina, became another beloved Alabamian in the early days of the state. Meek was a statesman, orator, jurist and poet. He also was a newspaper editor.

Among the positions held by Alexander Beaufort Meek in early Alabama were state attorney general, probate judge of Tuscaloosa County and U. S. attorney for South Alabama.

It was as a champion of education that Alexander Beaufort Meek distinguished himself in the early days of Alabama and not as a lawyer or judge. Through his writings in the Mobile Register he championed public education.

To put into effect his own ideas about training boys, Henry Tutwiler opened a boys school at Greene Springs in 1847. His idea was to develop character as well as the brain, and he wanted to prepare young men for business life or for further schooling in college.

An advocate of sound training in many subjects, Henry Tutwiler stressed mathematics and ancient languages, and he insisted that his boys learn something of the sciences.

Henry Tutwiler never became wealthy nor did he become nationally famous for his educational activities in early Alabama, but he did perform a great service for the youth of the state.

(Too Late for Last Week)

The congregation was off some at Mulberry Sunday due to many of our people being away on vacation and spending the day out of the community.

We were glad to have the newly weds, Airman and Mrs. Richard Thompson, also Mr. and Mrs. Ocie Cammon and Miss Cathy Conway as visitors Sunday morning.

Bro. Jones' Fathers Day message was inspiring Sunday morning. His sermon on "Prayer" Sunday night was equally as good.

We were happy to receive Geraldine Fox into our church Sunday night for baptism. Baptismal services to be announced later.

Letters of dismission from our church were granted to Mrs. Gladys Calfee and her two daughters, Gloria and Carole. They have united with Prattville Baptist in Prattville. We wish them much happiness in their church work there.

The State Mission Day of Prayer program will be held at Mulberry Thursday, June 25th.

This is Kathleen Mallory Day of Prayer. Did all of you know Miss Mallory died in the Selma Baptist hospital on June 17. The day set aside to have this program?

The YWA's were proud to present to the church the nice bulletin board out in the vestibule. They want you to use it. Watch for names and covers of new books in our library on the bulletin board.

Bible School—

The Vacation Bible School came to a close last Friday night with a commencement after a successful and good school. Each group participated in the program at the closing exercises. The nursery children played the rhythm band. The beginners sang songs and repeated scripture verses. The Primaries sang songs and gave Bible verses. Kenneth Veazey sang, "Just When I Need Him Most." The Juniors sang, "What I Like Best in Bible School." The Intermediates part on the program was singing and a talk on our Motto, by Jean McCraw.

Mrs. Gordon Conway was the Supt. The faculty and helpers were the Nursery, Mrs. Mollie Smith and Mrs. Louise Williams; beginners, Mrs. Anny Lecroy, Mrs. Elrie Conway, Mrs. Dixie Calfee and Jannell Hayes; Primaries, Mrs. Fannie Cummings, Ophelia Conway and Emogene Cummings; Juniors, Mrs. Eleanor Webster, Mrs. Hazel McGee and Mrs. Mary Grooms; Intermediates, Mrs. Marvoreen Tucker and Mrs. Bernice Cummings. Mr. Gordon Conway helped with the band work for the boys.

Isabella High School was represented at Girls State at Huntingdon College last week by Miss Joyce Davis.

Thorsby Auxiliary sponsored this trip. Joyce was the only girl from Chilton County who attended these meetings.

Home Demonstration Club—

The club met with Mrs. J. D. Conway on June 15th. Mrs. E. S. Jones presided in the absence of the president and vice president. The devotional was given by Mrs. J. D. Conway. Hymn of the month was, "God Be With You Till We Meet Again" The story of it was read by a member and it was sung by the group.

Mrs. Johnnie Lane gave the demonstration on cheese making.

Refreshments were served by the hostess to ten members and the Home Demonstration Agent.

Lecroy's Sunday Visitors

On Sunday June 20th Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Lecroy's Sunday guests were Mr. and Mrs. Ocie Cammon, Mrs Pink Hamma of near Sylacauga, Miss Cathy Conway of Montgomery, Mrs. Emma Manning, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. KEEP CHILDREN AWAY FROM FARM MACHINES

Don't let children play with or around farm machinery.

All farm machinery is dangerous and can kill or injure a child seriously, warn API Extension safety specialists. Children should never be allowed to ride on a tractor with an operator or ride on a pulled implement.

Youngsters old enough to operate a tractor should be cautioned to drive it slowly at all times and to remember that it is a dangerous piece of equipment.

LAFF OF THE WEEK

"Maybe next year we can get you some oars to go with it, dear."

Around OUR HOUSE

by Kathryn Tucker Windham

LIKE most little boys (and even big grown boys, too!) the five-year-old heartily dislikes going to the barber shop. He considers the whole process of getting a hair-cut a waste of time, and sitting still in the chair while the barber does his work with shears and clippers is an ordeal he postpones as long as possible.

Last week his hair had reached such a degree of shagginess that drastic steps were necessary. So it was suggested that he go to the barber shop.

"No," he answered. "I don't need a haircut."

"You need a haircut very badly," it was pointed out to him. "Your hair is growing down over your ears."

"Well, I can still hear, though," the five-year-old replied.

He was given a one-day reprieve.

* * * *

OUR good cook neighbor was on her way to the garbage can when we hailed her in her back yard one morning this week. She had in her hands a brand new box of moth crystals which she seemed to be about to throw away.

"Oh, no, I'm not going to throw the moth crystals away," she explained, when we asked about it. "I'm just going to put them in the garbage can."

It seemed like the same thing to me until she explained. During hot weather, she frequently sprinkles her garbage cans with moth crystals to keep insect pests away.

THIS neighbor's home is on a corner lot, and thoughtless passers-by seems to choose her lawn as the best place to toss empty popcorn sacks, candy wrappers, popsicle covers and cigaret packages.

"I used to wear myself out stooping down to pick up all the trash," this neighbor commented, as she headed for a candy wrapper. "But now I've got me a gadget to make the cleaning up easier."

She reached up into a tree and took down a picnic extension fork she keeps hanging there. A few jabs with the long-handled fork and she had cleared the yard of debris without having to stoop once.

* * *

THE cleaning over, we went into the house to visit in the kitchen, a delightful room. As we talked, she began preparing supper. She was making congealed salad, and I thought she was planning to have muffins, too, when I saw her get out her muffin pans.

But I was wrong. She poured the salad into the muffin rings before putting it into the refrigerator to congeal.

"Muffin pans make ideal individual salad molds," she said. "The salad congeals quicker, it isn't nearly so likely to spill, and each serving is just the right size."

NEXT this neighbor got to work on the chicken croquettes for supper. When she was ready to shape them, she packed the mixture into a small funnel and turned out perfectly shaped croquettes in a jiffy. Small cone-shaped paper cups can be used to shape croquettes, too, she said.

* * *

HERS'S how this good cook neighbor made the chicken croquettes; Combine well 2 cups diced cooked chicken, 1 can cream of chicken soup, 2 teaspoons minced parsley, 1 teaspoon minced onion, 1-2 teaspoon lemon juice, 4 diced hard boiled eggs and 1-2 cup cooked rice. Chill. Shape into croquettes, roll in cracker meal and fry in deep fat until brown.

Cut fuelwood now so it can be good and dry before Fall rains set in.

If patches of dirt on floors are hard to remove with a dry mop, rub them with fine steel wool moistened with turpentine.

To keep zippers working, always slide them shut before washing or ironing.

Stale, soft chunks of bread rubbed over wallpaper in even, vertical strokes will erase soiled spots—even very visible fingermarks.

An excellent eyeglass cleaner can be made by mixing a solution of half water, half ammonia.

A good soil fumigant, ethylene dibromide, is also used in fumigating grain and other stored products.

Overfat sows are often pig killers and may be poor milkers.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama

SLEEP

There is no hard and fast rule to govern the number of hours of sleep people need. The quality of sleep, not the amount, is what counts. Usually a person doing physical labor requires less sleep than the one who works his mind. The ability to relax is the secret of restful sleep. Emotional tension contributes to muscular tension. The person who takes his problems of the day and those of tomorrow to bed with him is not able to relax. Instead he mentally wrestles with himself, accomplishing nothing by his staying awake. When he finally falls asleep he is emotionally tired and sleeps fitfully.

In sleep all actions of the body are slowed down. Breathing is less deep; the pulse is less frequent, and the conscious mind is quiet. All muscular systems tend to relax. The process acts much like the recharging of a battery and serves to restore energy.

Intervals of sleeplessness will not prove harmful. It is the night after night attacks of insomnia that must be looked into, for these tend to break down the body forces.

People having difficulty in going to sleep should learn to prepare themselves by ridding their minds of all emotional conflict of the day. Every effort should be made to relax mentally and physically well in advance of bedtime.

Remember it is the quality of sleep that counts. Nervous weariness causes a tiredness not easily remedied by sleep. If this condition persists, a physician should be consulted to find out the cause.

Don't take your troubles to bed with you. Learn to relax so that your sleep will be of the quality to restore your energy and zest for doing a good day's work. Banish your fears, and let happiness fill your day's living. If your mind is calm, it will ease you gently into restful sleep.

MISS MIGNON BATES WED TO SAMUEL T. BENTON, JR.

The marriage vows of Miss Mignon Bates, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin J. Bates, Sr., and Samuel T. Benton, Jr., were solemnized June 26 at the First Methodist Church Rev. Marvin K. Vickers officiated at the 5:30 p. m. ceremony.

The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Tup Benton, Sr, of Opp, Alabama.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Mildred Carbone, organist. Cooper Speaks was vocalist.

A background of woodland greenery with an arch covered in huckleberry and smilax and which was centered with a sunburst of white gladioli formed the nuptial setting. Lighted cathedral tapers on either side cast a soft glow over the wedding scene.

Serving as maid of honor was Miss Faye Bates, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Miss George Youngblood, Miss Evelyn Graves, Miss Betty Donaldson, and Miss Sue Fleming. Other attendants were Mrs. Bill Young and Mrs. Roy Stokes. Their ballerina length dresses of aqua organdy were identically styled with frilly ruching top off the molded Empire bodices. Their flowers were white carnations.

Junior bridesmaids were Judy Bates and Donna Jean Bates, neices of the bride. They wore floor length dresses of aqua organdy with portrait necklines. They carried bouquets of white carnations also.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. The bodice of her gown was of white Chantilly lace with a portrait neckline and pointed sleeves which came down over the hands. The skirt was tiers of tulle, sweeping to a cathedral length train. Her headdress was a tiara of beaded pearls and rhinestones with a fingertip illusion veil. She carried a bridal bouquet of fleur d'amour centered with a white orchid.

Taylor Benton served as best man. Ushers were John Catmack, Jack Woodham, Donald Ward, Jimmy Bryan, Roy Stokes, and Hugh M. Bates.

The mother of the bride was dressed in blue lace. The bridegroom's mother, wore a dress of pink lace. They wore corsages of white carnations.

A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents. Those assisting in serving were Mrs. B. F. Williams, Mrs. L. A. Speaks, Mrs Francis Speaks, Mrs. Burton Mullins, Mrs. Joseph Mullins and Mrs. B. L. Venable.

For traveling the bride wore a pink linen dress with inserts of lace in the soft pleated skirt with a matching jacket. Her accessories were white and she wore an orchid corsage.

After a wedding trip along the coast of Georgia and Florida the couple will be at home at 616 Spurlin Street, Opp, Alabama.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

Well we've had our vacation now and whether you like it or not from now on, or as long as we're able, you'll be seeing this column back in it's accustomed place.

Someone told one of our favorite waitresses at the cafe the other day exactly how to treat a breaking out on her neck. They did and they used clorox on it. She did and they caught her down about Cooper. She did learn something from the experience though—not to put clorox on a breaking out.

Speaking about the cafe reminds us that we went down the other day to the City Grill for a cup and got in conversation with Ma Bates. The fact is that you can't go in City Grill without getting into conversation with Ma Bates. And that goes for the past 20 years. Ma and the writer were talking about old times and water that had flowed over the dam since she started to work there so many years ago. During the war Ma walked to work at City Grill. She lived about five or six miles down Higgins Ferry Road but she was at her post every morning at 4 a.m. She still is but we think Ma does more supervising now than she did then. She told us that she had trained 628 waitresses in her twenty years there and had worked under 12 different owners or managers. Bob Windham has been there longest having taken over in 1944 or there about. Bob has built a good name for the City Grill as an eatery. But back to Ma Bates—we hope the second twenty years are a mite easier than the first twenty, and she lives to enjoy everyone of them. Of course if you know Ma, you know that if she is here, she'll be enjoying them.

Probate Judge and Mrs. Dave Tingle and children are back after a trip to Washington and New York. Dave told us that he was entertained in Washington by Representative Armistead Selden and in New York by the Adairs. Seems the Adairs are close to the hearts of many Chilton Countians and whenever a party goes to New York from Chilton they always look-up the Adairs. Dave said a close friend of Jack Hayes, Ted Lyons, also greeted them there and got them tickets to the ball game at Yankee Stadium. The Tingle family reports a wonderful trip. It's friends though that make any trip wonderful.

The Chilton County News crew took off last Wednesday for the Annual Peach Festival and they deserved it. You may have been disappointed in your paper but after all, the boys had worked weeks on the Peach Festival catalog and had prepared pages and pages of publicity for the occasion so we thought they were entitled to enjoy some of it which they certainly did. We hope you didn't mind. Anything you missed last week you will probably find in this issue plus a full page of festival doings.

It doesn't take much to shake the foundations of a small town. A light headed woman can do it.

People from dozens of states in these United States have written us for copies of this weeks newspaper containing news of the festival and the Blackwood Brothers tragedy. The Quartet was beloved in every state in the Union it appears—and in our opinion, rightly so.

Bet you didn't know that our beautiful Peach Festival Queen help save the life of a young man who nearly drowned at the swimming pool a couple of weeks before the Festival. The Queen, of course, was Martha Bell and the young man was Erwin Moore.

Helen Parrish is presenting her MYF'ers on a radio program each Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The past Monday afternoon the panel consisted of Gordon Robertson, Jr., Erwin Daily, John Hollis Jackson, Jr., and Phillip Shelton. The next program which will go on the air next Monday will be "Building Christian Friendship." The panel has not been selected. Helen urges the parents as well as the young folk to listen in as it will be educational and helpful to all ages.

Last thought for the week: Policeman to man whose car has been struck by a woman driver: "I'd settle if I were you, sir. After all it's just your word against thousands of hers."

Old socks pulled over shoes packed for travel keep them like new and separated from other packed items.

Homecoming At Rocky Mount

The Homecoming will be held at Rocky Mount on Sunday, July 25th. We are planning a great day, hoping it will be the biggest yet. We will have the Oak Grove Quartet, Maggs Trio from Tuscaloosa, also other singers and friends from Tuscaloosa.

Rev. Shoemaker of Birmingham will be bringing the eleven o'clock sermon. Everyone has a special invitation to come and bring a well filled basket and make it a great day, one of the greatest days to be remembered.

Baptist Young People Will Hold Rally

The Baptist Young People of the Chilton-Unity Association will have their first rally this Saturday night July 10, 7:30 p.m. The rally will be held at the Maple Springs Baptist church located a few miles south of Clanton on Highway 31. There is a sign on the right of the Highway directing you to the church. The speaker of the hour is Rev. Brookshire, pastor of the Liberty Hill Baptist church and music will be under the direction of Rev. Sidney Samples. All of the young people and adults are urged to come. James. Jones the Associational Missionary, will preside.

COTTON MARKETING SIGNS NOW LOOK SOME BRIGHTER

Encouraging signs of cotton marketing were outlined here this week by a state farm leader.

A. W. Jones, API Extension marketing specialist, reported that exports of U S cotton during April totaled 418,000 bales — double the April 1953, figure. And, he added, it looks like exports for the marketing year ending in July may be a half-million bales above same period last year.

"In addition," says Jones, "stocks of cotton in free nations are down to about the lowest levels since 1949. Also, there are indications that domestic demand may be some better next year than in 1954."

Clean-Up of Phenix City Urged By MYF

RESOLUTION

WHEREAS, we the Methodist Youth Fellowship of First Methodist Church, Clanton, Alabama, are future taxpayers and homemakers of the State of Alabama, and are vitally concerned with the legal and moral surroundings in which we shall rear our future children, and,

WHEREAS, we see corruption and vice being tolerated in many parts of our State, and we believe this condition will endanger the youth of our State and do untold damage to future generations.

THEREFORE, be it RESOLVED that the young people of the Methodist Youth Fellowship, First Methodist Church, Clanton, call upon all law enforcement agencies of the nation, state and individual counties to clean up existing conditions of vice in the State of Alabama, and that we ask that these agencies pay particular attention to the vice situation in Phenix City, Alabama, urging them to erase said immoral situation as soon as decent men can act, and be it further

RESOLVED, that we beg the Commanding General of Fort Benning, Georgia, to declare Phenix City permanently off-limits for military personnel, and be it further

RESOLVED, that we call upon all Christian young people to maintain high standards and uphold the Christian ideals which their parents, teachers, and pastors have imparted to them, and be it further

RESOLVED, that we pledge ourselves, as Christian boys and girls, to work for decency and fair play in our Church, School, and Community.

We therefore call upon all Christian Youth to make this same pledge and to uphold this resolution. This must be done in order to rid the State of Alabama, of vice and corruption.

PAULA NIVENS, President.
HELEN PARRISH, Counselor.

CLANTON CITY PARK OFFERS RECREATION TO ALL AGES

Got a sliding board or a see-saw you don't need?

These, according to Mr. V. L. Bulger, director of the local park, are about the only two items he needs to complete the playground's recreational facilities. To the small fry, a park just isn't a park without a sliding board and a see-saw.

By the way, in case you haven't visited the Clanton City Park lately, you owe it to yourself to do so.

Vast improvements have been made.

Over by the Boy Scout Hut, in the coolest pine grove you can find around here, are two shuffleboard courts, 3 acting bars, about a dozen swings for the kiddies, nine picnic tables, two barbecue pits, and running, water. Or, if you prefer, you can use a picnic table for playing table tennis. You won't have to walk down there—you can drive your car right into the picnic area.

Just a few steps away are two fine tennis courts and a baseball diamond, and there's ample space for playing horseshoes.

On the street side of the park you find a wading pool, an acting bar, a flying-jenny, plenty of swings, and adequate space for playing badminton, croquet, and volley ball.

In the swimming pool there is always one lifeguard, and sometimes two on duty. The spacious pool is equipped with a spring board as well as a diving board.

If you're interested in any of the games mentioned all of the needed equipment can be checked out at the park office in the pool building. Also in the office you can purchase cold drinks and snacks.

Free swimming instructions are given each week day morning beginning at 9:00. It is hoped that at least 60 persons will be taught to swim during the summer.

Picnic Groups Urged To Use Facilities—

Mr. Bulger especially urges organizations which are planning outings or families who are planning reunions to make use of the adequate facilities of the park. In the pool office he keeps a reservation calendar and if you will call ahead of time he will reserve ample picnic space for your group as well as any recreational equipment you may wish to use.

Plans have been completed by the Kiwanis of Clanton, to light the picnic area and tennis courts. It was stated this week that the lighting will be completed by the middle of July.

Various Tournaments Are Being Planned—

So far, definite plans have been made for tennis, horseshoe, and badminton tournaments to be held in the near future. Additional tournaments may be scheduled if enough participants are interested in the various other sports.

As you already know, the Little Leaguers play a double-header on the park diamond each Tuesday and Thursday evening. You are invited to attend all of these games and there is never an admission fee.

Clanton's Pony League, managed by Blackston Bates, also plays on the park diamond. Mr. Bulger states that this group of youngsters could use a few more bats and, not having a sponsor, have quite a few transportation problems.

Each Monday Night Is "Family Night"—

Each Monday night is set aside and designated "Family Night" a the City Park in an effort to convince people that there is entertainment for all ages.

On Family Night an entire family is admitted to the pool for only 50c and the pool remains open from 1 until 5 in the afternoon and from 7 until 9 at night.

During the other six days of the week the pool remains open from 1 until 6:30 on Tuesday and Wednesday; on Thursday from 1 until 5 in the afternoon and from 7 until 9 at night; on Friday and Saturday from 1 until 6:30; and on Sunday the pool is open from 2 until 6 in the afternoon.

It's Your Park; You Should Use It—

Again, we urge you to make a special trip to the park to see the vast and varied additions and improvements that have brought it up to date. There is entertainment and recreation for all who wish to take advantage of this wonderful opportunity.

And, as we said before, if yo have an extra see-saw or slidin board, bring it with you.

BUSINESS COURSE FOR VETERANS, NON-VETERANS

The Chilton County Board of Education is considering plans for setting up a commercial course for veterans and non-veterans to open soon. The course will consist of bookkeeping, typing and other business courses. Those interested contact Bob Fuhen, Veterans Service Officer, and Francis Speaks, Head Veterans Teacher for General Continuation, immediately. Efforts will be made to begin the class in time to help veterans meet the August 20 deadline for enrollment.

Mr. B. L. Adams is available as teacher in case the class materializes.

Adventists To Hold First Service In New Church Sat.

The Seventh-day Adventists of Clanton and Chilton County will hold their first Sabbath service in their new church this week. The building is located in Glendale just one block from the Selma highway. There is a lot of work to be done before the building is finished but it is far enough along that church services can be held. The sermon topic at 11 a.m. will be: "Security in Times of Insecurity." The text will be: "Thus asith the Lord. Let not the wise man glory in his wisdom, neither let the mighty man glory in his might, let not the rich man glory in his riches; but let him that glorieth glory in this, that he understandeth and knoweth me, that I am the Lord which exerciseth loving kindness, judgment and righteousness in the earth; for in these things I delight saith the Lord." Jer. 9:23-24.

POULTRYMEN CAN MARKET FAR MORE QUALITY EGGS

Alabamians average eating over 400 eggs in a year's time, but poultrymen of the state produce only 60 per cent of these. The rest are brought in from other sections of the U. S.

These facts were given in Auburn this week to point out the the "great possibilities" for higher egg production in Alabama. Austin Ezzell, API Extension marketing specialist, said no other farm product offers more genuine opportunity.

According to Ezzell, more farmers in all sectilons of the state could find a ready market for good quality eggs. Even though 1955 egg prices are expected to averae some what lower than those of this year, Ezzell believes profitable sales will be made by poultrymen who assure buyers of a constant supply of quality eggs.

Mayor Asks For Cooperation In Water Crisis

To The Citizens of Clanton

You who economized in the use of water, since our request last week that you do so, made it possible for our tanks to be filled again with water. But I want to impress you with the fact our facilities for producing and filtering a sufficient amount of water for our requirements each day is no nearer adequate today than it was last week or last month, and if we all resume our normal use of water in our homes and for the lawn and flowers, in a very short time we will be without water again for the reason, we consume it faster than we can prepare it for use. Therefore, it behooves each one of us to economize to the limit in the use of water.

Our tanks should be kept practically full of water at all times to protect our homes and the business property from total loss by fire. If we knew no fire would occur, it would not make a great deal of difference should we take every gallon of water from the tanks. We could just sit by and wait until the operator at the plant prepared more water and pumped it into the elevated tanks, but you well know a fire in your home with no water, you would lose your home and a fire in the business section would go from building to building and block to block until it destroyed all property in its path, if we had no water to extinguish it

That is exactly the gamble we took last week, and to an extent, we are continiung to do so

We have already let a contract to enlarge our water facilities, but the improvement will not benefit us this year, therefore, we ask you, in all sincerity, please economize in the use of water.

I am writing this for the reason I do believe every person in Clanton would cooperate in saving water if they once realized the acute shortage due only to the fact we consume it faster than we can prepare it for use.

C. FENN JONES, Mayor.

Chief Tucker Praises Guard

Clanton Police Chief Charles Tucker today praised highly the National Guard for their help in handling the crowds during the recent Peach Festival. Tucker said the members of the National Guard contributed valuable help to the police force and they were grateful for their assistance during the Festival when traffic was extremely heavy in and around Clanton.

SCANNING THE NEWS

THE government isn't saying so, but Congressional sources believe that the so-called "new look" Eisenhower military budget will allow stepped-up "defense" spending in the form of war materials for our free world allies to use in fighting Communist aggression.

Informed sources say the plan is to send the materials of war to the places where it is needed most, such as Indochina, and to get our allies to do all they can. Much of the billion dollars for "military construction" requested by the President is expected to be spent in this manner.

Just how much will be spent in supplying the sinews of war to our free world allies is a matter of guesswork. When the Eisenhower military budget cleared the House and went to the Senate Appropriations Committee, the rumors on Capitol Hill indicated that a big increase would be necessary.

● What about our national debt? The size of it depends upon the balance between federal income and outgo, and when the debt comes too close to the legal ceiling, the Government must cut down on spending or borrowing, else raise the debt limit.

The debt's been poking at the ceiling for a long time and Congress, after balking on President Eisenhower's last-minute appeal for a ceiling hike at the close of the 1953 session found itself faced with an urgent problem in 1954. Tax reductions brought about a revenue loss.

Actually, the national debt fluctuates from day to day. On March 31 that part of the debt subject to the legal $275 billion ceiling stood at $269.8 billion. On April 30, it totaled $270.6 billion, by May 20 had risen to $272.6 billion, only $2.4 short of the legal stop sign.

● After the Senate Finance Committee voted in 1953 to shelve the President's request for a $15 billion ceiling boost, Eisenhower again renewed his request for a debt limit increase in his Jan. 7, 1953 State of the Union message and in his Jan. 21 Budget Message, when he said, "it is not prudent to operate the huge business of the United States Government in such a strait jacket as the present debt limit."

Making allowances for revenue losses from the Jan. 1 drop in individual income taxes, expiration of the excess-profits tax, and his new tax proposals, President Eisenhower estimated that in fiscal 1955 federal receipts would total $62.7 billion, while federal outlay would amount to $65.6 billion. This, he estimated, would result in a deficit of $2.9 billion, and a public debt of $273 billion at the close of fiscal 1955. These estimates were made before Congress passed a bill reducing excise taxes with additional losses in revenue of $1 billion. This would raise the estimated deficit to almost $4 billion and place the national debt approximately $1 billion below the legal limit.

How can you take care of such a situation? By raising the debt limit, or cutting down on spending and borrowing.

THE FESTIVAL TRAGEDY

It was a sad end to a joyous festival when young Johnny Ogburn, Bill Lyles and R. W. Blackwood lost their lives in the airplane accident at Clanton airport last Wednesday evening at dusk.

Thousands of people were waiting to hear the Statesmen and the Blackwood Brothers Quartets when the awful crash came that took the lives of the two singers and the soldier.

Chilton County, yes the nation, grieves to hear of the tragedy that climaxed Chilton County's biggest and best Peach Festival—it never ended. Death rang down the curtain before the show was over.

QUEENS ALL THREE

Congratulations to lovely Martha Bell and to Jean Thompson and to Janice Wood for the honor bestowed them by Chilton County in the recent Peach Festival. Congratulations also should be extended to Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Bell, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Thompson and to Mr. and Mrs. Marion Wood parents of the Queens.

They're Queens all three.

SPEAK UP—OR SHUT UP

We have a heckler who is becoming an old friend. We received another note from them last week wanting to know why we were condemning the crime of Thenix City in stead of talking of the crime at home.

The heckler didn't sign a name.

Crime rages today in Russell County because someone, or many, were afraid to sign their name.

So long as the honest, upright people of any community are not afraid to speak out and condemn what they know is wrong, so long will we be free of crime. If you know of law violations, numbers rackets, slot machines, or such it is your duty as a loyal citizen to expose it. There is no other way to combat crime but to bring it out into the open and expose it to the light of public opinion.

ARE YOU INTERESTED IN YOUR COUNTY AND ITS PROGRESS?

We merely want to say, if you ARE interested in local matters and what's going on around you in your county and in other communities then you can get that information by contact through your county paper.

Your Chilton County News tries in every way possible to give you an honest and unbiased opinion and report on anything which we feel that you would feel is important and should be reported to you, the public.

Since we do like to think of ourselves as, "YOUR Community Newspaper" we invite each and everyone of you, our many friends, to send or bring in anything happening to you and around you. We'll always be more than obliged to accept any and all worthy news from in and around the County that is impossible to cover through our own office. VIEWS ON SENATOR McCARTHY UNFAVORABLE

Princeton New Jersey—Based on interviewing completed last week U. S. Poll staff reporters found sentiment toward Senator Joseph C. McCarthy of Wisconsin—easily the most controversial figure in the nation today—dividing as follows:

35 per cent favorable.
49 per cent unfavorable
16 per cent no opinion.

Today's figures represent a drop of 3 per cent in the Senator's popularity since early May, when the comparable figures were

38 per cent favorable
47 per cent unfavorable
15 per cent no opinion.

In both surveys the question asked was:

"In general, would you say your opinion toward Senator McCarthy is favorable or unfavorable?"

Analysis of the vote of the various population groups in the nation throws further light on how the American voters feel about the Wisconsin senator tod?

To begin with, solid majority sentiment among rank and file Democratic voters across the country holds an unfavorable opinion of Senator McCarthy.

Among the nation's Democratic voters, those with unfavorable opinions outnumber those with favorable opinions by a margin of better than 2 to 1.

Among GOP members in the nation, on the other hand, those holding favorable opinions of the Wisconsin Senator outnumber those holding unfavorable opinions by a margin of about 5 to 4.

Among the nation's Independent voters, those with unfavorable views of the senator outnumber those with favorable opinions by a margin of exactly 7 to 5.

The vote by political affiliation:

Democrats: Favorable	26 per cent
Unfavorable	57 per cent
No opinion	17 per cent
Republicans Favorable	48 per cent
Unfavorable	38 per cent
No opinion	14 per cent
Ind. Favorable	35 per cent
Unfavorable	49 per cent
No opinion	16 per cent.

w?

And among those with grade school or no formal education, opinion is very closely divided on the Wisconsin senator; whereas among those with partial or complete college educations, those with unfavorable opinions outnumber by a margin of nearly 2 to 1 those with favorable opinions.

The vote by education levels:

	G. S.	H. S.	Col.
Favorable	38%	35	32
Unfavorable	39	50	60
No Opinion	23	15	8

Among manual workers across the nation, those with unfavorable opinions of Senator McCarthy outnumber those with favorable opinions by a margin of 10 percent; whereas among white-collar workers, those with unfavorable opinions outnumber those with favorable opinions by a 17 percent margin

Among farmers, 13 percent more hold unfavorable opinions of the Wisconsin senator than hold favorable opinions.

The vote by occupational groups: Manual workers: favorable 35 percent, unfavorable 45 percent, no opinion 20 percent.

White collar workers: favorable 37 percent, unfavorable 54 percent, no opinion 9 percent.

Farmers: favorable 34 percent, unfavorable 47 percent, no opinion 19 percent.

Finally, people in the New England-Mid-Atlantic states evidence somewhat more approval of Senator McCarthy than do people in other sections of the country; people in the Southern states evidence least approval.

The vote by sections of the country.

East, favorable 40 percent, unfavorable 45 percent, no opinion 15 percent.

Midwest: favorable 35 percent, unfavorable 49 percent, no opinion 16 percent.

South: favorable 30 percent, unfavorable 53 percent, no opinion 17 percent.

Far West: favorable 34 percent, unfavorable 50 percent, no opinion 16 percent.

Report from Washington

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

In passing the Mutual Security Authorization bill and the Agricultural Act of 1954 both controversial measures, the House was in session many hours during the past week.

Price Supports Debated

By a vote of 299 to 170, the House approved a compromise price support plan calling for another year of supports at variable levels between 82 1-2 and 90 per cent of parity. This, of course, was the most controversial amendment in the Agricultural Act of 1954 passed by the House of Representatives last Friday.

This amendment evolved as a compromise between the request of President Eisenhower and Secretary of Agriculture Benson for a sliding scale of supports between 75 and 90 per cent of parity and the House Agriculture Committee's recommendation of a one-year continuation of rigid supports at 90 per cent of parity.

The Eisenhower-Benson plan was defeated decisively by the House. The compromise plan, then offered in the form of amendment by Rep. Harrison (R-Neb.) received strong support by the Republican leadership.

The proponents of the Harrison Amendment made several claims in support of it which, in my opinion, were not substantiated by their arguments. For example, the argument that flexible price supports will solve the surplus problem is not borne out by the record. As a matter of fact, the record reveals that many of the surplus troubles with certain farm commodities have occured at a time when they were under a program of flexible supports. Potatoes were under a flexible program several years ago when we had such a tremendous surplus. A similar experience was had with eggs under a program of flexible supports.

The claim that flexible price supports will reduce the cost to the consumer was not substantiated. Secretary of Agricuture Benson stated to the House Committee on Agriculture that there would be practically no change in the price of a loaf of bread or in food prices generally if flexible price supports are imposed. As you know, Secretary Benson is the chief advocate of flexible supports.

The argument that the inclusion of the basic commodities under a system of flexible price supports will save billions of dollars for the taxpayers is refuted by the facts. Rep. Harold Cooley, senior Democrat on the House Agriculture Committee, pointed out during debate on the floor of the House that on the basic commodities, which are involved in the 90 per cent support program, the sum of $21 million has been lost over a period of 20 years —a total of only $1 million a year. This amount seems ridiculously small when compared to the $3.3 billion authorized by the House earlier last week for the foreign aid program.

While many of the claims of the proponents were not substantiated by their arguments on the House floor, there were convincing arguments presented to the effect that the adoption of a sliding scale of supports would further reduce the income of the farmer. Seeing few advantages and many possible disadvantages in the adoption of the Harrisoin Amendment, I cast my vote in opposition to it.

Foreign Aid Voted

Approximately $3.3 billion has been authorized by the House for foreign aid during fiscal 1955. This authorization for the Mutual Security Program was approved by House members last Wednesday by a 260-126 vote.

After the Senate approves the measure, it will then be necessary for both houses to pass legislation which actually appropriates the money for mutual security. Authorization bills, such as the one the House just passed for foreign aid, are seperate from the appropriations bills which actually provide the funds that are authorized or permitted. Appropriations can be less, but not more than the authorizations.

As approved by the House, the foreign aid authorization bill includes approximately $1.4 billion for military aid; $464 million for defense support economic aid; $224 million for development assistance $241 million for Korean rehabilitation; $131 million for the point-four technical assistance program; and $321 million for the construction of ports pipelines and airfields in Europe during the next three years.

Eight hundred million dollars of the military aid funds is authorized to support the French war efforts in Indo-China. The House refused to adopt an amendment to eliminate those funds and also defeated a motion to eliminate $85 million in aid for India.

This multi-billion dollar authorization bill was adopted despite the fact there is $9.7 billion of unexpended funds at the present time in the foreign aid program. Of that amount $2.6 billion is still unallocated. There was an effort made to delay further foreign aid authorizations until our entire program of foreign aid can be re-examined in the light of present international developments, but this effort was unsuccessful.

The town of Prattville grew up around the site on which Daniel Pratt built his cotton gin factory. The factory expanded until in 1860 he was making 1,500 gins annually.

To help him earn recognition as a giant in early Alabama industry, Daniel Pratt branched out into cotton, woolen and grist mills at Prattville and he later went into the coal and iron business.

Things we SEE and Hear

by "Tuck"

Being as good or even a little better than the next fellow is a virtue only if the next fellow is a good man, therefore be particular about who you say you're as good or better than, you might not be flattering yourself.

We saw a sign up the road the other day that would bare looking into. It read, "Sho nuff good gas 2c." We don't know what R. C. Williams or any of the boys would say to that but we'll bet that sho nuff good gas is worth about 2c.

As the man said, "We know not the hour or the day" and aside from our tragic ending the '54 Chilton County Peach Festival was a jam up success. We feel it did a lot for the County and the people and the tireless workers deserve a vote of gratitude from the folks. Don't you think it helped our citizens and our County? If we'll give it the backing it deserves, for it is for you, we'll have an even better celebration in honor of our favorite fruit and one of our main sources of livlihood in 1955. Let's start building now, together, for a grand success in the coming year. It'll be worth it if we'll all do an equal part.

We wish to extend our humble sympathies to the families and friends of the young men involved in the accident last Wednesday night. As usual we don't know how to say it, but we all understand their great loss and with them God-speed in the task of overcoming it.

Had a good laugh on old Joe Jones the other day. He thought he was going to move to Auburn so he put all their belongings into two cars and spent the night with in-laws. Turned out he didn't move after all so he had to move the two cars full back to the house. His mother-in-law told him that if he would'nt go to so much trouble she'd let him spend the night again sometime.

Mr. Cummings from Isabella we believe, was in Saturday and talked with us a spell. He seemed mighty proud of that boy of his in service (navy) and talked a lot of him. He also impressed us as a man of fine qualities and convictions and we were mighty proud to make his acquaintance. We hope that he feels free to visit us at any time here at the News and we hope Mr. Cummings Jr., is as good a man as his dad seems to be.

We hope the fall that Mrs. Myrtle Wilson took recently didn't put an abrupt halt to her will to want to help out in civic affairs. It seems while doing her part in the recent festivities she fell in a hole at the city airport and bunged up her leg pretty badly. She is a good worker and we wouldn't want a thing like that to discourage her from future activities.

Down to visit grandpa Yeargan, Ira to some folks, the 4th and he told us about a trade some fella in his community had made with another. Seems the fellow on the selling end had a cow, and he claimed she'd stay anywhere. The other fellow said he didn't want a lot of fence breakin' because he'd had previous trouble of 'that sort and didn't want the job of mendin' broken fences. "Naw, she'll stay anywhere" said the first. Well, the fellow took her home and it wasn't but a very short time before he came back hoppin' mad. "That durn fool cow won't stay anywhere I put her and you said she'd stay anywhere," he raged. Second fellow very calmly replied, "she'll stay anywhere she wants to and I didn't say I knew where she liked to stay, I just said she'd stay anywhere, and she does don't she?"

And while we're down in that neck of the woods we'd like to call attention to Mt. Pisgah's new Church being built. It's going up near where the old building was and when we were by the other day it was coming along fine. The fine thing about their new church is that it's being built from donations of money and sweat and labor of interested and loyal members. We realize it's been done before in other places, but no matter where it's done we think it is a fine way to show your loyalty to your church and we wish them well in their new worship center.

The Seventh Day Adventist are also expanding by way of a new church building out in Glendale. It is nearing completion in a hurry and gives every indication of being a beauty aid as well as compliment to the neighborhood and the community.

We bought a Bible the other day and if anything we ever paid for

Daniel Pratt came to Alabam in 1833 after manufacturing cotton gins in Georgia for two years.

In Autauga County where he settled in 1833, Daniel Pratt manufactured cotton gins on the plantation of a Colonel Elmore, and in 1838 he purchased a site on Autauga Creek where he erected his factory for making of gins.

THINGS WE'RE SEEING AND HEARING:

Water supply in the old town not up to par.

Quite a few "citizens" paying little or no attention to the mayo'rs request for careful use of water.

J. E. Easterling comparing coffee with the Theater Cafe. We don't know 'cause we don't drink.

Some Of Our Peach Pickers

Twenty-six bidders paid a record total of $1,420.00 for the prize-winning baskets of peaches at the 1954 Chilton County Peach Festival, M. R. Glasscock, chairman of the sales committee reported.

J. D. Bell, operator of Bell Hardware Co., Clanton, and father of the festival queen, Martha Bell, purchased the No. 1 basket of peaches, exhibited by Jack Gore, of Clanton. Mr. Bell paid $650 for the first place winning basket of Hale Havens.

Capital Trailways of Montgomery paid the second highest price of $135.00 for the reserve champion bushel basket exhibited by A. D. Headley, Thorsby. They also were Hale Havens.

Mr. Headley bought two of the prize-winning baskets himself, paying a total of $200 for two baskets of peaches he had exhibited. He in turn gave the peaches to the festival to be sold again.

Death Ends Festival-

Three Killed At Airport Just Before Final Program Started

Die In Plane Crash—These two members of the widely-known Blackwood Brothers Quartet died when their plane crashed and burned at Clanton airport. They are R. W. Blackwood (left), baritone, and Bill Lyles, bass.

Death rang down the curtain on the 1954 Chilton County Peach Festival. Three men died when a plane owned by the Blackwood Brothers crashed in a landing at the airport just minutes before the last performance of the annual affair was to take place. The Statesmen Quartet were also scheduled to appear on the same program with the Blackwood Brothers.

Johnnie Ogburn, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Archie Ogburn of Thorsby, was killed as was Bill Lyles and R. W. Blackwood, members of the quartet.

Reports are that Blackwood, who was co-pilot of the plane, was coming up to get the lay of the field so that he would have no trouble in taking off on the return journey to Memphis after the show. Lyles and young Ogburn went with him just for the ride. The accident occurred when the plane started to land and with thousands of spectators waiting for time for the "show to start" in the new "Cow Palace." Within seconds all was bedlam. People were piling out onto the field. The Clanton Fire Department arrived and within a few minutes ambulances were answering the call. Traffic was congested and the ambulance drivers had a very difficult time getting the bodies out and to the funeral home.

It was a horribly dramatic finish to the most successful peach festival held here in the eight years since its beginning. All of Chilton County grieves with the families of the three men who died in the airplane crash.

5000 ATTEND BLACKWOOD SINGERS' RITES

(From the Birmingham-Post-Herald)

MEMPHIS, July 2—Two of the nation's best known gospel singers were buried today following the biggest funeral this city has ever known.

"I knew them as young men I admired," their governor said.

"They left wells of blessings to thousands and thousands of people in America," their pastor said.

More than 500 jammed City Auditorium during the hour-long service for R. W. Blackwood, 32 and Bill Lyles, 33, baritone and bass of the Blackwood Brothers quartet.

It was the first funeral ever held at the auditorium where the quartet pulled in big crowds during monthly personal appearances.

Gov. Frank Clement, who spoke as a "friend of the singers and not as governor," spoke briefly and recalled that he had been with the quartet when they made their last public appearance in Memphis at the auditorium, June 18.

At his request, they sang "The Man Upstairs," the song with which they won the Arthur Godfrey Talent Scouts first prize two weeks ago.

The Rev. James F. Hamill, the singers' pastor said a sermon was "as unnecessary as improving the beauty of a sunset."

Gospel quartets from throughout the South were on hand and sang favorite songs of the two men.

STANTON NEWS

RUTH HICKS

Revival at the Baptist Church is in progress. A large attendance, good singing and inspiring messages. The Rev Ed Corley, Evangelist, brining the messages. This revival will run through Friday night of this week. Morning services at 10:30; evening 7:30. Attend these services.

received such a nice message from Mr. and Mrs. A D Eaves out Montana way last week. They are having a wonderful visit and send their love to all their friends, and they do have them by the score in this and adjoining communities. This week especially their hearts and prayers are here with us during our revival. Mr. and Mrs. Eaves have always been church-goers and they are vitally interested in "Ole Ebenezer church."

Many complimentary remarks are being heard about the Rev. Bob Boyd, pastor of the Baptist church. He is doing a wonderful work with our young folks and 'tis said of him that he goes out each Sunday morning and brings in to the church people who heretofore have been unable to attend due to not having a car or some means of transportation to the church. Rev. Boyd is a visiting pastor which this community appreciates. It seems that he has just about made his rounds, not once, but several times to the different homes. He is a pastor that you can call upon, talk with about your problems, and always eager and ready to help in any and all worthwhile things for the betterment of our community, and church.

Attending Sunday School last Sunday at the Baptist Church 318. The goal for this Sunday, July 4th is 350. We feel that they will reach this number as the attendance is growing.

Just learned that Mrs. Charlie Levins of Plantersville, Ala., is now visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Mose Hathcock in Billingsley. Mrs. Levins is affectionately known as "Miss Tennie" and is dearly loved by all who know her. Mrs. Levins seems to be enjoying good health at this time and is enjoying seeing all of her relatives and friends in this section.

Your reporter had the joy of meeting again and visiting with Mr. and Mrs Mose Hathcock in the Lawrence Clinic in Clanton, last Saturday morning. Regret to report that Mr. Hathcock is in bad health at this time and is under the care of Dr. Lawrence. The Hathcocks were friends some years ago in Brent, Ala., and it was nice seeing them again.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brooks (Frances Stuart) and children of Hitsville, Ala., are on a visit with Mrs. Willie Stuart.

Mrs. Mattie Woolley has returned to Stanton after visiting with her daughter Mrs. Elbert Cooper and family in Selma, Ala.

Richard Sanders, age 67, passed away at the Selma Baptist hospital last Sunday night after more than 2 weeks illness there. "Rich" as he was known by his friends was an employee of the W. E. Belcher Lumber Co., Centreville, Ala. He had been connected with the company since 1915. The past two years he had not been able to work due to declining health. Funeral services were held from the Four Points Baptist Church with the Rev. Hubert Williams officiating last Tuesday morning. Collins Funeral Directors of West Blocton were in charge of interment in the Centreville cemetery.

"Rich's" mother, Mrs. Alabama Sanders is 97 years of age and lives in West Blocton, Ala. with a daughter, Mrs. Lester West.

Surviving are the widow, his mother, 3 brothers, Clyde of Brent, Ala., Dalton and Thomas of New York and one sister, Mrs. Lester West.

"Rich" for a number of years drove for the late Mr. W E Belcher, Sr., who was totally blind. Rich was well known in this and adjoining communities, and often visited with old friends when passing through this section with Mr. Belcher on their way to Plantersville where Mr. Belcher had business interests.

Jesse Roland Twilley, 63, President of the Selma Bus Lines and among Selma's prominent business figures for a long period of time, was laid to rest at 5 p.m. Tuesday after a long illness in Live Oak cemetery. Funeral services were conducted from the chapel of Breslin Service Funeral Home. Dr. Fred B. Pearson, pastor of the First Baptist church in which Mr. Twilley worshipped, officiated.

Mr. Twilley, a native of Marengo county had lived in Selma since early childhood, and was educated in Dallas Academy and in the Catholic convent grade school. Mr. Twilley was a blacksmith for 12 years. He was among the first to convert his shop to servicing the automobile just as the automobile was becoming recognized as an adjunct to modern life. Mr. Twilley opened an auto repair business and went into the retail and wholesale gas business. In addition, Mr. Twilley operated for many years the Twilley Coal Yard. Operated a 600-acre farm on which he raised beef cattle in addition to general farming operations. On Jan 1, 1941 he organized the Selma Bus Line, meeting a local need which became acute in connection with the development of Craig Air Force Base, in response to the urging of local leaders of Selma. The Bus Line developed with Mr. Twilley as President, J. D. Price as vice president and Miss Sarah Reynolds as Secty. Treas. The Bus line now serves all of Selma and Craig Field with nine buses and modern equipment, with its own repair shops.

Survivors include Mrs. Ola White Twilley and their children, Jesse H Twilley and Howard Twilley of Selma, Ala., and Mrs. N D Keesler, Los Angeles, Calif, 1 sister Mrs. Emma Reach and a brother G H Twilley of Selma. Four grandchildren.

Scores of friends and relatives assembled at the Breslin Service Funeral Home in Selma, at 11 a.m. last Monday to attend final rites for 80 years old Edward Lillienthal, one of Selma's most widely-known citizens whose quick wit and congenial nature had earned him the affection of a wide circle of persons. "Mr. Ed" as he was affectionately known died in a Selma hospital at 2:45 a.m. Sunday, following a Friday morning heart attack from which he never rallied. Rabbi Peter Levinson, Meridian, Miss., officiating. Burial in Live Oak cemetery. Mr Ed was active in his work with the C W Hooper Agency which he joined in 1938 until Friday when he suffered a heart attack. Survivors include 4 nieces, Mrs. Annie Lillienthal, Mrs. Ruth Threefoot of Selma, Mrs Sidney Friedman, Richmond, Va., Mrs. B. S. Gerson of Miami, Florida, 3 nephews Emil Siegal, Mose Lillienthal, and Herbert Lillienthal of Selma, Ala. and a number of grand-nieces and grand nephews. Mr. Ed will be greatly missed in and around Selma, as he visited each day business establishments and their employees.

Mrs. Thomas Martin, Jr of Plantersville, Ala., is in school at API during the summer. Her daughters, Bobbie and Mildred are in Auburn with their mother.

Annual revival services will begin at the Jones Baptist church, Jones, Ala., the Second Sunday in July with the Rev. W F Rasberry, pastor of Maplesville Baptist church, as guest minister. The Rev. W D Holladay of Plantersville, is pastor of this church. A week of cottage prayer meetings will precede the revival, meetings being held on Monday through Thursday in the homes, and on Friday night in the church. An invitation is extended to one and all to attend these services.

Four Chilton Girls Attending 4-H Camp

Representing Chilton In State Dress Revue

Patsy Young—Clanton.

Patsy Young, Chilton County's Senior Dress Revue winner represented Chilton County in the State Dress Revue held in Auburn Wednesday, July 7 during State 4-H Club Camp. The state winner will be presented at the closing meeting of the Camp, Friday night, July 9th.

Sixty-three 4-H girls from the state entered the Dress Revue. The dresses together with the girl's records were judged ahead of time. On the 7th the girls modeled their dresses and were judged for appearance.

Patsy's dress was made princess styles of stone blue cotton shantung. This material was made in Switzerland of Egyptian yarn. The dress has detachable colars which makes it appropriate to wear on more occasions. The dress may be worn with out a colar, or with one of the same material with rhinestones on it, or with a white organdy colar. Patsy has made a dress that she is proud of and one that she will enjoy wearing.

Patsy is also a candidate for State 4-H Club Vice-President. Because of Patsy's leadership, achievement and good record in the 4-H Club as well as in all other activities she participates in, the 4-H club leaders of the County feel that she is worthy of holding a state office. She has served her local and County 4-H Club very well and she would certainly do the same for the state 4-H Club, so Chilton county 4-H'ers wish the best of luck to Patsy in her campaign.

Four outstanding 4-H Club girls have been selected from Chilton County to attend the Annual State 4-H Club Camp and Leadership Short-course in Auburn July 6th-10th. According to Mrs. Johnnie M. Lane, Assistant Home Demonstration Agent, the 4-H'ers were selected on points of leadership, achievement, character, and projects.

The state 4-H Club leaders have planned a full week for the Camp which is to be educational as well as entertaining. Special emphasis is being placed on the following 4-H projects: baking, canning, dairy foods, dress revue, development of 4-H Club, talent, tractor driving, homemade lamps, rural arts and crafts, farm and home safety and farm and home electricity. The following state contests will be held: dress revue, dairy foods, baking, talent, homemade lamps, and tractor driving. Five demonstrations will be held: farm and home safety, leadership training recreation, poultry production, and 4-H project record keeping. Recreation is to include swimming, games, picnic and an International Costume party at which time prizes will be given for the best costume. Special emphasis will be placed on the latest experimental work in Agriculture and a tour of the Experiment Station will be one of the highlights.

Mrs. Lane announces that the following girls were selected to represent Chilton County at State Camp; Patsy Young, Patsy Ann Boles, Peggy Jean Brown, and Peggy Ann Blackmon.

Patsy Young, 16 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs E. R. Young, Clanton, Ala., Rt 5, is Chilton County's representative in the State Dress Revue and is also a candidate for State 4-H Vice President. Voting delegates will be Peggy Ann Blackmon and Peggy Jean Brown. Peggy Ann is 14 years old dauhter of Mr and Mrs W. E. Blackmon, Jemison, Ala., Rt 2. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Brown Clanton, Ala, Rt 2, are the parents of Peggy Jean Brown, who is 14. Patsy Ann [illegible] parents are Mr and Mrs J. M. [illegible] Thorsby, Ala., Rt 1. She is also 14.

Dr. Gaines Gives Facts On Rabies

In answer to numerous inquiries, the following are facts everyone should know about rabies:

1. As required by Alabama State law, all dogs 3 months old or older must be vaccinated against rabies.

2. These shots confer an immunity for only 12 months, therefore must be repeated yearly or run the risk of your dog having rabies.

3. In case a person is bitten by a dog, immediately see your physician. By no means should the animal be destroyed. Confine the animal suspected of having rabies for a period of not less than two weeks. This is important for if the animal should be rabid, it should be allowed to follow the natural course of rabies which is always fatal. When the animal dies, the head should be removed by a veterinarian and shipped to the State Health Department for a positive diagnosis from the brain. If the animal is destroyed before it dies from the disease, there is a good possibility that positive diagnosis can not be made although the animal was rabid.

4. The average incubation period for rabies in the dog is three weeks, that is the time lapse from the time the dog is bitten until it shows symptoms of rabies.

5. Three distinct stages mark the typical course of rabies.

(a.) Premonitory stage—in which the dog is depressed, restless, irritable, and avoids association with people. This is the stage where there is a change in character of the animal.

(b.) Excitement stage—this is characterized by excitement, restlessness, and vicious or aimless attacks on any moving object or animal. In this stage, the animal will attack anything that crosses its path.

(c.) Paralytic stage —here, drooling and an open mouth are seen due to paralysis of the lower jaw. A staring expression and inability to swallow will also be observed. After paralysis once appears, it develops rather rapidly throughout the entire body and ends [illegible] the fifth to eighth day.

Occasionally, the first [illegible] are not seen. Only the paralytic syndrome is seen. This is termed "dumb" rabies due to the absence of the excitement symptoms.

6. The only sensible approach to an eradication program against rabies is everyone's cooperation in the vaccination of all dogs 3 months old and older and the humane destruction of strays and unwanted animals.

HIDDEN HUNGER

If we do not eat a diet containing sufficient amounts of vitamins and minerals, our tissue cells may become deficient in these important items, resulting in improper function of these cells, adversely affecting our body as a whole. This condition was called "Hidden Hunger" by a manufacturer of vitamin products in connection with their advertising program some time ago.

I read in the Bible that "all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God," and "there is none righteous, no not one," and that all our righteousness (our morality is as 'filthy rags" in the sight of God. I remember that Christ told Nicodemus, one of the finest men of his time "he must be born again." Our morality will not make us righteous in God's sight, but only through accepting God's plan of salvation can we be assured of forgiveness of sin and eternal life.

This world is so full of unrest, sorrow, worry and suffering. What it needs is not more religion, but a spiritual experience. Christianity is not a creed; it is a life and a living process. It is not something to be argued about—it is a thing to be experienced.

A doctor said to me recently, "Almost every day I have patients come to me for help, who, I find, have no organic disease, but merely a functional ailment caused by worry, anxiety, fear, and the like. What they need is not medicine, but a spiritual experience."

Would you like to satisfy this "Hidden Hunger" within you? Then do three things: (1) Go to Jesus. There can be no peace in the soul until it has been consciously pardoned, and there is pardon only through the merit and atonement of Christ. (2) Go to the Bible, the Word of God. The truths of God's word are spiritual truths; therefore, they must be spiritually discerned. Read it with an open, unprejudiced mind. Remember, it contains the only revelation which God has given to man, and here are found the words of Christ. As you open its pages, breathe this prayer: "Open thou mine eyes, that I may behold wondrous tilings out of thy law." (3) Go to the place of prayer. Humble yourself before God. Confess your sins and ask for pardon. He only can cure the "disease of sin" in your life, and He has told us that, "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness."

I close with this statement that if you want to settle the unrest in your life, the "Hidden Hunger," meet Jesus face to face.

MRS. BERT SNEAD HOSTESS TO GOLDEN CIRCLE S S CLASS

Mrs. Bert Snead was hostess to the Golden Circle Sunday School class of the First Baptist church Monday evening, June 28. The guests were received in the living room which was decorated with summer flowers.

After the business period a program was presented on music in the church. Mrs. Paul Gowan gave the devotional which was followed by a violin number which was presented by Mrs. Chester Gaines. Mrs. Snead gave a brief history of music in the church and the story of Isaac Watts an early hymn writer. Mrs. W. C. Maddox told the story of Charles and John Wesley. Another well known hym nwriter was the blind Fanny Crosby. This story was told by Janice Freeland.

Following each story the group sang hymns that was written by each of the writers. The program closed with a short period of singing favorite hymns.

Delightful refreshments were served by the hostess to the following: Mrs. Betty Wood, Mrs. Dave Tingle, Mrs. Paul Gowan, Mrs. Chester Gaines, Mrs. Raymond Cox, Mrs. Louie Crowe, Mrs. W. C. Maddox and Miss Janice Freeland.

COUNTRY CLUB MEMBERS ENJOY GET-TOGETHER

Members of the Clanton Country Club enjoyed a holiday delight when they met with members of their families at the club on Monday afternoon, July 5.

While the male members played golf on the Country Club course the ladies enjoyed bridge. The high score in bridge was won by Mrs. George Tucker while the second high score went to Mrs. Fred Blackmon. In the men's golf tournament Ed Propst was winner with Howard Buckner coming in second, Guy McKee third, and Shorty Headley fourth.

At 6:30 p.m. a luscious picnic supper was spread and served.

Around sixty people were present for this delightful occasion.

AWARDED GOOD CONDUCT MEDAL

Rufus Lafayette Foshee, Jr.

Rufus Lafayette Foshee, Jr., yeoman, U. S. Navy, of Clanton, Ala., was recently awarded the Good Conduct Medal in recognition of a perfect three year record. Since November 1951, Foshee has served aboard the fast attack carrier, USS CoralSea (CVA-43), on which he is now the leading yeoman in the Gunnery Department Office. The huge aircraft carrier soon will depart for a cruise in the Mediterranean Sea where Foshee can expect to again visit the major seaboard cities, including the French and Italian Riverias.

TREAT CUT FLOWERS FOR LONG FRESHNESS

AUBURN, Ala.—Your cut flowers will last longer if you follow these pointers given by Alice Peavy, API Extension specialist:

1. Cut the flowers either in early morning or late afternoon.

2. Use a slanting cut so flowers can absorb more conditioning solution and water.

3. Place stems in a conditioning solution immediately after cutting.

Miss Peavy says flowers cut in late afternoon should not stay in the conditioning solution any longer than overnight. If cut in the morning let them stay in the fiuld at least two hours.

Conditioning solutious vray according to flowers, points out Miss Peavey. For example, use eight drops of oil of peppermint to one quart of water to make daisies last longer. Burn stem ends of dahlias and condition in two quarts of ice water to which five tabpespoons of alcohol have been added. Gladioli need five tablespoons of vinegar to one quart of water. Marigolds should have two tablespoons of sugar plus one tablespoon of salt to a quart of water.

Condition petunias in a solution of one teaspoon sugar per pint of water. For roses use two tablespoons of either powdered alum or table salt to a quart of water help preserve snapdragons.

After conditioning flowers, always arrange them in fresh water, concludes Miss Peavey.

Sugar doughnuts easily and nicely by shaking them in a paper bag containing a small quantity of powdered sugar.

Flabby, soft bristles on hair brushes can be stiffened by rinsing in a water solution of alum after washing.

Around OUR HOUSE

by Kathryn Tucker Windham

THE five-year-old, for reasons known only to himself recently has become quite interested in the Devil. Yesterday morning, he left his play in the backyard to come into the kitchen to ask:

"Mother, what is the Devil's last name?"

Even after the hardest kind of thinking, I couldn't come up with any kind of answer to satisfy him. He stood around silently for a few minutes, and then asked:

"Does the Devil have a mother?"

This time I was on more certain ground, and I assured him that the Devil had no mother.

"You mean he doesn't have anybody to take care of him and love him, no mother at all?"

"That's right," I replied. "He doesn't have any mother at all."

"Well," the five-year-old said reflectively. "No wonder the Devil is so bad."

THE next door neighbor was making jelly when we stopped by her kitchen this morning. Oh, it smelled good!

She was standing over the boiling pot with a vegetable brush in her hand, and occasionally she would swish the brush across the top of the bubbling mixture.

"I always use a clean vegetable brush instead of a spoon for swimming my jelly," she explained. "With a brush, there's no waste. The froth clings to the brush, and it is easy to wash off in hot water."

This neighbor taught us some more preserving tricks, too. Instead of dumping her jar tops into boiling water, the way we do, she first ties them in a square of cheese cloth and then lowers them into the water. Using that method, she never burns her fingers trying to fish them out when she's ready to use them.

She keeps her empty jars sweet-smelling and ready for use by putting a piece of crumpled newspaper in each jar before she puts the top on. The newspaper prevents the musty odor usually present in empty jars which have been stored for some time.

And, of course, she uses a small pitcher or a gravy boat to fill the jars with the hot preserves or jelly

WMU QUARTERLY MEETING

The quarterly meeting of Chilton Unity Association will be held at Maplesville Baptist church on Wednesday, July 7th, beginning at 10:00 o'clock. A very interesting program is in store.

Rev. and Mrs. John L. Isaac, Missionaries in South Alabama in the Indian field, will be there with their Indian co-workers to tell of God's wonderful work among their native tribes.

All pastors, their wives, all committee chairmen, all young people leaders and all workers from each church in Chilton-Unity Association are especially urged to attend. Visitors are cordially invited to come and enjoy a good day for the Lord. Please bring a covered dish to help with lunch.

Mix a little laundry blueing with water to make a substitute for ink

---

WHEN this smart neighbor went to pick the berries, she wore a pair of old gloves with the finger tips cut off. The gloves protected her hands from painful scratches while leaving her fingers free for picking.

WHILE this next door neighbor was busy with her preserving, she accidentally spilled water on her kitchen floor, not much but still enough to make a small puddle. She whisked up the water quickly with a toy mop—the kind little girls use for play. She keeps it hanging by her kitchen sink and says the handy little mop serves many steps for her, since it can get up most spilled liquids and she doesn't have to get out the regular mop for such tasks.

GOING on a holiday picnic? Here's a hearty salad to take along: Slice 4 frankfurters in ¼ inch slices. Combine with ½ head shredded lettuce, 1-2 chopped green pepper, 2 stalks chopped celery, 1 small minced onion, 3 cooked and diced potatoes, ½ cup diced cheese, 2 tomatoes cut in pieces, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon chili sauce, 1 tablespoon Worcestershire saude, and ½ cup French dressing.

side. Let's remember him in our prayers and hope he will have a quick recovery.

Mr and Mrs. Walker Allen and Karen of Tuscaloosa have been visiting relatives here over the week end.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK
Spicy Chicken Sandwiches
Makes 12

cups cooked finely diced cooked chicken cup finely diced celery tablespoon lemon juice
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup mayonnaise
24 sliced day old bread
Softened butter

Combine first seven ingredients. Trim crusts from all sliced bread and spread half the slices with butter. Cover each with a slice of bread spread with chicken mixture. Cut in shapes as desired.

over them combine ½ cup each honey and table cream with 2 tablespoons butter and cook over low heat about 10 minutes. Serve hot.

If your husband brings home fish from his catch, serve baked or fried fish with this delectably cool sauce: combine a cup of soured cream with the juice of half a lemon, a quarter cup of prepared horseradish and ½ teaspoon salt.

A favorite "whole meal" salad takes a half cantaloupe filled with sliced bananas, pineapple, berries and seeded, halved grapes.

Garden peas are delightful when teamed with slivered almonds and melted butter after they're cooked. Add boiled potatoes and broiled lamb chops and you have a perfect menu even if company comes.

WORK MUST BEGIN EARLY FOR SUCCESSFUL ALFALFA

Auburn, Ala.—Right now is the time to make preparations for that alfalfa crop.

Turn the land in early July or as soon as there is enough moisture in the soil, says D. R. Harbor, API Extension agronomist.

Leave the ground in the rough until a good rain soaks in. Harmor says to then harrow the land lightly with a disk harrow as often as a crop of grass or weeds come up Continue this fallowing until planting time—Aug. 15 to Sept. 15 in North Alabama, Sept. 15 to Oct. 15 in South Alabama, and about Nov. 1 in the Gulf Coast area.

LUTHER FULLER RETIRES

One of Alabama's best known farm figures, Luther Fuller, who has done agricultural work in this state for the past 45 years and has headed the Agricultural Division of TCI Division of United States Steel Corporation for 20 years, has retired from company work and will devote his time to an agency for developing stronger farming in the state through bringing farm buyers and sellers together.

The management of TCI abolished its agricultural division, which has been in existence about 30 years, placing Fuller on the retired list. Having been vitally interested in Alabama's agricultural progress all his adult life, he wants to continue contributing to this program.

He graduated in Agriculture from Auburn in 1911, then went to work for the Foley Land Company at Foley, Alabama. Later he taught agriculture in Louisiana and was Agricultural Agent for the Southern Railroad. After serving during World War I, he became a County Agent in South Carolina before moving North as General Agricultural Agent for the Erie Railroad and General Agricultural and Industrial Agent for the Chicago and Eastern Illinois Railroad.

After 15 years with these lines, he returned to Alabama as Land Consultant for the National Resources Board. His service with TCI followed this position.

Mr. Fuller will continue to make his headquarters in the Watts Building, Birmingham.

SCHOOL CENSUS WILL BE ENUMERATED IN JULY

In accordance with the laws of the State of Alabama, census enumerators will be calling on every home in Chilton County during the month of July to enumerate children, ages 2 through 20. This count is very important for several reasons. It helps the State in the distribution of school funds to the various counties and cities. It is also accepted as an official document in aiding in securing driver's licenses, birth certificates and in various other legal matters.

Parents and guardians can be helpful to the enumerators by having the information readily available. The information to be obtained will include:

1. The full name, addresses, and occupation of both parents.

2. The full names of all children, 2 to 20 inclusive, the name of the next school they will attend, the accurate birth date and the highest grade completed.

Children within the age limits who are temporarily away from home should be enumerated. This will include those in college, in the armed services, or away at work provided they are still considered a part of the immediate family. (Usually if they are still single.)

Parents are urged to have birth certificates convenient to show the enumerator as evidence of birth date. When these are not available, Bible records, old insurance policies or Baptismal records will be helpful.

Enumerators have been selected. Principals and teachers of the various communities will be doing the enumeration.

GROVE HILL GETS PATROL POST

Montgomery, Ala.—A new post command of the Highway Patrol will be established at Grove Hill July 1.

Patrol Chief Tom Carlisle said John W. Cloud, promoted June 16 from patrolman to sergeant at Anniston, will command the new post. It will include, Choctaw, Washington, and Clarke Counties, formerly sectors of the Demopolis, Mobile and Evergreen posts, respectively.

Highway patrolmen affected by the change of command headquarters are Max T., Bryant and Wallace Gordon, Butler; A. D. Ashcraft and Harvey Nelson, Chatom, and James L. Fuqua and Henry Mattingly, Grove Hill.

The highway patrol has for several years maintained a radio station at Grove Hill to serve the three counties as an auxiliary to the Evergreen post radio unit. Carlisle said the step-up for Grove Hill to a command area is being made "to provide closer supervision in an area where accidents are increasing.

FIN-FAN ITEMS

By R. L. (Dick) SCOTT

This week's fish story is the same as last week, that is, prospects are only fair on the ever beautiful Coosa-Tallapoosa chain of lakes. The water is clear but much too warm to encourage the finny ones into much surface activity during the hot mid-day hours.

One of the Alabama Power Company weigh-in officers, E. V. Estes, Eclectic, reports that a great deal of activity is taking place on Lake Martin. Plug and fly casters are doing well in the early morning hours in the Parker and Big Kowaliga Creek areas. Also prospects are good around the Kowaliga Creek bridge. Mr. Estes says that as the day grows warmer switch to live bait, and fish deep. This is good advice no matter where you fish. Most of us know that best results are had by changing baits and methods as the conditions change, but the catch is that we do nothing about it until someone mentions it or you see it in the paper. Use the bait or lure that is most abundant at the time you are fishing. If willow flies are out in large hatches, use flies or willow grubs. If the fields are full of grasshoppers and crickets, then the best bait would be live or artificial hoppers and crickets. The same goes for shad and spot-tails. Right now large schools of small shad on the Coosa Lakes and spot-tails on the Tallapoosa Lakes are playing about the surface; therefore, spoons, spinners and live minnows are paying off. Most of the old-timers are fully aware of all the tricks of this business of catching fish, but there are thousands of new-comers that can go fishing only during the hot off seasons. Some are disappointed and go away thinking that maybe there are no fish in the lake. Actually the lake is probably full of fish and maybe some of them are starving for food but you have got to go after them with and when they want to be sought. If you can go only when you can go, then your best bet would be to rely on local tips and use not the bait that you have used successfully on other lakes, but the baits and methods recommended by those that go often and catch fish.

July is here in all its glory. The weather is hot and dry. Fishing conditions are expected to be spotty but some lucky angler will reel in a prize winning catch during the month. Be sure and enter your best catch in the Alabama Power Company Fishing Contest. Every entry is recognized and many are awarded Whopper Catcher Certificates.

The most recent contest entries are as follows:

Lake Lay—

G. O. Norred's General Store, Talladega Springs, reports: Porter Meherg, Sylacauga, fly fished Rock Springs Creek with a popping bug and creeled a nice string of Bluegills. His Whopper weighed in at 9 ounces.

J. O. Miller's Novelty Store, Clanton, reports: Leon Jones, Clanton, fished the river sloughs early in the day with a chugger spook and caught a 4 pound Smallmouth Bass.

Lake Martin—

E. V. Estes' Store, Highway 63, near Eclectic, reports: Carl Adler, Eclectic, fished near Adair Boat Landing on Big Kowaliga Creek with live spot-tails and boated a 6 pound, 10 ounce Largemouth Bass. Carl had his luck late in the afternoon. Also on his stringer was a 9 pound 10 ounce Yellow Catfish. W. C. Tew, Montgomery, trolled near Adams' Landing and had good luck in the Stripe and Largemouth Bass departments. Mr. Tew's largest Stripe was 1 pound 4 ounces and the best Largemouth Bass was 4 pounds even.

Chief Alapoco Says—

If you are a fisherman, swimmer or pleasure boatman—play it safe. The number of water accidents that occur during the vacation days ahead will depend on the amount of courtesy, common sense and alertness exercised by each of us

During summer give hogs one quart of water daily for each bushel of feed eaten, or better still, keep clean drinking water before them at all times.

Use a small stiff brush to remove corn silks.

CREEP FEEDING BOOSTS BEEF CATTLE EARNINGS

AUBURN, Ala. — Livestockmen can increase beef cattle profits by creep feeding their calf crop.

Bob Farquhar, API Extension divestockman, suggests mixing sweet feed with the oats until calves get used to the grain

Market grades of the calves can be raised—and money made— by giving the animals oats and other home-grown grain

Farquhar says creep feeding until animals grade good or above is es- pecially important now because the drouth is bringing too many unfin- ished cattle to market

METHODS OF FLY CONTROL

It has been observed that house flies come mainly from three sour- ces. These are garbage, manure and around livestock shelters, and in- sanitary privies. Since these objects and the various other decaying or- ganic materials in which fly breed- ing takes place are objectionable from a standpoint other than breed- ing flies, that certainly the best fly control measure is the elimination of the source of breeding. The use of the proper garbage cans, the spreading of manure on the fields where it will do some good, and the construction of sanitary toilets will greatly reduce the fly population These sanitary practices may be supplemented with chemicals to aid fly control. An emulsion spray con- taining 2% chlordane should be appli- ed at weekly intervals to gar- bage cans, and the soil around gar- bage cans, to accumulation of ma- nure, and all other decaying or- ganic matter where fly breeding is found. The protected surfaces of outbuildings should also be sprayed with the same emulsion. A 2½% chlordane solution may be obtained by using one part of 40 percent chlordane to 15 parts of water

A five percent DDT and room emulsion spray will also be effec- tive when sprayed on outbuildings where flies accumulate. This solu- tion may be obtained by using 1 part of 25 percent DDT to four parts of water. In many instances fuel oil may be used in place of water

If small quantities only of spray is required, then the chemicals may be purchased already in solution and ready for use Care should be exer- cised in handling these sprays to avoid excessive inhalation and skin contact.

County Engineer J. D Bullington Praised For County Road Work

When J. D. Bullington came to Chilton County as County Engineer it was a very lucky day for the county according to men in the highway department who know roads and how to build them.

J. D. Bullington and his assistants constructed 71 and a half miles of paved roads in the county in 1953. Only one county in the Third Division of the State Highway Department did better and that county was Greene. Here is how the counties stand in roads constructed for the year 1953 in the Third Division:

Autauga	53.424 miles road
Bibb	27.537 miles road
Chilton	71.581 miles road
Dallas	58.449 miles road
Fayette	56.252 miles road
Greene	80.470 miles road
Hale	58.718 miles road
Lamar	43.086 miles road
Perry	62.171 miles road
Pickens	40.851 miles road
Sumter	54.354 miles road
Tuscaloosa	38.752 miles road

Autauga	0.1383 mile bridge
Chilton	0.1035 mile bridge
Dallas	0.1125 mile bridge
Fayette	0.62.05 mile bridge
Greene	0.3080 mile bridge
Hale	0.2437 mile bridge
Lamar	0.1689 mile bridge
Perry	0.2200 mile bridge
Pickens	0.0729 mile bridge
Sumter	0.2150 mile bridge
Tuscaloosa	0.1232 mile bridge

W. G. Pruett, State Highway Director has this to say of Chilton County's Engineer."

"Mr. J. D. Bullington, according to Highway Department records, became County Engineer of Chilton County on September 24, 1951. In my opinion he has done an excellent job of constructing and maintaining the roads under the set up of the Farm-to-Market Road Act of 1943 as amended.

At the present, Mr. Bullington is conducting surveys, plans, and programing of some 22 miles of new Farm-to-Market roads, including four reinforced concrete bridges of a total length of approximately 900 linear feet.

The County and Mr. Bullington have done all of this work in complete cooperation with the Division Office of the State Highway Department located in Tuscaloosa, Ala.

It is my further opinion that the work has been and is being carried on effectively and efficiently.

Yours very truly,
|s| W. G. Pruett
W. G. Pruett
Highway Director

Division Engineer J J. Odom, for the State Highway Department made this statement when asked about the qualifications of J. D. Bullington:

"Chilton County is fortunate in having a County Engineer with the varied background of experience in the location, construction and maintenance of highways as Mr. J. D. Bullington.

"Mr Bullington obtained his initial experience with the Alabama Highway Department, where he advanced to the position of District Engineer, which he held for several years.

"Mr. Bullington became County Engineer of Lauderdale County shortly after the State Legislature passed the "Farm-to-Market" road act. He later went to Baldwin County and in September, 1951, he became County Engineer of Chilton County.

"Mr. Bullington has also taken an active part in the State Association of County Engineers and he is also an associate member of American Society of Civil Engineers."

Yours truly,

J. D. BULLINGTON

In Alabama County Magazine—

The following story about Chilton County's roads appears in the current issue of the Alabama County Magazine and was written for the magazine by Hartwell Hatton:

When a local enactment placed Chilton County's road and bridge department on a strict plan in 1951, about 90 per cent of the people thought it was a lot of foolishness and many of them made a point of saying so

Today about 90 per cent of the people of Chilton County think it's one of the finest things that ever happened.

The unit plan for Chilton became operative on October 1st, 1951. To get it going, the Board of Revenue and Control was fortunate enough to obtain the services of J. D. Bullington, an accomplished road and bridge engineer who, in a manner of speaking, had just had his horse shot out from under him. He had become available by virtue of the Faulkner Act, taking all road responsibility out of the hands of the Baldwin County governing body and vesting it in the State Highway Department at Montgomery.

When Doug Bullington moved into his office at Clanton the Chilton County Road department owed $60,000.00. It had a cash balance of $1,000.00 and its equipment was run down and inadequate.

Two years later, on October 1st, 1953, the department was out of debt It possessed $100,000.00 worth of up-to-date equipment for which it had paid cash, and had $150,000.00 in the bank.

In the same two-year period it had paved forty miles of farm-to-market roads, improved 210 miles of dirt roads and put in more than 500 wooden bridges.

The rapid improvement in the Chilton County road system made a happy man out of Howard Boockholdt, the county superintendent of education. He can almost become lyrical even now in reciting what the change-over has done for school transportation.

"Before the unit plan became operative," Mr. Boockholdt said, "we had more school buses stalled in one afternoon than we had in the whole of last year's operation. In spite of rising materials and labor costs we have been able to reduce our school transportation costs since the roads that buses must traverse have been placed in all-weather condition.

"Perhaps what has impressed parents most, however, is that children get to school on time and then get home on time in the afternoon. It wasn't always that way."

The local act placing Chilton County on the unit plan contains some rigid provisions and it has been administered to the letter.

Insofar as Chilton County was concerned the most drastic change was in respect to purchases. The statute required the county to designate a purchasing agent who should receive bids on purchases of $50.00 or more. Direct buying by commissioners was ruled out entirely.

Harold Smyer, clerk of the Chilton County Board of Revenue and Control, who was made purchasing agent, advertises every requirement and if a purchase of size is involved bids are opened at regular meetings of the county governing body. Exceptions to this procedure occur only in emergencies. Meanwhile other savings are realized by asking and receiving wholesale fleet discounts on trucks and parts. Late in June the county had truck tires on hand that were purchased for less than the price paid by the state purchasing department.

One of the first things Mr. Bullington did after taking over was take an inventory of equipment and give each unit a number. This enables his office to maintain a complete cost record on each piece of equipment. This is done with the assistance of the warehouse and shop chief and the four district foremen.

Here is a rundown on an Adams 610 Motor Grader, taken from the equipment cost report for March, 1953: gasoline $1.40, diesel fuel $40.30, oil $10.14, grease $10.75, repair parts $735.98, grader blades $21.12, miscellaneous $0.45, total cost $820.14, total hours operated 108.

This entry was taken at random from the report Inquiry disclosed that this piece of equipment had long been in the county's possession and came up for an over-haul in March. An Adams 512, operated for 161 hours in the same period showed a total operating cost of only $192.87.

As soon as it could be done, a county shop and warehouse was set up on county property at the airport. The saving has been substantial both in repair costs and in shortening down time on equipment.

B. H. Cobb, a master mechanic with a long service record in road construction, is in charge of the shop and warehouse. He is provided with two mechanics, a clerk, and a field man who runs errands between the shop and equipment on the job.

All road equipment is owned by the maintenance division and when it is used in road construction, the going rental rates are charged interdepartmentally.

Another monthly report kept in Mr. Bullington's office is a summary of operation costs. The four commission districts created under the old general law governing counties were retained as geographical divisions in road maintenance with a foreman and crew for each.

The March, 1954, operation costs summary shows for District No. 1: maintenance labor $1,175.45, maintenance equipment cost $464.90, maintenance pipe $471.87, maintenance bridge lumber $164.16, maintenance materials and supplies $109.93, maintenance miscellaneous $0.22, total $2,689.53.

Similar cost distributions were made for the other three districts, the county shop, treating plants, current construction projects and the engineering department.

For each item of expense there were shop tickets or requisition and all of these were reconciled in the engineer's office by Miss Sarah Moody, Mr. Bullington's secretary.

Still another set of monthly records is kept. These records are on county personnel and were adapted from those kept by the State Highway Department. For each job in the county road department there are three salary brackets. A new employee is started in the lowest bracket and the rate of his advancement is determined by the aptitude reports made monthly by the district foreman. These records are consulted in all promotions

All policies of the road department are fixed by the whole board sitting in regular session. All administration is in the hands of the county engineer. All in all, the Chilton County unit system is all the name implies.

When the county went on the unit plan its road system was at low tide. Dirt roads were in foul condition with many bridges out or unsafe. Operation costs per pupil mile of the Chilton County school bus system were among the highest in the state

The most pressing need, therefore, was rehabilitation of dirt roads. In the first year after he took over Mr. Bullington put down 236 bridges. To date, more than 500 have been constructed and 210 miles of dirt road has been reconstructed and graveled. These roads have been straightened where possible, widened to a 24 foot roadbed, modernized as to drainage, and gravel-surfaced

This was accomplished without interrupting the construction program under the farm-to-market program Forty miles completed in two years will be augmented by twenty miles programmed this year.

Most of Chilton County's farm-to-market paving is contracted but some is done with county forces Mr. Bullington tries to carry one project through from grading and drainage to double surface treatment with county forces each year.

William Rufus King served in Congress from North Carolina and lived in Europe before coming to Alabama in 1818 and settling near what later would be the town of Cahaba.

After serving as a member of the Alabama Constitutional Convention of 1819 William Rufus King was elected as one of the state's two United States Senators.

DALE CARNEGIE

★ AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING" ★

STANLEY W. CALL, 10 Vanderbilt Drive, Lake Success, New York, and his wife were sitting in the lounge of their new home in South Africa listening to the British Broadcasting Company news from London. The voice over the radio announced, "The British Government has devalued the Sterling Pound and tomorrow the exchange rate will be $2.80 per pound instead of the present rate of $4.00 per pound.

The walls began to close in on Stanley Call. He had four thousand United States dollars invested in his home and his investment had depreciated to $2,800, a loss of $1,200, all because of the action of the British government.

The catastrophe started the worry bugs to working on him. He found that as the days went by he became more distressed and fatigued. At first he felt that he had lost $1,200, then the thought struck him that perhaps he would lose his entire investment. More uncomfortable days followed. Then he began to think, Lose it all!! Why, he had lost it all !! So what! The worst that can happen is the loss of the entire sum of money invested. Having arrived at that conclusion, he experienced tremendous relief.

CARNEGIE

As soon as he had conceded the worst, his worries ended. From that time on he really enjoyed life because he went to work on gaining back some of his losses.

He declares that this same magic formula has since worked on all of his problems. First he analyzes the problem. Next he decides what is the worst possible result and then accepts it. Then he starts doing something to improve the condition, and invariably his worry is dispelled, life takes on a different meaning and he is happy again.

REV. ROBERT H. HARPER

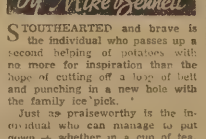
Jesus, Our Example and Lord.
Luke 2: 40-52.
Golden Text: Luke 22: 52.

The reader may be reminded in the lesson text of a famous picture of Jesus among the doctors of the law. But we think first of what preceded the appearance of the boy in the temple. The boy had turned away from the sights of a big city and the great throngs to go into the temple. As for his compelling motive, he said he had to be about his Father's business.

Jesus was the product of a godly home. Not in abject poverty but not in wealth Jesus grew to manhood in Nazareth, in a home that was an average one for the region. It was the pious attitude of the home that made it distinctive. It was the custom in that home for the inmates to go up every year to the feast of the Passover. This shows the disposition of the home toward religion.

It was in his twelfth year that Jesus went into the temple on the occasion of the Passover and was found there in the midst of the doctors of the law. There is also an indication of the life Jesus had led as a youth in a statement concerning him when he went early in his ministry to Nazareth. As his "custom was," it is said, he went into the synagogue on the Sabbath. Jesus grew up in the church.

It is significant that Jesus grew up "subject" to Mary and Joseph. He was not allowed to do just as he pleased, but was directed. He did not want to do otherwise than he was told. Jesus is our example of right youthful growth and as the product of a godly home.



STOUTHEARTED and brave is the individual who passes up a second helping of potatoes with no more for inspiration than the hope of cutting off a loge of belt and punching in a new hole with the family ice pick.

Just as praiseworthy is the individual who can manage to put down — whether on a cup of tea, a glass of water, or between two slices of hard toast — one of those horrible little pills guaranteed to "make you eat like a bird." I admire these people, yes, but I still think the idea of dieting is strictly for the birds.

Experience has led me to believe that most jolly, well-rounded, adjusted human beings become snarling, quarrelsome and overly-aggressive bullies when they don't get enough to eat. The only way they can satiate the hunger pains in their stomach is by taking verbal bites out of everyone within shouting distance.

A friend recently told me about a man with the right idea — the "fat boy" in his home town who was the most popular citizen and the sure-fire brunt of every practical joke. As he grew older, he waxed rounder, his popularity increased. One day the local doctor suggested a diet, "for health's sake." Said the fat man, "What, and risk the loss of my best personality asset!"

Me? At the moment I struggle along with well over 200 pounds carelessly distributed on a frame designed for a capacity load of about 178. But, if I continue to fight my wife's determined efforts to get me on a diet, I should lose enough in the battle to get back within the weight limit without enduring either pills or starvation.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to take this means of expressing our sincere appreciation to everyone who was so kind and generous in every way while Mr. and Ricky was confined to the Selma Baptist hospital. We thank each one for their prayers, their presence and their help in any way. Especially do we thank all the pastors and churches who were so faithful in their prayers. Also the Doctors and nurses at the Baptist hospital.

May God's choicest of blessings abide with you always is our prayer.—The Clement Easterling family.

"I REMEMBER" BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Harvey A. Heath, Detroit, Michigan: I remember when Nebraska sandhill farmers raised watermelons for the sale of seeds. We were allowed to eat all we desired, so long as the seeds were left on the empty half shell. The flesh could be taken home, but the skins and the seed had to be left.

We bachelors would buy flour in 50 lb. sacks and the neighboring housewives would bake it into bread for us, keeping half of the bread as their share.

The trains pulling freight across the "Great Nebraska Desert" were driven by friendly engineers, who tooted a greeting to each homesteed shack. We never ate refrigerated fruit and vegetables. Until I went "away" to school, I had never eaten fresh fruit, except a Christmas orange or two. We did our own butchering, canned extra vegetables during the summer, made sauerkraut (stomping method) and sold corn and potatoes at 10 cents per bushel.

On Sundays we worshipped in a straw baled church with a wooden spire pointing heavenward. Laymen took turns "leading," as missionary preachers came our way only semi-regularly.

When I taught school, I walked 15 miles each way, each weekend to see the girl that has been my wife for 33 years.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

We're really tickled pink that Rev. Marvin Vickers is back at the Methodist Church for another year. There is no one we would rather run into anywhere, anytime, than Marvin Vickers. He is just that kind of a fellow. Now we can hear Marvin saying: "Why not try running into us at church sometime?"

Here's a thought sent us by Joe Jackson that is good: "Goodwill, like a good name, is won by many acts and lost by one. We want to serve you well. However, this is a very human world so if you should discover any shortcomings either in our business or our service, won't you let us know?"

We meant to tell you about Semmie Scott and his wife going to the Photographers Convention and learning a lot of new stuff about how to make pictures better and serve you better, but we took our vacation from F&T about that time and didn't get to mention it. Says they had a very nice trip.

The Bells left last week for San Francisco—Jimmy, Lora Rose, and kids—and the Goldens left San Francisco headed back this way for home. Now if the Goldens and the Bells met half way there should be some kind of a pun in that but we haven't got time to work it out. You have the ingredients—work it out for yourself.

Here's our weekly paragraph about the cup of coffee at the cafe. Does something interesting always happen to you when you go after a cup of coffee. It does to us. Anyway this past week some fellow sitting next us was praising Buddy Willingham and the Willingham Hotel to the high Heavens. He had just spent the night over there and Buddy had evidently given him a real, comfortable room and he had slept extra good because he wanted to tell the world about how good the above mentioned hostelery was—or is.

Youth takes the lead. Guess you think we are repeating ourself but Helen Parrish is really doing fine things with the MYF members she is leader of. This week they are giving the safety talks over Radio Station WKLF each day. Each member of her MYF Group is designated a time and a script to read. It greatly impresses safety upon the minds of children plus creating more interest in the minds of the parents. Helen is to be congratulated upon her fine work with youth. Youth leads the way—but someone must lead the youth.

Looks like another Chilton County boy makes good. James Messer who migrated to Alaska several years ago has a story about him in a recent issue of the Fairbanks News-Miner, a daily newspaper published at Fairbanks, Alaska. Currently he is the president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Fairbanks and has a partnership in the Aurora Motors, Inc. The news story stated that James Messer had taken a very active part in the civic life of the city for the past several years. He is the son of J. L. Messer of Verbena, Alabama.

Grady Carter and Ervin Dailey visited Birmingham this week to see color television. They are telling us it won't be long before we all will be having it in our homes. The demonstration at Birmingham was sponsored by the R. P. McDavid Company, RCA dealers. Carter Brothers are the local agents.

The children were in high glee when told there would be no school Thursday or Friday. And Trucker Tommy's son rushed home with the good news—the teachers were going to institute.

"No school tomorrow or the next day, Mommy," he yelled as he burst into the house. "The teachers are going on an innocent toot."

ATTENDS FORD SCHOOL AT DEARBORN

William P. Burnett of Clanton Motors, Inc., Ford dealership at Clanton, Alabama, is attending the Ford Motor Company's Merchandising School at Dearborn, Michigan this month, Ford's Atlanta district sales manager R. H. East announced today.

Mr. Burnett, who is the son of Ford dealer J. C. Burnett, began classes Monday (July 12) for an intensified, four-week course in sales, service, business management and other phases of automotive merchandising technique.

ARC Blood Center To Be Open July 23

Now is the time for all good citizens in Chilton County to donate blood again. Your local Red Cross Blood Center will be open Friday, July 23rd, in the basement of the First Baptist Church in Clanton from noon until 6:00 P. M. (Perhaps you do not know the American Red Cross is the nation's largest blood collecting agency and we in Chilton County have a responsibility in that we must assist in this important program in order to meet the blood need for both civilian and defense purposes. Although the Korean fighting has ceased Red Cross is obligated to furnish a certain quota of blood each month for defense. Our National Red Cross President reports we collected blood for civilian use at the rate of 145,000 pints a month in 1953. The organization also provided blood for defense purposes at the rate of 167,000 pints per month. In addition to this Red Cross provided the Office of Defense Mobilization with more than 9,000,000 CC's of Gamma Globulin during the year 1953; the G. G. to be used in treatment of measles, jaundice as well as a weapon against paralysis from polio. Everyone physically able should "Give The Gift of Life" to help protect the blood donor and his family as well as to protect the community in which we live; and last but not least - to protect the nation. If you are a regular blood donor, you are a blood owner; for in time of need for blood you and your family will be provided with as much blood as is needed without charge or replacement. When you give a pint of blood at your Red Cross Center you are given a blood donor card which is valid for 8 months, and at the end of the 8 months you may renew the card and remain eligible to receive Red Cross blood at any hospital under the Birmingham Regional Blood Center; and of course this is a coverage for your immediate family also. It is only necessary that you present your valid blood donor card to the authorities at the hospital in order to receive free blood. You must have a card in order to receive blood, however, in strict emergencies the Doctor in the case is able to secure Red Cross blood for his patient - provided that particular hospital recognizes our Red Cross Blood program. There are a few hospitals in this district that have not joined in with the Red Cross Blood Program. (The age limit as most of us should know is from 21 years of age through 59. If you are from 18 years old through 20 it is necessary that a release form be signed by the parent and the minor in the presence of a witness. We will have the forms at the local Blood Center for your convenience in such cases.) If you do not understand fully the rules of the blood program, contact the Red Cross office and same will be explained to you. (Pledge a pint of your life-saving blood now. A pint of blood will save a life, and this life may be your own or that of someone in your family.

We would like to take this opportunity to state Red Cross blood quota over the nation for defense has been increased this year. Let's do our part in Chilton County.

ATTENTION PARENTS OF FIRST GRADE STUDENTS

In order to protect your child and the children with whom he associates he should be immunized against those diseases for which there is an immunizing agent. Your child will be required to present to his teacher, a statement either from a private physician or the Health Department showing that he has completed his "shots." Since a period of 8 weeks is necessary to complete the series, there being three shots given four weeks apart, the first immunization should be given soon so that the "shots" will be completed before school begins.

The Health Department clinic schedule is as follows:

Health Office, Clanton—Thursdays from 8:00 to 12 and 1:00 to 4:30.

Saturdays from 8:00 to 12.

Maplesville— Wednesdays from 9:30 to 11:30.

Thorsby—Fridays from 1:00 to 3:00.

Its wise to immunize

There will be a cemetery cleaning at Mt. Nebo Saturday morning, July 17. Everyone come and bring tools to work with, in preparation for Homecoming.

CHILTON COUNTY GETS $62,444 FORESTRY AID

Several months I have been working with the State Highway Department trying to secure some of the Federal Forestry Aid Funds to pave a road in Chilton County's National Forest to connect with the road being paved from Marion to Chilton County line. I have succeeded in getting $62,444.00 of the Federal Forestry Aid Funds with which to complete the paved road from the Perry-Chilton County line to U. S. Highway No. 82 near Maplesville.

This was brought before The Board of Revenue and Control and the Board unanimously approved the project. Surveys and plans are being made and this project should be under construction this fall.

When this road from U S Highway 82 is paved, it will cut off approximately 17 miles on a trip to Marion.

M. D. Tingle, Judge of Probate.

First National Bank Will Display Collection Of Rare, Ancient Coins

A display of rare and ancient coins will be open to the public at the First National Bank on July 20, Mr. C. O. Jones, President of the First National Bank said. The collection, recognized as one of the finest in the country, was the gift of the Alabama Bankers Association to the people of Alabama and is being cared for by the Alabama Museum of Natural History. The collection was purchased from the heirs of George M. Klein, a banker of Vicksburg, Mississippi. Most of the coins were purchased for the collection between the years of 1850 to 1885, making the collection one of the oldest major collections in the south. It contains a number of celebrated pieces including the Widow's Mite and Shekel of Biblical times, the first coin on which the image of a human head appear, Spanish Doubloons, Pieces of Eight and the rare Pine Tree Shilling of Early American fame.

The collection is displayed on 12 colorfully illustrated panels. Each picture panel tells a story of the coins and of the period of history during which they were minted. Of particular interest is the Native Gold Panel from the Robert Russell collection. It contains gold dust, coarse gold, nuggets and a button all of gold mined from Tallapoosa and Chilton Counties. Some $750,000 in gold was mined in Alabama before the miners abandoned the mines to join the gold rush to California in 1949. Along with the Alabama gold is an exceptionally large nugget from Alaska which weighs 12 3-4 ounces and is valued at $4,000.00. The Ancient Coin Panel contains coins from Greece and Rome, mostly of silver and bronze. One of the coins most often mentioned in the Bible, the Denarius, is represented by a fine specimen. It was a Roman soldier's pay for one month.

The Pirates Hoard Panel shows both front and back of two of the coins most famous in Gulf Coast history—the Spanish Doubloon and Pieces of Eight. A doubloon was worth about twenty dollars in the days of the pirates and was highly prized by them for it was the most easily transported of all the currencies of that day. In that period of the world's history paper money had not yet come into use and a robber's job was only half done with the robbery—he had also to carry it away. The Pieces of Eight are equally famous but for a different reason. When change was not available the Pieces of Eight, made of soft gold, could be easily cut into eight equal bits with the end of a cutlass or even a small pocket knife. A frontiersman might not have fifty cents change but if he had four bits of one of the Pieces of Eight he could do business just as well. It was in this way that our expressions of "two bits," "four bits," and "six bits" came into our language.

Among the most interesting of the displays is the Colonial Coin Panel. It is an assortment of bronze and silver coins used by the colonists. The silver Pine Tree Shilling was one of the first coins minted in the colonies and its picture has appeared in the texts of many of our school histories making it one of the best known of the colonial coins. The first mint in the colonies was operated by John Hull without a royal license in the back of his home in Boston. On 27 May 1652 the General Court of Massachutts Bay Colony authorized Hull to mint shillings, sixpences and threepences. His fee was one shilling out of every twenty he coined. The first coin struck under the authority of the United States is known as the Fugio cent and appears on this panel along with the colonial coins. Benjamin Franklin is generally supposed to have influenced the design and the legend appearing on the Fugio cent but history yields no conclusive evidence that he personally designed it. Our infant government had no mint at that time and a contract was given James Jarvis. 300 tons of the pieces were authorized by the Congress but few are to be found today.

Today's pirates would experience much more difficulty in disposing of the Doubloons, Pieces of Eight and Pine Tree Shillings than in the old days. The valuable pieces are now so rare that collectors all over the world know which collections hold them. The pieces are also photographed both front and back and the pictures are filed with the insurance company, the state authorities and the FBI. A robber attempting to sell the coins would find them very "hot" merchandise, for each piece has its own individual personality and could be readily identified as coming from the Alabama Bankers Association collection.

The coins will be on display for one day at First National Bank on July 20. Hours of the showing will be between 9:00 and 3:00. The public is invited and no admission will be charged.

Officials Expect Bumper Crop Of First-Graders

This year's crop of first-graders is expected to be the biggest and best yet, according to Superintendent of Education J. H. Boockholdt. Boys and girls who will become six years of age on or before October 1 are old enough to start to school on the opening day, Friday, September 3. Those whose birthday comes after October 1 are prohibited by law from entering.

The Superintendent urges that all children expecting to enter school this fall make arrangements for getting the required shots if they have not already had them. These shots are for smallpox, diphtheria, and whooping cough and are given by the County Health Department. If the family physician gives them, a showing from him will be sufficient.

Attendance on the first day is important so that adjustments can be made.

Named Delegate To The National Legion Convention

During the recent state convention of the American Legion, held at the Tutwiler Hotel in Birmingham, Mrs. Irene Parker of Thorsby was elected as a delegate from the state of Alabama to the Legion's national convention to be held later this year.

Mrs. Parker, chosen as one of the five representatives for Alabama, was recently elected vice president of the Auxiliary branch of the American Legion Post No. 206 of Thorsby.

LIONS WIN FIRST HALF OF LITTLE LEAGUE PLAY

The Lions, sponsored by Clanton Lions Club and managed by Charles Patterson, defeated the Junior Chamber of Commerce Cardinals Tuesday afternoon abd took the lead for the first half of the season. In winning this game the Lions made it four in a row and haven't lost a game during the month of July. Their won-lost record now stands at 6 and 3. The Cardinals, managed by Bing Lecroy, led the league for the first month of play when they compiled 4 wins against a single loss. But, they won only one while losing three in July, and now have a 5-4 record. The Kiwanis White Sox are in third place with a 4-5 record having fell from second spot for the first month's play. The Methodist Braves signs of developing some winning are in fourth position now, but snow ways. The White Sox are managed by Eddie Waters, and Rev. Marvin Vickers is at the helm for the Braves.

The Lions starting team is composed of Clarkie Hutchinson, catcher; Mack Downing, Albert Gramatas, Tommy Shelton, Henry Wyatt, Jr. and Russell Sutley, infielders; and Ronnie Bates, Wayne and Jeff Jones, outfielders. Shelton and Downing alternate pitching assignments. Ronnie Barze, Billy Chism, Lynn Easterling, Alex Hayes Jr., Wayne Minor and Charlie Patterson, Jr., round out the squad.

The league has established playing dates for each Tuesday and Friday afternoon continuing through Friday, August 13. After that they will stage play-offs between winners of the last half of play and the Lions. The regular games are all played as double headers with the first game beginning at 3:30 p.m. The second one usually gets under way about 5:30. Your Support and attendance is earnestly solicited.

School Census Enumerators Are Calling In County

If a school census enumerator has not called at your home, he (or she) will be coming around before the end of the month of July. These enumerators will want certain information pertaining to the children in the family ages 2 to 20 inclusive. Among the information needed is:

The birthdate of each child (Use birth certificate if possible).

Highest grade completed.

School to attend next year.

Place of birth.

Name and birthplace of each parent.

The information obtained in this census is used in many ways. It is used in determining how much school money this county will get. It is also used for legal evidence of obtaining drivers' licenses, birth certificates, etc.

Parents can be helpful to the enumerator and themselves by having the information readily available, especially the birth certificates of the children to be enumerated.

ANNUAL ALL DAY SINGING AT MAPLE SPRINGS ON JULY 25

The annual all day singing will be held at Maple Springs Baptist Church the 4th Sunday July 25. All singers and lovers of music are cordially invited to attend.

A revival meeting will run the week following the all day singing. The Rev. L. D. Brookshire will be the visiting minister. All are invited to attend these services.—Rev. Sidney Sample, Pastor.

Prattville Youth Accidentally Shot In Jemison Tuesday

Joe Bennett, age 15, of Prattville, was accidentally shot at Jemison where he was visiting an uncle, Tuesday evening. Joe is the son of J. F. and Mildred Bennett.

It is reported that young Bennett was visiting his uncle Brashell Bennett when the accident occurred. The two youths were playing with guns and neither knew they were loaded. The injured boy was shot between the eyes with a .22 cal. rifle bullet.

Leroy Martin, who rushed the boy to the St. Jude hospital in Montgomery, stated that he thought the boy was in critical condition and that he would possibly lose his sight because of the accident. He also stated that he wanted to give the State Highway Patrol full credit for their complete cooperation in handling emergency call.

City Park Makes Change In Hours

V. L. Bulger, Superintendent at City Park, announced today that hours for the swimming pool to be open had been changed. This, of course, also means a change in hours when he will be there to supervise the play and to furnish visitors with playing equipment.

The following schedule is in effect now:

Monday 1:30 to 5:00; 6:30 to 9:00

Tuesday: 2:00 to 8:00

Wednesday 2:00 to 8:00

Thursday: 1:30 to 5:00; 6:30 to 9:00.

Friday: 2:00 to 8:00

Saturday: 1:30 to 6:30

Sunday: 2:00 to 5:30.

Mr. Bulger asks that any family or party who are interested in holding their gatherings at the park to please call for reservations.

COMMERCIAL COURSE FOR VETS AND NON-VETS

If enough people are interested, the Chilton County Board of Education will consider setting up a commercial course for training in elementary bookkeeping, typing and other business courses, such as business mathematics, business English, and shorthand. The course will be available to veterans and non-veterans, according to information received from J. H. Boockholdt, Superintendent of Education. It will not carry credit, but those completing the course will be issued a diploma.

Full time students will meet classes for 5 hours per day for 5 days per week and the cost will be approximately $30 per calendar month. Half-time students will meet 2 1-2 hours per day and the cost will be approximately $15 per month. Hours will be determined, but will probably be from 3:00 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. Nine months of full time will be required to complete the first course.

Whether or not the class materializes depends on interest shown. At least 16 people must enroll in order to organize the class. Those interested should contact:

Mr. Bob Fullen, Veteran's Commissioner, Upchurch Building, Clanton, Ala. or

Mr. Francis Speaks, Head Continuation Teacher, Clanton, Alabama, or

J. H. Boockholdt, Superintendent of Education, Clanton, Ala.

Homecoming At Mt. Nebo Church

Homecoming will be held at Mt Nebo Methodist church July 18. Bro G. O. Hughen will bring the message at the eleven o'clock hour. All members are urged to come and bring a well filled basket for dinner on the ground.

There will be singing in the afternoon. All singers and lovers of music are invited to be with us.

ALL DAY SINGING AT MACEDONIA BEAT 11

There will be an all day singing at Macedonia, Beat 11, on Sunday, July 25. Everyone is invited to attend. The annual Revival will start on the same date. Everyone is asked to come Friday, July 23 and help clean up around the church.

$265,420.00 LOANED IN CHILTON COUNTY BY FHA IN 1954

Farm families in Chilton County have made good use of Farmers Home Administration credit and services this past year and have stepped up the efficiency of their farming operations, Joe M. Murphree, the agency's county supervisor headquartered at Clanton said this week.

Additional funds have been made available, he said, to lend through the next year to farmers to operate, buy, enlarge, or improve farms.

A large proportion of the money loaned in this county during the past 12 months has been to veterans and other young farm families who are establishing better farm setups. Their greatest needs were for adequate credit and some help in developing sound systems of farming and adopting efficient farm management practices. No loans were made to farmers who were able to obtain the financing they needed from other local lenders.

A total of $265,420.00 was loaned in the county for equipment, livestock, fertilizer, feed and seed, that farm families needed to make better use of their land and labor resources during 1954.

Farm ownership and Housing loans amounted to $95,370.00, including direct loans from appropriated funds and loans from money advanced by banks or other private lenders and insured by the Farmers Home Administration.

BABY SAVED BY EMERGENCY OXYGEN

Martin's Ambulance rushed a 3-day old baby to the hospital at Montgomery Wednesday morning escorted by the local State Highway Patrol. The baby was kept alive by oxygen supplied in the Martin ambulance and arrived in Montgomery at the hospital still alive.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Boyd of Verbena are the parents of the baby.

JOHNSON FARMS ELECTED TO NATIONAL ANGUS ASSO.

Johnson Angus Farms, Clanton, have been elected to membership in the American Aberdeen-Angus Breeders' Association at Chicago, announces Secretary Frank Richards.

Johnson Angus Farms were among the two purebred Aberdeen-Angus breeding establishments from Alabama to membership during the past month.

BASEBALL AT THORSBY SATURDAY AFTERNOON

"Take Me Out to The Ball Game" is the theme song at Thorsby these hot Saturday afternoons. And all who follow the theme are having a good time and seeing good baseball games.

Lomax Independents will play Gales, from Montgomery at Thorsby the coming Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. All ball fans are invited from Jemison, Thorsby, Lomax, Clanton, and surrounding communities.

Lomax is reported to have the best batteries between Birmingham and Montgomery and Saturday afternoon will be a good time for you to see them in action.

Entered in the Post Office at Clanton, Alabama, as second-class matter under the Act of Congress of March, 1897.

An air-conditioner is like a television—if you don't own one, they just aren't practical.

* * * *

As little rain as we're getting, maybe we had better vote the county "wet."

* * * *

Looks liike it'll take a big suds mop to clean-up Phenix City.

* * * *

Wonder what happened to all the rumors of industry that were going around Chilton last year.

LET'S COOPERATE

We believe that it is the civic duty of each and every citizen of Clanton to cooperate with the Mayor and Council when asked to use less water in order to preserve our water supply.

This some of our best families are not doing. We notice extravagant use of water on all sides and think that a civic minded citizen should take care to cooperate with those responsible for the public welfare.

Let's each of us take stock and see if we are cooperating to the utmost with the Mayor and Council in the current water crisis.

HITS HOT HAINT HIT?

You have heard of the sidewalk being hot enough to fry eggs on and we are sure Clanton sidewalks have been plenty hot for said demonstration here of late. The only thing is, it's too hot to stand out there to fry the egg, so nobody has been able to prove that it could be done.

Each summer we think that this is the hottest and most humid summer we have ever seen but the records show they are all just about the same. We just forget from one summer to the next what the one before was like.

At any rate when cool weather comes you can bet your life it will be welcome just like warm weather was so welcome such a short time ago.

TRASH AND RUBBISH

If there is one thing you and I want during the hot summer months besides a drink of water more often than usual, it's preventing the spread of disease which is most common in the summertime.

Trash dumps are a real menace to the community in hot weather because they are breeding grounds for germs which cause disease which cause epidimic which in turn causes death. Sometimes unnecessary deaths. Too many times we die by our own hands and aren't aware of it.

Now lately we've seen new trash dumps springing up, around your neighborhood maybe, that should never have been started there. We can only do a small part to help stave off sickness and disease, but if each does a small part the results will be large.

We're asking you to do your part by regarding signs and using common sense in doing away with this sort of thing. If somehow you can't make the city trash dump and the truck doesn't come often enough, burn your trash; but be careful where you burn it.

And try to remember that you're not only helping other folks around you, but you're helping yourself also.

DEATH TAKES NO HOLIDAYS

For the first time since early February, Alabama's 1954 traffic toll slid below 1953 levels this week.

L. B. Sullivan, director of the Alabama Department of Public Safety, said the 1954 death score stood this week (July 9) at 386, two less than the toll during the corresponding period of 1953.

The 1954 figure includes a current average of 16 deaths by which the official count (370) trails actual experience, Sullivan pointed out. The 1953 toll through July 8 was 388 deaths.

Although the difference is "too slight yet to allow us to crow or claim to have found the answers, we cannot help feeling that we are beginning to make genuine progress," the public safety chief said. "Two educational-enforcement programs—radar and 'Slow Down and Live'—are the core of this progress."

Both programs began during late May, he said, and the death rate began to drop sharply in June. During the first few days of June, fatalities were 35 higher than during the comparable period of 1953.

"But let us not be lulled into any false sense of security," Sullivan cautioned. "We're still killing 13 persons a week in Alabama and injuring more than 400. Let's buckle down harder, as offiicials and citizens, and cut those disgraceful scores to zero. The tide seems to have been turned—let's keep it turned."

He said an example of "the fight we face lies in our 'normals' of 76 deaths during July, and up to 89 in November. It is clear that the very worst still lies ahead."

BURSTING AT THE SEAMS

Report from Washington

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

Recent action by the House extended aid to the physically handicapped, extended unemployment insurance to an additional four million workers, and stiffened our sabotage laws. These important measures were among a number of bills passed by the House during the past week.

Aid to The Handicapped

Without a dissenting vote, the House approved a measure that will restore more of the Nation's physically handicapped to self-sufficiency each year. This expanded vocational rehabilitation program is designed to increase the number of rehabilitated from the present 60,000 a year to 70,000 in 19544 and eventually to about 250,000.

The House bill set up a new formula increasing the Federal government's share in the cost of the program. The present law calls for a fifty-fifty split with the states on the cost of actual rehabilitation, while the Federal government pays all of the administrative and job placement costs. The House-approved bill will boost the Federal share to an average of 60 percent for basic grants.

A similar measure was also approved last week by the Senate, and possibly this week a House-Senate conference committee will iron out the differences.

Unemployment Compensation

On Thursday of last week, the House overwhelmingly passed a bill extending unemployment benefits to approximately four million additional workers.

This measure, the first major extension of the unemployment insurance plan since its inception, entitles 2 1-2 million Federal government employees to jobless benefits. It also brings into the program 1.3 million workers in firms which hire four or more employees for as long as twenty weeks during the year. Under the present law, only firms employing eight or more workers for a period of twenty weeks or longer are covered.

A motion to recommit the bill and incorporate two amendments designed to increase the amount of benefits and the length of coverage was rejected. As a result, states will continue to set their own levels and duration of payments as provided under the present law.

Sabotage Laws Stiffened

Another measure that was passed last week without a dissenting vote was a bill to revise and broaden the statutes relating to espionage, sabotage, and the registration of foreign agents.

The House bill, if adopted by the Senate, will permit the death sentence or any prison term up to life for espionage committed either in war or peacetime. The present maximum penalty is twenty years, although the death pehalty already applies in time of war.

The bill also requires the registration of any persons "who have knowledge of or have received an assignment in the espionage, counter-espionage, or sabotage service or tactic of a foreign government." The failure to register could, under the provisions of this bill, bring penalties of up to $10,000 in fines and five-year imprisonment. This provision was included at the request of Attorney General Brownell who had pointed out to the Judiciary Committee that the present law only applies to persons who actually engage in espionage or sabotage.

Realizing the possibility of damage by radioactive or biological agents in any future war, the House included air and water in the bill as "national defense materials" subject to sabotage by contamination.

This bill is one of several requested by the Administration for use in an anti-subversive program.

Billy Graham Speaks

I attended a breakfast meeting last Thursday at which Evangelist Billy Graham spoke to more than 100 members of Congress.

Mr. Graham reported on his recent three months stay in England and other European countries. Pointing out that only 5 per cent of the people in London have been attending churches, he believes that a spiritual awakening is now beginning in England which will spread throughout the British Empire. It is estimated that he spoke to more than two million people while abroad.

I was tremendously impressed with Billy Graham's sincerity when I heard him speak to a similar group last year after his visit to Korea. I'm sure all who heard him last Thursday left the breakfast with a similar impression.

NATION ADULTS FEEL LACK OF PLAYGROUND FACILITIES

Princeton, New Jersey—There are not enough playgrounds and other recreational facilities in many communities across the nation.

This was the finding of a nationwide United States Poll survey just completed.

54 out of every 100 adults questioned in the survey personally told staff reporters that their own community didn't have enough playgrounds and other recreational facilities.

Those who said this outnumbered by a margin of better than 3 to 2 those who said that their community had enough.

When United States Poll staff reporters put the following question to a representative cross-section of the nation's adult citizens:

"Would you say that your own community has enough playgrounds and other recreational facilities or not?"

These were the results:

NATIONWIDE:
Not enough	54 per cent
Enough	32 per cent
No opinion	14 per cent

Highlighting today's survey results are the following findings:

1. Residents of the nation's biggest cities—those with 100,000 or more people—were found to be especially critical of the number of playgrounds provided for them.

In these big cities—places like St. Louis, New York, Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, New Orleans, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Baltimore, Atlanta, Birmingham, Mobile, Cleveland, Jersey City and Charlotte—more than 7 out of every 10 (71%) say that their communities do not have enough playgrounds and other recreational facilities.

2. Greatest degree of satisfaction with the number of recreational facilities provided is found among residents of communities with populations between 2,500 and 99,999.

But even in this size community, the number who say that their community has enough facilities is equalled by the number who say not enough.

The vote by size of community, 100,000 and over, 2,500-99,999, Rural areas, respectively:

Not enough 71 per cent; 44 per cent; 48 per cent.

Enough, 19 per cent; 42 per cent; 35 per cent.

No opinion, 10 per cent; 14 per cent; 17 per cent.

3. And in the nation as a whole, a solid majority—58 per cent—of those with school age children in the family are of the opinion that their own community should have more playgrounds and other recreational facilities.

At the same time, one out of every two of those with no school-age children in the family shares this opinion.

Here's the way those with school-age children and those without size up their local playground and recreational facilities.

School-age children in family; No school-age children:

Not enough 58 per cent; 52 per cent;

Enough 30 per cent; 33 per cent.

No opinion 12 per cent; 15 per cent.

A second question asked of all those who said that their own community does not have enough playgrounds and other recreational facilities shows that four out of every five of them would want their community to provide more even if it means higher local taxes.

"Would you want your community to provide more playgrounds and other recreational facilities if it means higher local taxes?"

Yes	4 3per cent
No	11 per cent

Total saving their community does not have enough playgrounds and other recreational facilities 45 per cent

Things we -SEE- and Hear

by "Tuck"

Saw painted on one of the appliance trucks around town: hot point, and then directly below that was Ford. Rip, you'll be interested to know that there are some hot-point fords around here, boy.

You know there's somep'n funny goin' on. Just about as many folks asking for "Ya'll Come" stickers now as there was before the election. We wonder where everybody's going. Now, we know some wise guys that would come back with "to the devil" on that one, but we hope some are more optimistic than these. And more faithful.

One thing for sure I haven't heard any request for "We'll be there" stickers yet. Guess they're all there what's goin'.

According to statistics, you won't kill yourself if you drive reckless; you'll kill the other fella.

It's hard to be understanding, because to be really understanding you have to forget all your own problems. And who's gonna worry about you then.

Just to show each of you that our water problem is acute(and we ain't being funny) and should be dealt with seriously. Heard a fella say at a fire the other day that if the fire had gotten to the house they'd just have had to let her burn because of the water shortage. Guess we'd all best try to scrimp a little so we won't have to carry water to put out a fire.

Little things, seemingly to you, sometimes have a very strong effect on the other party. We recall an incident that may prove our point. A good while back another fella and myself were down at the ice plant catching shavings; and if any of you have ever caught shavings of ice and eaten them you know that's real fun. An employe saw fit to run us off because, I suppose now, that we were in the way. At the time though we didn't see it that way and I never did like that fella for it. You'd say that was nothing, but you know your self how little things can affect you without the other person being aware of the fact. The gentleman probably doesn't care what I think of him, but the point is, just in a gesture of unfriendliness which you think unimportant at the time could be costly to you in the long run.

I was invited to an ice cream party the other day and nobody quite understood why I wasn't present. Well, I'm gonna tell 'em. The festivities started, I was informed, at 4 o'clock and I don't get off until five. We had been talking that day of better production on the job and during that time I resolved to start right then putting the job first. You've probably done the same thing many times. you know good intentions seem to fade with time. Anyhow I was right at the peak of my good intentions and didn't get off til' about 5:30 and it seems I was frowned upon. That's the way it goes I guess, one good intention fouls up another in some way or other and you have to apologize for something you didn't intentionally do. Well, we're sorry, and we want 'em to understand had they caught us a few days after our good intention fever we'd probably been just as lazy as ever. Our good intentions seldom last any longer than the next fellows.

Old John Wilson, well known "car jockey" at the drive-in informed us of his late trip to Texas and informed us that it was hot over there. Wonder if he stopped to think that it ain't exactly cool in Alabama, Chilton County, Alabama to be exact.

Say, if you haven't been out to look at the progress made on the new hospital, will just mosey out that way some afternoon and see the dream come true of thousands of Clantonians and Chilton Countians. Well, coming true anyhow.

There seemed to be some question of where this column was to appear a few weeks there, but it's all straightened out now. It might've been whether we were worthy of the front page or not, but you see where we're appearing don't you. We like it here though, and we think it safe to say that if you're interested we'll be here for some time to come. Oh, and there's some good editorial stuff right over there, too.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Gentlemen:

We had the privilege of attending your County's wonderful Peach Festival again this year, along with some 50 odd other Montgomerians. We were proud of some of our member's participation in the festivities and always look forward to a pleasant occasion at the Festival.

It was certainly sad to hear about the tragic accident at the close of the day, however.

With kindest regards, I am,

Sincerely yours

Clyde C. Pearson, Vice President Chamber of Commerce of Montgomery.

"I REMEMBER"

BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Myra Day, Hudson, Wisconsin: I remember my mother telling me this story of James G. Blaine, when he was electioneering for president. In one state he was invited to attend a banquet at the gubernatorial mansion and this is the story he jokingly told about it.

"They first brought in soup. That was queer for a company dinner, but being Monday they had been busy with the washing and were tired. Being hungry, I called for a second helping. Pretty soon some girls came in, took away the dishes and brought a splendid dinner. There I sat chock-full of soup.

"In about an hour, they took away the dishes again and brought a nice looking pudding. When I took the first bite, I found it not only cold, but frozen. Thinking the Governor would not give his guest anything frozen, I edged around to where he was talking to a distinguished-looking woman and whispered, 'Bill this stuff is frozen.'

"He looked at me for a minute and then said, 'I'll speak to the Mrs. about it,' and walked away. After a time he came over and said 'Jim, that is one of these new fangled affairs and they freeze it on purpose."

ACROSS the DESK

News from other editors

From the Brookfield Courier, Brookfield, New York: A country editor observed recently that our present system of agricultural price supports, which had led to ever-mounting surpluses, is certainly unsound and needs correcting. But, he continued in effect, groups which are critical of it — including business and labor organizations—would be on much stronger ground if they showed some willingness to make a few financial sacrifices on their own book. His point, in other words, is that almost everybody, not just the farmer, has been looking for profitable favors and preferential treatment.

There is much justice in this view. A parallel is found in the effort to cut government spending —everyone is for it in principle, but cries with pain when it threatens to touch him. And that blindly selfish attitude could ruin this or any country — morally as well as financially.

From the Chickasha Star, Chickasha, Oklahoma: A couple of weeks ago we asked our readers which they preferred on this page. All of the answers received showed complete reference to anything of a local slant. Not a one wanted us to use the stuff we throw in the waste basket each day which deals with everything from the McCarthy-Army hearings to shipments of arms to Tim-Buck-Tu and all such stuff most of our readers see on television every day.

From the Canton Independent-Sentinel, Canton, Pennsylvania: Few people think of a dollar as a piece of paper with a message printed on it. But there is a picture story on the back side that suggests the need for keeping eternal vigilance over the union of states. Observe the unfinished pyramid and the eye above. The pyramid represents the growing of the union, and the eye, its guardian.

With the national debt almost at the present legal limit, and with government spending still exceeding income, it's high time we thought seriously of guarding the union from financial chaos. And to do that we must not only demand economy in government, but must cheerfully accept the effects of economy on ourselves.

* * *

From the Tallassee Tribune, Tallassee, Alabama: There perhaps have been more muddled times in the world's history but it hasn't been our lot to live in them.

Consider the Indo-China situation, the McCarthy hearings, the pros and cons of the Supreme Court segregation decision and you have enough to confuse the most learned.

STANTON NEWS

RUTH HICKS

Your reporter is anxious to give coverage of news to all families. Please call in 4614 and give items of interest to your friends in this, adjoining communities and in fact to your friends who subscribe to our paper from other counties and states. You'd be surprised to learn to know how many cards and letters your reporters receives from all over telling how anxious they are to get the paper and read of happenings "back home."

Writing the above makes me remember a statement of just last Sunday at a 4th of July gathering. Miss Elsie Schurter is a home town- and she is supervisor of schools in Silver Springs, Maryland. "Miss" Elsie takes our home town paper. In Silver Springs, Miss Elsie lives with a family by the name of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Boor. Mr. Boor received the daughter of the late Mr. Willie Herrod and Thelma Holley Herrod. This daughter be- is Susie Mae. They planned to visit you or else try to contact you. Ah- not call them or contact them.

Mrs. Ira Huff of Philadelphia is to arrive July 12th, for a stay of relatives in Stanton, Plantersville and elsewhere in adjoining communities. Ira Huff will be on duty in Europe and Mrs. Huff will remain in this section until some time in November when she will rejoin her husband in Philadelphia. Mrs. Huff is the daughter of Mrs. Harrison of Plantersville.

Mrs. Henry Houstons of Plantersville are vacationing in Florida.

Robert Howard Smitherman of the Merchants Marine is visiting parents, Mr. and Mrs. Willie Smitherman.

Members of the Sewell family that used to live in Plantersville were re- visitors.

Arriving from Charlotte, N. C., within the next few days will be Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Sanders and daughter, Betty for a visit with relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Sherrer of Plantersville, Ala., and Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Henry of Selma, Ala., returned recently from a vacation spent at Panama City, Fla.

Lt. Commander Jack Jones, Mrs. Jones and daughter, Jill, of San Francisco, Calif., are visiting their parents and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Jones, and other relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith of Centreville, Ala., visited friends in Plantersville, Ala., recently. Mr. Smith has been connected with the Belcher Lumber Company and is retiring and returning to their home in Pennsylvania. This couple number their friends here by the scores. It is with regret that we see them go.

Celebrating the 78th birthday of Mrs. Willie Lovelady at the Cahaba Fire Tower Sunday, July 4th were the members of her family and friends. A picnic lunch and picture making were the highlight of the day.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

The person who turns over for five more minutes' sleep, leaps out of bed, gulps a cup of coffee and dashes to work, starts—and usually finishes—the day in a tension that over the years can result in "frayed" nerves.

Hurry produces excitement of the body that creates excitement of mind. Frequently this is called pep, but that is wrong as pep comes from a healthy body and mind and a zest for living and doing.

Often speed is necessary, calling for a little extra effort to finish a job, whether it means getting out one more letter, making one more telephone call, or meeting some emergency. If body and mind are working well, the strain will not be too noticeable. But the person who dawdles in and day out refuses to set a pattern in his activities will show the strain.

Planning the day's program will help reduce the need to hurry. Arising in the morning in sufficient time to dress and eat slowly is the first step. Spacing and timing are important in setting up a working schedule, whether shopping for the family dinner or transcribing dictation of the day before. Calm thinking and rhythmic action will accomplish more than rushing about.

Stop crowding your activities. Too much of this while you are young will lessen your chances of growing old gracefully, not to mention the possibility of the many conditions that may result from tension: heart afflictions, high blood pressure, "nervous indigestion" and just plain bad disposition.

Report On The American Legion And Auxiliary Post 206—

Mesdames Mattie Barham and Marietta Bice; Messrs. E. K. Yeargan, Amos Glass and James Rascoe of the Thorsby Post 206 and the Auxiliary served as delegates from this Post at the State Convention held last week in the Tutwiler Hotel in Birmingham. A splendid meeting was held and enjoyed by the delegates.

The Auxiliary's yearly report was published in the Book of Reports and is as follows:

"Unit has carried on a full program; paid rehabilitation assessment ordered and sold poppies in May for disabled veterans; sponsored a bingo party at Tuscaloosa Veterans Hospital; sent peaches to the Tuscaloosa hospital; sent flowers and gifts to sick members; helped with those who had illnesses in the family; gave birthday party for the Legion; Junior members sold Easter seals; donated to the crippled children's clinic; donated to the Woodman Church and Cancer drives; and sponsored one girl to Girl's State. Unit helped veterans and needy families in the community valued at $150.00. Donated canned peaches to the Orphan's Home at Troy, thru the Baptist Church. Held joint meetings with the Post; sent baskets of food to the needy and helped with various fund drives. Mrs Ella Robinson is the retiring president and Grover Bice is retiring Commander.

At this meeting one of our Auxiliary members, Mrs. Irene Parker, was elected to represent Alabama at the National Convention. Alabama was allowed five delegates to represent the American Legion Auxiliary of the entire State and we are very happy that one of our unit members was given this honor. Mrs. Parker is the new vice president of the Thorsby unit.

Around OUR HOUSE
by Kathryn Tucker Windham

Although the seven-year-old professes a great love for horses, she has had few opportunities to gallop away in a cloud of dust astride a handsome steed the way her movie cowboy heroes do.

The other day we were all out visiting in the country. The hostess and I were in the kitchen swapping recipes when the seven year-old came rushing in.

"Guess what I've been doing," she said, walking about in a strange fashion. After we had guessed wrong three times, she said impatiently,

"You haven't ever noticed how I'm walking. Can't you see I'm bow-legged like a cowboy from riding horseback?"

The neighbor around the corner, the one with more imagination than money, was busy making a wedding present when we stopped for a visit.

She had clipped the headlines from a newspaper on the date the couple married (including, of course, the headline from the society page telling of the wedding) and was covering an expensive metal waste basket with them. She pasted the headlines in place and, after the paste dried, gave the waste basket a coat of clear varnish. With this unique gift, the newly-weds will have a record of events of their Most Important Day—and one that will last for years.

This neighbor says she has used the same idea for decorating waste baskets to be used in a new baby's nursery.

While we were there, this resourceful neighbor showed us a lamp-shade which she had salvaged from her mother's attic and had turned into something special with the help of newspapers, shellac and sawdust.

First she had mended the torn places in the bettered shade with newspapers. Then she painted the outside with shellac and, while the shellac was still very sticky, sprinkled sawdust generously over the shade. When the sawdust had dried thoroughly, she gave the outside of the shade a second coat of shellac.

After the second coat of shellac dried she painted over it with pale green to match the color scheme of her living room. The inside of the shade was painted white to reflect more light.

The sawdust on the shade gave it a rough, nubby texture that had the guests wondering what it possibly could be.

* * *

Speaking of sawdust, the next door neighbor uses it to give the rungs of her ladder a safety treatment.

She gives the rungs of the ladder a coat of varnish or shellac and then sprinkles on sawdust while it's sticky.

"Feet won't slip off rungs which have been safety treated like that," she says. She added that sand may be substituted for sawdust with equal success.

This neighbor showed us some real heirloom bracelets which she had made for her nieces from several old napkin rings she retrieved from the back of a drawer in her sideboard.

She snipped through each sterling silver ring with tin shears and then used a file to smooth the edges. She spread the rings apart to fit the wrist, polished each one to a gleaming lustre and then presented her nieces with gifts they truly cherished.

USE COTTON CLASSING TO IMPROVE PROGRAM

Cotton classing is an important phase of the cotton improvement and production program emphasized O. N. Andrews, API Extension cotton improvement specialist, in Auburn this week.

Andrews pointed out that Alabama cotton growers who were members of community and county cotton improvement associations got free classing on slightly more than 625,000 bales, or about 65 percent of the state's 1953 cotton crop. This was nearly double the number of bales classed in 1952

FALLOW TO GET, HOLD FALL GRAZING STANDS

Auburn, Ala. Summer fallowing of soil is very important in helping to get and keep stands of annuals, clover grass permanent pastures and winter grazing plants of mixtures.

D. R. Harbor, API Extension agronomist, explains that summer fallowing usually means breaking the land in late June or early July, and then disking or harrowing the area often enough to control grass and weeds until time to plant in summer or fall.

Harbor says fallowing not only causes weeds and grass to germinate and be destroyed before crop seed are planted, but also conserves moisture by killing moisture-robbing weeds and grass. In addition, a dust mulch on the surface of the soil may help hold water.

"Planting summer of fall-seeded crops on a fallowed seedbed gives you a much better chance of getting seed to germinate and produce good growth before cool weather begins," says the farm leader. "That is why some Alabama farmers have winter grazing on which to turn their animals in late October or early November when most farmers do not have enough growth on them."

If you plan to plant alfalfa, clover-grass permanent pasture, or winter grazing crops this fall, you should have your seedbed under fallow at this time, concludes Harbor.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Fudge Oatmeal Cookies

1½ cups (15-ounce can) sweetened condensed milk
2 1-ounce squares unsweetened chocolate
1 tablespoon water
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1½ cups quick-cooking oats
½ cup raisins

Place sweetened condensed milk, chocolate and water in top part of double boiler. Cook over rapidly boiling water, stirring constantly until mixture thickens and no longer runs from spoon, about 5 to 8 minutes. Remove from heat; stir in vanilla. Blend in oats and raisins. Let stand 15 minutes. Drop by spoonfuls on greased baking sheet. Bake in a moderately hot (350° F.) oven until firm and bottoms lightly browned, about 10 minutes. Remove quickly from baking sheet.

dessert? You can have pineapple spears, strawberries and cherries. Serve with sweetened whipped cream or soured cream.

Now is the season for tomatoes, so why not hollow out some small or medium ones and fill with creamed spinach? Cover with crumbled bacon and top with buttered crumbs. Bake for 10 to 15 minutes and you have a wonderful vegetable dish.

IT PAYS

John Smith was a successful business man. Early in youth he had gone to work for his father in the contracting business, and had been trained well. John had learned to evaluate things: his perspective was good. He was diligent about his business and men readily admitted that he had done well. Many turned to him for advice. It has always been so, for as Solomon wrote several thousand years ago, . "Seest thou a man diligent in his business? he shall stand before men". And the Psalmist adds, "Men will praise thee, when thou doest well to thyself." Intelligent diligence will be rewarded and there are many "John Smiths" to prove it.

But Smith was not only a successful business man; he was sagacious in many things. He protected himself against business recessions and cushioned his family with plenty of life insurance should he die. Besides this, he wisely provided for his sons to carry on the business when he retired. There did not seem to be a thing that he had missed, for he lived well, provided well, and thoroughly enjoyed living.

All this was good as far as it went, but it did not go far enough.

A man's life does not consist in the abundance of things which he possesses. There is more to life than the accomplishment, accumulation and enjoyment of things. Man is more than a body. He is a soul, which, while confined to his body in this life, reaches out in the quieter and finer moments for a satisfaction which mere "things" cannot give. The soul is the real man, and the body but the vehicle of its expression. Regardless of how carefully preparation is made to protect that body the tragic fact is that, sooner or later, it must be laid away in the grave. Though fully insured for earthly life, the soul lives on. What about it then?

Are you one of these John Smiths who has achieved material success and worldly acclaim, yet never looked beyond the present to the time when you will meet God? You have proved that diligent searching has produced good results in your temporal affairs. Jesus Challenges you with these words: "Search the scriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life; and they are they which testify of me." His promise is: "Ye shall seek me, and find me, when ye shall search for me with all your heart." What is your answer? Why not apply business principles to your soul's salvation, your eternal destiny?

It pays!

PAYING FOR THE PORCH

By Ona F. Lathrop

JOE BENTLEY hitched his chair a little farther into the warm spring sunshine and glanced uneasily behind him. He hoped Jennie wouldn't be out with the next load of laundry for a while. He knew she'd expect him to be hoeing the garden, but a man had to have a little time to sit in the sun and whittle.

Mike Thompson, his favorite nephew, came around the corner of the house in his striped coveralls. He flung his cap on the grass and stretched out on the rickety porch, his truck motor chugging in the street.

"Just thinking I ought to fix up this old porch, but I've got too much else to do," Joe laughed sheepishly, whittling on the slingshot he was making for Mike's little boy. He fastened the piece of old inner-tube in place and handed it to Mike. "Here, take this along to Butch when you go. I promised it to him."

Mike fondled the smooth finish reminiscently. "Nobody could ever make a sling-shot like you, Uncle Joe. Sure wish I had time to make things for my own kids. Me, I work from dawn to dark for Burton, hauling his concrete and gravel. I envy you."

"Confidentially, Mike, I shouldn't be either," Joe laughed whimsically. "Living with Jennie is just like livin' with lightning—never know where she's goin' to strike next."

As if the lightning had heard him and decided to strike, Jennie came popping out the back door.

"Joe Bentley, are you still sitting here whittling? I told you — Oh, hello, Mike. Mind if I move you fellows? I've got to scrub this porch now." She dumped the pail of suds over the rough boards and the two men had to skedaddle to safety.

Joe winked at Mike. "Your Aunt Jennie's got a complex about this porch. Says the whole thing needs to come off. I say it just needs a new board or two. So since we can't agree, we don't do either."

Jennie sloshed her broom in the bubbling suds and brushed back a greying lock of hair with her wrist "No, we just sit around and whittle."

"Now Aunt Jennie, I don't know anybody that has more fun out of life, nor whittles as good a sling shot. All the kids will envy Butch this one. Even the boss's son he plays with. Can't buy 'em like that."

"Jennie doesn't know it, but it's better to have loafed and lost, than never to have loafed," and Joe followed Mike around to the truck. "Good load of gravel you've got there. Gives me an idea. A concrete porch would sure save a heap of painting and fixing. But it would cost!"

Mike scratched his head. "You know I might fix up a deal for you. I'll see what the boss says."

When Joe went back to the porch again, his rocker had been whisked inside and the hoe and spade were leaning against the railing.

The next evening Mike and Butch came past in the truck. "We've got an order for you, Uncle Joe," they called. "Little Jimmy Burke wants a sling-shot like Butch's And the boss says if you would be willing to make enough of those for him to give out as advertising, I can bring you around the gravel and concrete for your new porch any time, free. Says he's tired of the gimcracks these companies make for giving out. He could have the company name stamped on them."

Joe grinned as if Fate had really played into his hands at last. "You mean—I could get Jennie a new concrete porch just by sitting on it and whittling out sling-shots the rest of the summer? Now won't that be a joke on Jennie? I can sit and whistle all summer without a pang of conscience. 'Just payin' for the porch,' I'll tell her."

And he went whistling around to the brush-pile where he always got his forked sticks and began picking out the best ones.

my PET PEEVE by Mike Bennett

NOTHING annoys me more than a "perhapser."

You generally meet "perhapsers" at parties or some other type of social gathering. You're introduced by a mutual friend who leaves the two of you alone and wanders off. It takes but a moment or two to discover that neither of you have anything in common. He thinks your hobby is a time-waster. The clubs you belong to don't carry their weight of the civic burden. He thinks your views on politics are antiquated.

In a situation like this, it doesn't take long for your side to run out of polite conversation. Yet, he goes on, and on, and on, until you come to decide that he's really a friendly and well-meaning fellow even though you can't agree with a word he says.

Mind you, this is not the only type of "perhapser." You find all kinds, even those who agree with everything you say. This type often leaves you with the impression they would make an excellent next-door neighbor.

"Perhapser" traits are never evident when you first meet such individuals. You never know for sure until you have spoken to them two or three times on the street, in the local cafe, or some other public place. Perhaps your greeting was acknowledged, perhaps it wasn't . . . that's where they get the name.

The only way I know to deal with "perhapsers" is to play baseball with them. Allot one strike for each time you meet them and speak. If you fail to get a response in three tries, put 'em out of your league.

"Answer Me, My Love," one of the country's top tunes, has now completed an unusual cycle . . . The melody was originally composed by Gerhard Winkler, a resident of Berlin, Germany . . . A Viennese, Fred Rauch, wrote the first German words under the title "Mutterlein, Weisst Du Noch, Wie's fruher war" (Mother Mine, Do You Remember Times Gone By) . . . In France the song was titled "Graziella," in the Netherlands "Moeder Nijn" and in Scandinavian countries, "Lille Mor" . . . The first English version was titled "Answer Me, Oh Lord Above," and enjoyed considerable success in England under this second title . . .

For American consumption, the song was changed to "Answer Me, My Love," and the record quickly became a hit . . . Then it began to click in Europe, too . . . Soon German fans were asking for a German version of the English lyric . . . So Rauch, the original lyricist, has had to rewrite his own lyric along the lines of the English version . . . The new German rendition will be out soon . . . Confusing, no?

PLATTER CHATTER

COLUMBIA:— The Four Lads' latest is "I Hear It Everywhere" backed by a cutie, "Gilly Gilly Ossenfeffer Katzenellen Bogen By the Sea" . . . Frankie Laine does a beautiful job on the Rudolph Friml favorite, "Some Day," from "Wagabond King" . . . It wasn't written for Frankie's type but he should put it in the hit class easily . . . Reverse has "There Must Be A Reason."

Continuing on Columbia, Jose Ferrer and wife Rosemary Clooney pair up again following their "Woman" success with a song based on the Ernest Hemingway near-fatal plane crash, "A Bunch of Bananas" . . . Flip side has "Ay Ay (Who's the Guy)"

Doris Day has a nice change of pace in "Kay-Mulets" . . . "Someone Else's Roses" backs it.

IT'S YOUR MOVE

By F. L. Rowley

THE houses on Dillsby Street all look alike. Old Lenny McAllister, whose house squatted near the middle of the shabby lineup, didn't like the arrangement one bit. Electing to do something about it he purchased a pail of gay, yellow paint, a huge brush, and a cheap ladder.

Scampering up the ladder like a zealous fire-fighter he soon discovered that he had overreached himself. The ladder promptly collapsed. The bucket of paint landed with painful impact on Lenny's foot. The ensuing howl of agony was genuine and lusty.

Sympathetic neighbors rushed upon the scene to inspect Lenny's big toe. They decided that an amputation was in order. While these experts stood about solemnly shaking their heads, Lenny poured maledictions upon all sellers of rickety ladders. Suddenly one of the bystanders had a startling idea: why not get a doctor?

This being done it was soon discovered that Lenny would live. A cheer went up from the little group.

Immediately following Lenny's accident the good people of Hillcrest assembled in the town hall to devise a way to aid him. It was a noble project, and one that would have been carried off to everyone's satisfaction had it not been for the presence of Abner Wight—he was Lenny's next-door neighbor. Abner thought little of Lenny McAllister—exceedingly little. He had, on one occasion, accused Lenny of sicking his cats on his—Abner's—pigeons. Nothing could be further from the truth. Cats are enterprising little beasts and need no prompting. At this meeting, however, Abner seemed to relent. He even volunteered, to everyone's amazement, to oversee the work himself.

The night before the painters were to arrive Abner stealthily switched house numbers with Lenny. He smiled evilly at the thought of having his house decorated without charge. The painters would have made a terrible mistake—nothing more. Abner would ascribe the changing of house numbers to a childish prank.

The following morning as Abner started out for his office he rubbed his hands together gleefully. He had faithfully discharged his duty—the painters had been instructed to swarm over the building at 383 Dillsby Street.

A few minutes later Lenny hobbled out upon his own front porch to pick up the morning paper. He was surprised to see the large group of painters unloading their gear in front of Abner's house. Grasping his cane he shuffled across the lawn to watch the men.

"Good morning, Mr. McAllister!" said one of the painters. "You certainly must be pleased to see that you have so many friends. Any special color combination?"

Lenny McAllister was no dolt. He studied the score of men preparing to paint one little house. His eyes settled on his own house number hanging on Abner's door. Then he looked back at the man who had addressed him; how had the painter come to know his name? The answer was simple. Then Lenny began spouting instructions to the surprised painters.

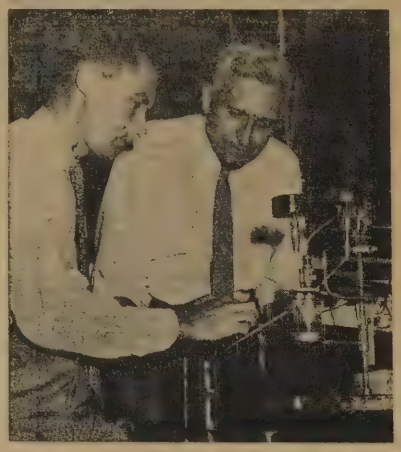
Late that afternoon Abner Wight elbowed his way angrily through the crowd of people on his front lawn. Then he stopped short. What had happened to his house? The entire outer surface of the building looked like a checkerboard—huge green and white squares!

"It's your move, Abner!" cried Lenny from the safety of his own porch.

"I'll say it's his move!" bellowed a big red-faced man before Abner could answer. It was Mr. Peabody, Abner's landlord. "You must be an idiot, Mr. Wight!" he screamed while Abner sputtered helplessly. "Now take your paint-pot and your pigeons and get off my property!"

Abner Wight hasn't been seen since. It's been rumored that Lenny plans to take another crack at painting this fall. He's got a new ladder.

AIDING FARMERS



TESTING A SOIL SAMPLE—Soil testing, an increasingly popular practice in Alabama, helps farmers use fertilizers and lime both wisely and economically. Testing a soil sample, above, is Dr. Clarence Wilson (left), who is in charge of the API Soil Testing Laboratory, Departmetn of Agronomy and Soils. With him is J. C. Lowery, API Extension agronomist, who directs soil testing educational work.

SOIL TESTS GIVE BETTER RETURNS FROM YOUR FIELDS

Soil tests help take the guesswork out of using fertilizers and lime.

Soil tests made from properly sampled fields help you apply API Experiment station research to the needs of your land, thus giving better returns from each dollar put in fertilizers and lime.

Soil tests are especially helpful in liming. The increase in use of acid-forming sources of nitrogen and certain insecticides makes it necessary for us to use more lime and to use it right. In Alabama we now use about one-sixth the amount of lime we should use each year.

Soil tests also will help you do a better job this fall in fertilizing pastures, winter grazing and cover crops, small grains, alfalfa, fall garden crops, commercial vegetable crops, lawns, shrubbery, and flowers.

The value of soil tests depends on how you take samples. You can take your own samples and no extra equipment is needed. Your county agent has shipping boxes and very complete instructions on how to take and ship samples.

It is very important that samples reach the Soil Testing Laboratory several weeks ahead of planting time so there will be no delays in getting reports back in time to help you.

During the first four months of 1954 Alabama farmers sent twice as many samples to the laboratory as were sent in the entire year of 1953.

MILK PRODUCERS GATHER IN MONTGOMERY JULY 22

Auburn, Ala. The second Alabama Milk Producers Convention will be held in Montgomery at the Whitley Hotel beginning at 1:30 on July 22 and lasting through the following day.

According to John Parrish, API Extension dairyman, the program will include such dairy leaders as Dr. Joe Hogan, head of the dairy husbandry department, North Carolina State College; Mr. Leland Lamb, American Breeder Service, Inc., Atlanta; Dr. D. D. Gill, Alabama state health officer, Montgomery; Miss Ester Lee Rivers, National Dairy Council, Chicago; and Professor Homer Blackstone, agricultural economics department, API.

Special features of the program, reports Parrish, will be an educational display by Austin Ezzell, Extension distributing marketing specialist, on retail marketing of milk and a dairy bar where refreshing dairy treats and dairy products will be served free to convetnion members and guests.

GOOD TIME TO BUY, EAT MORE BEEF, SAYS EXPERT

Auburn, Ala. Now is the time for everybody to buy and eat more beef, advises A. W. Jones, API Extension marketing specialist.

At this time, reports Jones, the beef supply is unusually large and prices very attractive.

During the first five months of this year U. S. cattle slaughter was 13 per cent higher than during the same period last year, and calf slaughter was up 18 percent. In Alabama the rate of calf slaughter was nearly double that of last year for this five-month period. And during the last week in June, cattle and calf slaughter in six Alabama, Georgia, and Florida picking plants was about 20 per cent higher than the same week in 1953.

These heavier marketings of cattle have brought lower prices to producers, according to Jones. "And," he concludes, "heavier supplies and lower prices make an ideal situation for beef sales promotions throughout trade channels, from the livestock grower to the food buyer at the meat counter."

1. Remember the advantages of DRY lumber. If uncertain have the lumber checked on the job site.
2. Deal only with reputable contractors and reliable lumber dealers.

IF YOU ARE BUYING A NEWLY BUILT HOME

3. Request the specifications for the job to see if properly seasoned lumber was called for—and used.

IF YOU MAKE UP THE SPECIFICATIONS

4. Specify the following: For framing and sheathing — 19% maximum moisture content; for finish, woodwork and flooring—12% moisture content.
5. If unable to judge lumber grades or the condition of seasoning, require that lumber be certified with a grade-mark of a recognized inspection agency, or have it competently inspected when it is delivered.

IF THE JOB CALLS FOR BIG DELIVERIES

He will also have an opportunity to attend one of the more than 100 trade schools offered by the Marines.

Airman Third Class Sterling Smith, a native of Maplesville, Alabama, has recently been assigned to the 317th Troop Carrier Wing Medium, near Munich, Germany. He is working as a personal equipment specialist handling land and sea survival materials for air crew members

His new address is: A-3c Sterling Smith, AF14491121, 317th Troop Carrier Group (M), APO 13, c/o PM, New York, N. Y.

After four weeks of spring maneuvers along the Danube river, Cpl. Williams A. Mims, of Clanton, Ala., has returned to Munich, Germany, with the 47th Anti-Aircraft Artillery Battalion.

During the exercises, Mims and other members of the unit took part in the simulated battle, crossing the Danube on an engineer constructed pon toon bridge.

Mims, son of Monroe N. Mims, is a section chief in the battalion's Battery D. He entered the Army in August, 1952, and arrived overseas during January 1953.

Cadet Benjamin D. Roberts, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. L. Roberts, Clanton, Ala., is one of 481 first classmen (seniors) from the U. S. Military Academy now attending the artillery school at Fort Sill, Okla.

He and his fellow West Pointers arrived at the school after visiting Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio, and Fort Knox, Ky. Next they will visit Fort Bliss, Tex., and Fort Benning, Ga., completing the combined arms trip planned to acquaint them with the various functions of the Army and Air Force.

When the trip is ended, the group will be split up and sent to Camp Buckner, N. Y., Fort Dix, N. J., and West Point, where the men will serve as instructors until the fall semester begins.

He was appointed to the academy by Representative Edward de Graffenried, Sixth District of Alabama.

Private First Class Gerald C. White, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. White, Route 1, Maplesville, Ala., recently completed the eight-weeks leaders course conducted by the 42nd Tank Battalion of the 101st Airborne Infantry Division at Fort Jackson, South Carolina.

Leaders' Course candidates are selected from the enlisted ranks of the Third Army Area. The school develops the individual's potential for Army Leadership with emphasis on Infantry weapons and combat leadership.

The Leaders' Course consists of instruction in the psychology of Leadership, the standards of Army leadership, the methods of Army instruction, dismounted drill and physical training; field work in weapons and small unit tactics, and three weeks of practical training as an acting non-commissioned officer in one of the 101st Division's training units.

Pfc. Cleveland Crawford, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Crawford of Clanton, Ala., has been transferred from the 40th Infantry Division to the 2nd Division in Korea.

He and other men who had not completed their tours of duty in Korea were shifted into the 2nd when the 40th was recently returned to to U. S.

Crawford entered the Army in September 1952 and completed basic training at Camp Chaffee, Ark.

SCANNING THE NEWS

CONGRESSIONAL study of atomic policy triggered off a chain reaction of lobbying which many legislators regard as ore of the most interesting pressure "explosions" in years.

The blow-up involves the peacetime use of atomic energy. More specifically, it concerns provisions regarding patenting of peacetime atomic projects, as contained in the legislation whittled into final shape by the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy.

The bill, as it went before the Committee for final mark-up, would restore to ordinary patent operation all peacetime atomic development, allowing inventors to receive exclusive rights of 17 years' duration. Military weapons would be excluded.

A growing coalition of electric companies and their allies termed the bill a step that would "free atomic energy" and "strengthen free enterprise." The opposing bloc, apparently smaller, says that it would lead to an atomic energy monopoly dominated by big corporations now working on industrial atomic projects.

One of the channels used by the electric utilities in their drive for business development of the atom is the Public Information Program, designed to "tell the story of investor-owned utilities in simple terms so the people can decide the issues in the fight against socialization."

More than 75 electric utilities are members, and PIP is directed by top private power officials. Its work is carried on through the facilities of Bozell and Hacobs, public relations firm with headquarters in Omaha, Nebraska.

Utilizing "every medium of public information," PIP is now informing companies, their employees and the public of the importance of private atomic development. Under PIP's direction, Central Surveys, Inc., of Shenandoah, Iowa, conducted a public opinion survey on the proposals to amend the Atomic Energy Act. Results of the survey, declared PIP, showed the public to be "largely unaware of proposals to amend the Atomic Energy Act to permit greater business participation."

The industry's effort to inform the public and, indirectly Congress, stresses such points as: "Greater atomic development through business participation will strengthen national security . . . The government's present monopoly gives it too much power over economic development of different areas of the country . . . It takes private industry to do a big job like atomic development."

Public power, labor and scientific groups are opposed to the industrial drive for peacetime control of the atom. They say atomic power might be monopolized in such a way as to abolish the practice of giving preference to public bodies in power distribution. They feel atomic development should be on a public basis for the benefit of taxpayers who have already $12 billion dollars invested in atomic development.

They are coordinating their campaign against "an atomic give-away" through an information-lobby program, the Electric Consumers Information Committee, a committee of Washington representatives of labor, farm and power organizations, whose major purpose is to stimulate "strong, organized grass-roots" lobbying.

New "Feature" at the Drive-In

The other night when it was so hot, the Missus and I decided to take in the movies at the new drive-in and see if it was any cooler out there.

Just got parked when I noticed the pick-up truck next to me was turned backside front. Had me puzzled until I saw Rusty Allen and his wife sitting comfortably in rocking chairs in the back.

"C'mon over," Rusty called to us. "Must be hot sitting inside the car." It was, but over with the Allens — the wife in Rusty's chair and Rusty and I on cushions on the truck floor — we enjoyed every breath of air

From where I sit, Rusty's away ahead of most of us when it comes to smart ideas. I say most of us because Andy down at the Green Garden Inn does all right too. He co-operates voluntarily with the Self-Regulation Program sponsored by the Brewing Industry by making sure cleanliness and a nice homey feeling are the star attractions at his place.

my PET PEEVE

NOTHING under the sun peeves me more than meeting someone who calls me by name when I am unable to return the favor and am forced to half-heartedly attempt polite conversation while trying to call up a name to match the face.

A crucial time is when I am walking down the street with a visiting relative or friend. We meet someone who calls me by name and asks about my family. I ask about his and we carry on this type of conversation while visiting friend or relative stands by twiddling his thumbs and wondering why I don't have the courtesy to at least introduce him so he can get into the act. After all, he has a family of his own to talk about. You can apologize all you want to later on, but the visitor thinks you're just trying to cover up some bad manners, or something.

Take what happened to a friend who was eating out with his wife in one of the better restaurants. In walked a girl from the home town. There was a difference of several years in their ages and the last time he saw her she had been cutting out paper dolls. Now she was a freshman in college. They looked at each other and here is a summary of the conversation, somewhat cut down to eliminate the old-faithful questions about "how's the family?" It went like this:

"Hi"
"Hi"
(long pause)
"I knew I knowed you, uh, uh, I mean I knowed you, I mean . . ."
"Yeah, I knowed I knew you, but I didn't know whether you knew me or not."
"Well, bye."
"Well, bye."
"All right, now, who was she?"

* * *

SOMETIMES I wonder where the radio quiz shows find so many unusual people to serve as contestants. Don't get me wrong: I know that this planet is inhabited by a goodly quantity of nuts and screwballs — excluding, of course, you and me and overlooking the fact that even then we sometimes doubt one another.

The thing that amazes me about the people who appear on quiz shows is that practically all of them have been married from 20 to 50 years and, in their own words, the marriage has been "one continual honeymoon."

Marriages should be made in heaven, and a lot of them are. But the honeymoon doesn't last. It's not supposed to, either, and I don't think folks should keep kidding themselves for years on end.

In some cases the honeymoon is ended when the husband no longer gets his morning coffee in bed. It's only a memory when hubby "forgets" to open the car door for his "bride" before getting under the steering wheel. And, when Ma and Pa engage in a verbal difference of opinion about what's best for one of their offspring—face it, friends, you've had it.

Personally, I wouldn't want to endure a honeymoon that lasted for 50 years. I was very happy the day the little woman and I stopped trying to impress each other with our intelligence and wit, courtly manners, and, let's face it, "put-on."

When we began to act our normal selves, we found a comfortable feeling we expect to share during years of wedded bliss, an "at home" feeling no one ever enjoyed on a honeymoon.

MONTGOMERY TO GET ANOTHER DAILY

Montgomery, Ala.—Alabama's Capital City will have the first new daily newspaper in more than 50 years on August 30 when the weekly Montgomery Examiner will expand into the five-day afternoon field.

Publisher Charles G. Dobbins, who bought the Examiner in 1947 after resigning editorship of the Montgomery Advertiser, made the announcement today.

"We are simply expanding the Examiner from one issue a week to five issues a week," he said, "in the conviction that there is room in Alabama's fast growing Capital City for more than one point of view.

"This is not a hasty decision. The loyal and generous support by both readers and advertisers of our weekly Examiner during nearly seven years has made our decision sure."

"The daily Examiner will have the leased wire of United Press, the full NEA service, and other features," Dobbins said.

"We are fortunate," he added, "to have available the publishing facilities of Southern Farm and Home, Inc., where we plan to continue the contractural arrangement began in 1948. The excellence of their printing plant is attested to by the present production of such papers as the VFW News, the University Dispatch, and the Alabama Rural Electric News, and the plants recent performance in producing the two local daily newspapers in an emergency following a fire."

The weekly Examiner was launched in 1946, and in 1948 absorbed the Montgomery Weekly which had been founded in 1931 by Frank Nunnelee.

Dobbins started as police reporter on the Birmingham Age-Herald in 1929. He published the Anniston Times from 1939 until 1943, folding it while he was away for four years in Navy servite. He served as president of the Alabama Press Association in 1942 and as chairman of the association's legislative committee in 1953.

ADVENTISTS PREPARING FOR SCHOOL OPENING

Inquiries are coming in regarding the Adventist school for the approaching term. The school board feels fortunate in having secured Prof. Harold Armstrong and wife as teachers. Prof. Armstrong will teach the grades and Mrs Armstrong the pre-school students. The age for the pre-school children will begin at five. Mrs. Armstrong has taken special training under the Spalding System for pre-school students.

The two school rooms in the basement of the new church in Glendale are being modernly equipped with everything which will be an advantage to the students. There will be a large playground away from all residences on the large lot back of the school rooms. There will be no traffic hazards.

The new segregation law will not effect the school since it is not tax supported. There is a limit to the number of students which can be properly cared for. Two out of Chilton families have already made inquiries about the school and are planning on moving to Clanton so their children can attend. The registration day has been set as Aug. 3 so there will be plenty of time for the securing of books etc. All inquiries should be made to Mrs. W. A. Crowson at the downtown Crowson real estate office or telephone 692.

JEHOVAH'S WITNESSES ASSEMBLY TO BE HELD IN NEW ORLEANS, LA.

The Annual District Assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses will be held at the Pelican Stadium, New Orleans, La., July 22-25 announced Mr. H. E. Barnhill.

"The convention delegates from South East United States will be attending this assembly," Mr. Barnhill explained.

The main feature of the four day convention will be a speech entitled "God's Love to the Rescue in Man's Crisis," to be delivered on Sunday, July 25th, at 3 p.m., at Pelican Stadium, New Orleans, La. by D. A. Adams, representative of the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society of New York.

"Opening session will be at 1:30 p.m. Thursday afternoon and the Assembly will come to a close Sunday evening," Mr. Barnhill further said. And all meetings are open to the public, he emphasized.

Many of Jehovah's Witnesses from the South East States are expected to attend the four-day Assembly.

SCANNING THE NEWS

ORGANIZED LABOR is in the midst of one of the biggest get-out-the-vote drives in it's history, determined through posters, increasing funds and a core of politically experienced workers to elect candidates considered pro-labor.

Officials of both the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations say the stakes are high and the obstacles great, but they're out for success.

Labor's three-pronged political action campaign is designed to: (1) persuade as many as possible of the nation's 15 million union members and their families to register, (2) inform them concerning major issues, (3) make sure they get to the polls on election day.

"Hardly pleasing to labor and liberals," says labor of the record of the 83st Congress. They single out the "millionaires tax bill," the effort to scuttle public housing, drive to make the Taft-Hartley labor law stricter, and a social security program which unionists feel doesn't go far enough.

Unionists say their task of getting out the vote is made more difficult because it is a mid-term election and the turn-out at the polls is usually relatively light when the presidency is not being contested. They feel they will not be able to completely match the money, public-relations work and advertising they believe will be used in efforts to elect some candidates whom labor considers unfriendly. Yet, there is optimism among labor spokesmen, who claim a larger number of politically active workers than ever and say labor is setting out to elect a "non-partisan slate of progressive candidates."

The Labor League's Political Direction Committee is currently analyzing candidates. Its Public Relations Committee seeks to keep workers informed and to get them to the polls, through leaflets, radio broadcasts, publicity, and phonograph records describing League objectives and organization methods.

LLPE's Finance Committee is launching nationwide appeals for "a dollar a member" to build up a political war chest and hopes to raise half a million dollars by November. A new league feature is a program designed especially to enlist the aid and get out the vote of women.

But League officials say the machinery is really powered by the fuel of local activity, since "elections are won in the precinct." For the first time, the League has four area directors, whose job it is to travel across the nation sparking union interest in voting.

Separate from League political activity is the stepped-up program of the CIO's Political Action Committee, which is basing its campaign on issues which it describes as broader than that of LLPE.

PAC is made up of local and state groups of CIO members. PAC is distributing literature and posters for political rallies, publishing "register and vote" reminders in its newspapers and holding institutes to inform CIO members how to conduct voting drives.

Civic Clubs To Sponsor Blackwood Brothers

Within the next two weeks Chilton County music lovers will get a treat when the Blackwood Brothers Quartet and the Statesmen Quartet hold a concert at the Clanton Airport.

The two widely known quartets will be sponsored by the Civic Clubs and the Veterans organizations in the county. Proceeds will go to the families of the three men who were killed in the tragic plane accident on the final day of the recent Chilton County 1954 Peach Festival.

Watch next weeks paper for further details as to time, etc.

Ed Yeargan, who is chairman of the program committee in the event asks that leaders of all the clubs in the county meet with him at the Dixie Cafe on Friday night next to work out last minute plans.

SOIL CONSERVATION NEWS

Bahia grass is showing its worth during this dry weather on farms where it is established. R. O. Williams, N. L. "Buck" Roberts, B. H. Robertson, and others are getting good grazing from Pensacola Bahia grass.

J. C. White of the Isabella community has just completed constructing a farm pond.

Mr. A. Reedie Taylor is setting out six acres of Coastal Bermuda. He is digging stolons from a planting which was made last year.

The Teel Brothers (Durwood and Jakie) have cut and baled 210 bales of sericea hay. This was taken from 25 acres of sericea that is being grazed by 26 cows. This hay will come in mighty handy this winter and the clipping it off will improve the quality of the grazing.

Last Tuesday two machines were demonstrated to speed up the application of Soil and Water Conservation, and reduce the cost of applying such practice. One machine was used to demonstrate planting trees and Coastal Bermuda grass stolons. A. R. Taylor states "It costs me approximately $10.00 per acre for labor to dig and plant Coastal. Reedie has just completed planting the field west of the pond at the Stapp place. The other demonstration was a tree girdler that is used to girdle undesirable hardwood and in doing this, release the young pine. The better the stand of desirable trees, the more money the farmer will receive. Why not consider improving your woodland by protecting from fire and releasing the young pine seedlings.

Keeping fruits and vegetables directly on ice is an invitation to spoilage, and a waste of money.

"Mystery Farms" 'News' To Start New Feature August 1st

Readers of the Chilton County News will have a chance to prove their knowledge of farms in this area with the publication of a new "mystery farm" feature starting this week of August 1st

Aerial photos were taken of 52 farms in the area served by this newspaper and one picture will be published each week, along with an invitation to readers to "guess whose farm." The pictures were [illegible] by the Zekan-Robbins Company of Harlan, Iowa, specialists in thousand of low-altitude farm photographs, and this newspaper arranged to have the photos snapped in different parts of the area so that every farmer has an equal chance of having his farm picture published.

Nobody knows whose farms were photographed . . not even the photographers. The editor of the Chilton County News is relying upon the readers for identification, and those recognizing the "mystery farm of the week" should notify this newspaper immediately on Friday, following publication, at 1 p.m.

In order to make the contest more fun, the names of those guessing the farm correctly, will be published each week. The first to guess the mystery farm will receive valuable prizes.

The operator of the mystery farm will receive a beautiful mounted enlargement of the original photo, if he will call at the News office. This photo is free with the compliments of Chilton County News, sponsors of the contest. Farm operators who recognize their farms in the newspaper series, should come to the office at the first opportunity so that they can make positive identification and get their free picture

Recognizing arerial photos is tricky business and the photographers further complicated it by taking the shots at random, and a few from the back side of the farms so that the contest will be more interesting and require more skill. The pilot flew about 300 miles back and forth across the trade area of the Chilton County News while taking the photos with professional aerial photo equipment.

In publishing the series of farm photos, this newspaper is recognizing farming as the big business that it is today . . . big in investment in land, machinery, livestock and buildings. The pictures are a tribute to agriculture in this community

Polling Place Announced For Wheat Referendum

On July 23 wheat growers of Chilton County will vote for or against marketing quatos for the 1955 crop.

The referendum, according to Mr Owen of the Chilton County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, will determine whether or not the quota program now in effect will continue for next year's crop.

Two-thirds of those who vote must approve quotas before they can be put into operation. The current program, which was voted on a year ago, was approved by 87 percent of the voters—390,221 to 57,536.

Chairman Owen urges every eligible wheat grower in Chilton County to vote. A producer is eligible to vote if he will have more than 15 acres of wheat on his farm for harvest in 1955. In other words, he can vote if he would be affected by quotas, which apply to farms with more than 15 acres of wheat.

If quotas are approved, there will be marketing penalties on any "excess" wheat—produced outside the acreage allotment—and the full level of price support authorized for 1955 will be available for those who comply with their allotments. If quotas are not approved, there will be no quotas or marketing penalties, and price support for those who stay within their allotments will be at 50 percent of parity.

Farm allotment notices, as well as an explanatory leaflet giving the essential facts of the 1955 program, were sent out on July 14, 1954, to Chilton County Wheat growers of record. Voting will take place in the County A.S.C. Office which is located at 106½ North 7th Street in Clanton, from 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. on Friday, July 23.

"I REMEMBER"

BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Annie Harkleroad, Eureka, California: I remember back in 1894 I taught the first public school in Kay County, Oklahoma, in a sod school house—built by the men in the neighborhood.

The men plowed the sod with breaking plows, then cut it into 14 inch squares. They marked off the spot for the school house, dug down two feet and then began to lay the sod, much as one would stone set. The roof was a ridge pole, green cotton wood boards over that with tarred paper tacked on.

I had 22 pupils, from the first to the eighth grades, and received $25 a month in script. It was six months before the county had enough money to pay me.

* * *

From Olive Colson, Mankato, Kansas: My father was a G.A.R. man, having gone to war in 1863 with the 29th Iowa Regiment. He was Quartermaster of the Post at Iona, Kansas. In 1885 a soldiers reunion was held at Iona, a year later one was held at Burr Oak. My brother-in-law ran the dance platform at the week-long affair and I was allowed to go along—a highlight of my young life, at 16.

* * *

From Maggie Kent Exevea, Chicago, Illinois: I remember how the neighbors gathered to help father butcher and how they threw away the heart, lungs, kidneys, brains, even necks which were considered non-edibles. We pay a good price for these things now-a-days. Live and learn.

Mrs. Padgette is visiting her sister in Selma for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Grower and daughter visited Nashville, Tenn., last week end. While there they attended the Grand Ole Opry on Saturday night. They enjoyed it very much.

Mr. and Mrs. George Shoults honored the young people with an ice cream party Saturday night. A host of young people were there and many games were played.

Mrs. Hudson Smith and children returned to her home in Birmingham Saturday, after spending last week with her mother, Mrs. Annie Sewell, to attend the revival.

Dr. and Mrs. Lane and children have spent a few weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cleve Latham before they go overseas. Dr. Lane will leave for Germany now. Mrs. Lane will go to Virginia until she is ready to leave to join her husband in Germany.

Mr. Harold Motley and several other Boy Scout members went to Florida on a few days vacation last week with their Boy Scout leader, Mr. Carter Davis. They reported a nice trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Olsie Manness and children of Tuscaloosa, have been spending a few days in their cabin. They have a very nice cabin out among the trees and very cool and comfortable. We are glad for them to come and visit any time, they are very good neighbors.

THE BEST PART

By F. L. Rowley

SHERIFF GILES certainly didn't intend to use his big car for a taxi the day he set off to watch the baseball game between Shelbyville and Hillcrest. It never occurred to him that he was aiding Cupid when he stopped to inquire of pretty Mary Bentley whether she too might be on her way to the game. She was.

It was Mary who noticed the young couple standing wistfully on the shoulder of the road: "Oh sheriff," she purred pleadingly, "look at the poor darlings standing there in the hot sun. Do pick them up!"

Sheriff Giles kicked hard on the brake pedal. Another such delay might cause him to miss the first inning. Mary calmly arranged her hair while he signalled the pair to hop into the rear seat.

"Thanks!" said the handsome young man as he opened the door for his companion. "We just missed the bus; we're on our way to Shelbyville."

"Imagine that!" sighed Mary with a slight flutter of her dark lashes — "So are we. You must be going to the baseball game."

"No," said the girl pleasantly as she leaned forward. "We're paying Mr. Hodges a surprise visit. You've very likely heard of him—he's a Justice of the Peace in Shelbyville."

"Oh," said Mary flatly. Giles noticed that her eyelashes had stopped fluttering. He tried not to smile.

Mary Bentley recovered quickly. She gave the strangers an up-to-date account of Hillcrest's baseball prowess. To Giles surprise she quoted batting averages and other data pertinent to the league in general. He marvelled at her knowledge of the game.

Evidently the young man was similarly impressed. "Say, that must be some team you have," he said enthusiastically. "I'd sure like to take you to one of the games Miss — ."

Giles coughed. He glanced sideways at Mary. She was staring straight ahead. One couldn't very well make a date with a chap who was even now on his way to see a Justice of the Peace. The sheriff figured it was up to him to break the tension:

"Be at Hodges place in five minutes," he announced cheerily.

No one spoke. Giles pressed hard on the accelerator. He wanted to get this over with. When the car finally stopped the young man held out his hand: "Sorry," he said, looking straight at Giles.

Sheriff Giles pushed his big hat back to scratch his head: "You're sorry — why?"

It was the young man's turn to look puzzled. "Why - er," he stammered, "for the way I talked to your wife. I didn't know —"

"His wife?" cried Mary looking at Giles as if he were something that had crawled from under a rock. "I'm not his or anyone else's wife!"

Giles frowned; he wasn't flattered by Mary's manner. "Perhaps you should apologize to your fiancee," he suggested.

The young chap turned to his companion. Then to the sheriff's surprise they both laughed.

"We might have avoided this mix-up if we had introduced ourselves," he said at last. "I'm Bill Hodges. This is my sister, Phyllis. We're here to visit our Uncle Edgar Hodges — first time in five years." Then, after a pause, he turned to Mary: "I'd like to see Hillcrest play ball—more than ever now."

Mary Bentley was beaming. "You'd better say hello to your uncle first," she said. "We'll still be in time for the best part of the game."

And as Sheriff Giles watched the youngsters smiling with their lips and their eyes all during the game he felt sure that they were missing more than just the first inning.

He was positive of it that evening when Mary leaned her head contentedly against the back of the car seat to ask: "Wasn't it a simply thrilling game sheriff! By the way, who won?"

ORDER FOR PUBLICATION

Chilton County, A municipal Corporation, Petitioner vs. Hoyt Headley and wife, Mildred Headley and Perry Peoples, Respondents.

In The Probate Court of Chilton County, Alabama.

TO: PERRY PEOPLES, a person over the age of 21 years, of sound mind, a non-resident of the State of Alabama, and a resident of the State of Michigan, whose last known Post Office Address is 3630 Hendrix Street, Detroit, Michigan, and to any other persons claiming to own any right, title, interest or claim in and to the land hereinafter described.

You will take notice that on the 10th day of July, 1954, an application or petition was filed in the Probate Court of Chilton County, Alabama, by Chilton County, A Municipal Corporation, setting forth its desire to condemn an easement in and to the hereinafter described lands for the purpose of a right-of-way on which to build, construct, use, widen, extend or maintain a highway or road for the use of the public, said lands being described, as follows:

A right-of-way hereinafter described over and across the land hereinafter described in Chilton County, Alabama for a public road; which right-of-way shall be as hereinafter described and as it is now located and staked out, and said right-of-way being more particularly described, as follows:

From Survey Station 32-|-61 as shown on Supplementary Map to Project Number SACP 3103-A, which said map is duly recorded in the office of the Judge of Probate of Chilton County, Alabama, in Map Book Number 3, at Page Number 46, running North along the West line of the Southeast quarter (SE¼) of the Northeast quarter (NE¼) of Section 22, Township 23 North, Range 13 East for a distance of 31 feet to the point of beginning, being a point in the Northerly right-of-way line of SACP 3103-A and in the West property line of Perry Peoples; thence running Southeasterly along said Northerly right-of-way line along a fixed radius curve of 6 degrees, 0 minutes to the right for a distance of 50 feet; thence running due North for a distance of 47 feet to a point in the South right-of-way line of Old County Road; thence Southwesterly along said South right-of-way line for a distance of 50 feet to a point in the West property line; thence South along said West property line for a distance of 31 feet to the point of beginning. Said parcel of land being and lying in the Southeast quarter (SE¼) of the Northeast quarter (NE¼) of Section 22, Township 23 North, Range 13 East, Chilton County, Alabama, and containing 0.04 acres, more or less, all of said real estate being situated in Chilton County, Alabama.

You will take notice that the Court has entered an order appointing the 17th day of August, 1954, at 10:00 o'clock, a.m. as the day for the hearing of said petition, at which time you may appear and contest the same if you so desire to do.

Witness my hand, this the 10th day of July, 1954.

M. D. TINGLE,
Judge of Probate Court, Chilton County, Alabama.

THE CATTLE SALE

I went to the sale with my boy who dumped two nice veal calves. I thought if there had been as much effort made to get the value of the calves as there was to get $17.00 for a pig weighing 75 lbs., the calves would have brought lots more. The calf went to the speculator. That auctioneer must have been partial as there was 4 times as much effort made to get a high price for the pig than was the calf.—A former cattle raiser.

To save "bought" shortening, use rendered chicken fat for making biscuits which will be served with chicken dishes or on chicken pies.

If your cotton plants die after squaring and setting bolls, the trouble is probably cotton wilt (infestation).

LAFF OF THE WEEK

"Poor guy—when he wakes up she'll have his other knee on the floor and a scrub-brush in his hand."

CONGRESSIONAL

Q—What is the "preference clause" often mentioned in the power policy argument?

A—"Preference clauses" used by both federal and state governments grant priorities in the purchase of government-owned electric power to Rural Electrification Administration cooperatives, municipalities and other nonprofit organizations. A bill to grant private enterprise the right to further develop power facilities at Niagara Falls, N. Y., was passed by the House last year without a preference clause

Q—Can Congress rescind funds it has voted or authorized to be spent?

A—Yes, provided the money has not already been spent. Rescinded funds are no longer available to the agency in question and must be returned to the Treasury. Most rescissions are of funds which the agency has not obligated, because it would normally cost something to cancel a contract already made. There were many rescissions in fiscal 1954, as there are in most years. Among them was $66,000 previously voted but not spent or authorized for construction of an additional fertilizer facility for the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Q—What is parity?

A—Parity—as applied to farm prices and income—is a formula to measure the purchasing power of the farmer's income from sale of his produce. Current prices and income are compared to levels in a base period. If a farmer gets 100 per cent of parity for a bushel of corn, the proceeds of that sale will buy him as many Sunday neckties as the price of corn bought during the base period. Corn and some other farm products now are supported at 90 per cent of parity.

Q—What is the seating capacity in each chamber of Congress?

A—The House of Representatives, with 435 Members, has 448 seats on the "floor." Each seat is tan leather-covered and has leather-padded arm rests. On the Senate "floor" there are 96 arm-rest chairs and 96 mahogany desks, one for each Senator. In both chambers, there are special seats set aside for the presiding officer, and for clerks, reporters of debate and others. Visitors to Senate sessions may choose from among 621 seats in the gallery. The House has 616 gallery seats for visitors.

Q—Can a member of the armed services write to his Congressman stating his views on legislation?

A—Section 4a of the Universal Military Training and Service Act (Public Law 51 of the 82nd Congress) reads: "No member of the Armed Forces shall be restricted or prevented from communicating directly or indirectly with any Member or Members of Congress concerning any subject unless such communication is in violation of law, . . . or the security and safety of the United States."

Q—What is the difference between an appropriation and an authorization?

A—An authorization grants permission to establish or continue a certain program, puts a ceiling on monies that can be appropriated to finance it and specifies the general aim of the new program. Congress also makes contract authorizations, permitting the government to make financial commitments by letting contracts for goods and services. An appropriation is a grant to actually spend the money authorized, often in less than the amount authorized.

Q—Did all U. S. Presidents vote for themselves for the nation's highest office?

A—At least one President apparently did not, because there seems to be no evidence that he ever voted. Zachary Taylor, the 12th President who was elected in 1848, never stayed in one place long enough to qualify to vote, according to George Stimpson's "Book About American Politics." Taylor entered the Army as a young man and retired shortly before his election.

Q—I've noticed when amendments to the Constitution are proposed in Congress—such as the Bricker amendment—they always seem to be in the form of a "joint resolution." Do they have to take this form?

A—According to Senate Parliamentarian Charles L. Watkins, a proposed Constitutional amendment has always been introduced in the form of a joint resolution "by custom." He says there is no requirement that the legislation take this form, that such a measure could be in the form of a Senate or House bill.

Q—Is Congress bound by law to stay in session a certain length of time?

A—If Congress wants to quit earlier than usual, it may do so by passage of a concurrent resolution. The Constitution requires that Congress meet each year, and normally it stays in session at least until July. The Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946 specified that: "Except in time of war or during a national emergency proclaimed by the President, the two Houses shall adjourn" not later than July 31 "unless otherwise provided by Congress." Since the Act became effective, Congress has consistently stayed at work past the July 31 date, except in 1952, when it adjourned July 7.

Q—The Constitution says that tax bills must originate in the House of Representatives. Does this mean the Senate can't revise Housepassed revenue measures and can only accept or reject them?

A—No. The Constitution says that "All Bills for raising Revenue shall originate in the House of Representatives" but it immediately adds "the Senate may propose or concur with Amendments as on other Bills." If the Senate and House do not agree on a measure usually it is turned over to a conference committee composed of an equal number of members from each chamber, for an attempt to resolve the differences.

Q—How many investigations have been conducted under the guidance of Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R. Wis.)?

A—Nineteen full-fledged investigations, most of them beginning in 1953, according to a Congressional Quarterly tabulation. Reporting on its activities of that year, McCarthy's Investigations Subcommittee said it had conducted 445 preliminary inquiries and initiated 157 investigations—some of which never reached the hearings stage.

Muffins will make a nice main dish if you add bits of ham to the batter and serve split when baked with creamed pimiento and peas.

Cranberry jelly added to pot roast gravy makes it rich, flavorful and tart. Stir through the hot gravy until the jelly melts.

Potato salad is more colorful and nourishing if you add some diced frankfurters to it, and they're a good meaty touch to add to macaroni salad, too.

Pork chops are very tasty when dipped in milk, cornflake crumbs and paprika, then browned. Complete the cooking by adding water to which catsup has been added.

Simple butter cakes can be iced very simply if you mix brown sugar and nuts and sprinkle over the batter before baking.

Cole Slaw makes a pretty picture when served in a jellied beet mold made with shredded cooked beets.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Piquant Cheese Loaf

2½ ounces Blue or Roquefort cheese
5 ounces Cheddar cheese
3 ounces cream cheese
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
½ cup chopped nuts

Blend all ingredients except nuts until well blended. Form into loaf and roll in chopped nuts. Wrap in waxed paper and let stand in refrigerator until firm. Serve with fresh pears and crisp crackers for dessert.

FOR DISEASE CONTROL PLANT TREATED SEED

Don't plant oat seed unless they have been treated, warns R. R. Jones, API Extension seed crops specialist.

According to the farm leader, losses caused by seedling diseases, smuts, blights, and rusts can be eliminated or greatly reduced if treated seed are used. Treat home-grown seed with Ceresan M or Agrox according to manufacturer's recommendations.

"I REMEMBER"

BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Pearl Minear, Barwood, Texas: I remember when we first came to Texas in 1890 from Illinois. People drank tank water, [illegible] only a few families had shallow wells or cisterns.

My father and brother dug the first deep wells on our place. They dug our well from 15 feet to 90 feet, using steam-powered equipment. Some of the wells are still in use.

• • •

From E. G. Meyer, Duluth, Minnesota: I remember working at the North Pole Bakery at Nome, Alaska, some 50 years ago. Almost every customer preferred to have their bread wrapped in old newspapers.

The reason: not much reading matter around.

And by the way, in 1903 bread sold for 10c per pound in Nome.

• • •

From Myra Day Merry, Hudson, Wisconsin: I remember my big scare while teaching in a rural school in North Dakota and living in a teacherage not far from a rancher's home.

I was awakened in the middle of the night by an unfamiliar whining sound. It came nearer and nearer, until something hit the side of the house, jarring its fragile foundations.

I managed to doze off after some time, but was awakened suddenly. I heard grunting and apparent snoring.

When morning finally came, I arose, dressed quietly and slipped out the back door, circling the house at a distance until I could see the visitor — my neighbor's white sow.

PLANT COVER CROPS IN GROVES, ORCHARDS

Auburn, Ala., July 21—It is time to plant cover crops in pecan groves and peach or apple orchards, says John Bagby, API Extension horticulturist.

Crimson clover in pecan [illegible] not only furnishes good winter and Spring grazing but also increases pecan yields.

The top of a pineapple, planted in a pint jar of water, will sprout and root, soon making an exotic and attractive palm-like plant.

In 1913, the federal government spent about $700 million a year, just one third as much as state and local governments. In fiscal year 1953, federal spending totalled $74.6 billion, almost two and one half times the cost of state and local governments.

Steel scientists contributed to the success of television by developing a stainless steel wall for picture tubes that expands and contracts under heat changes at the same rate as the "screen," thus preventing the glass from cracking.

MINUTES OF THE BOARD OF REVENUE AND CONTROL OF CHILTON COUNTY, ALABAMA OF JULY 12, 1954

Board Meeting
July 12, 1954

The Board of Revenue and Control of Chilton County, Alabama met in regular session at the county courthouse at Clanton, Alabama on July 12, 1954 at 9:00 o'clock a.m. The following were present: M. D. Tingle, Judge of Probate and Chairman of said Board, and the following Associate Members of said Board: A H. Smith, Sherman Motley and J. M. Dunlap; absent: V. O Lenoir. Judge Tingle presided as Chairman of the meeting and, a quorum being present, declared the meeting open for the transaction of business.

WHEREUPON, the Clerk of the Board read the minutes of the meeting of the Board held on June 28, 1954, whereupon the Chairman of the Board asked for corrections or additions to said minutes, there being no corrections or additions to said minutes and the same being correct, Mr. Smith made a motion that said minutes stand adopted as read, whereupon Mr. Motley seconded said motion, which motion was unanimously carried, and all the members present of said Board affixed their signatures to said minutes in the presence of the Board and the Clerk.

Whereupon, the County Engineer, J. D. The above stated resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote of all the members present and the Chairman declared said resolution duly adopted.

Mr. Dunlap offered the following preamble and resolution for adoption; which were duly seconded by Mr. Motley:

WHEREAS, Chilton County, Alabama has plans for the construction and improvement of a permanent type of paved road in Chilton County, Alabama which said road is from Pinedale Church to Fay Dam road, and which has been designated as Project County Project, Pinedale Road, and

WHEREAS, the County Engineer has been instructed to and has prepared a map of said project, and

WHEREAS, said map is on file in the office of the County Engineer in Chilton County, Alabama and will be duly filed for record and recorded in the office of the Judge of Probate of Chilton County, Alabama, and

WHEREAS, on said map there is designated the property owners across whose property said rights-of-way and easements pass, and

WHEREAS, all said designated property owners have executed conveyances to Chilton County of said rights-of-way and easements, over and across said tracts of land for the use of the citizens of Chilton County, Alabama and the public at large.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED AND ORDERED: That Chilton County proceed immediately to institute and prosecute condemnation proceedings to acquire the necessary rights-of-way and easements for the construction and improvement of said highway project upon, over and across the lands designated on said map as the lands of J. R. Popwell, Harlow A. Pope; Elizabeth Franklin; and Tom Cleckler. All of said lands lying and being within the boundaries of the right-of-way of said map.

AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED AND ORDERED: That Joe Mullins, an Attorney at Law, be, and he is hereby employed and authorized to file and prosecute said condemnation suit in behalf of Chilton County and to do any and all acts necessary for the acquisition of said rights-of-way and easements as shown by said map and specifications approved by the County Engineer.

AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED AND ORDERED: That Compensation for services rendered by said Attorney shall be fixed at a reasonable amount upon submission of a final decree in the Probate Court in said matter.

AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED AND ORDERED: That the highway shown and embraced within the property lines of said map be, and the same is hereby declared a public road or highway.

The above stated preamble and resolution were adopted by a unanimous vote of all the members present and the Chairman declared said resolution duly adopted.

Mr. Motley offered the following resolution toradoption; which was duly seconded by Mr. Dunlap:

BE IT RESOLVED AND ORDERED: That there being no further business to come before the meeting, that said Board adjourn.

The above stated resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote of the members present.

I, Harold H. Smyer, Clerk of the Board of Revenue and Control of Chilton County, Alabama, hereby certify that the foregoing minutes of the proceedings of said Board of meeting held on July 12, 1954 were correctly recorded in the minute, book, reproduced and a sufficient number of copies of which were filed in the office of the Probate Judge, a copy of same furnished to the Chilton County News newspaper published in Chilton County, for publication, and a copy of the same was posted in a conspicuous place in the courthouse the 17th day of July, 1954.

BIFF'S SECOND CHANCE

By Don E. Wilhite

BIFF tossed his baseball shoes into his locker and slammed the door angrily. Quickly, he jerked his sweater over his head and stomped out of the locker room.

"Wow, is he sore!" Freddy Johnson broke the silence as he turned away from the door and reached into his locker for his T-shirt. "Well, let him be, him and his big deal. He had to see the pros. Yeah, had to skip school the day before our big game." The best pitcher Franklin High's ever had and he let us down. If he'd've pitched we'd've won. Well, I don't blame coach for benching him."

Biff's steps slowed as he rounded the corner of the stadium and headed home. "It isn't fair," he said aloud. "It just isn't fair." He lowered his head and viciously kicked a clod of dirt.

"Biff," Coach had said that morning when he'd been called into the principal's office, "No one player is as big as the whole team. You've broken the rules and that's all there is to it. I hope we can win the game this afternoon without you, but win or lose you're spending the afternoon on the bench."

Okay, so they hadn't won, they'd lost. That should show them all how good he was. Funny though, the fellows had been awful quiet, they seemed to blame him, not Coach, for the loss, acted as if he'd let them down. Huh, a lot he cared. One difference it made to him. Suddenly Biff remembered last fall when his Dad had taken him to see a big league game in St. Louis. Dad had been a big leaguer himself until he'd tried to stop a fast center drive and smashed all the bones in his left hand. What was it Dad had said then about the players having to pay fines for breaking rules?

"The team's the most important thing, every great ball player knows that."

Biff remembered a lot of other things his Dad had told him about baseball. He remembered his first ball and glove on his fifth birthday. The help, the practice sessions, and always the talks, "p for the team. Play with the te Nine men on the team."

It was dark when Biff wal up on the wide front porch o home. Lights were burning in dining room and he knew his fa ly were at dinner. He wonde how he could face them, a knew what Timmy, his little br er, would be thinking. Lately b been in on the practice sessi and the talks with Dad. Quietly opened the front door and slip into the entrance hall. He s straight upstairs to his own r and threw himself across the b "What a dope I've been. among Bill Elliot, rules aren't me, oh no, I'm the star pitch Franklin High couldn't play without me. Nuts, what a dop Biff had lost track of the time he didn't know how long he'd be in his darkened room when he heard a light knock at the d and his Dad's voice softly call his name. "Biff, Biff, are yo asleep? May I come in a minu son?"

Here it was, here came w he'd known all along would h to come and what a beeri ing. "Yes sir, come in."

His Dad looked a little ti Biff thought, and a little sad a switched on the desk lamp and on the edge of the bed. "Well, s Franklin lost a tough one toda

"Dad, Dad, I'm sorry, I've be such a darn fool." All the remor that had built up in Biff since le ing the locker room earlier seem to burst out, and somehow knew his Dad understood how felt.

"Maybe benching you was little rough just for breaking o rule. You know I wanted to w this one just as much as anybo Biff, but you've got to remem that no one player is as big as team. We're still in the runn son, if we can win next week game we can still win the penna What do you say?"

"I say we'll whip the pants 'em, Coach, just wait and se

It's been that way with Joan ever since as a tow-headed monkey back in East Orange, N. J., her birthplace she appeared in a Kiwanis Club production of Shaw's "Dymphna." She knew she needed a lot of training even for a small part, and she went after it.

She acted in dramatic classes and clubs of the various schools she attended from local parochial classes to Columbia University. At the latter school she paid her tuition by modeling for Harry Conover . . . She made a big splash in the Broadway pool with the role of Corliss Archer in "Kiss and Tell" and it wasn't long before Hollywood beckoned. Her first picture was "Miss Susie Slagle" followed by "Blue Skies" with Bing Crosby.

ACROSS the DESK
ideas from other editors

From the Dillon, South Carolina, Herald: The men who made the U. S. a great nation did not watch the clock and fret over the wages they would receive. They were ambitious to learn and equip themselves for the responsibilities of life. The youth who thinks and conducts himself otherwise has no chance of winning in the race of life.

• • •

From the Bay City, Michigan Valley Farmer: To think about our whole free enterprise system as one vast economics machine is really not so farfetched because that is the way it works. No single part of it functions all by itself. Every industry, every factory, every machine tool, even one-man business, every newspaper, daily or weekly, is connected in many ways with all the rest of the economy.

• • •

From the Salem, New Jersey, Sunbeam: The things we get the maddest over—that cause us to fret and fume, exhaust ourselves and becloud and shorten our lives —generally are the things we haven't taken the trouble to face frankly and honestly.

There are people who are not in the least concerned over politics, religion, or social problems and who therefore are believed by others to lead contented lives.

But most of us take notice of the world's problems, our neighbor's opinions and beliefs concerning the here and the hereafter. We notice that some people misbehave and that some things are mismanaged.

We decide that "if we were running it" we should do better. Or we discover one of the myriad gems in the crown of philosophy or religion and say "if only more people had that inner experience and thought that way!"

So we set out to tell other people "how it ought to be done," or about our beliefs and opinions. But the other fellow has no interest in the matter or else he is interested in counter opinions of his own. He has discovered public blunders affecting his particular way of life or source of livelihood.

It takes a little intelligence and curiosity to develop an interest in public affairs—matters like farm prices, school finance and taxes, foreign relations and plans . . . It takes tolerance to endure opinions and actions that reem adverse to us and to discriminate whether such adverse opinions spring from selfishness, from stupid perversity, or from different and perhaps still more sound viewpoint than our own. It is also well worth some frank explanation to discover just what motive predominates the formation of our own opinions.

my PET PEEVE
by Mike Bennett

I THINK that you would have to look far and wide to find someone who would not agree that business needs a shot in the arm.

My amateurish diagnosis of the situation is that Mr. Consumer has gotten to the point where he buys with both eyes open. One eye on his pocketbook, the other on the family budget. Mr. Retailer doesn't have a hangover, but he's still a bit groggy after easy-spending war time years.

Time was, not so long ago, when the American consumer was making more money than ever before. He was at the same time spending as much of it as he could to buy things he really didn't need merely because they were available and he had the cash in his pocket. Closing a sale was as easy for the salesman as catching a trolley—miss one, another comes along in a minute or so.

One industrialist recently capsuled the situation with the remark that salesmen have been a bit slow in recapturing their sales ability while consumers lost little time in rebuilding sales resistance. He wasn't speaking of "high pressure" methods, either, but the ability to convince a potential customer that he (the customer) really needs the item he is interested in, and that said item is worth much more than the customer will have to pay.

A personal thought on the subject is that service is not included in business transactions as much as in days gone by. Customers will buy where their business is appreciated. They don't like to walk away from a transaction with the idea that the clerk gave the impression of performing a favor while accepting their money and wrapping the purchase.

WILL YOU BE OUT OF THIS PICTURE?

Did you know that farming ranks as the THIRD most hazardous out of eight major industries? Did you know that falls account for 25 per cent of farm accidents . . . machinery accidents add up to 13 per cent and 62 per cent are due to burns, shock and other mishaps! To this, add man-hours lost—deaths—costly medical bills and more—and you find that SAFETY is a darn good investment—for the farm, and your future.

The careful farmer is a safe farmer, and the safe farm is a profitable and productive one! Observe National Farm Safety Week by taking a safety inventory. Are your machines in good repair? Is the electrical wiring adequate and safe? Are your farm and home "fire safe"? Take time to take "care" . . . tawe safety, seriously! Cultivate SAFETY on your farm—it's a crop that pays high dividends, always.

MEN OR WOMEN?

Who are the best drivers—men or women?

The ladies may be gratified to learn that the National Safety Council's statistical yearbook, "Accident Facts," reveals that ten times as many men as women are involved in fatal accidents.

But just a minute, ladies! "Accident Facts" goes on to say that while 41,700 men and only 4,100 women were mixed up in fatal accidents last year, more than twice as many men were driving, they drove father per driver and they drove more in all kinds of weather and conditions than the women.

"So," the Council says with evident relief, "no one can really tell who's the best driver, a man or a woman."

JUST PIECES OF PAPER

Pieces of paper are one of the reasons why the cost of government has reached a statistical stratosphere. The paper in question consists of government records.

According to a Hoover Commission report, each year 9,800,000,000 pieces of paper are produced or accumulated by the federal government. Salaries and material costs for an estimated 485,000 clerical persons doing the producing and accumulating come to $2,800,000,000. To house the records, some 3,000,000 filing cabinets would be required. And iit is estimated that as many as 250,000 clerks may be engaged in classifying, filing and searching these current records, at a cost of $1,170,000,000.

The Commission has established a new Task Force to deal with the problem of reducing the volume of pieces of paper so created.

The point is that, when it comes to trying to cut down government waste and non-essentials, even seemingly small things can be almighty important in the aggregate.—Sylacauga Advance.

VERY COMPLIMENTARY

The following editorial is taken from a Marianna, Florida newspaper and we believe, will be of much interest to many of our readsr Excellent Choice!

If early opinion means anything and if anybody is interested in the one formed by this corner, Marianna High School officials did themselves proud when they hired Charles Cox to the head basketball and assistant football post at the local school. I've only known the gent for a short time, but he has surely impressed me as a person who possesses all the needed qualities.

I doubt if anybody has bothered to tell him, but it seems, at least on paper, that he will face the cage season with a decided lack of material—that is, so far as the general run out at MHS goes. But somehow I feel that this fellow is going to make us mighty happy that he was chosen for the local athletic staff. Here's wishing for him all the luck in the world.

I know what you readers have been waiting for. You're waiting for me to say something about the shoes Cox has filled being so large that it took a whole year for a replacement for yours truly to be found.

I might as well admit it; I gave it serious thought. To tell the whole truth and nothing but, what scared me off was the thought that some wise guy would come back with: "It wasn't the size of the shoes at all, but rather the unimportance of them and the genuine desire to make a big improvement."

Modesty speaking, I never thought there could be an equal, but by George this fellow might even top me! What a terrible thought; he'd have to be such a good coach that none of us woul be able to stand it!

Report from Washington

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

As the Second Session of the 83rd Congress approaches the home-stretch, we find that a number of bill of major importance have not been enacted into law. Several have already been defeat. Some will be lost in the legislative logjam that always occurs at the end of a session. Yet, others will undoubtedly be passed before adjournment.

Defeated Legislation

The Bricker Amendment was killed by the Senate early in the session. The President's request for an eighteen-year age minimum for voting in Federal elections was turned down flatly by the Senate, and the same body defeated all proposed changes in the Taft-Hartley labor law.

There is little or no chance of passage for the Hawaiian-Alaskan statehood bill before adjournment. By linking Alaskan and Hawaiian statehood together, the Senate placed the kiss of death on this legislation.

The rejection of legislation has not, however, been confined entirely to the Senate. Only last week the House defeated President Eisenhower's health reinsurance plan by an overwhelming vote.

Bills Passed Only By House

Several bills of major importance have received House approval but are still pending in the Senate. Social security legislation, approved by the House more than a month ago, seems a sure bet for passage. The President's controversial farm legislation is slated for Senate action this week, and the foreign aid authorization bill will undoubtedly be passed by the Senate in the near future.

The wiretapping bill, a key part of the President's anti-communist program, has run into Senate opposition after receiving strong House approval. Its passage is far from assured.

Legislation to raise the debt limit by $15 billion was passed last year by the House but still has not received Senate approval. Although the debt limit is nudging the legal ceiling, an increase as large as $15 billion may not be forthcoming.

Measures Not Yet Considered

There are a number of bills, not yet voted on by either body, that may receive the approval of both Houses of Congress before adjournment.

The Foreign Aid Appropriation Bill will undoubtedly be passed by both the House and Senate. Revision of the Atomic Energy Control Act was delayed last week in the Senate but will probably be approved. Compromise pay increases for postal workers, classified government employees, and possibly military personnel may be voted on. A compromise measure to increase veterans' pensions and compensation is also slated for consideration.

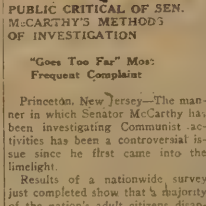
The debate on these and other important measures will consume many hours before the end of the session. For this reason, there are many who feel we will run at least a week past the July 31 adjournment goal set by the Republican leadership.

Bills Passed

Although it is obvious that there are quite a number of major bills to be considered during the remainder of the session, it should be pointed out that, in addition to countless minor measures, many major bills have already passed both Houses of Congress.

For example, all ten of the regular appropriation bills have been signed by the President. The Reciprocal Trade Act has been extended for one year. A measure reducing excise taxes was approved by the House and Senate and signed by the President early in the session. The St. Lawrence Seaway bill has finally become a law, and an expanded highway construction program is now on the books.

In addition, the House and Senate have both passed the Tax Revision Bill and the 1954 Housing Act. These measures have been in conference committees for some time and should receive final approval possibly this week.



PUBLIC CRITICAL OF SEN. McCARTHY'S METHODS OF INVESTIGATION

"Goes Too Far" Most Frequent Complaint

Princeton, New Jersey—The manner in which Senator McCarthy has been investigating Communist activities has been a controversial issue since he first came into the limelight.

Results of a nationwide survey just completed show that a majority of the nation's adult citizens disapprove of the methods the Wisconsin Senator uses in carrying out his investigations.

At the same time, a sizeable group—one in every three—say they approve of his methods.

In other words, those who disapprove of the methods used by Senator McCarthy outnumber by a margin of eight to five those who approve.

These were the findings when U. S. Poll staff reporters personally asked a representative cross-section of the nation's adult citizens:

"In general, do you approve or disapprove of the methods used by Senator McCarthy?"

The results:

NATIONWIDE

Approve	34 percent
Disapprove	55 percent
No opinion	11 percent

College-trained persons disapprove of the Senator's methods to a greater extent than do the less educated groups. These figures break down as follows:

College: approve, 21 percent; disapprove 75 percent; no opinion 4 percent.

High School: approve, 37 percent; disapprove 52 percent; no opinion, 11 percent.

Grade School: approve 42 percent; disapprove, 43 percent; no opinion, 16 percent.

Manual workers across the nation give the methods used by Senator McCarthy a stronger vote of confidence than do those in other occupational groups.

Manual workers: approve, 40 percent; disapprove, 46 percent; no opinion, 14 percent.

White-collar workers: approve, 28 percent; disapprove, 66 percent; no opinion, 6 percent.

Farmers: approve, 34 percent; disapprove, 56 percent; no opinion 10 percent.

And Democrats and Independent voters in the nation evidence greater disapproval of the Senator's methods than do rank and file members of the GOP.

Republicans: approve, 43 percent; disapprove, 47 percent; no opinion, 10 percent.

Democrats: approve 26 percent; disapprove, 61 percent; no opinion, 13 percent.

Independents: approve, 37 percent; disapprove, 57 percent; no opinion, 6 percent.

To shed light on why these persons said they disapproved of the Senator's methods, they were asked the following question by U. S. Poll reporters:

"What is there about his methods that you disapprove of?"

Four main categories come to light in analyzing the answers to this question:

1. The most frequently-mentioned objection is that the Senator is "too harsh in his methods;" that he "goes too far," and that he is "too rough on witnesses."

2. The second largest group feels that the Senator "never has proof of what he claims" in his investigations, and that he "condemns people without having the facts to back him up."

3. The third most frequently-mentioned objection is that he "uses undemocratic methods"—methods that are similar to the ones "used by the Russians" and "by the Gestapo."

4. In fourth place are those persons who "just don't like his tactics" and "the way he does things."

Things we SEE and Hear

by "Tuck"

There's nothing quite like or more fun to watch than, a little colored boy looking at something fascinating. Big eyed and serious, they remind you that they feel like they wish they had invented it. Coupla of them were watching one of the presses at the plant the other day and you'd have thought it was Christmas. They're keen observers and amusing, and they're fascinating to watch, just themselves.

Kids think they know everything, but grown folks don't think they know anything.

Someone with a lotta ambition took it on himself to build his kids a flying ginney or something of that nature and it is now in effect up north Clanton way. We wish we could call his name, but unfortunately we don't know it. Anyhow, it's on the left going out so you can't miss it. He's even got a motor rigged to it. That made us start wondering whether he was so ambitious after all or not.

We told old Bill Reid to keep his eyes on the road, but he had to go and learn the hard way. We're sorry you wrecked it Bill, but we're glad you didn't get hurt.

Like the fella said, "Yeh, Jess's a good old boy, there just ain't no great demand for good old boys."

Our own prodigal son has returned. We don't know if he'll appreciate that particular title, but we refer to one Billy Powell, Willie to us, and we're glad to have him back. He thought he'd try his luck in the big city, but there'e no place like home, especially if it's Chilton County, Alabama. Latest reports are that he's working on the new hospital. We hope "Willie" is able to stay with us permanently now and that we see more of him.

It's funny how many friends you can make by them owing you a favor and you not taking it, but once you accept it they become uninterested. People are funny.

You know, the grass that looks greener on the other side of the fence is probably just a lotta bitter weed. So if you stay on this side you at least know what you got.

Been down to the city park lately or at all? Well they're still making improvements and we've heard from reliable sources that we have a much better park than other towns much larger than our own. It's ours to use and enjoy so why not take advantage. If you have a big party coming down well just let Mr. Bulger know a little beforehand and he'll fix up reservations for you and your party, and you'll enjoy the entire time we'll bet.

You know, we get something good from our traffic snarl every Saturday and that is publicity. People who'd ordinarily drive straight through can't help but see some of the town, because with traffic it is it takes them a good while just to go straight through. Don't know whether this is good or bad publicity, but it's publicity anyhow.

You'd be surprised how good it makes you feel to be told you're appreciated. Try telling someone today and see if you can't tell the difference.

OUR nomination for the most relaxed, enjoyable and the cleverest half-hours in television is "My Favorite Husband," a situation comedy show starring Joan Caulfield and Barry Nelson. . . The program just slipped unobstrusively on the air without the usual advance fanfare and proceeded to make itself completely at home . . . The principals involved are perfect in their roles . . . so much so you keep thinking they should be married in real life as well . . . As a matter of fact it is one of the few such shows that does not star a real husband and wife team.

Dick Contino is making quite a comback after his personal feud with the army some years back . . . He's back in show business after spending his two years in service . . .

What ever happened to Betty Hutton's TV show? She announced plans for it last fall but so far she hasn't so much as guested on another show. . . .

Seven Died Of Pneumonia Last Year

Montgomery, July 21—At least 1 person in every one of Alabama's 67 counties died of pneumonia last year, the State Health Department said today

In fact, 26 counties reported 10 or more deaths each to swell the total number of deaths from this cause to 941 for the state as a whole Chilton County recorded 7 deaths from pneumonia, the Department said.

The disease took a slightly greater toll of lives in the state in 1952, when 944 deaths were reported

my PET PEEVE by Mike Boswell

I HAVE never been able to go along with the so-called office reformers who periodically campaign for abolishment of Monday mornings and Friday afternoons. Any elected substitutes would be just as disagreeable.

Monday morning, merely because it follows Sunday on the calendar, has long been maligned, despised and conspired again.

How many times has the joy of a restful, or a busy and active Sunday afternoon been shattered by the mighty wail of the time-clock slave: "If I just didn't have to face Monday morning!" So, were we to reshuffle the days of the week—could he face Tuesday morning any easier if it followed on the heels of a Sunday?

And then there is the office "Porky" who comes in staggering under the weight of a Friday lunch that would have made three meals for a normal human being. He plops himself down with a thud audible for miles and announces to the world: "If I can live through this afternoon, I should live to be a hundred!" If he's a gambling man, offer 10-to-one, because he will never make it . . . even if we abolished Friday afternoons and raved 'em until we had enough to make another leap year.

The plain truth is that Monday a.m. and Friday p.m. are nothing more or less than that which we allow them to be. If you wake up with lumps on your head one Monday morning, they are not there merely because it's Monday morning—something happened on Sunday. You either rubbed noggins with a hornet's nest or got in the way of a baseball bat.

Auburn, Ala, July 21—Farmers planning to buy feeder lambs this Fall should be thinking about their grazing program now, advises R. C. Farquhar, API Extension assistant livestockman Considerable profit can be made by buying lambs in the Fall, running them through Fall and Winter pastures, and selling them in the early Spring, explains the specialist.

This practice was carried out very successfully by a number of sheep growers in 1953, and there has been considerable interest shown in it for the coming year. However, Farquhar warns would be growers that ample grazing is a must and now is the time for the crop plans to be made.

According to the farm leader, purchasing feeder lambs in the Fall has several advantages. Sheep parasites are not a problem with this type of operation because sheep from the Western range in September and October are relatively free of internal parasites.

Another big advantage of this system, says the livestockman, is that at market time, in early March and April, a small amount of lambs are going on sale. Therefore, a farmer should sell his finished lambs for a higher price per pound than he paid for them as feeders. Thus, he gets profit from the increase in price plus the gain his lambs make.

Animals are usually bought weighing from 40 to 60 pounds and sold, providing they have plenty of grazing, weighing from 90 to 120 lbs.

Farquhar points out that the shepherd also gets income from wool taken from the lambs.

Give Perishable Foods Extra Care

Auburn, Ala., July 21—During long periods of hot, dry weather, such as we are having now, it is important to take advantage of the best methods in handling perishable foods, reports Austin Ezzell, API Extension distributor marketing specialist.

Farmers, dealers, and consumers can profit by improved methods for maintaining highest quality and nutritional value of these products, explains Ezzell.

As fresh fruits and vegetables become less plentiful in the fields, farmers can increase their marketable volume by careful harvesting, keeping products cool after harvest, and rushing perishables to market as fast as possible.

Handlers—both wholesalers and retailers—also will find it more profitable to employ the best handling methods, continues the specialist. By rapid, careful turnover of stocks they will have smaller losses—thereby increasing dollar volume even though supplies are scarce and quality is not up to usual requirements.

Last of all, concludes Ezzell, Mrs. Consumer will find extra care means extra food value and better flavor. Buying fresh foods and using them as soon as possible after purchasing will prove most economical. Proper use of refrigeration in the home to keep them fresh will also give greater satisfaction.

USE MORE LIME FOR BETTER CROP YIELDS

Auburn, Ala., July 21—This Summer and Fall apply lime where land is being prepared for seeding pastures. Winter grazing, alfalfa, and Winter legumes for soil improvement, advises J. C. Lowery, API Extension agronomist.

Lime is badly needed on most Alabama soils to counteract acidity—both natural and that due to the use of acid forming fertilizers and insecticides containing sulphur, explains the specialist

"We are failing by 846,000 tons a year to use enough ground limestone in Alabama," he reports. "It takes well over a million tons a year to correct acidity that results from using acid forming fertilizers and insecticides, and to replace lime removed by crops, leaching and erosion."

This shortage in the use of lime is gradually building up to a serious crop production problem warns the farm leader.

Good grades of agricultural limestone have been made available by manufacturers and there are various satisfactory ways of spreading it including truck spreaders and tractor drawn spreaders.

It is important, concludes the specialist, that high quality limestone be used and a good job of spreading be done. The best way to determine the amount of lime needed on your type of soil is to have a soil test made by the API Soil Testing Laboratory at Auburn.

ARC Blood Center To Be Open July 23

Now is the time for all good citizens in Chilton County to donate blood again. Your local Red Cross Blood Center will be open Friday, July 23rd, in the basement of the First Baptist Church in Clanton from noon until 6:00 P. M. (Perhaps you do not know the American Red Cross is the nation's largest blood collecting agency and we in Chilton County have a responsibility in that we must assist in this important program in order to meet the blood need for both civilian and defense purposes. Although the Korean fighting has ceased Red Cross is obligated to furnish a certain quota of blood each month for defense. Our National Red Cross President reports we collected blood for civilian use at the rate of 145,000 pints a month in 1953 The organization also provided blood for defense purposes at the rate of 167,000 pints per month. In addition to this Red Cross provided the Office of Defense Mobilization with more than 9,000,000 CC's of Gamma Globulin during the year 1953; the G. G. to be used in treatment of measles, jaundice as well as a weapon against paralysis from polio. Everyone physically able should "Give The Gift of Life" to help protect the blood donor and his family as well as to protect the community in which we live; and last but not least - to protect the nation. If you are a regular blood donor, you are a blood owner; for in time of need for blood you and your family will be provided with as much blood as is needed without charge or replacement. When you give a pint of blood at your Red Cross Center you are given a blood donor card which is valid for 8 months, and at the end of the 8 months - you may renew the card and remain eligible to receive Red Cross blood at any hospital under the Birmingham Regional Blood Center; and of course this is a coverage for your immediate family also. It is only necessary that you present your valid blood donor card to the authorities at the hospital in order to receive free blood. You must have a card in order to receive blood, however, in strict emergencies the Doctor in the case is able to secure Red Cross blood for his patient provided that particular hospital recognizes our Red Cross Blood program. There are a few hospitals in this district that have not joined in with the Red Cross Blood Program. (The age limit as most of us should know - is from 21 years of age through 59 In some instances years old through 20 it is necessary there a release form be signed by the parent and the minor in the presence of a witness. We will have the forms at the local Blood Center for your convenience in such cases.) If you do not understand fully the rules of the blood program, contact the Red Cross office and same will be explained to you. (Pledge a pint of your life-saving blood now A pint of blood will save a life, and this life may be your own or that of someone in your family.)

We would like to take this opportunity to state Red Cross blood quota over the nation for defense has been increased this year. Let's do our part in Chilton County.

Officials Expect Bumper Crop Of First-Graders

This year's crop of first-graders is expected to be the biggest and best yet, according to Superintendent of Education J. H. Woodcock. Boys and girls who will become 6 years of age on or before October 1 are old enough to start to school on the opening day, Friday, September 3. Those whose birthdays comes after October I are prohibited by law from entering.

The Superintendent urges that all children expecting to enter school this fall make arrangements for getting the required shots if they have not already had them. These shots are for smallpox, diphtheria, and whooping cough and are given by the County Health Department If the family physician gives them, a showing from him will be sufficient

★ AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING" ★

WHEN the young son Jerry, of George W. Meyer, 309 San Jose Avenue, Los Gatos, California, brought home his first report card for the first semester, George and his wife realized they had one of those hard-to-handle, adolescent-age problems on their hands. The report was a disgrace to the boy as well as a reflection upon his parents. So George and his wife fell into the common error of scolding and punishing in an effort to stimulate the son into doing better work at school.

CARNEGIE

But things went from bad to worse—even the "hand of fellowship" applied to the "seat of learning" produced no good results. When the second, and equally disgraceful, report card was in their hands, they became desperately concerned, for they knew Jerry would have to repeat the year's work if he did not improve.

Then they decided to change their approach from the negative to the positive. The fact that they did not try it sooner, George says, was an indication of their own stupidity. They began showing sympathy in the boy's interests and listening to what he had to say—for a change. Soon they found themselves in a position to "motivate" Jerry to interested effort in his own behalf.

Today, because he is finding satisfaction in doing something he really wants to do, Jerry is one of the top ten in his class. He is happier, and a source of real joy to his mother and father.

IF PAST patterns hold good, approximately every fourth seat in the next Congress will be held by a member who wasn't there the previous session.

Long-familiar faces and often-heard famous names give an illusion of permanency, but four factors combine each year to change the face of Congress: Death in office, defeat at the polls, retirement and resignation. Together these factors produce a Congress-to-Congress change of about 25 per cent.

In recent Congresses, defeats and decisions not to seek re-election have accounted for most of the turnover. In the past three biennial elections—1948, 1950 and 1952—an average of nearly 80 representatives and 10 Senators were defeated in bids for re-election in their primary or November races. An average of 36 House Members and five Senators whose terms had expired did not run again.

During the past five Congresses, an average of two Senators and seven Representatives resigned during their terms. Death has taken an average of 10 members of the House and five Senators during each Congress since the 79th.

Although more than a dozen lawmakers served their country for 50 years or more since the First Congress in 1789, most Congressmen are less permanent residents of Washington. Since the first Congressman, average tenure for a representative has been about five years; for a Senator, about eight and a half years. But Representatives are elected for terms of two years, Senators for six.

When it takes over on Jan. 3, 1955, the 84th Congress is certain to have a host of new faces.

Several incumbents already have lost out in early primaries. Sen. Alton A. Lennon (N.C.) an appointee bidding for the Democratic Senate nomination was defeated in the May primary. Rep. Laurie C. Battle (D. Ala.) was also unsuccessful in a primary bid for the Alabama Senate nomination.

At least 20 other House Members have indicated they do not plan to run for their present seats. Three Senators, among them Lester C. Hunt (D. Wyo.), who died June 19, announced they would not run for re-election. Retiring are Sens. Edwin C. Johnson (D) running for governor of Colorado, and Robert C. Hendrickson (R. N.J.).

Since the present Congress was elected, 11 members have died. The Senators were Willis Smith (D. N.C.), Charles W. Tobey (R. N.H.), and Robert A. Taft (R. Ohio), in 1953; and Dwight P. Griswold (R. Neb.), Clyde R. Hoey (D. N.C.), and Hunt in 1954.

Adolph J. Sabath (D. Ill.) and E. E. Cox (D. Ga.) died in 1952 after their elections to the House but before the 83rd Congress was sworn in. Reps. Joseph R. Bryson (D. S.C.), Garret L. Withers (D. Ky.) and Merlin Hull (R. Wis.) died in 1953.

The present Congress has produced only three resignations, and all of them were of House Members. One of those who resigned, Clifford R. Case (R. N.J.), now is a candidate for the Senate. The others were Thomas B. Stanley (D. Va.), now governor of Virginia, and Morris Poulson (R. Calif.) now mayor of Los Angeles.

WELLSBURG LAWMAN

By Denny McClung

"WHAT'S troublin' you, Sheriff?" Gus Wheeler said. "You look like you got a mighty long face today."

Sheriff Fuller closed the door. "It's dern thing," he said, and up a folded newspaper. "What's the paper got to do with it?" Gus asked.

"Well, sir," the Sheriff said, "it seemed—on, say two weeks ago," glanced down at the paper before he continued. "This reporter for the State capitol happened to stop by here one day. Don't remember what for, but anyhow, got to talkin'. You know, about town, about my job—things like that."

"Don't see nothin' wrong with that," Gus said.

"Well, there wasn't. But the more we talked, the bigger I seemed. By the time I had sense enough to shut up, I had him thinkin' I was a big-shot law man, reckon—instead of just a deputy in small town, sheriff. It was kinda disgustin' the way I went on braggin' and boastin' like a regular pop-a-jay."

"Shucks," Gus said, "we all do a little talkin' out of turn sometimes."

"Yeah," Sam said, "but not to the city newspaper reporter, for where I played the fool."

"How so?" Gus asked.

"Uhh! Just take a gander at this," Sam said, and he handed the newspaper to Gus. "That reporter had to go and make a big write-up out of it. I sure didn't figure on anything like that." He relapsed silent while Gus read the piece.

Gus was chuckling by the time he finished. "Sure sounds like this guy's just seein' with crime," he said. "And you, Sam — why, you're practically a one-man F.B.I. and not the Hair-Trigger Kid."

"That's it," Sam said. "Just like I said—that's what everybody'll be thinkin' a joke out of me and I'll be laughed out of town."

"Don't take it so seriously," Gus said. "They'll all forget it in a day or two."

"I'm not so sure," Sam said. "Why, the nearest I ever get to enforcin' the law is givin' out traffic tickets to Lizzy Owens; every dad-burn day, I'm havin' to write out a ticket for Lizzy Owens. That woman's got no business drivin' a car, but what can a body do?—her bein' the Mayor's wife."

A car stopped outside and they both glanced up as a man entered. He looked around the store and then walked over to the window. Gus went around to wait on him.

When Gus got behind the counter, facing him, the man slid a revolver out of the holster beneath his arm. "Okay, friend," he said, "just start shoving the dough in that cash register out here on the counter."

Gus and the Sheriff rushed to the door when they heard the car start off. "Looks like an Ohio license," Gus said.

"Yeah," the Sheriff said. "I better get on that phone and notify the State Police. Maybe they can set up a road-block before he gets far. Might be able to catch him that way." He was already grinding the old-style telephone.

After a few seconds the Sheriff made his connection and talked hurriedly for several minutes.

The door suddenly opened and little Tad Richards entered the store. "Sheriff Fuller," he said breathlessly, "they sent me over to get you. Mrs. Owens just ran into some feller's car — just up the street here." He paused to catch his breath. "Said to tell you he must be from Ohio — got Ohio license on his car. He don't seem to be hurt, but he can't get out of the car. It's all bunged up and he can't get any of the doors open to get out. They said for you to come right up," he continued. "Said you'd sure do more than just give Lizzy Owens a ticket this time."

ISABELLA NEWS

Mrs. J. H. Wells — Phone 653-R2

There was a fair congregation at Mulberry Sunday. We will need 116 present next Sunday to have an average of 100 present for this year. Bro. J. W. Jones will bring the morning message. In his absence Sunday night, Bro. James Jones, Chilton Unity Missionary, will deliver the message. Our pastor will be the evangelist in a revival at Mt. Pleasant next week, which begins Sunday night.

There will be a cemetery cleaning at Mulberry next Saturday July 24. Come early, bring necessary tools to work with, also cool water to drink.

On Saturday night July 24 the young peoples rally will meet at Mulberry at 7:30 p.m. All our young people are expected to be present. Our older people will enjoy the services too. Refreshments will be served.

The Jr. GA's of Mulberry will meet with Charleen Cummings on this Thursday, July 22 at 2:00 p.m.

Don't forget the summer revival will begin at Mulberry the second Sunday in August. Rev. Kirk Lucas will be the evangelist.

The Mable Woodward circle met with Mrs. R. R. Webster July 14. After the business session a missionary program was given. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Watch for the signs on the road about Mulberry church, that this circle has put up. We want to take this opportunity to thank them for them.

Are you reading books from the Mulberry library?

A Reception—

On Thursday evening July 15th Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Tucker entertained many of their friends at their home with a reception honoring their son, Franklin and his bride.

The house was decorated throughout with summer flowers and candles.

Punch and cake were served from a lace covered table in the dining room.

As each guest arrived Mrs C H Plemmons and Miss Edna Earl Tucker, sisters of the groom, served them punch and cake.

Misses Jennelle Hayes, Emogene Cummings, Ramona Tucker and Ophelia Conway assisted with the brides book and gifts.

This community extends its congratulations to Pvt. and Mrs. Franklin Tucker on their recent marriage in Lawton, Oklahoma. They are spending their furlough here with the former's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Judson Bray and son of Fort Jackson, S. C., visited their parents and other relatives in Chilton County this past week end. They attended services at Mulberry Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Erby Dobbs and Rickie of Montgomery were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Wells. They attended the Dobbs reunion at Shiloh Sunday.

Mrs. Maud Roseuberry attended the homecoming at Mt. Nebo Sunday.

Miss Catha Conway of Montgomery is visiting Mrs. J. M. Bryant and other relatives here this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Cleve McGee of Burnsville visited Mr. and Mrs. Homer Ratliff and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis McGee the past week end.

Mrs. Emma Manning returned home last Thursday after spending a week at Panama City, Fla. She is improving from her recent illness.

Mrs. Gordon Conway underwent a minor operation at the Selma Baptist Hospital last week. She is doing nicely at her home.

Mrs. Ettie Bryant had the misfortune to cut her leg last week. She had to have several stitches made on it. She is able to be up on it and it isn't giving her too much pain.

Bryant Reunion—

On Sunday, July 18, the annual reunion of the Bryant family was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Bryant.

The family began gathering early in the morning with well filled baskets of food. They enjoyed the morning sitting under the big oak in the yard, talking over things of the past, laughing and telling jokes.

At noon a bountiful lunch was spread on the table in the dining room and on the back porch. Before eating Rev. Will Bryant, one of the brothers offered thanks for the day, occasion and food. Each one present enjoyed this delicious meal together.

Those who had a part in this happy occasion were: Mr. and Mrs. Jim Bryant, Mr. and Mrs. Cletus Holly and Pete, Mrs. Coy Bryant, Sonja and Myra, all of Old Hickory, Tenn.; Mr. Burney Bryant and Linda, Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Bryant, all of McCalla, Ala.; Mrs. John A. McEwen and children of Grant's Quarry; Mr. and Mrs. Lawson Bryant and Thurston D. of Hanover; Mrs. Bessie Howard, Mr. and Mrs. John Howard, all of Hissop; Mr. and Mrs. Pasco Bryant and Patricia of Rockford; Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Bryant, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Culver and sons, all of Sylacauga; Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Thomas and daughters of Stewartville; Mr. and Mrs. James Arnold Bryant, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Bryant and sons, all of Birmingham.

Others that enjoyed this day out-side the Bryant family were: Mrs. Emma Manning, Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Lecroy, Mrs. W. T. Tucker, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Conway, Ophelia and James Olin, Mrs. J. H. Wells and Congar Cummings of Isabella. Also Rev. J. W. Jones of Thorsby, Wilbur Speer of Birmingham, and Miss Catha Conway of Montgomery.

The afternoon was spent in picture taking, watermelon eating and just being together. At about four p.m. the crowd began to seperate, all expressing their joy of being together again.

Cooper-Tucker Wedding—

Miss Betty Caludine Cooper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Cooper of Lawton, Okla., became the bride of Franklin D. Tucker, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Tucker of Isabella Community on Saturday, July 10, at 7:30 p.m. at a double ring ceremony.

The wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George, brother-in-law and sister of the bride.

The bride's attendants were her sister, Mrs. George Broome, as matron of honor and her neice, Miss Gaye Lunn Broome, as candle lighter.

Pvt. Ivan McMasters of 546 Military Police, Co., Fort Sill, served as best man.

Rev Robert N. Hammons of Trinity Baptist Church of Lawton officiated.

After their wedding trip to Alabama and a vacation with the groom's people they will be at home in Lawton, Okla.

The bride is employed at Fort Sill. The groom is assigned to the 546th Police Co., Fort Sill.

Overgrazing of kudzu, sericea, and permanent pastures during July and August can do lots of damage to stands.

FIN-FAN ITEMS

By R. L. (Dick) SCOTT

The water on all Coosa Talla poosa Lakes is in great shape, the fishing calendar indicates excellent prospects, the moon is right, willow flies are out in large hatches, and fishermen are catching nice strings of Bream, Bass, Stripes and Crappie There you have it in a thumb nail report of the latest news on fishing in Central Alabama

Even though the weather is still hot and physical conditions are much the same as the past few weeks when prospects were slow, the fishy business of angling is greatly improved. The first signs of renewed activity among the Stripes appeared on Lake Lay last Monday Marion Easterling, Clanton, fished about the mouth of Sawmill Branch and caught a very nice string of Stripes and Smallmouth Bass. Mr. Easterling said that he had never seen so many schools of Stripes coming up and staying for such long intervals.

Fishing camp operators from Bla lock's nearest Lay Dam on up to Smith's near the shoals out from Wilsonville report an increase in the number of fishes being caught Lakes Yates and Martin, on the Tallapoosa, in their usuall good condition are producing nice catches of Bream and Bass. Lake Martin's 40,000 acres of meandering Tallapoosa River and tributaries offer all shades of water from Kowaliga's crystal clear to the Tallapoosa's stained. Take your choice and fish for Bass or Bream. Prospects are good in both departments. Martin Dam's 14 feet of concrete supplies Lake Yates with an abundance of cold fertile water and there on Lake Yates is another likely location for Bass or Bream. Some of the largest Bass entered in the Alabama Power Company Fishing Contest come from Lake Yates. The water is so cool as it comes through the turbines of Martin Dam that it is believed transplanted Trout would live and flourish in the lake below. Several Alexander City sportsmen are investigating the idea.

Contest entries have increased slightly during the past week and this fact should indicate the trend.

Lake Lay—

Blalock's Fishing Camp, above Lay Dam and near Clanton, reports: Preston Garrett, Clanton, used a black Jitter Bug in the river sloughs to a good advantage. Preston boated several nice Bass but his best catch was a 4 pound Smallmouth Bass.

Paul Burton's Service Station, Shelby, reports: C. M. Shirley, Leeds, fished Blue Springs Creek with a Cisco Kid and on his stringer was a 5 pound and 4 ounce Largemouth Bass.

G. O. Norred's Store, Tallalega Springs, reports: Harvey Thornton, Sylacauga, had his good luck fly fishing a popping bug on Peckerwood Creek. Harvey's Whopper Larsemouth Bass weighed in at 5 pounds, 1 ounce.

Lake Jordan—

C. P. Dick, Manager, Bonner's Fishing Camp, near Holtville, reports: Gordon Lewis, Montgomery, picked up four nice Spoted Bass from the river sloughs while fly fishing last week Gordon's best catch was 3 pounds, 3 ounces.

Lake Martin—

Kowaliga Beach Resort, near Kowaliga Creek Bridge on Highway No. 63, reports: George S. Smith, Hollins, Alabama, bagged a 6 pound and 6 ounce Largemouth Bass from the waters of Kowaliga Creek while fly casting a black and yellow popping bug.

We would like to hear from other Fishing Camps. Who caught what, how, and where is good news and should be passed on to all good fishermen.

Chief Alapoco Says: We should remember always that on water dangerous situations develop often with unexpected suddenness, but that prior preparation, knowledge and skill will avert serious consequences.

"Your Health" is presented by your physicians as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

HOARSENESS

What is hoarseness? It is a harsh, rasping quality of voice. Some persons naturally have clearer voices than others, but a hoarse voice is usually lower in tone than a person's normal voice. When hoarseness develops and continues, the condition becomes a symptom that must be investigated.

To understand the meanine of hoarseness, it is important to know something about the voice and its production. The nose, the sinuses, the throat, the windpipe and the lungs all play a part in the production of voice; but the voice-box or larynx is the center of voice production. It is situated in the center of the neck, and may be located from the outside by the Adam's Apple.

The most important contents of the larynx are two ribbon-like folds the vocal cords, which can be brought together or pulled apart, thus varying the space between them. The lungs act as bellows which force air through the space between the vocal cords which vibrate and produce sound. The rest of the throat, the nose, and the sinuses provide the resonance. The tongue, teeth and lips mold the sound into words or speech.

If the normal vibrations of the vocal cords are disturbed by swelling or by the presence of a growth, a hoarse voice results. Thus, it can be understood that hoarseness is not an illness in itself but rather a sign or symptom of a disturbance of the vocal cords in the larynx.

Hoarseness results from a number of conditions, ranging from too much cheering at a ball game to the serious hoarseness associated with diseases of the heart and brain.

When hoarseness persists for more than three or four weeks, a physician should be consulted. Its persistence could be a warning of the presence of any one of a number of conditions.

School Census Enumerators Are Calling In County

If a school census enumerator has not called at your home, he (or she) will be coming around before the end of the month of July. These enumerators will want certain information pertaining to the children in the family ages 2 to 20 inclusive. Among the information needed is:

The birthdate of each child (Use birth certificate if possible).
Highest grade completed
School to attend next year.
Place of birth.
Name and birthplace of each parent.

The information obtained in this census is used in many ways. It is used in determining how much school money this county will get. It is also used for legal evidence of obtaining drivers' licenhes, birth certificates, etc.

Parents can be helpful to the enumerator and themselves by having the information readily available, especially the birth certificates of the children to be enumerated.

To make scratches in mahogany "invisible," dye them with iodine

ATTENTION PARENTS OF FIRST GRADE STUDENTS

In order to protect your child and the children with whom he associates he should be immunized against those diseases for which there is an immunizing agent. Your child will be required to present to his teacher a statement either from a private physician or the Health Department showing that he has completed his "shots." Since a period of 8 weeks is necessary to complete the series, there being three shots given four weeks apart, the first immunization should be given soon so that the "shots" will be completed before school begins.

The Health Department clinic schedule is as follows:

Health Office, Clanton—Thursdays from 8:00 to 12 and 1:00 to 4:30.

Saturdays from 8:00 to 12.

Maplesville— Wednesdays from 9:30 to 11:30.

Thorsby—Fridays from 1:00 to 3:00.

Its wise to immunize

Around OUR HOUSE

by Kathryn Tucker Windham

These hot days, nothing interests the seven-year-old, the five-year-old and the one-year-old so much as swimming. At the mere mention of the word, they grab bathing suits and towels and are ready to go.

The seven-year-old has been taking swimming lessons at the Y, learning, she says, to "swim exactly right." She tried to pass her knowledge on to the one-year-old and the five-year-old, but they prefer to splash rather than try to swim.

"Mother," the seven-year-old said, when she came in from the lesson at the Y the other day: "I just love to swim in the Y pool because it's so clean. It's just full of chlorophyll."

The mother down the stree, the one with the big family, has had trouble keeping her refrigerator properly cold because her children kept opening the door so often to get ice water. On several hot days the refrigerator was opened so much that it didn't even stay cold enough to make ice in the trays.

She, being a smart woman, has the problem solved now. The first thing after breakfast each morning, she fills her big picnic jug with ice water and puts it on the kitchen table. Now, when her children want a drink of cold water, they get it from the jug instead of the refrigerator. And there's plenty of ice in her refrigerator when she wants it

This same smart mother has worked out a solution, too, to the never-ending task of washing glasses. She tried using paper cups but that practice proved a bitt too expensive. Now, she has colored plastic glasses, a different color for each child, and puts them on the table by the jug of ice water.

"It's certainly a relief not to find the sink cluttered with dirty glasses each time I go into the kitchen," this neighbor confided. "I used to wash so many glasses every day it made me wish we all drank water from a gourd the way we used to do at Grandmother's house when I was a child."

This neighbor's sink didn't have any dirty glasses in it, but it did have several small potted plants in it. She had put the plants in the sink to wash the dust off the leaves.

She hooked a small shower spray, the kind so useful in giving home shampoos, to the cold water faucet and gave the plants a gentle bath

* * *

The next door neighbor, when she heard about using the shower spray to clean plant leaves, said she always used a clean insect prayer filled with water to wash the dust from her plants, claims it is gentler and works better than a shower spray.

Our good cook neighbor has been cooling off with lemon pineapple ice cream made like this:

Heat 1 No. 2 can pineapple juice. Combine 1 package lemon pie filling with 1 cup sugar and 5 tablespoons cold water Add to pineapple juice and cook slowly, stirring constantly, until mixture boils. Cool. Beat 1 tall can of chilled evaporated milk until consistency of whipped cream Fold into lemon-pineapple mixture. Freeze in refrigerator tray until just firm, beat until fluffy and continue freezing. Garnish each serving with shavings of chocolate.

Fred L. Kelley, a Maplesville boy, tells us how he feels about winning the talent contest last Monday night June 28th, at the Clanton Airport. Here are Fred's words when Shorty Sullivan handed him the twenty-five dollar check: "Thank you very much, Shorty. I want to humbly thank the folks here tonight. I appreciate it from the bottom of my heart."

To those that do not know about it, this talent hunt in being made through-out the southeast by Shorty Sullivan and the radio station in Montgomery, that he works for and broadcasts on. At the end of this year the winner that was picked from each town will be eligible to compete in Montgomery for the grand prize. The grand prize winner will receive one thousand dollars in cash, a recording contract and other prizes. Fred L. Kelley, of Maplesville, will represent Clanton and Chilton County at the end of the year in the big contest. From the above words in quotation, we know that Fred will appreciate your support in the contest next December and I know he will be there doing his best to bring home to Chilton County a winner.

DALE CARNEGIE

★ AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING"

WHEN Mrs. Nelva S. Purdon, 349 South Pacific, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, lost her husband, she was scared of the future. She was afraid she couldn't meet the competition of younger girls in the business world, afraid of the loneliness, afraid she would become a discontented, sour, crabby, old lady.

She realized it was up to her to overcome her fear. She must not sit and worry over the future; there was the present to consider. So she read all the inspirational things she could: the Bible, "How to Stop Worrying and Start Living," and Dr. Peale's book "Guide to Confident Living." She prayed. She had judgment enough to realize she had to control her thinking, and soon she found that the only way to do that was to keep busy.

CARNEGIE

She took a brush-up course in shorthand and typing and got a job. That was the first hurdle. Next she took some "hobby courses," dresden china painting, millinery, and a course at Carnegie Tech for self-improvement. She took up bowling and golf, which she had never done before and she planned trips for the special days and holidays, working at keeping busy as she had never worked before.

As a result of her efforts, she says she is so busy now that her friends complain that they can never reach her. But she has less time to think of the past or worry over the future. She is living one day at a time, and has achieved some degree of peace of mind which she never thought possible three years ago.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

Congratulations to Mrs. Wallace Cox on her winning the $50 in the A-J Ad survey conducted in the Montgomery Advertiser - Journal. Mrs. Cox told the reporter that she got up a 5 a.m. to write her winning ballot. Now what is that old saying about the early bird getting the worm?

Ralph Johnston, who operates the Upchurch Drug Company, needed some plastic cups the other day. Well a salesman came along who represented a supply house in Los Angeles, California so Ralph gave him an order for the plastic cups. The cups finally arrived and when they did—Ralph discovered they were manufactured at Alabaster Alabama, just 35 miles to the north of Clanton.

Buck Varden is picking up dead animals again. The next time your horse drops dead under you call Buck. He'll take him off your hands, or legs, or wherever he dropped. Oh yeah, glad to see Buck up and out again. He has been on the ailing list.

"You have been charged with fighting," said the judge. "Have you any explanation?"

"Well, Your Honor," said the defendant, "it was like this. I was in a phone booth talking to my girl when this guy comes up and wants to use the phone. He opens the door, grabs me by the neck and tosses me out on my ear."

"Then you got angry?" asked the judge.

"Yes, a little," answered the man. "But I didn't get real mad until he grabbed my girl and threw her out, too."

A CARD OF THANKS AND APPRECIATION

We are entirely lost for words when we try to thank our friends in Chilton County and Alabama, for their many acts of kindness and their attention, during the funeral rites of our mother and grandmother, Mrs. Mark Tucker.

The flowers were beautiful, your words of encouragement wer priceless and your many cards of sympathy were a comfort to us all. We will not try to thank any individual person or group, but will always remember and hold dear the many who were there to lean on in our bereavement. May God bless each and every one of you.

Mt. Pleasant Now Has Church Bell

Through the courtesy and kind feelings of the L & N Railroad the church at Mt. Pleasant has been given an old engine bell that is no longer useful in that respect, but is pretty effective in calling folks to church.

The Railroad has been benefitting churches throughout the South with this service for many years and is to be commended for it's generous and useful efforts in helping others.

POST 206 AMERICAN LEGION GIVE BIBLE

Mrs. Felix Eiland, of Thorsby, has been presented a bible by Post 206 American Legion.

Mrs. Eiland is a shut-in and was able only to attend church services at her radio. The Legion learned of this and presented her with a beautiful bible to enable her to more fully enjoy the study of the scriptures.

Little Leaguers Change Schedule To Night Games

Beginning Friday night July 30, all regularly scheduled games on The Clanton Little League will be played at night. As in the past, town playing date will have a double-header scheduled so that all four teams will participate. The only difference will be that the first game will begin at 6:00 p.m.

If you have been following the Little League you know that the Lions won the first half championship. Mack Downing, pitcher-third baseman for the Lions is their leading hitter with an average of .458 He is followed by Don Jones, outfielder, with a .455 average. These two have stick help from Tommy Shelton, pitcher-shortstop, with .375, and Clarkie Hutchinson who hit for a .304 average during the first half play. Hutchinson has now left the team for a vacation and his catching duties have been taken over by Albert Grammatas.

The Methodist Braves are leading the league for the second half of the season—after finishing last for the first half. Their leading hitters during first half play were: David Puckett at .633, Jimmy Tiffin with .455, Harold Wright, .320, and Michael Mims at .300. Windell Hays joined the team late and wound up the first half hitting .571.

The Kiwanis White Sox have hitters that can really tag that ole apple, too. Joe Howard Johnson led them along at an even .600 clip. He was followed by Larry Culpepper with .529, Tommy Tiffin with .441, and Marvin "Buddy" Vines with .401. They lost Culpepper to the mumps, but he is back ready and rarin' to go.

John Will Wyatt lead the Junior C of C Cardinals for the first half with a .500 average. Wayne Little was next in line for stick work with .375—and that is good hitting for a pitcher. Jimmy Dennis was third best for the Cardinals with an average of .361.

These figures are released from the records of the official scorer, Mr. Lloyd Mims. If you have any interest in Little League, we hope you will come out and support your favorite team each Tuesday and Friday evening at 6:00 p.m.

Highlight Of '54 Fair

Plans Are In The Making For Dairy Maid Contest

One of the highlights of the 1954 Chilton County Fair will be the 4-H Club Dairy Maid Contest held in connection with the Dairy Cattle Show. Plans are being made to have each school select a 4-H girl for the Contest during the annual 4-H picnics which are to be held the first week in August. Each school should select at least one girl or other girls may enter the Contest by contacting the Home Demonstration Agents. Each contestant is to have a 4-H Club boy as an escort for the Contest.

Mrs. Jannie Lane announces that the contestants will be judged on the following points 4-H project record, leadership, appearance, personality and poise. Records must be in the Home Demonstration Agents office by Wednesday, September 1st. Plans are being made to have the contestants appear before the judges before the day of the contest. For the Contest the girls will wear the official 4-H Club seersucker skirt and jacket with trimmings—green and white striped white dickey.

The County Dairy Maid will enter the District Contest which will be held during the District Dairy Show in Bessemer, September 17th-18th. The District winner will then attend the Alabama State Fair in Birmingham, October 5th-7th.

Seven To Go From Chilton In August Draft Call

Alabama Selective Service has been called upon to turnish 836 inductees during August for the nation's armed forces.

Of the number called Chilton County has been called upon to furnish seven men. No man will be called who is under the age of 20 Colonel Johnson said.

Red Cross Thanks Blood Donors

The Chilton County Chapter American Red Cross would like to take this opportunity to thank each and everyone of the volunteers who assisted in our blood center, on Friday July 23rd

Also we greatly appreciate the donations made to our canteen by Mr. Williams of Hi-Land Dairy for the milk, and Mr. Penn who donated Coca Colas.

We especially would like to thank the three Doctors who so ably rendered their services. Namely Dr Charles Moore, Dr. Joe Moore, and Dr. C. O. Lawrence.

KOREAN GI BILL DEADLINE

Korean Veterans who were discharged on or before August 20, 1952 must be in school or training on or before August 20th. The Chilton County Board of Education has made it possible for those who have finished high school or for some other reason can not leave this county to take advantage of their schooling benefits to take a business course right here in Clanton—provided that the minimum of 16 veterans and non-veterans see fit to enroll in this business course. The proposed course consists of bookkeeping, business law, typing, business machines and other related subjects. Anyone interested in taking this course should contact Francis Speaks, Head Veterans Teacher, Howard Boockholdt County Supt. Education or Bob Fullen, Veterans Service Officer not later than August 1.

VETERANS ASKED TO DON CAPS AT MEMORIAL

Service organizations in Chilton County have been asked to wear their service organiaztion caps at the Blackwood Memorial Singing to be held here on August 4th.

Indications are that the Memorial Singing will be a sell-out and all service organizations will be well represented.

Summer Revival To Begin At Mulberry The Second Sunday In August

Revival services will begin at Mulberry on August 8. The popular evangelist Kirk Lucas will be the guest minister. You are invited to attend our revival and bring your friends with you.

52 People Will Win—

Mystery Farm Contest Beginning Next Week In Your Chilton County News

The new "Mystery Farm of the Week" feature will start next week in the Chilton County News, your community newspaper.

It is a series of 52 pictures of farms in Chilton County and one will be published each week. The idea of the contest is for you to guess who owns the farm—employes of the News do not even know who's farm will be published.

Pictures were taken by a pilot who flew over the county and shot pictures of outstanding farms at random. Owner of the "Mystery Farm" each week will be given a large framed photograph of his farm absolutely free. Prizes will be given to the party calling the News office first after one p.m. Friday of each week after publication of the "Mystery Farm" picture has been printed. This time is set so that an equal chance will be given all subscribers no matter in which part of the county they reside. Understand the owner of the farm does not necessarily need to be the winner. If you recognize the picture of the farm before anyone else and call in first you are the winner and receive your choice of a $10 prize plus a one year subscription to the Chilton County News.

It will be fun to play. Watch for the first picture to appear next week. It may be your farm, or your neighbor's farm. Everyone is eligible to play.

Wreck In South Clanton Monday

Mrs. E. A. House was slightly injured in a wreck in South Clanton Monday night according to reports from the Clanton Police Dept.

Involved in the same accident was a car driven by Clifton Jones. Jones and his family were uninjured.

It is reported that the car driven by Mrs. House drove into the rear of the Jones car the impact splitting the lip of Mrs. House when her head hit the steering wheel. Eleven stitches were taken in her lip but she was otherwise unhurt.

VERBENA PARENT-TEACHERS TO MEET

There will be a meeting of the Verbena Parent-Teacher Association at the school Thursday, July 29, at 3 p.m.

All members are urged to attend.

To Take Office Wednesday- American Legion To Have New Leaders

According to R. L. "Bob" Fullen, Commander Chilton County Post No. 6, newly elected officers will be installed for the insuing year at their regular meeting next Wednesday evening at the City Grill Annex at 7:30 p.m.

All members and especially incoming and outgoing offiners are urged to be present for this very important meeting.

The American Legion Posts in the county with other Veterans organizations and Civic Clubs of the county are co-sponsoring the Memorial services which is to be held at the County Airport hangar next Wednesday evening at 8 p.m. and we will need to iron out some of the details regarding this service.

We Veterans in Chilton County feel that we have a two-fold interest in the coming memorial. Our beloved friends who were members of the famous Blackwood Quartet lost their lives and our own neighbor, friend and Comrade John Archie Ogburn, Jr., A-3c also answered the call of our Supreme Commander.

To all the veterans in this county the time has arrived when we must organize stronger than ever before and stick together. There are more than 2500 veterans in this county who are eligible for membership in one of the three organizations functioning in this county and all these veterans have at some time or another been entitled to and received certain benefits by virtue of their honorable service in some branch of the armed forces. These benefits did not just happen but it was through the combined efforts of our major veteran organizations that they were made possible. Let us not be selfish by accepting what those veterans who passed this way before us. Let us join the organiaztion of our choice and hold the benefits for those who might follow in our path. Membership in either veterans organization in this county offers much to the individual members. We must organize and speak with an undivided voice, regarding the future of our country or else the cause for which we served may forever be lost.

The ever greatful public that said that they would never forget us when we were proudly wearing our uniform in the service is so prone to forget. We are not a pressure group who believes that the world owes us a living but we do feel that we should be given an opportunity to rehabilitate ourselves into useful citizens and not be shoved aside as a pair of worn out shoes. We feel that our service to our country has given us a better insight and appreciation into and for our country than had we not many of us and our comrades shed their bloo din defense of our way of life.

There are many benefits to be derived from being a member of a veterans organization but if it only gave us the right to serve our neighbor and fellow comrade better it would be well worth our consideration.

Everything is now in order for us to continue the construction of our veterans home or club—a project being sponsored jointly by the Disabled American Veterans, Veterans of Foreign Wars and American Legion—wouldn't it be fine if every veteran in this vicinity donate a day or two's work to this worthwhile project? Hope to see you Monday night.—Y'all come.

Bob Fullen, Commander.

ANOTHER LOOK AT VOTING MACHINES

Voting machinery in Alabama is undergoing severe criticism, some of it justified and some of it unjustified. More counties than Russell County have been involved in the criticisms and accusations. It is time that strict attention be given to the manner in which we are conducting our primaries, for the first thing Alabama wants, intends to have and intends to keep in naming public officials and in settling issues by the ballot is honesty.

To our way of thinking this may be the strongest argument in favor of the use of voting machines. . . . to assure the accurate counting of the votes.

Voting machines are costly, but can you pay too high a price for elections honestly conducted?—Decatur Daily.

Let's transpose the last line: "you can not pay too high a price for elections honestly conducted.

STIFF PENALTY

By an appropriately unanimous vote, the House has passed a bill permitting the death penalty for persons convicted of espionae in peacetime.

Such a law now is in effect for wartime espionage, but the top peacetime penalty is 20 years.

It is not an esay thing to decree the death penalty but when the deadliness of the crime of espionage is measured, it is not an excessive penalty.

The so-called "peacetime" in which we now exist is not a time of peace at all. Our national security never has been more in danger. The threat of espionage and sabotage never has been more serious.

The intent of spies and saboteurs is not only to destroy life, but to destroy the nation. The drastic measure approved by the House may deter some, at least, and if not it will make it possible for them to draw the full penalty their crimes deserve.

For our safety, we hope the Senate gets that law on the books before the present session of Congress adjourns.—The Birmingham Post-Herald.

WALK SAFELY AND LIVE

The number of highway accidents that take lives of Americans constitutes something of a reproach both to drivers of automobiles and to those who walk along the highways.

A surprising number of pedestrians are killed by automobiles and, upon many occasions, the driver of the motor vehicle is not to blame. Pedestrians can adopt proper practices for their own protection and it might be a good idea for those who use the highways on foot to remember the following rules:

(1) Carry or wear something white at night—this will help the drivers of motor vehicles to see you. Remember that, very often, when two cars approach at night, the vision of the drivers is affected by the lihts.

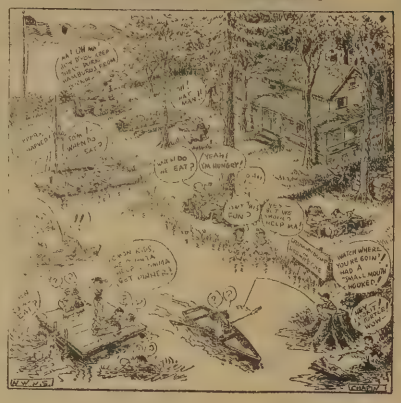
(2) In municipal and suburban areas, cross the highway only at cross-walks and, when using a highway in the rural area, look carefully for speeding cars before getting into the road. Moreover, watch traffic signals, especially lights, and look twice both ways before crossing.

Another rule, which may save your life, is not to go into the highway between parked cars. This is the cause for numerous accidents, particularly in urban areas, when pedestrians attempt to cross streets in the middle of the block.

For those traveling the rural highways, where there is no sidewalk, it is wise to walk on the left side, facing the oncoming traffic.

These rules have been given considerably publicity heretofore, but, because pepople are prone to forget them and sometimes inadvertently violate them, we give space for their re-publication. — Marion Times Standard

WEEK-END AT GRANDDAD'S



Report from Washington

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

Although the Senate was tied up in debate last week on the Atomic Energy bill, the House continued to grind out legislation with daily sessions that began early and ended late. The House was in session last Friday for 17 continuous hours, our longest single legislative day since the 83rd Congress convened.

Measures were approved by the House to provide supplemental funds for various departments of th government; to increase veterans' compensations; and to take away United States citizenship of persons convicted of advocating the overthrow of our government. Also approved were the conference reports on the Housing Bill and on the bill to provide additional assistance for vocational rehabilitation. A "package" measure calling for postal rate increases, a 5 per cent pay increase for postal employees, and reclassification of postal jobs and salaries failed to receive the votes necessary for suspension of the rules and passage of the measure.

Veterans' Bills Approved

Veterans who draw compensation for service connected disabilities will be granted a 5 per cent increase if a bill passed by the House last Wednesday receives Senate approval. The dependents of the service connected group will receive increases ranging from 14 per cent to 25 per cent. Senate approval seems likely.

On May 20 the House Committee on Veterans Affairs approved a measure that provided for a 10 per cent average increase in compensation for disabled veterans and the dependents of deceased veterans. This bill has been held up by the Rules Committee because the Republican leadership considered the measure too costly. Although every effort was made to bring the measure to the floor of the House, members of the Veterans Affairs Committee realized early last week that there was little or no chance of passing the original bill before adjournment. The measure finally approved by the House last Wednesday constituted the very best possible compromise that could be worked out by the Veterans Affairs Committee with the Republican Administration.

The compromise bill differs from the original bill offered by the Committee in that it permits only a 5 per cent rather than a 10 increase in compensation for service connected veterans, and it does not grant any increase for non-service connected veterans and the widows and children of such veterans. Bills covering these omissions have already been introduced, but without approval of the Republican leadership, their passage is unlikely.

On the same day, the House approved a measure to give Korean veterans an additional year to take advantag of their GI eduacional benefits. The measure adds a one-year extension to the deadline for Korean veterans to start and complete training under Public Law 550, 82nd Congress.

Postal Bill Defeated

The House failed by 38 votes to muster the necessary two-thirds majority to suspend the rules and pass a "package" bill that would have increased postal rates, granted a 5 per cent pay increase for postal employees, and allowed the reclassification of postal jobs and salaries by the Postmaster General, subject to a Congressional veto. This measure, limited to only 40 minutes debate, was supported by the Republican Administration.

After the House vote, a petition to discharge a 7 per cent pay increase bill from the Rules Committee granted the necessary 218 signatures. The parliamentary situation prevents action on the discharge petition until August 9. Unless the Rules Committee changes its position on this bill, Congress will have to stay in session until the August 9 date if further House action is to be had on a separate pay increase measure. Democratic leader Sam Rayburn (Texas) stated during the debate on this measure that Congress probably would not adjourn before the House had an opportunity to vote for a postal pay raise without the mail rate increase challenged, however, by majority attached to it. This statement was leader Charles Halleck (R-Ind.)

Supplemental Appropriation

The House approved a $1.3 billion supplemental appropriation bill last week and now has only the foreign aid appropriation bill to enact before adjournment.

In passing the supplemental bill, the House restored 14 per cent of the 40 per cent cut recommended by the House Appropriations Committee. An amendment was approved to restore $22 million for construction of airports under the Federal aid program which the Appropriations Committee had eliminated completely. The Committee had also cut out all funds in this bill for federal aid to states for hospital construction, but the House restored $15,700,000 after refusing to agree to the full $35,000,000 requested by the Administration. The $15,700,000 will be apportioned to the states with no state receiving less than $300,000. The money is to be used for building hospitals for the chronically ill, for nursing homes, rehabilitation facilities and diagnostic and treatment centers.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

INSECTS AND DISEASE

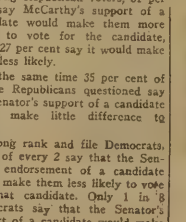
Flies are a nuisance and a menace to health. They carry thirty or more diseases, including typhoid, dysentery, cholera, diarrhea and tuberculosis.

As many as 25,000,000 microbes have been found on one fly's body. Imagine the trail of contamination left by a single fly allowed to light on the family dinner table. The fly spits up his food before feeding, causing "fly specks" on their resting places; so food standing about in uncovered dishes may be heavily contaminated. Dystentery germs, for example, may live in the intestines of the fly for about five days. Since the travel distance of a fly is about eight miles in one day, one can readily understand the danger of this method of contamination.

With the advent of many new insecticides, the health menace of the fly has been reduced. Every effort should be made to cover breeding places of flies and mosquitoes preventing the young of these insects from growing to their stage of maturity when they can fly about. Garbage cans and manure heaps are likely breeding places for flies; stagnant pools of water are favorite breeding places for mosquitoes. Old cans or bottles, roof drains, lily ponds, sewer basins and similar water should be hunted out and sprayed with an insecticide.

While certain insecticides have been called miracle performers, they are not a substitute for hygiene and cleanliness. Homes that are not kept clean are a big menace to human health. Soiled dishes and garbage standing in kitchens are an invitation to insects, particularly flies and cockroaches.

As science advances to bring about effective control of the insect population, the citizen must cooperate by keeping his body and home clean.



40% WOULD BE AGAINST A McCARTHY ENDORSED CANDIDATE

20 Percent More Likely To Favor McCarthy's Choice

Princeton, New Jersey—How much influence would Senator McCarthy have with voters across the nation if this November's all-important elections were being held today.

Results of a United States Poll completed last week show that exactly 2 out of every 5 people questioned say that the Wisconsin Senator's endorsement of a candidate would make them less likely to vote for that candidate.

And 1 out of every 5 say that the Senator's endorsement would make them more likely to vote for that candidate.

In other words, among those voters who say their vote would be affected by Senator McCarthy's endorsement, the number saying they would be less likely to vote for McCarthy's endorsed candidates outnumber those saying they would be more likely to by a margin of exactly 2 to 1.

To determine the effect that Senator McCarthy's endorsement of candidates would have at this time, the United States Poll put the following question to a cross-section of the nation's adult citizens:

"Suppose Senator McCarthy comes to your state during the election campaign this year and give speeches in favor of certain candidates. Do you think you personally would be more likely or less likely to vote for a candidate who has McCarthy's support?"

The results:

NATIONWIDE

More Likely	20%
Less Likely	40
No Difference	28
No Opinion	12

Among Republican voters, 31 per cent say McCarthy's support of a candidate would make them more likely to vote for the candidate, while 27 per cent say it would make them less likely.

At the same time 35 per cent of all the Republicans questioned say the Senator's support of a candidate would make little difference to them.

Among rank and file Democrats, 1 out of every 2 say that the Senator's endorsement of a candidate would make them less likely to vote for that candidate. Only 1 in 8 Democrats say that the Senator's support of a candidate would make them more likely to vote for that candidate.

The vote by political party affiliation:

More likely: Republican 31 percent, Democrat 12 percent, Independent 20 percent.

Less Likely: Republican 27 percent, Democrat 52 percent, Independent 36 percent.

No difference: Republican, 35 percent, Democrat 34 percent, Independent 25 percent.

No opinion: Rep. 7 percent, Dem. 12 percent, Indep. 119 percent.

It must be understood that today's finding reflect sentiment for that nation as a whole. They cannot, for example, be applied to any single Congressional District or state.

In this connection, the vote by geographical regions in today's survey is worth examining.

More likely: East 23 percent, Midwest 21 percent, South 1 percent, Far West 19 percent.

Less likely: East 38 percent, Midwest 45 percent, South 40 percent, Far West 35 percent.

No difference: East 27 percent, Midwest 22 percent, South 31 percent, Far West 37 percent.

No opinion: East 12 percent, Midwest 12 percent, South 13 percent, Far West 9 percent.

THORSBY NEWS

ESTELLE HAYES

Miss Helen C. Jenkins and Mrs Sarah Jenkins were recent dinner guests at the home of Miss Ruth Ford and Mrs. Ford in Dalton, Massachusetts. Miss Ford, a former teacher at Thorsby Institute, lives in Dalton in the summer. Dalton is not far from Cheshire, Massachutts, where Mrs. Jenkins and Miss Jenkins have a home. They are spending the summer in Cheshire.

News of interest to some might be the wedding of Lawrence Sherwood Stanley to Rebecca Joenne Barton of Greenville, South Carolina. Sherwood is the son of Rev. Stanley who was at one time pastor of the Thorsby Congregational Church and was also President of the Board of Trustees of Thorsby Institute. The young couple are at home at 303 Dakota Avenua, Greenville, South Carolina.

Sgt. James Blackmon left Monday for Ft. Hood Texas after a furlough of 10 days here.

Mr. Herbert Lowery of Ft. Worth Texas, and Mr. and Mrs. Gresham Lowery of Onley, Ill., visited their mother last week.

Lutheran Church

The services next Sunday afternoon will be conducted by Rev. J. Russell Boggs of Montgomery. You are cordially invited to attend.

Don't forget to make your plans to attend the annual home-coming on August 15th. We invite our friends to join us on this day. The service will be held at 11 a.m. with Rev. Dexter Moser of Birmingham as the speaker. After the service a "pot luck" dinner will be served at the Institute dining hall. Do plan to be with us and help us make this a big day of Christian fellowship.

Mrs. A. E. Reagan and Miss Naemi Turnquist returned last Saturday morning from a two weeks vacation which they spent in the Carolinas. They spent several days with the Kirkpatricks in Ft. Lawn, S. C. and also visited with Rev. Luther Fulmer in China Grove, N. C. Luther has a large church of some 325 members and is very happy in his new field. He wishes to be remembered to all of his friends in Thorsby. The return trip home was made through the Blue Ridge and the Smokey Mountains. They had a wonderful trip. They saw some wonderful country but as to crops, etc., none looked as good as did Alabama

Mrs. Anna S. Thornton of Waseca, Minn., is visiting with her sisters and brother and other relatives. She was joined here this week by her daughter and family, the Owen Clarks of Chicago. They stopped here enroute to Chicago after visiting in Florida with their son Bob Clark who is in the service in Jacksonville.

Burkette-Littleton—

Mrs. Lillian Burkette and Mr. Vollie Littleton of Thorsby were married Sunday afternoon at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Homer Carroll in the Concord community.

The bride wore a light blue summer suit with black accessories and her flowers were of white carnations.

Those from Thorsby attending the wedding were, Mrs. Estelle Hayes Mr. and Mrs. Vesker Aycock and Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Cox.

After a short honeymoon in South Alabama the couple will be at home in the Collins Chapel community.

We wish for this fine young a life of happiness together.

Henderson-Langston—

Mrs. Mae Henderson and Mr. E. B. (Razz) Langston were married in Mississippi last Saturday. They were accompanied to Mississippi by Mr. and Mrs. Shirley Rhodes

They are at home in Jemison.

Their firends with them happiness.

Mrs. Lowery Celebrates 84th Birthday—

Mrs. W. P. Lowery celebrated her 84th birthday on Sunday, July 25th with a big family gathering at Lake Forrest. A big dinner was spread under the trees and she had the pleasure of being with all of her children except Stella who lives in Jackson, Miss. Children and grand children and great grand children present were: Mr. and Mrs. Gresham Lowery and three children from Olney, Ill., Herbert Lowery from Fort Worth, Texas, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Lowery. Grand children were Mr. and Mrs. B. V. Ray and Eric. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ross and Gary, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Lowery and family all of Thorsby; Jack Lowery, Rev. and Mrs. Herman Lowery and mother, Mrs. Jimmy Baker of Clanton and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Lowery and family of Brunswick, Ga.

Mrs. Lowery's many friends join us in wishing for her many more happy birthdays.

American Legion Auxiliary—

The Golden Rule states the Kingdom's law of justice. No one has a right to demand of any other what he himself is not willing to do. What a measuring stick this is.

Our members of the American Legion Auxiliary contribute to the aims and purposes of our organization, the ideals of justice, freedom, democracy and loyalty, to our God, our fellowman and women and to our country.

As we set up our plans for the new year, we invite all mothers, wives, sisters and daughters of the members of the American Legion to join forces with us. It is a privilege that is coveted, and cannot be bought with money. The privilege of membership in the world's largest organization. The American Legion has been bought with the blood, sweat and tears of our veterans.

We invite you to become a full fledged member of our unit. Our next meeting night is Aug. 17.

The Golden Rule is our watch word.

To all we would say: "Let us as American citizens never kick down the ladder by which we climb up." Let us never forget the foundation upon which our freedom is based. A freedom bought and paid for by our own brave war heroes. Men who fought to preserve this freedom, we sometimes take so lightly.

THE PROMISE THAT NEVER FADES

"Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away." Matthew 24:35.

By this statement Jesus was drawing a contrast between things that are merely physical and those that are spiritual, and reveals the durability of the latter as over the former. A prevalent notion among the ancients was that there was nothing beyond the physical universe; the old earth beneath their feet, and the sun, planets, and distant stars above. Therefore they could not conceive of eternity or of infinte space. Their ideas were bounded by what could be seen by the natural eye.

This statement was a startling eye-opener to many of our Lord's hearers. There is actually something more enduring than mother earth and the starry sky! An unfading inheritance for those who take Jesus at His word! Heaven, something more than twinkling stars that some night will cease to twinkle! Amazing, and yet it must be true, though they, for He who said that was actually teaching His disciples to say, "Our Father, who art in heaven!" Actually teaching that there are spiritual realms wherein will dwell all who will take His eternal word to heart—realms of endless day! realms that will withstand the wrack of matter and the crash of worlds! Believe me, my word will do all that, says He.

The natural mind, however intellectual it may become, that refuses to follow the divine directive that we call the Bible, deceives itself, and thereby becomes the victim of certain myths. Well, what is a myth? The dictionary defines it as a legend, a fable, an allegry. You probably remember that the learned Apostle warned his young friend Timothy against the views of the worldly-wise, saying, "Neither give heed to fables (the same word as myths) which raise questions rather than godly edifying."

It might be helpful to the inquiring to mention at least two of the misleading myths, by way of example. For instance, there is the myth that the human mind is equal to every emergency in one's life. A careful study of the Book of Ecclesiates slays that threatening Goliath. Or, the Book of Job is, from the standpoint of human philosophy, the profoundest text-book on man's relationship to God that has ever been written, and smashes to pieces the myth of "I am the master of my fate."

One more myth in passing, if you please, for the space limitation of this brief homily forbids further enlargement of the theme. We will simply mention the myth of material achievement as the goal of successful living. A fascinating deceiver of the American mind is bigness; big business, big money, big social or political position. The big man is king. Over against all that, our Lord points to a beggar at a rich and ambitious man's door, or a destitute widow casting her two mites into the gift chest, despised by the big rich standing in the temple corridor. All things not consecreated by devotion to Him who was called "The Word" will rade away as will the physical heaven and earth. But the promise of the assured reward of those who obey the Word will stand forever.

Adventist Church

Sabbath School 9:45 a.m. with preaching at 11.

What did Jesus mean when He said, "Except a man be born again he cannot enter into the kingdom of God?" Explaining again Jesus said, "That which is born of flesh is flesh (fleshly) and that which is born of Spirit is spirit (spiritual). This simply means that like produces like. Human parents transmit a carnal, fleshly nature with its eventual fruitage of "adultery, fornication, uncleanness, idolatary, hatred, envyings, drunkenness, and such like" Gal. 5:19-21. But when that person is "born again" "born of God" (Jno. 1:13) and again like produces like and this "new born babe" (I Pet. 2:2) and this "born of the Spirit" nature brings forth furitage which corresponds to its spiritual nature, which are, "love, joy, peace, long suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness temperance." Gal. 5:22-23. The first birth is natural and the second supernatural. The first is "born of the flesh" and the second "born of water and the Spirit." The first is produced by human parentage and the second by divine parentage. In the first birth the "new born babe" is a partaker of human nature and in the second we are "partakers of the divine nature" 2 Net. 1:4.

TEMPLE NEWS

Sunday morning we were happy to have in our service Mrs. J. H Aplin of Mobile, Ala.

A special phase ot our service was the dedication of the little new daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Byler, Gloria Faye.

The guest speaker for the Sunday night service was Rev. A. E. Spence of the British Honduras. The Spence family had to return to the States for a few weeks due to the very serious condition of Mrs. Spence, but they expect to return to their field of work within a few weeks. Rev. Spence showed pictures of the conditions in British Honduras, and of how the Lord is blessing their ministry.

Last Tuesday night a group of the members and friends of Temple church gathered at the lovely new home of Mr. and Mrs. Amon Jones for the dedication of the home. Rev. Troy B. Helms read scriptures from 2 Cor. 6:1-4; 14-17; 39; 41. The beautiful song, God Bless This House, was rendered by the Coggins sisters, Norma Lou and Glenda Sue, and Delores Jones. The dedication prayer was offered by Rev. Helms

After the service everyone had the privilege of going through the lovely home. Refreshments were served to the following: Rev. and Mrs. Troy B. Helms, Betty Troy and James Noel; Rev. Mrs. Meacham; Mr. and Mrs. Coggins and daughters; Mr. Mrs. Acie Mims and daughs Mrs. D. W. Last Sunday there were good attendances at both services at Mulberry. In the absence of the pastor, Rev. J. W. Jones, the message was delivered by Bro. Paul Oden of Clanton on Sunday morning, James Jones brought the message on Sunday night. They were very inspiring sermons.

On Saturday night, July 24th, the young people's rally was held at Mulberry with a large attendance of young and older people. Rev James Jones presided. Special songs were rendered by Nora Jean Veazey, accompanied at the piano by her sister, Annette Veazey. She sang, "In My Father's House are Many Mansions," and "Have You Talked to the Man Upstairs." Bro L. L. Daniel of Thorsby brought a wonderful mesage on "Challenge to Youth." There were a number of young people who accepted Christ and re-dedicated their lives to Him.

Refreshments of cold drinks and cookies were served to everyone in the basement after the worship service.

The Junior GA's met with Charleen Cummings on Thursday, July 22, with seve nmembers present. A program from Tell was given. A picnic was planned for the next meeting.

Refreshments were served by the hostess' mother, Mrs. Bernice Cummings.

* * *

The Ruth Ford Circle met with Mrs. F. P. Carter on Tuesday, July 19th with a small attendance. After a brief business session a Mission ary program was given.

* * *

The Laurie Williams Circle met with Mrs. Emmie Manning on Thursday night with six members present. A missionary program from Royal Service was given after the regular business meeting. No special plans were made.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and Mrs. Maud Roseberry.

KENNY METHOD AIMS AT TOTAL REHABILITATION

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN. — The aim of the Kenny treatment of polio is "total rehabilitation."

Polio is a merciless disease, strikes different individuals in different ways. Its some patient duration is sh Others re long, tender alert care for month— years.

Prevent Polio Crippling! SISTER KENNY FOUNDATION

The Kenny method means that there is crippling, less deformity, less less need for braces, better function, and there is less surgery required.

The full Kenny treatment stresses importance of normal patterns of motion rather than mere degree of movement, which in turn means more hours of patient care from medical and paramedical specialists.

Follow-up care is an integral phase of the Kenny Foundation's rehabilitation program. Upon discharge, each patient and family receive careful counsel instructions and advice from Kenny doctors concerning future care. Patients then return for periodic check-ups and treatments as prescribed, for periods up to five years or longer.

That policy enables the Kenny medical staff to follow the progress of each patient until the maximum degree of recovery has been attained.

The Kenny treatment is made available to polio patients, regardless of age, race, creed or financial circumstances upon request of a physician.

To make possible the continuation of its many activities, the Kenny Foundation is now conducting its annual polio fund appeal. These activities include the training of additional registered nurses and physical therapists to become Kenny Therapists who, under medical supervision, administer the famed treatment; sponsoring of medical seminars; conducting medical research and providing emergency Kenny Therapist assistance.

Even though a safe vaccine for polio may be developed and comes into general use, as is the hope of all individuals and agencies dealing with the disease, the rehabilitation phase of polio treatment will continue a prime factor for a period of years to come.

Polio leaves some of its victims with residues which require months and years to combat. It is only by patient and tender care and attention that many such victims can be brought to the stage of self-sufficiency which keeps them from becoming burdens on society.

Grade of cotton is determined by color, smoothness (gin preparation), and amount of trash or foreign material.

Ladino, a type of white clover, is one of the best legumes for hogs and should be planted alone on good land for grazing.

To control mosquitoes and flies, spray all poultry houses inside and out with DDT or lindane.

INFANT SON OF MR. AND MRS. CURTIS E. RAY

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis E. Ray, of Thorsby, Rt. 1, died at the Central Alabama hospital July 25 at 9 a.m. Funeral services were held at 10 a.m. Monday from Cane Creek, conducted by Rev. Deason. Interment in Cane Creek cemetery.

He is survived by the parents; grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Ray of Clanton, and Mr. A. L. Chandler of Thorsby Rt. 1.

Spigener Funeral Home in charge.

CONGRESSIONAL Quiz

Q—How long has Washington, D. C., been the Capital of the U. S.?

A—Since 1800. The First Congress met in New York, and from 1791 to 1799, Congress met in Philadelphia. The second session of the Sixth Congress and all succeeding met in Washington. From time to time there have been proposals to move the Capital to cities further West, such as Denver, but no concentrated effort to do this has materialized.

Q—What are foreign tax credits?

A—To avoid double taxation, federal law permits U. S. corporations operating overseas to subtract certain business taxes paid to foreign governments from their American corporation-income tax bills. The effect usually is to limit the total tax—foreign plus domestic—to the sum which would be paid if the overseas firm were operating at home. As the foreign tax rises, the U. S. tax declines. Other tax concessions also benefit overseas investments, and President Eisenhower Jan. 21 proposed that Congress liberalize the laws further.

Q—Does recommittal kill a bill?

A—Recommittal — a floor vote to send a bill back to committee — is a device for killing a bill's chances for passage, except when the committee is instructed specifically to report it back to the floor (for example, with changes approved in debate). The bill remains alive in a technical sense in the absence of such instructions, but in practice it usually is then dead.

"I Like It Because . . . "

I'm sure, at one time or another, you've turned on your radio and heard the announcer say, with breathless eagerness:

"Listen carefully now! Here's all you have to do: Finishih this sentence in twenty-five words or less." That's all there is to it! Just finish that sentence and mail your entry, together with one box-top from the large sized package of their products and you may be the winner of one of the giant cash rewards.

Sure you've heard it, many times! Yet there is a very serious and important lesson to learn from the above, which is the reason we are calling it to your attention.

I am not an announcer and have give you one sentence to finish not nothing to sell, yet would like to with twenty-five words or less, but with only ONE word. That's all it will take.

What is the giant award? An accurate diagnosis of your present life. This is the important question: it contains but six words, your answer making the vital seventh. The significance of it is proven by the fact that it's found in the word of God, The Holy Bible.

"FOR ME TO LIVE IS . . ." How would you honestly finish that sentence?

For you to live is what?

CURRENCY? Money is some people's mania and master, but a life wrapped about a dollar sign learns that wealth often turns to woe; money becomes a mockery.

CREDIT? How come some pant after the plaudits of men, yet how past remembrance.

CAREER? Blind to everything quickly praise can perish and applause can become the agony of except business and making a name for themselves in this world, many fail to comprehend that the ever-living soul long after the game, the glass and the gamble are forever departed. There are many ways in which some people would finish that sentence.

If your answer is included with any of the above, then life for you is not holding all that it should.

It's comforting to know, however, that the Bible not only records this all-important sentence, but also reveals how one man gave it the satisfying finish. "For me to live is Christ." Can you say that? Those who can, by faith, have truly entered into the secret of life at its highest, its tallest and its best. But it is not secret at all, for what God has done for others, He longs to do for you. Life can be turned from misery into melody if you will accept Jesus Christ into your life and make Him a partner in all you do.

Burnett-Robinson Marriage Saturday

The marriage of Miss Shirley Anne Burnett and Edward Lee Robinson was solemnized Saturday, July 24 at the Ruhama Baptist Church in Birmingham. Dr. Carl G. Campbell officiated at the evening ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Wade Burnette of Birmingham. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Robinson of Clanton.

Malcolm Shelton and John Wade Burnette, brother of the bride, lighted the candles.

James Knight was best man. Ushers were Lloyd Warr, Malcolm Shelton, John Wade Burnette and Joseph L. Motes, Jr.

Maid of honor was Miss Martha Ann Jennings. Mrs. Charles E. Pace, Jr., Mrs. William E. Daniel, Miss Nelda Jordan and Miss Ava Ann Rodgers were bridesmaids and matrons. Lynn Williams, cousin of the bride was flower girl.

Attendants wore identical dresses in shader color of pink. Ruffles edged the scooped neckline and full-length sleeves. They carried baskets filled with astors to match their dresses and wore the same flowers in their hair.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her dress was of Chantilly lace and tulle with a low cut scolloped sweetheart neckline. The full skirt which was appliqued with lace fell into a cathedral train. She wore a finger-tip veil of illusion which was caught to a pearl-studded tiara. Her bouquet was of lilies of the valley and tube roses centered with a white orchid.

The bride's mother was dressed in peach lace and taffeta. Mrs. Robinson, mother of the bridegroom wore dusty rose lace. Their flowers were orchids.

A reception in the fellowship hall followed the ceremony. Serving were Mrs. J. Melbourne Cook, Mrs. Charles C. Douglas, Miss Mavis Wilson, Miss Willodean Gutrie of Jasper, Miss Anne Chancellor and Miss Geraldine Colburn.

For a wedding trip to Florida the bride wore a black linen dress with white accessories. After the wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Robinson will be at home in Birmingham at 7732 Ruhye ave.

Around OUR HOUSE

by Lollaya Tucker Moulton

The other afternoon, we went visiting on a big farm—a farm with enough sights to keep the children wide-eyed with excitement all afternoon. There were horses, cows, baby pigs, goats, new-born rabbits and waddling ducks. And, wonder of wonders, all the animals let the children pet them; even the goats submitted to a few caresses.

The one-year-old followed the ducks around and around the yard. The seven-year-old gave her attention to the horses. The five-year-old couldn't decide which of the animals he liked best. Once during the afternoon he ran excitedly into the house calling:

"Mother. The mama dog has twelve puppies!"

That seemed to be an unusually large litter, so I asked:

"Did you see them all and count them?"

"No," he responded. "I didn't see the puppies, but the mama dog has twelve milkers. I counted them."

* * *

The neighbor down the street—the one with the big family—has an old bathinette which she had used for several of her babies but no longer needed it since all her children had grown larger. Instead of discarding it, she converted it into an ironing table that is so convenient several mothers in the neighborhood have borrowed her idea.

She cut out one end of the canvas tub so that she can put rolls of sprinkled clothes in it and reach them easily without having to raise the top. On the top, she puts her flat pieces as she irons them. Other garments go on hangers hooked over the towel rack.

When her ironing is finished, she can fold her ironing board and put it away until she needs it again.

"This old bathinette is one piece of equipment I've really gotten my money's worth out of," she says. "Guess I'll be using it now until all the children grow up and leave home!"

* * *

Speaking of ironing, this neighbor cuts down on the time spent at this chore by stitching down the front facings of all the pajama coats in her family's wardrobe.

* * *

The next door neighbor, who has the prettiest flowers in the neighborhood despite the dry weather, came over this morning to ask if we had an old broom we were ready to throw away. She needed the handle, she said, to help in her gardening.

Like many of her requests, this one was puzzling until she explained that she wanted to replace the handle on her small hand trowel with a long broom handle so she could work around her plants without having to stoop.

* * *

This practical neighbor uses an ice pick in her garden, too. She says it is the best tool she has found for prying out stubborn weeds from her flower beds.

Our good cook neighbor brought over a seashore salad at suppertime last night together with the recipe. The salad disappeared quickly, but here's the recipe:

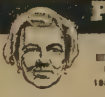
Soften 1 tablespoon plain gelatine in one-quarter cup milk. Heat three-quarters cup milk, 1 can cream of pea soup and 2 tablespoons vinegar. Dissolve gelatine in heated mixture. Chill. When it begins to congeal, fold in 1 cup flaked tuna fish, 2 tablespoons chopped pickles, one teaspoon Worcestershire sauce and 1 tablespoon minced onion. Chill until firm. This quantity makes six servings. (Distributed by Farrar's News Features)

For tinting cocoanut, fill a glass jar half-full of shredded cocoanut, sprinkle in a few drops of diluted coloring, ever jar and shake.

Dusting flour from a large salt shaker onto meats, fish or patties, saves a lot of unnecessary waste.

POLIO FACTS QUIZ

Prepared by the Medical Staff of the Sister Kenny Foundation as a public service.



SISTER ELIZABETH KENNY 1880—1952

Q. Has a Polio cure or preventative been found to date?

A. Gradually science is learning more about polio virus. But despite the constant testing and experimentation with new drugs, medications, vaccines, etc., the questions of how this disease can be prevented are still largely unanswered.

Q. What are and are not symptoms of Polio?

A. Symptoms: Severe generalized headache, moderate fever, stiff limbs and muscle weakness

A. Not Symptoms: Cough, cold, rash on body, redness of the eyes, or swelling of the limbs.

Symptoms frequently abate temporarily after an initial illness of about 24 hours, recurring within 2 or 3 days.

Q. What is the Kenny Treatment and who developed it?

A. Briefly, the Kenny Treatment includes first, hot packs and attendant procedures to lengthen shortened muscles. Second, neuro-muscular retraining of the affected parts. The treatment was first developed by the late Sister Elizabeth Kenny.

Q. Where is the famed Kenny Treatment available and who gives it?

A. Available at treatment centers across the country, and is administered under medical supervision by Kenny Therapists. The Kenny Treatment has become generally accepted and is the basis for the best treatment offered polio patients anywhere today.

Q. What precautionary measures should be taken during polio outbreaks or epidemics?

A. Normal precautions against exposure to communicable disease. Avoid contacts with new groups of people and swimming in polluted waters. Guard the cleanliness of everything taken into the mouth. Avoid over fatigue, late hours, worry or irregular living schedules. Removal of tonsils, adenoids or teeth during the polio season may be a factor in exposures and in elective operations a delay to a more favorable season is recommended.

Q. Why is the Kenny Treatment regarded as the most effective?

A. Because under the Kenny Treatment there is less crippling, less deformity, less pain, less need for braces, better muscle function and there is less surgery required. Complete recoveries under full Kenny treatment have been attained to a degree never before believed possible.

SUNDAY'S SERMON

REV. ROBERT B. HARPER

Christian Worship and Fellowship.
Lesson for August 1: Acts 2: 46-47. Corinthians 3: 12-17: Hebrews 10: 24-25.
Golden Text: Hebrews 10: 24-25.

Worship is an important thing in one's spiritual growth. As a boy, the writer heard his elders in the meeting sometimes thanking God that they were still on "praying ground." Later, he learned the full significance of this when he was told that some of the Christians of an earlier time had a special place where they went to pray. It was known as their "praying ground." How good it would be if more professing Christians should have not a praying ground, necessarily, but a set time to meditate and pray.

Public worship should be an uplift to the sincere Christian. It is helpful to meet with others of like faith and manner of living. If a larger number should attend church in the right attitude, there would be less criticism of the preacher and the choir. If they should go in the spirit of worship instead of going to be entertained, a great blessing would come to them.

Then we are to live as Christians in the every-day — forgiving one another, being compassionate and kind, and putting on love as the bond of perfectness. The word of God must dwell richly in Christians. And living as Christians includes behaving in a Christ-like way toward all men. By their manner of living they can show other men that they are true followers of the Lord.

Ponds infested with crappie and rough fish such as catfish should be drained as low as possible during August, poisoned, and then refilled.

The best time for catching fish in hot weather is late in the afternoon until dark and during early morning hours before eight.

Wood cut and seasoned in early fall will have greater heating value than wood cut and burned green during winter.

The Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Motley were Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Bennette and boys of Birmingham.

POULTRYMAN REPORTS ON JUNE EGG PRODUCTION

Auburn, Ala.—During June egg production in the U. S. was four percent higher than for the same period a year ago.

API Extension Poultryman John Weeks said in Auburn yesterday that egg production was up in regions of the country. Increases from last year were 8 percent in the West, 5 percent in the North Atlantic, 4 percent in the West North Central, 3 percent in the South Atlantic and South Central, and 2 percent in the East North Central states. And egg production for the first 6 months of this year was 1 percent more than during the same period last year.

The poultry leader reported that the rate of egg production in June was 16.8 eggs per layer, compared with 16.6 last year. And the number of eggs per layer during the first 6 months of this year was 100.4 eggs compared with 99.7 last year.

Weeks pointed out that the June the highest increase in the rate of eggs per layer was found in the South Atlantic section. Here the area showed an increase of 3 cent over June of last year

Mrs. Daisy Doss in Birmingham Monday afternoon were Mrs. John McKinney, sister-in-law and Mr. Archie and J. R. McKinney, nephews, and Mrs. Ezra Lee Lawley, a neice.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Eady of Evergreen, Ala., are the proud parents of an eight pound and five ounce son who arrived on July 12, 1954. Mr. and Mrs. Welford Kornegay of Brent are the maternal grandparents and Mrs. Theo Eady of Centreville, Ala., is the paternal grandmother. Albert Eady is the nephew of Mrs. Alice Reynolds of Plantersville. Albert, together with his wife has visited this section and have many friends who will be pleased to learn of this announcement.

Mr. Ben F. Roden of Marvel, Ala., is in the process of liquidating his coal mining operations there. He started in business in Marvel in July 1907 and through the years has produced millions of tons of coal, and has paid out millions of dollars in payrolls to his employees. Changing conditions forced him to close down and sell all of his equipment. Mr. Roden's business meant much to Bibb County and it is regrettable to see this business liquidated. Mr. Roden has many friends throughout Chilton and your reporter felt this news of interest in this and adjoining communities.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Miller of Williamsburg, Va., are now on vacation with their sister, Mrs. Billy Dennis, Mr. Dennis and family in Maplesville. While here Mr. and Mrs. Miller will visit relatives here and in adjoining communities.

Rev. Joe A. Davis brought the evening message at the Baptist Church Sunday night. His subject being, "God Claims All Souls."

We regret to report that Kenneth Houston is confined to the Veterans Hospital in Montgomery with a back ailment.

Rev. Joe A. Davis is now selling Watkins Products in Autauga County.

This community was made sad when the news reached here last Monday afternoon that Mr. Arthur W. Sims had died while on vacation in Texas with his wife, the former Clara Placidia Huff, and his mother-in-law, Mrs. John Huff, Sr. Mr. Sims died in Jacksonville, Texas, Monday, July 12, at 10.45 a. m. Mr. Sims body arrived Wednesday at 11:30 by rail and was carried to Breslin Service Funeral Home where he lay in state until Thursday morning. Funeral services were conducted at 10 a.m. at the Maplesville Baptist Church of which Mr. Sims was a member, with the Rev. W. F. Rasberry officiating. Interment in the Stanton Cemetery. Pallbearers were: S. B. Rogers, L. D. Weaver, Ira Dunsmore, Charles Schulwolf, Rufus Milligan and James Brasscale. Miss Ruth Hicks being in charge of flowers, was assisted by Mrs. Mauline O'Neal, Mrs. Eula Ruddick, Mrs. Ethel Perry and Mrs. Olivia Apperson. The floral offerings were many and beautiful. Arthur Wilson Sims was born in Atlanta, Ga. In early childhood he came to Montgomery. His mother and father died when he was four years of age; just 4 days apart. Mr. Sims was schooled in Montgomery and Andalusia, Ala. He saw service with the National Guard in the Fourth Alabam Regiment, on the Mexican Border from October 18, 1916 until March 24, 1917. This Regiment was a part of the famous Rainbow Division of World War I which was formed in 1917 at Staten Island, N. Y. Major battles in which Mr. Sims participated were in the Lorraine sector, Champagne Marne sector, Aisne Marne, St. Mihiel, Muese Argonne. Mr. Sims also saw occupational duty in Germany for one year. After returning to Montgomery Mr. Sims was employed by Sellers Grocery Co. there and after working with them for some time he began working for the California Packing Co. Mr. Sims was employed with this company as salesman in Alabama and parts of Mississippi and Florida.

Mr. Sims enjoyed good health until October of 1953 at which time his health started declining. He was taken ill at Palestine, Texas, and was rushed to a hospital in Jacksonville where he was pronounced dead on arrival. Mrs. Sims and Mrs. Huff were driven home from Texas by a grandson and nephew, Leon Huff, Jr., arriving here Tuesday afternoon. Survivors are Mrs. Clara Placidia Sims, one daughter, Mrs. Isla Sims Graydon of Montgomery; one son, John W. Sims of Montgomery; one grandson, Jules Henry Graydon of Montgomery; one sister, Mrs. O. L. Richards of Wetumpka.

Mr. Sims was a quiet person, respected and loved by all who knew him. He will be greatly missed. He stood for the better ways of life and was outspoken in his beliefs of the right way. He attended Sunday School and church regularly and loved the church. He was a member of the Rainbow Division Veterans of Montgomery. Sympathy is extended loved ones in their great loss.

Conservation Dept. Issues Creel And Bag Limits

Montgomery, Ala., July 34—Earl M. McGowin, Director of Alabama's Department of Conservation, today announced creel and bag limits and seasons for hunting, fishing and trapping during the coming state fiscal year which begins October 1st.

The new outdoor sports regulations allow hunters three deer per season or one additional over last season; a new bow and arrow hunting season on turkeys in certain areas; 40 half days of dove shooting compared with 30 half days last year, and one-half month earlier opening of the squirrel hunting season in the north half of Alabama.

Restrictions on hunting were stiffened in only one area of the state and then at the request of sportsmen. Deer hunting in portions of Jefferson and Walker counties where shooting of this animal is allowed will be legal only on Tuesdays and Saturdays during the open season except on Thanksgiving Day.

Fishing regualtions and creel limits were unchanged by the recent board meeting. There is no closed season on any species and creel limits remain as they were last year.

A major change in the trapping season on beaver will allow taking of this furbearer throughout the state during the open season. Trapping of beaver last year was limited to only a few counties. All other trapping seasons remain unchanged from last year.

The following season dates, bag limits and creel limits were approved by the Advisory Board to the Department of Conservation and will be enforced during the coming year.

LOIS TAYLOR

Omitted Last Week

Chestnut Creek Baptist Church—

We had a very good attendance for Sunday School Sunday morning and for preaching service. We also had a good number of visitors and extend to them an invitation to come be with us again.

We have a real good report to make on our Vacation Bible School. We had large crowds every night and very good cooperation. The children all enjoyed a trip to the Dairy Queen and the City Park Friday morning. We were proud of Mr. Bill D. Vane who is 81 and attended every night. We think this is a record. Our average attendance was 110.

On Saturday night of last week members of the Brotherhood and their wives of the Chestnut Creek Baptist Church and guests, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Williams and son, enjoyed a barbecue supper on the lawn of the church. Good fellowship was had and everyone enjoyed a talk by Mr. Williams.

The GA's met Wednesday for their regular meeting in the home of their counselor, Mrs. Crayton Taylor. Their program was "Islands of the Sea." Delightful refreshments were served to the nine members present. After the program they carried gifts to Mr. Richard McKinney. They sang songs and had Bible readings and prayer.

Mrs. Nell Nelson and Sharon of Montgomery spent a few days last week with Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Moore and other relatives

Wayne Glenn was the week end guest of little Steve Norton of South Clanton.

Mr. and Mrs. Berligh Edwards and Susan of El Paso, Texas, are spending a few days here with friends and relatives.

Mr. Lane Allen of Tuscaloosa spent Saturday afternoon with his mother, Mrs. Norma Allen.

Mrs. Dovie Lowery spent Sunday and Monday in Jemison with Mr and Mrs. Kermit Lowery and children.

Mrs. Albert Lucas of Bessemer is spending a few days here with Mrs. R. P. McKinney and Mrs. Alvin Driver.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Rutland and children of Birmingham spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs H. J. Taylor. Mr. Rutland returned home Sunday and Mrs. Rutland and children will spend the week here.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Matson and Bruce visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Matson, in Childersburg Sunday. We were glad to have Mr. and Mrs. Matson unite with our church Sunday.

House guests of Mr. and Mrs. Arhie Mc Taylor and Bob is Miss Chalice De Vaughn of Eclectic.

Rev. and Mrs. Hymon Atcheson took Gary Bryant, John Ellis Sorrell, Jerry and Wayne Atcheson to the RA camp at Shocco Springs for a week.

Bobby Is Five—

Little Bobby Taylor celebrated being five years old on Friday, July 16th, when his mother, Mrs. Archie Mc Taylor, entertained at the Community House.

The birthday cake was decorated in pink and white and held a pink candle for each of Bob's happy years.

As the honoree blew out the candles his friends sang the happy birthday song and the gift-wrapped packages were opened.

A jar of bubbles was given each guest as they left for home

Uncooked smoked meats stay fresh and sweet longer if wrapped in a cloth, saturated with vinegar and wrung out, and then wrapped in wax paper.

Alabama Highlights

The news that Alabama had voted at the January, 1861 convention to secede was received with cheers, booming of cannons and waving of flags in most parts of the state

Everyone was not happy in the Tennessee Valley over the news that the state convention of January, 1861 had voted to secede. There was much dissatisfaction there.

After Alabama had voted to withdraw from the Union in 1861, there was talk in the Tennessee Valley of that area breaking away from Alabama and becoming a part of Tennessee, which had not seceded.

One reason why Alabamians in the Tennessee Valley were against secession was the fact that much of their trade moved over the Tennessee River through Tennessee and there was a fear that this trade would be broken down or stopped altogether if Alabama got out of the Union and Tennessee remained in.

Secession was unpopular with many of the small farmers in the mountains and hills of North Alabama. Thy felt the action was the work of the big plantation owners (slaveholders) whom they did not liked.

While most Alabamians apparently favored secession, there were very who wanted war. Most hoped the North would not take such a step to keep the Union intact

A special session of the Alabama Legislature was called after the delegates to the January, 1861 convention voted to secede.

In anticipation of what might happen after secession was voted in Alabama, the Legislature in special session set up $500,000 for defense of the state. The governor was given power to sell $2,000,000 worth of bonds for defense

Delegates from the seceding states met in Montgomery on Feb. 4, 1861 and four days later the Confederate States of America became a new nation.

Jefferson Davis of Mississippi was chosen first president and Alexander Stephens of Georgia first vice-president of the Confederate States of America and Montgomery was named the temporary capitol.

Seventeen hundred types of wool, each with distinct spinning qualities, are produced on Australian sheep ranches. One bale of extra-superfine lamb's wool recently sold for a record $6.80 a pound.

So far as tonnage is concerned, American fishermen bring in more shrimp than any other shellfish variety. Crabs, oysters, clams, lobsters and scallops follow in that order.

CARTOON CHARACTERS URGE CONTRIBUTIONS TO KENNY POLIO FUND

Four of the nation's outstanding comic-strip characters are making cartoon appeals for contributions during the 1954 polio fund appeal of the Sister Elizabeth Kenny Foundation.

They are Bugs Bunny, Warner Bros., Cartoons, Inc.; Dennis the Menace, by Hank Ketcham; Donald Duck, by Walt Disney, and Jane Arden, the girl reporter.

Announcement that creators of the above comic characters have contributed their services by preparing special Kenny fund appeal cartoons appearing in nationwide daily and weekly newspapers, was made by Marvin L. Kline, executive director of the Kenny Foundation, at national headquarters in Minneapolis, Minn.

MARKET CULL COWS NOW RATHER THAN IN FALL

Auburn, Ala.—Move your unprofitable and cull cows to market now, rather than in the Fall advises John Parrish, API Extension dairyman.

There are a record number of cows on the farm at this time, explains Parrish. And this Fall large numbers of broilers and pigs will give the beef market heavy competition. Therefore, while the market for dairy cattle beef has some strength now, it will probably be low by Fall.

USE ORGANIC MATTER TO INCREASE YIELDS

Organic matter will increase yields of Spring vegetable crops; reports John Bagby, API Extension Horticulturist.

Since the manure supply is very limited, he advises farmers to put organic material in the soil by planting a Winter legume and turning it under in Spring. This organic matter will, in addition to aiding nitrogen to the soil, help hold moisture, make the land easier to work, and help prevent leaching of fertilizer.

Oats help protect soil and can be harvested as grain or hay.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

Doug Bullington is dead. Strong, efficient, friendly, hard-driving Doug Bullington—it's hard to realize. Doug was drowned last Friday while swimming in the Gulf of Mexico at Gulf Shores. He has meant much to Chilton County and a man of lesser statue would not have remained and fought for a better Chilton County against such odds. Most fellows would have said that the roads in our county could go back to ruts and mire and gone on his way but to Doug it was a challenge and he wasn't one to quit a fight. He was a man you could depend on. Our deepest sympathy goes out to Evelyn Bullington. We hope she is as strong as he and can face the future with her head held high because she has known and been loved by "Doug."

Take a tip from us and don't tell Bill minor that his eggs aren't as large, or as round, or as white, or as plump, as they should aught to be. Monday night Bill told us his hen eggs were medium and large and we contended they were small and medium. Well, we thought Bill was going to hatch a setting of them right then and there, things got so warm. You can talk about his honey, (bee honey, that is) his vegetables or his fruit but for the love of the old red rooster—don't talk about his nice fresh, medium and large eggs.

We want to congratulate Jack Hayes for being chosen as one of the all-time greats to play for the Chicago White Sox baseball team. It is quite an honor and one that Jack and Alice are very proud of we are sure. They are leaving Sunday and we wish for them a very happy holiday in their old "stamping ground."

We think this is appropriate for this time of year:

Beginning the first day of school, the teacher asked the new pupil her father's name.

"Daddy," replied the small girl.

"Yes, I know," said the teacher, "but what does your mother call him?"

"She doesn't call him anything—she likes him."

Hoover Moatts is back after a week at Shocco Springs at Talladega as Councellor for the RA's. With Hoover went Jim Mullins, Jimmie Boockholdt, Winston Wallace, Rossie Williams and Lucky Rollins. They spent a week and report a wonderful time. Once was when Shocco Springs was our playground. Long ago we used to go swimming out there and hiking over the mountains thereabout. That was long before it was a Summer Camp. It has grown tremendously since the Baptist made it their property and thousands enjoy the beauty of the surrounding countryside each summer.

Sorry to learn Milton Barth broke his arm Monday night. Seems Milton fell while going out his back door and off the steps onto the concrete driveway. He landed on his right hip and elbow and the elbow cracked. He is wearing a sling about this week. He said he had been talking about pulling a railing on those steps but kept putting it off. Most of us wait until the horse is stolen before we lock the stable.

Do you know what one little toe said to the other little toe? "Don't look now, but I think we are being followed by a couple of heels."

City Law Report

Chief of Police C. E. Tucker makes the following report on arrests for the week: VPL 3; Disorderly conduct 1; Public drunkeness 3; DWI 4; Highway drunkeness 6; Reckless driving 2 and speeding 2.

Marbury Baptist To Have Revival

There will be a Revival held at the Marbury Baptist Church beginning Sunday, August 15, and running through Saturday, August 21. There will be two services daily, one at 10:30 a.m. and one in the evening at 7:30.

Rev. Dick Baker will be the evangelist and Mrs. Barbara Baker the pianist. Rev. Robert Lowery is pastor. The public is invited to attend these services.

WHO OWNS THIS WEEK'S "MYSTERY FARM"?

Louis Smith At U. Of A. Next Week

Louie Smith, cashier of the Peoples Saving Bank, will attend a study course at the University of Alabama next week. This course is given annually at the University and was attended by Mr. Smith last year.

Jack Hayes Honored All Time All - Star

M. C. (Jack) Hayes received a signal honor this week when he was named on the All Time All-Star baseball team of the Chicago White Sox. He and Mrs. Hayes will leave Sunday for Chicago where Jack will appear with the other members of the team in an exhibition game at Comiskey Park on Tuesday, August 10th.

Hand Reunion

The Hand Family reunion will be held next Sunday, August 8, beginning at 10:00 a.m. at Poplar Springs Baptist Church, according to Curtis Hand, chairman.

All members of the Hand family and relatives by marriage are urged to attend and bring basket lunch which will be spread under the trees near the church.

The Veterans Corner

Here are authoritative answers from the Veterans Administration to four questions of interest to former servicemen and their families:

Q. I am a disabled Korean veteran, and I am planning to take vocational training under Public Law 16. Will I have to finish my training by July 25, 1956?

A. The 1956 deadline applies to disabled World War II veterans in training under Public Law 16. The training program for veterans disabled since Korea comes to an end nine years after the termination of the present emergency.

Q. I bought a house with a GI loan back when the top VA guarantee was $4,000. I'd like to sell my house and buy a larger one. Would I have any additional GI loan entitlement coming to me?

A. Yes. Your new GI loan could be guaranteed for $3,500—the difference between the $4,000 you already used and the current maximum of 7,500 guarantee.

Q. I'm getting a pension each month from VA. Is this money subject to Federal tax?

A. No. VA benefit payments, such as pensions, are not subject to Federal taxation.

Q. I'm planning to take on-the-job training under the Korean GI Bill. The firm where I want to train has applied to the State for GI approval. Could I start training now, before approval comes through, and receive my GI allowance?

A. No. The payments may not begin until after the firm has received its State approval to train veterans.

Who's Farm Is This?-

The above is a farm somewhere in Chilton County. Can you guess who it belongs to? Is it yours? If you think you know, turn in your entry to the "News" office before Saturday noon. A drawing will be held the following Monday and a lucky winner will be chosen. It may be you!

Mt. Pisgah Will Have Cemetery Cleaning Friday

There will be a cemetery cleaning at Mt. Pisgah Friday August 6, 1954. Everyone who is interested in the cemetery please come to clean all the grounds. Bring tools to work with. We plan to work again Wednesday, August 11, 1954 if the job is not completed Friday. Please come one or both of these days.

SOIL CONSERVATION NEWS

W. R. Lindbloom, Calera, Ala., Rt. 1, has recently bought part of the Mary Sue Moore farm in North Chilton County. "A complete soil on all my open land with water for my cows and let my land that has a stand of good pine timber stay, is the program I want" states Mr. Lindbloom. Mr. Lindgloom's first problem is to build one or more stock watering ponds.

Allen Lenoir of Maplesville, who is cooperating with the North Central Soil Conservation District, states "I will plant an acre of Coastal Bermuda and expand it over the rest of this farm with the exception of a five acre peach orchard." Allen is also planning on improving the pasture land on his home place.

Lynn Kidd visited the County last week and gave some pointers as what would qualify under the Stand Improvement of the ASC program Check your woodland and you might want to qualify under next year's program if this practice is included.

Young People To Have Rally

The Baptist Young People of the Chilton-Unity Association will have their semi-monthly rally Saturday night, August 7, at 7:30 p.m. at the Thorsby Baptist church. The speaker of the hour will be Rev. J. W. Jones, pastor of the Mulberry Baptist church. An excellent program of music has been planned by James Jones, Associational Missionary.

Following the services there will be a time of fellowship in the basement of the church. Rev. L. E. Daniels, pastor of the Thorsby Baptist church, extends a cordial invitation to all young people and adults.

Begins Revival At Verbena August 15

REV. J. E. FRANKS

Rev. J. E. Franks will begin a revival at Verbena the 3rd Sunday in August. Watch next weeks paper for complete details.
